Item 4: Advisory Business

HCM is an SEC registered investment adviser and a wholly owned subsidiary of Union Bank, N.A. (“UB”), a national bank regulated by the Comptroller of the Currency. HCM and UB’s ultimate parent company is Mitsubishi UFJ Financial Group, Inc. (“MUFG”), a Japanese-based financial institution. Please refer to Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations for additional information regarding HCM’s affiliates.

Including its predecessor organizations, HCM has been managing client assets since 1919, and has been registered as an investment adviser with the SEC since 1998. As of December 31, 2010, HCM has $16.6 billion assets under management, $14 billion of these assets are managed on a discretionary basis, while $2.6 billion are managed on a non-discretionary basis. HCM provides a variety of investment advisory services as described below.

Managed Accounts

HCM’s services may include some or all of the following:

- Assisting the client in developing and modifying investment objectives, guidelines and restrictions.
- Determining an appropriate investment strategy, including asset allocation, consistent with the investment objectives, guidelines and restrictions established by the client, and reviewing and periodically modifying this strategy through meetings and consultations with the client or its agent.
- Implementing the client’s investment strategy through the purchase and sale of securities and other financial instruments, the exercise of options, warrants, and subscription rights, and the investment and re-investment of cash balances for the account.
- Providing information and instructions to the client or its custodian (or trustee) so that transactions for the account are settled in an accurate and timely manner.
- Reconciling its records with those of the client or its custodian (or trustee) on a periodic basis.
- Monitoring clients’ account’s individual instruments so that the overall portfolio remains consistent with the account’s investment strategy, as well as the client’s investment objectives, guidelines and restrictions.
- Furnishing reports to the client on a periodic basis concerning account activity and performance.

HighMark Mutual Funds

HCM is the investment adviser to the HighMark Funds (the “Funds”), a mutual fund family that offers different classes of shares in separate investment portfolios. The Funds include money market, fixed income, equity and asset allocation funds. As investment adviser, HCM manages the Funds on a day-to-day basis, implementing each Fund’s strategy through the purchase and sale of securities and other financial instruments to ensure that each Fund remains consistent with the investment objectives and strategies as stated in its prospectus and other governing documents. HCM also provides information to the custodian, fund accountant, transfer agent and other service providers to ensure that the transactions for each Fund are settled in an accurate and timely manner, and that appropriate reports can be provided to shareholders.

HCM also acts as administrator to the Funds and as shareholder servicing agent to certain classes of the Funds. The fees that HCM charges for these services are disclosed in the Funds’ prospectuses.

UB Trust and Agency Accounts

HCM provide investment advisory services under an agreement with UB for certain UB trust and agency accounts, including retirement plans. UB discloses to these trust or agency clients that it has retained HCM to provide investment advisory services for their accounts. The range of services HCM provides for these accounts is similar to the services it provides to managed accounts, as described above. Depending on the size of the account, investment guidelines from the client, and other circumstances, HCM may invest some or all of the trust or agency assets in UB's collective investment funds, described below, or in mutual funds, including the Funds. UB pays HCM a fee to provide investment advisory services for these accounts, as described in the agreement between UB and HCM. The agreement also provides for payments by HCM to UB under certain circumstances, including when HCM exercises its investment discretion to place managed account assets in fiduciary shares of the Funds.

UB Investment Management & Trust (IM&T) Accounts

HCM also has an arrangement with UB Investment Management & Trust ("IM&T") to provide investment advisory services to clients of IM&T. Depending on the client assets size, as well as investment needs and objectives, HCM may use its investment models in managing the client's assets. Generally, the models cover a range of investment strategies from income to capital appreciation. HCM offers these investment models to UB through the UB's IM&T platform. The investment models are also offered to clients outside the IM&T group. Please refer to Item 10 for discussions on the availability of HCM investment models to non IM&T clients.

UBIS Accounts

HCM provides investment advisory services under an agreement with UnionBanc Investment Services, LLC ("UBIS"). UBIS is a registered broker-dealer, investment adviser and member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority/Securities Investor Protection Corporation. The investment advisory services HCM provides for these accounts is similar to the services it provides to managed accounts, as described above. Depending on the size of the account, investment guidelines from the client, and other circumstances, HCM may invest some or all of the account assets in mutual funds, including the Funds. UBIS pays HCM a fee to provide the investment advisory services for these accounts, as described in the agreement between UBIS and HCM. Under certain circumstances, HCM may share its advisory fee from the Funds with UBIS if it were to place managed account assets in fiduciary shares of the Funds.

