Waypoint Wealth Partners is a registered investment adviser. Registration of an Investment Adviser does not imply any level of skill or training. The oral and written communications of an Adviser provide you with information about which you determine to hire or retain an Adviser.

Additional information about Waypoint Wealth Partners is also available on the SEC's website at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov.

Item 2 – Material Changes

The purpose of this page is to inform you of material changes since the last annual update to our brochure. If you are receiving this brochure for the first time, this section may not be relevant to you.

Waypoint Wealth Partners (“WWP”) reviews and updates our brochure at least annually to confirm that it remains current. Below is a summary of the material changes made to our brochure since the last annual update.

Material changes from WWP’s brochure dated March 30, 2012:

Item 4 – Advisory Business

Effective July 1, 2012, Edward Runyon is no longer working with WWP. Going forward, Charles Bowes and Annette Brinton are the principal owners of WWP. This brochure was amended to reflect this change.

If you wish to receive a complete copy of our Form ADV Part 2A brochure, please contact Annette Brinton, Principal at (877) 768-4802 ext. 3, or annette@waypointwp.com. WWP’s Brochure is also available on our web site www.WaypointWP.com, also free of charge.

Item 4 – Advisory Business

Waypoint Wealth Partners (“WWP”) has been providing investment advice since 2004 and was approved by the SEC as a Registered Investment Advisor on June 17, 2008. WWP is a privately held company owned by the following principals:

BOWES, CHARLES, L.	Managing Member
BRINTON, ANNETTE E.	Managing Member, Chief Compliance Officer

Education and Business Standards

Persons providing advisory services (Investment Advisor Representatives) must be investment and financial planning professionals. Professional staff members must possess a BA, BS, or MBA degree and be either credentialed as a Certified Financial Planner, Certified Public Accountant, Chartered Life Underwriter, or enrolled in a course designed to achieve such designations, or possess the equivalent experience. Other staff members bring appropriate skills and experiences.

Investment Management Services

WWP offers investment management services on a fee basis. WWP offers advice to clients regarding asset allocation and the selection of investments. Our investment management services include designing, implementing, and continued monitoring of client accounts. WWP will invest the account on a fully discretionary basis, limited only by the client’s individual needs and any restrictions imposed on the account.

WWP may recommend other investment advisers to manage a certain portion of client assets. WWP will continue to provide advisory services to the client for the ongoing monitoring and review of the overall account performance. Factors that WWP will consider in recommending a particular sub-adviser include the client’s stated investment objective(s), management style, performance, reputation, financial strength, reporting, pricing, and research. The client will pay the sub-adviser directly for their advisory services rendered. Fees paid to the sub-adviser are separate from and in addition to WWP’s management fees.

A client may terminate their agreement at any time but will be liable for the advisory fees earned up to the termination date based on the fee schedule in effect for that client. WWP will refund any fees that have been paid, but not earned, prorated for the period between the start of the billing period in question up to and including the date client provides a notice of termination. To be clear: a termination notice must be received in writing by WWP and is effective as soon as it is received. If WWP has not delivered this Form ADV Part 2 to the client at least 48 hours before the client enters into an advisory agreement, then the client has the right to terminate the agreement without penalty within five business days after signing the agreement. There is never a penalty for terminating the agreement.

Wealth Management Services

WWP offers wealth management services as part of their investment management service offering. WWP's wealth management offering includes the following:

- Understanding the client's present circumstances by collecting and carefully considering relevant personal and financial data.
- Identifying the client's goals, challenges and concerns.
- Providing recommendations for specific issues requested by the client which may include:
 - Preparing for or living in retirement
 - Investment strategies
 - Long term care planning
 - Income tax planning
 - Stock option analysis and planning
 - Life, disability, long term care insurance
 - Family savings and cash flow planning
 - Education planning and funding
 - Charitable gifting
 - Debt management
 - Employee benefits
 - Other issues as needed
- As the client's financial plans are developed, WWP may help with implementing the plan, as requested by the client.
- WWP also monitors and makes changes in the plan as circumstances change for the duration of the client's agreement with us. Client is always responsible for notifying us of changes in their personal circumstances on a timely basis.

The gathering of information, review of options, and plan development are all done carefully with the client in a series of in person meetings, telephone and by using electronic communication (e-mail) as appropriate. Proper planning is not a one-time event. Life's circumstances change, goals change and available opportunities may change over time. Any plan may need to be adjusted and updated to reflect these changes or it may become outdated and irrelevant. The initial planning is only the beginning step in a life-long process.