Collective Investment Funds

HCM provides investment advisory services under an agreement with UB to certain UB collective investment funds. Collective investment funds are commingled trust funds created to facilitate the investment management of individual fiduciary accounts for which UB has investment responsibility. The assets of such accounts are combined into one or more investment funds, each with its own specific investment strategy. Although similar in some respects to mutual funds, collective investment funds are administered by banks under applicable banking law and are not registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940.

The advisory services HCM provides to UB's collective investment funds are similar to the advisory services HCM provides to Funds as described above pays HCM an advisory fee as described in the agreement between UB and HCM. HCM may use its investment discretion to place the assets of a UB trust account in a UB collective investment fund, in which HCM is paid a separate fee by UB.

Consulting and Sub-Advisory Services

HCM may provide investment consulting services, including supplying investment research and information, on a non-discretionary basis. These services may consist of providing sample model portfolios and investment strategies and a general overview of U.S. securities markets. Fees for consulting services are negotiated in each case based on the nature and complexity of the services to be provided. Such fees may be fixed or may be based on a percentage of the assets subject to the consulting arrangement and such fees may be payable upon provision of the services.

HCM may, from time to time, enter into sub-advisory agreements to provide advice and recommendations regarding asset allocation, investment strategies, model portfolio investment and research and individual security research and advice. HCM's fee for such services will vary.

Other Services

HCM has an agreement with the Funds to serve as administrator as detailed in the Funds' prospectuses. In addition, under certain circumstances, one of the services provided by HCM may be assisting in the valuation of securities and other financial instruments held in a fund portfolio.

HCM may also assist UB in the evaluation of sub-advisers retained or proposed to be retained by UB in connection with UB's trust or agency account business and their securities selection process.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

Fees are charged as a percentage of assets under management as described in the investment advisory agreement between HCM and the client. Fees may be negotiated on a relationship basis.

Minimum Fee for Managed Accounts

HCM requires a minimum annual fee of $10,000 for managed account investment management services. In certain circumstances, the minimum fee may be negotiable.

For clients' assets custodied at UB, clients may choose to deduct fees from assets or receive a bill for fees incurred. For those clients' assets custodied outside of UB, clients will be invoiced. Fees are paid in arrears and clients have the option to pay fees monthly or quarterly.

Fees are prorated for the billing period at the beginning or end of a client relationship. The method of fee calculations is disclosed to clients in their investment advisory agreements. For UB trust and agency accounts, UB pays HCM a fee to provide investment advisory services for these accounts, as described in an agreement between UB and HCM.

In addition to the investment advisory fee, clients may pay fees related to the management of their account depending on the type of account and investment such as, brokerage, trading cost, custody, transfer agent, fund accounting and administration, 12b-1, shareholder servicing and investment management fees associated with any third-party fund. Please see Item 12: Brokerage Practices.

HCM may use its investment discretion to place a client's assets in a Fund advised by HCM. HCM will be paid an advisory fee by the Fund with respect to those assets. In these cases, the clients' advisory fee may be waived or reduced accordingly. If HCM uses its investment discretion to place a client's assets in a Fund advised by HCM, and the client is UB, acting as fiduciary, HCM will purchase the fiduciary shares of the Fund that do not carry a sales load or Rule 12b-1 fee.

HCM may recommend to a non-discretionary client to invest in a Fund. If the non-discretionary client chooses to invest in the Fund, the client will generally not receive any fee waivers or reductions. It is possible that such a client could select a class of shares of a Fund advised by HCM that charges both a sales load and a Rule 12b-1 fee. In that event, the client will, in essence, pay advisory fees at two levels, that is, a separate advisory fee paid to HCM by the client, and the advisory fee that is paid to HCM by the Fund.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Generally, performance-based fee structures may create a conflict of interest by creating incentives regarding portfolio investments that could compromise the independent judgment of the investment adviser. Although there are currently none, HCM may enter into performance-based fee arrangements to the extent permitted by applicable law. If HCM had performance-based fee arrangements, they could vary depending on the client's needs and individual circumstances.

Item 7: Types of Clients

HCM provides investment advice to individuals, high net worth individuals, investment companies, pension and profit sharing plans, pooled investment vehicles, charitable organizations, corporations, state and municipal government entities, corporate employee benefit plans, public agencies, foundations and endowments, Taft-Hartley plans, hospital and religious organizations, treasury departments and trusts and family enterprises.

HCM generally requires a minimum account size of $750,000 for individual clients, $3 million for non-individual or trust accounts and $10 million for liquidity accounts. HCM may lower the minimum account size in its sole discretion.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

HCM's active equity management process utilizes a bottom-up research methodology within a top-down macroeconomic framework. This means that specific securities issuers are analyzed on the basis of how they are performing, given the trends in their industry. Quantitative research (research that generates numerical data and statistics) is used to identify and manage a variety of individual security and portfolio risks, as well as to identify investment opportunities. Equity portfolio teams use in-depth fundamental research (analysis of aspects of a security issuer's business, such as sales, assets, earnings, products, services, markets and management) to identify companies with desirable business attributes, including attractive valuations, marketplace dominance, sustainable competitive advantages and successful management.

HCM's fixed income investment professionals perform intensive market and credit research to identify high-quality issues. To minimize volatility in client portfolios, HCM carefully manages interest rate and credit risk and repositions portfolios it deems appropriate to take advantage of opportunities arising from changes in interest rates, the yield curve and sector spreads. HCM strives to avoid securities that are leveraged with respect to interest rate or prepayment risk.

HCM's cash management specialists utilize extensive analysis of market sectors and individual issues to enhance diversification and reduce portfolio volatility. HCM invests in a wide range of investment-grade domestic and foreign dollar-denominated securities according to each client's specific liquidity needs.

Investment Strategies

HCM provides a range of style-specific strategies using both internal and external managers. HCM's approach is a disciplined, consistent process to actively manage portfolios including equity, fixed income, liquidity management and multi-asset strategies.

Equity strategies include (1) value-based strategies, consisting of Value Momentum and Large Cap Value, (2) quantitatively managed strategies, consisting of Core Equity and Small Cap Core, (3) fundamentally-based strategies, consisting of Large Cap Growth and Fundamental Equity (a large cap core strategy), (4) and a relative dividend yield strategy. HCM also employs fixed income strategies in the areas of core intermediate, short term, tax-exempt and stable value styles. For management of institutions' cash and excess working capital, HCM offers both a domestic and non-U.S. liquidity strategies as well as money market instruments. Multi-asset strategies include Balanced, Asset Allocation, and Global Tactical Asset Allocation. HCM uses a proprietary optimization model that strives to provide a better asset class mix. HCM offers other strategies through third-party sub-advisor relationships.

Risk of Loss

Investments in HCM strategies are not bank deposits, are not guaranteed by any agency of the U.S. government, and may involve risks, including the possible loss of principal, a risk that clients should be prepared to bear. In addition, performance could be affected by other risks such as:

- Market Risk: The risk that a security's market value may decline, especially rapidly and unpredictably for short or extended periods. These fluctuations may cause a security to be worth less than the price the investor originally paid for it. Market risk may affect a single issuer, sector or the market as a whole.
- Liquidity Risk: The risk that a security may be difficult or impossible to sell at the time and price the seller wishes. The seller may have to accept a lower price for the security, sell other securities instead, or forego a more attractive investment opportunity.
- Credit Risk: The risk that the issuer of a security, or the counterparty to a contract, will default or otherwise become unable to honor a financial obligation. Generally speaking, the lower a security's credit rating, the higher its credit risks. If a security's credit rating is downgraded, its price tends to decline sharply, especially as it becomes more probable that the issuer will default.
- Interest Risk: The risk that debt prices overall will decline over short or long periods due to rising interest rates. Interest rate risk usually is modest for shorter-term securities, moderate for intermediate-term securities, and high for longer-term securities.
- Counterparty Risk: The risk that the counterparty to a repurchase agreement or reverse repurchase agreement may not fulfill its obligation which may cause the income and the value of the investment to decline.
- Diversification Risk: The risk involved with excessive exposure to any one security, industry or sector.