WWP's wealth management services do not include preparation of income tax, gift or estate tax returns nor preparation of any legal documents, including wills or trusts. Investment Adviser Representatives at WWP are not practicing tax professionals or attorneys.

Types of Investments

WWP primarily utilizes stocks, bonds and mutual funds in managing client portfolios, and may additionally offer advice on exchange traded funds, exchange traded notes, and private and public REITs. WWP may also offer advice about any type of investment held in a client's portfolio at the beginning of the advisory relationship. The majority of investments recommended by WWP are in the form of no load mutual funds, index funds, exchange traded funds or similar investment products. As a result of employee benefit perquisites from their position as an owner or executive of the company, some clients may own, be granted or may consider purchasing options in the shares of their company. WWP offers advice about such investment decisions, as well as about the sale or liquidation of these companies. The investment selection offered to clients may be limited by the knowledge and experience of the personnel of WWP and/or the resources available to it as a result of its relationships with custodians and other providers in the broader financial industry. In addition, as a result of these resources, certain investments may be available to clients of WWP that might not be available to members of the public at large. WWP believes that the choices available under these restrictions is wide enough to effectively make the full range of investment options available that might be important for all but the rarest client. Suitable categories of investments are chosen according to the clients' attitudes about risk and their need for capital appreciation or income production, with tax considerations of all transactions given appropriate weight.

WWP manages client accounts based on the investment strategy discussed below under Item 8. Individual securities are selected within each category when WWP believes their characteristics are most consistent with the objectives for the category they were chosen for. Risk factors of the different investments are considered, particularly in light of the clients' stated risk tolerance. We make investment decisions for clients based on information the client supplies about their financial situation, goals, and risk tolerance. Our recommendations/investment selections may not be suitable if the client does not provide us with accurate and complete information. It is the client's responsibility to keep WWP informed of any changes to their investment objectives or restrictions.

Clients may also request other restrictions on the account, such as when a client needs to keep a minimum level of cash in the account or does not want WWP to buy or sell certain specific securities or security types in the account. WWP reserves the right to not accept and/or terminate management of a client's account if we feel that the client-imposed restrictions would limit or prevent us from meeting or maintaining the client's investment strategy.

As of 3/27/2012, WWP's discretionary assets under management totaled $171,015,821. We did not manage accounts on a non-discretionary basis.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

WWP offers investment management services on a fee-only basis. Each Investment Management Agreement entered into with clients will disclose the fee schedule and any minimum annual fee clients will be charged at the time it was executed, and may be different from the fee schedules and minimums clients will see described in this Brochure. Clients should be sure to review their Investment Management Agreement carefully before signing.

Fees and/or minimums may be negotiated or waived at WWP's sole discretion and in some cases, WWP may charge a client a negotiated flat fee rather than the fee range outlined below. The amount of the asset management fee is based on the total assets under management. The fee range and break points start from 1% to 0.25% annually, depending on the amount of assets to be managed.

Client fees will be calculated at the beginning of each calendar quarter based on the market value of the assets in the account on the last business day of the previous quarter. Client fees will be deducted automatically from their investment account(s) and will appear as a line item on the monthly or quarterly statement provided directly by their account Custodian.

Prices and values for most assets are available from the account Custodian through electronic download on a daily basis. However, daily prices may not be available for certain assets that are not held at WWP's recommended custodians. In these cases, the month end, quarter end, or annual asset values may be used in calculating the balance.

For new accounts, fees will be prorated as of the effective date of the investment management agreement. Until assets actually arrive at their account Custodian, the value of the portfolio will be estimated using account statements or other similar documentation provided by the Client. When assets arrive at Custodian, fees will be adjusted on a prorated basis to reflect the actual value of transferred assets.

Any charges that may be assessed by the account Custodian are paid directly by the client. All fees paid to WWP for investment advisory services are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by mutual funds to their shareholders. These fees and expenses are described in each fund's prospectus. These fees will generally include a management fee, other fund expenses, and a possible distribution fee. The client should review both the fees charged by the funds and the fees charged by WWP to fully understand the total amount of fees the client will be required to pay, to whom, for what service, and to evaluate the advisory services being provided.

There is an initial one-time professional services fee charged upon the signing of the Investment Management Agreement that includes the initial and ongoing wealth management services described above. The professional services fee will vary according to the scope of services to be provided, and will be quoted to each client in advance. If Client requests extraordinary planning services, WWP may charge separately for those services at an additional agreed upon fee. WWP will contact client in advance if additional charges will apply.