- Foreign Risk: Compared with investing in the United States, investing in foreign markets involves a greater degree and variety of risks including the possibility of delayed settlements, currency controls, adverse economic developments, and higher overall transaction costs. In addition, fluctuations in the U.S. dollar's value may erode or reverse gains from investments denominated in foreign currencies or widen losses. Exchange rate fluctuations also may impair an issuer's ability to repay U.S. dollar denominated debt, increasing credit risk of such debt. Finally, the value of foreign securities may be affected by incomplete or inaccurate financial information, smaller and less liquid securities markets, social upheavals or political actions ranging from tax code changes to significant governmental restructuring or collapse.

Item 9: Disciplinary Information

HighMark has not been involved in legal or disciplinary events that are material to its advisory business or the integrity of its management.

Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Material Related Party Arrangements

As noted in Item 4, Advisory Business, HCM is a wholly owned subsidiary of UB. UB is the principal subsidiary of UnionBanCal Corporation ("UNBC"), a bank holding company regulated by the Federal Reserve Board. UNBC is wholly owned by The Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi UFJ, Ltd. ("BTMU") headquartered in Japan. BTMU, in turn, is a wholly owned subsidiary of MUFG.

HCM's ultimate parent company, Mitsubishi UFJ Financial Group, Inc. ("MUFG") beneficially owns 22.4% of the common stock of Morgan Stanley and is also represented by two seats on the Morgan Stanley board of directors. Morgan Stanley is the parent company of several registered broker-dealers, among other businesses. U.S. regulatory authorities have given MUFG permission to ultimately increase its common stock holding in Morgan Stanley to 24.9%. If HCM manages your account, the fact of MUFG's beneficial ownership interest in Morgan Stanley may limit HCM's ability to purchase an interest in a Morgan Stanley sponsored or advised asset or use Morgan Stanley brokerage services for your account, without your written consent, and, in some cases, may wholly prevent such purchases and the use of Morgan Stanley brokerage services.

All employees of HCM including its board of directors are also employees of UB. The employees of HCM generally perform work for HCM only. Some HCM employees perform work as UB employees in connection with UB's collective investment funds. UB provides a variety of administrative services to HCM under an agreement, such as human resources, legal and accounting. In addition, UB serves as the custodian for the majority of its accounts for which HCM provides advisory services, as well as provides custodian services for the Funds. UB may refer clients to HCM for advisory services and HCM may refer clients to UB for banking services, but neither UB nor HCM currently pays cash referral fees to the other for these referrals. Please refer to Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation for additional information.

UB also has a broker-dealer subsidiary, UBIS, which is also an SEC registered investment adviser. HCM and UBIS are under common control. Currently, HCM has no arrangements with UBIS to use UBIS or any of its registered representatives or principals to provide broker-dealer services to HCM or its advisory clients. UBIS may refer client to HCM for advisory services, but HCM does not pay UBIS cash referral fees in connection with the referrals. HCM has entered into a sub-advisory agreement with UBIS. Please see Item 4: Advisory Business above, "UBIS Accounts," for a description of the advisory services HCM provides to UBIS. HCM may pay out of its own assets compensation to broker-dealers (including UBIS) or other persons for the marketing support, sale, distribution or servicing of shares of the Funds.

UB is licensed to sell certain types of insurance under UnionBanc Insurance Services. This activity by UnionBanc Insurance Services is not connected to HCM's advisory business.

General Partner of Investment Partnership

HCM does not serve as general partner to any investment partnership. From time to time, BTMU, UB and other related persons of HCM may organize and package investment limited partnerships and may serve as the general partner to such partnerships. HCM does not offer these limited partnerships to clients, although an affiliate of HCM could offer HCM's clients a participation in the partnerships, when the client has a separate relationship with the affiliate. These activities of HCM's related parties are not connected to HCM's advisory business.

Other General Information

HCM has a non-exclusive licensing arrangement with Envestnet Asset Management, Inc., and its legal affiliates (collectively, "Envestnet") to provide various investment models for use in Envestnet's Third Party Models Program. Under the arrangement with Envestnet, HCM is responsible for constructing and maintaining each model, while Envestnet is responsible for implementing and executing all trade orders for each Envestnet client based on the respective investment models. The HCM Models are accessed through the Envestnet platform.

HCM pays Envestnet a one-time set up fee for the construction and installation of each model on its platform. HCM receives a quarterly fee from Envestnet based on the assets invested pursuant to the investment model.

Please consult Envestnet Asset Management's Form ADV, Part 2A for a detailed description of the Third Party Models Program.

Under written agreement, HCM may engage unaffiliated sub-advisers to assist it in providing its services to client accounts.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Personal Transactions in Recommended Securities

HCM generally does not buy or sell securities that it recommends to clients, except to the extent that HCM may from time to time provide initial capital to start a new portfolio of mutual funds that it advises. HCM's related persons may however, transact or hold securities that are or have been recommended by HCM to its clients.

HCM has adopted a Code of Ethics for all employees in accordance with Rule 204A-1 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 and Rule 17j-1 of the Investment Company Act of 1940 which describes standards for business conduct, fiduciary duty to clients and rules surrounding personal securities transactions. HCM's officers and directors, and certain employees are required to report certain personal securities transactions and holdings. These personal securities transactions may raise potential conflicts with the interests of HCM clients. The Code of Ethics mitigates potential conflicts of interest by requiring, among other things, prior approval of certain securities transactions and a holding period for certain proprietary Funds. The Code of Ethics also requires regular employee certification and reporting and outlines disciplinary actions for exceptions. All Code of Ethics exceptions are reported to HCM's Board of Directors and to the Funds' Board of Trustees. A copy of HCM's Code of Ethics is available upon request by calling 1-800-582-4734.

Principal Transactions

HCM does not, as principal, buy securities from or sell securities to its clients, nor does HCM use its investment discretion to direct or authorize securities transactions between its related persons and its clients. Certain related persons of HCM, such as BTMU, UB, and UBIS, from time to time, may buy securities from or sell securities to HCM's clients in connection with their own separate relationship with HCM's clients. These activities of HCM's related parties are not connected to HCM's advisory business. The related persons engage in these activities in a manner that is consistent with customary commercial practice and applicable federal and state regulations.

Agency Transactions

HCM does not effect securities transactions for compensation as broker or agent for its clients, nor does HCM use its investment discretion to direct or authorize client securities transactions in which a related person is a broker or agent. Certain related persons of HCM, such as BTMU, UB and UBIS, from time to time, may effect securities transactions for compensation as broker or agent for clients of HCM or their counterparties in connection with their own separate relationships with such clients or other persons. These activities are not connected to HCM's advisory business except to the extent that such clients or other persons invest in a Fund advised by HCM. The related persons engage in these activities in a manner that is consistent with customary commercial practice and applicable federal and state regulations.

MUFG Morgan Stanley

Please see Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations which discusses MUFG's investment in Morgan Stanley. Although HCM does not consider this investment an arrangement that is material to its advisory business, this indirect affiliation may prevent HCM from effecting certain broker transactions with MS&Co. on behalf of certain client accounts.

Interest in Client Recommendations

Generally, HCM does not recommend to clients that they buy or sell securities or investment products in which HCM has a financial interest. HCM, however, may purchase for clients shares of the Funds and other mutual funds or collective investment funds advised by HCM, and from which HCM receives an advisory fee. Please see Item 5: Fees and Compensation for a description of the effect such purchases will have on advisory fees paid by clients.

In addition, UB may make available some of the Funds as an investment option for its deposit account sweep product. UB also may invest its employees' retirement plans in certain of the Funds or use some of the Funds as an investment option in its participant directed retirement plans. To the extent that HCM receives an advisory fee from the Funds, HCM could be considered to indirectly benefit from the recommendations and investments made by UB.

UBIS receives Rule 12b-1 or other fees in connection with its sales of shares of Funds to UBIS clients. In connection with sales of shares of the Funds, UB also may receive Rule 12b-1 fees or other fees from accounts for which UB has no investment discretion, but where such investments are made by written consent and direction of the accountholder or participant directing such investments.

HCM may also recommend to clients securities in which HCM's related persons may have a financial interest. HCM considers that the range of the potential holdings of HCM's related persons, and the range of the potential issuers to whom HCM's related persons provide banking, custodial, brokerage and other services, is such that it would be inadvisable to exclude these securities from consideration for a client's portfolio solely because of these potential conflicts of interest. HCM makes portfolio transaction decisions or recommendations independently and not based on the interests of any related person.

HCM may also engage in cross transactions, most likely in a format where client accounts are matched to provide liquidity and avoid brokerage fees. These are broker-less and non-principal transactions and there is no compensation earned by HCM. There may be nominal transaction processing fees involved in cross transactions. Cross transactions are done in compliance with applicable rules and procedures.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

HCM provides investment advice to clients on both a discretionary and non-discretionary basis, depending upon clients' wishes. For more information about the advisory services offered by HCM, please refer to Item 4: Advisory Business.

Most clients authorize HCM to use broker-dealers selected by HCM, and to pay commission rates negotiated by HCM with the broker-dealer. HCM however, may, agree to take written direction from a client to use a broker-dealer selected by the client. Please see discussion below about "Client Directed Brokerage."

Client Directed Brokerage

HCM may accept a client's written request for client directed brokerage by executing a transaction with the broker-dealer selected by the client, which may or may not be a broker-dealer used by HCM for other trades in the same security during that period. In accordance with client directed brokerage instructions, the brokerage transactions may result in higher commissions, greater spreads, or less favorable net prices than would be the case if HCM were authorized to select the broker-dealer. Client directed brokerage may not, in all cases, result in the best execution of securities transactions for the client. Clients acknowledge the possibility of paying higher commission rates and not obtaining best execution when they enter into their agreement with HCM. HCM may limit the extent to which it will agree to client directed brokerage.

Broker Selection

In selecting a broker-dealer for a transaction, HCM endeavors to choose the broker-dealer most capable of providing the services necessary to obtain best execution of the transaction. HCM maintains a list of approved broker-dealers from which its traders may select a broker-dealer for a particular transaction. HCM's Investment Policy committee ("IPC"), a committee composed of HCM's Chief Investment Officer and other senior investment personnel reviews and determines the approved broker-dealers list at least once a year. Broker-dealers are evaluated on various criteria, including the commissions charged, as well as the reliability, integrity, and financial condition of the firm, the timeliness and accuracy of trade execution skills, operational and settlement capabilities, and any research services or products offered. HCM does not commit a specific amount of business to any broker-dealer, but does set an overall target based on what is required to gain the best arrangement of services, products, and best execution of client transactions. Actual brokerage business directed to any broker-dealer may not reach the target, but it can exceed the target. HCM does not place brokerage orders for a client with UBIS, or with any other affiliate of HCM, except in accordance with HCM's policy, and to the extent permitted by law.

On a continuing basis, HCM seeks to determine what levels of commission rates are reasonable for specific transactions. Consideration is given to factors including historical commission rates, market commission rates (based on publicly available information), the size and complexity of the transaction, the type and level of business done with a firm over a period of time, and the extent to which the broker-dealer may have capital at risk in the transaction.

For each transaction, HCM's trading desk determines which broker-dealer on the approved list can provide the best execution of a specific transaction. Consideration is given to various factors including consistency of quality execution, general order flow, market-making skills, ability or willingness to commit capital and provide liquidity, and sales trading and coverage skills. HCM's policy does allow the use of a broker-dealer not on the approved list when HCM deems it will be able to achieve best execution. Trades with brokers not on the approved list are reported to HCM's Client Commissions Committee at its next meeting with an explanation as to why a broker not on the approved list was selected to provide best execution.

HCM may effect transactions through an electronic crossing network ("ECN") in an attempt to find liquidity per price improvement not available through traditional trading methods. In selecting among market makers, and non-market makers or ECNs, HCM generally seeks to select those it believes to be actively and effectively trading the security being purchased or sold. HCM may select an ECN offered by a provider or services to HCM and the Funds in addition to ECNs offered by other vendors.

In some cases, HCM may aggregate as a block transaction multiple transaction orders that are received at about the same time. HCM's policy is to engage in block transactions in a fair and equitable manner to all participating clients, so that the price of the securities purchased or sold of all participating clients will be the average share price for the block transaction with commissions and costs shared among the participating clients on a pro-rata basis. There can be no assurance, however, that any particular investment will be proportionally allocated among clients, or that the allocation process will achieve the same results for each client. HCM does not receive additional compensation for aggregating orders in block transactions. HCM believes that the use of block transactions may prevent the transaction of one client from affecting the purchase or sale price of a transaction for another client, and that the use of block transactions may enable HCM, on average and over time, to obtain enhanced execution and lower brokerage commissions.

Client Commissions

HCM may effect securities transactions that result in a client paying an amount of commission in excess of the amount of commission another broker would have charged. In selecting such broker-dealer, HCM will make a good faith determination that the amount of commission is reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage services, research and investment information, viewed in terms of either the specific transaction or HCM's overall responsibility to the accounts for which it exercises investment discretion.

In using client brokerage commissions, HCM receives a benefit in that it obtains investment information and research services from broker-dealers that may include conferences, research reports, oral advice, or data regarding particular companies, industries, or general market or economic conditions, all of which, HCM does not directly pay for. In addition, to the extent legally allowed, certain services may include the use of or be delivered by quotation or computer systems whose software components may be provided to HCM as part of the services.

In any case in which information and other services can be used for both research and non-research purposes, HCM will make an appropriate good faith allocation of those uses and will pay directly for that portion of the services to be used for non-research purposes, but as practice, HCM does not participate in any mixed usage.

HCM uses investment information and research services that it receives from broker-dealers to evaluate securities and formulate investment recommendations for both discretionary and non-discretionary clients. These recommendations, as well as HCM's analyses and the information and research services used to formulate recommendations, may be made available to HCM's affiliates and all of HCM's clients and is used by HCM in providing services to all of its clients. A client account may pay commissions to a broker-dealer which supplies research services not utilized by the account. Non-discretionary clients for whom HCM does not ordinarily place brokerage orders may benefit from such investment information, even though such information was generated through commission paid by other clients.

The procedure to determine the allocation amounts includes an evaluation by HCM's traders of the broker-dealers' execution capability, and an evaluation by a committee of HCM's equity advisory personnel of the quality and usefulness of the broker-dealers' research, and finally, a vote of HCM's IPC. No absolute dollar amounts are required to be met, and in no case will an order be placed if the broker-dealer is not believed to be able to provide best execution of a particular transaction in light of all the factors HCM considers. HCM does endeavor to direct sufficient orders to such broker-dealers to ensure continued receipt of research services that HCM believes are useful to all HCM accounts. Substantial portions of brokerage commissions are paid to broker-dealers who supply investment information and research services to HCM.

Initial Public Offerings

From time to time, HCM may be offered securities in an initial public offering ("IPO") and HCM will determine in its sole discretion whether to accept any such offer. Generally, HCM does not accept offers to participate in IPOs. In the event that HCM accepts an offer of IPO securities, HCM's policy is to allocate the securities proportionally, based on asset value, among client portfolios for which the securities are deemed suitable. Suitability will be determined by HCM's portfolio managers based on a number of factors, including but not limited to, investment goals, existing securities in the portfolio available cash and purchasing power, portfolio investment restrictions, and the subjective judgments of the portfolio managers. A small IPO offering may be allocated only to one client portfolio, if HCM determines in its sole discretion that allocation among more than one portfolio would be inefficient for client accounts. While generally based on objective criteria, HCM does not make IPO allocations based on strict, mathematical formulas. HCM's allocation of any specific IPO offering may not result in proportional allocation across all its client portfolios. HCM however, will treat all client portfolios fairly and will not give preferences to any particular client or type of clients when allocating IPOs.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

Account Review Process

HCM's portfolio managers perform periodic reviews of managed accounts (other than UB's trust and agency accounts), as they deem reasonable to confirm that the client's investments are made in a manner consistent with the client's investment objectives, guidelines and restrictions. Portfolio managers' reviews are annually reported to and discussed at HCM's IPC meetings. Such annual reviews may include, but are not limited to, the portfolio manager's confirmation that the account's asset allocation is within the strategic range, that any security concentrations are consistent with written policies and that positions held in the accounts are either on an approved list of securities or otherwise determined to be suitable for the client. The appropriate UB investment committee performs the annual review for UB's trust and agency accounts.

Reports to Clients

HCM issues periodic reports to clients, except UB's trust and agency account clients, that include transaction summaries, portfolio valuation, and performance data. These reports may include information compiled by others including UB. UB provides periodic reports to its trust and agency account clients. The information provided by UB in these reports is similar to the information included in HCM's periodic reports described above.

Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

HCM or its related persons may from time to time receive some economic benefit from non-client, such as a broker-dealer, in connection with giving advice to clients. See Item 12, Brokerage Practices.

UB maintains internal compensation programs that reward certain UB and HCM employees for client referrals. UB also provides sales referral services for HCM as described in an agreement between UB and HCM. HCM has no cash referral arrangement with UB, however, HCM reimburses UB for a pro-rata share of the costs incurred in connection with marketing services on behalf of HCM, such as salaries, travel and other related expenses. These reimbursements may be used by UB to cover a pro-rata share of the amount UB pays to its employees for client referrals, including referrals to HCM.

In addition, from time to time, HCM and its related persons may also enter into cash referral arrangements with related and unrelated persons in accordance with Rule 206(4)-3 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, and compensate referrals with respect to such activities in accordance with Rule 206(4)-3 or other applicable regulations. The amounts of such fees are individually negotiated.

Item 15: Custody

UB or the custodian that the client designated will send clients a periodic statement of their account at least quarterly. HCM recommends that you compare the security positions shown on the investment statement you may receive from HCM to those shown on the statement you receive from your custodian. Differences in reported security positions may exist because investment statements are presented on a trade date basis, and the information presented on the custodial statement is generally shown on a settlement date basis. There also may be differences in the values shown for your investments due to accrued but uncollected income, and the use of differing valuation sources and methods by HCM and the custodian.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

Clients who have their agreements directly with HCM grant discretionary authority at the outset of an advisory relationship when they execute the HCM Advisory Services Agreement. The client communicates any investment limitations or restrictions to HCM such as asset allocation, market capitalization, socially responsible companies and others.

For accounts which HCM manages under its agreement with UB, the UB agreement with its clients provides UB and its agents (such as HCM) the authority to exercise investment discretion. HCM and UB have a separate agreement that describes the obligations for investment advisory services that HCM performs for UB clients.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities

All HCM clients determine the proxy voting process to be used for their account. Clients have the option to vote their proxies themselves or authorize HCM to vote their proxies on their behalf. Most clients authorize HCM to vote proxies for securities held in the client's account. HCM has established policies for voting these proxies in the interests of clients. For Funds managed by a sub-adviser, HCM delegates to the sub-adviser the authority to vote proxies according to the sub-adviser's policies, subject to monitoring, review and oversight by HCM. For other portfolios, HCM retains as its agent, ISS Governance Services ("ISS"), an independent proxy voting service, which votes the proxies according to ISS' policies, subject to monitoring and review by HCM. HCM reserves the right to withdraw any proxy from ISS and vote the proxy with review and approval by the IPC. HCM will withdraw a proposed proxy vote from ISS in the event that HCM determines that the proposed vote by ISS would not be consistent with HCM's fiduciary duty to its clients. HCM has written policies and procedures to address situations where there is a conflict of interest between HCM and its client (when they arise.) Before HCM votes a proxy, the IPC will take steps to determine if HCM has a conflict of interest in voting the proxy. If the IPC finds that a material conflict exists, HCM will retain an independent fiduciary to vote the proxy if the customer has appointed HCM as investment manager. If UB appoints HCM as investment manager, UB may retain an independent fiduciary to vote the proxy.

Proxy voting records for HCM are generally maintained by ISS and HCM will make proxy voting records available to client as required by law. Clients may obtain a copy of HCM's proxy voting policies and procedures and/or proxy voting records for their account by calling 1-800-582-4734.

Item 18: Financial Information

HCM is not aware of any financial condition that is reasonably likely to impair its ability to meet contractual commitments. HCM has not been the subject of a bankruptcy petition.