WWP's fees are exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which shall be incurred by the client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by Custodians, brokers, third party investment and other third parties such as fees charged by managers, custodian fees, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions.

Item 12 further describes the factors that WWP considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

A client may terminate their agreement at any time but will be liable for the advisory fees earned up to the termination date based on the fee schedule in effect for that client. WWP will refund any fees that have been paid, but not earned, prorated for the period between the start of the billing period in question up to and including the date client provides a notice of termination.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

WWP does not charge any performance-based fees (fees based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the assets of a client).

Item 7 – Types of Clients

WWP provides portfolio management services to individuals, high net worth individuals, corporate pension and profit-sharing plans, charitable institutions, foundations, and endowments.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

WWP works with each client to develop an investment plan and appropriate asset allocation based on the client's individual circumstances. Depending on the client's financial needs and risk tolerance, client accounts will generally be allocated among equity and fixed income securities. WWP uses a long-term investment philosophy. For the equity portion of clients' accounts, we believe in passive, rather than active management, seeking to achieve market rates of performance for client accounts.

WWP's investment recommendations are based on fundamental analysis of securities informed by a variety of publicly available research and reports. Typically, WWP's principals will review the client's current financial situation and develop an overall asset allocation with the client. WWP will then create a portfolio of equity and/or fixed income securities according to the client's allocation.

In determining the asset allocation mix of each portfolio, WWP uses diversification in an effort to help optimize the risk and potential return of a portfolio. We utilize multiple asset classes, investment styles, market capitalizations, sectors, and regions to provide diversification.

Sources of Information

To help develop its strategies and recommendations, WWP uses commercially available services, specifically financial publications and information services dealing with investment research and taxation. Such information may be obtainable in print, on computer media, via the internet, or via some other electronic means. Company prepared materials (particularly prospectuses) and research releases prepared by others are also utilized. As an investment advisor, WWP also has the opportunity to access information from a variety of experts, whether through personal visits, telephone calls, or at industry or related meetings. Independent, third party registered investment advisors may also be employed to provide additional expertise in unique situations.

Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

The prices of securities held in client accounts and the income they generate may decline in response to certain events taking place around the world. These include events directly involving the issuers of securities held as underlying assets of mutual funds in a client's account, conditions affecting the general economy, and overall market changes. Other contributing factors include local, regional, or global political, social, or economic instability and governmental or governmental agency responses to economic conditions. Finally, currency, interest rate, and commodity price fluctuations may also affect security prices and income.

For certain clients, if appropriate to the client's objectives and risk tolerance, WWP may recommend that the client invest in a private fund. A private fund is an investment vehicle that pools capital from a number of investors and invests in securities and other instruments. In almost all cases, a private fund is a private investment vehicle that is typically not registered under federal or state securities laws. So that private funds do not have to register under these laws, issuers make the funds available only to certain sophisticated or accredited investors and cannot be offered or sold to the general public.

The primary risks of private funds include the following:

1. Private funds do not sell publicly and are therefore illiquid. An investor may not be able to exit a private fund or sell its interests in the fund before the fund closes.
2. Private funds are subject to various other risks, including risks associated with the types of securities in which the private fund invests.

Various applicable mutual fund, annuity and private fund prospectuses serve as important sources of risk disclosure that should be read carefully.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to client's evaluation of WWP or the integrity of WWP's management. WWP has no history of legal or disciplinary events applicable to this Item.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

WWP is required to disclose all industry affiliations and other industry-related activities. WWP has no affiliates and is not engaged in other financial industry activities.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics

WWP has adopted a Code of Ethics for all supervised persons of the firm describing its high standard of business conduct and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Ethics includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, a prohibition of rumor mongering, restrictions on the acceptance of significant gifts and the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. All supervised persons at WWP must acknowledge the terms of the Code of Ethics.

WWP's employees and persons associated with WWP are required to follow WWP's Code of Ethics. Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of WWP may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for WWP's clients. This presents a potential conflict of interest as we may have an incentive to take investment opportunities from clients for our own benefit, favor our personal trades over client transactions when allocating trades, or to use the information about the transactions we intend to make for clients to our personal benefit by trading ahead of clients. The Code is designed to assure clients that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the employees of WWP will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based on a determination that these would not materially interfere with the best interest of WWP's clients. In addition, the Code requires pre-clearance of many transactions. Nonetheless, because the Code of Ethics in some circumstances would allow employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. It is the policy of WWP that no person employed by WWP may purchase or sell any security prior to a transaction being executed for an advisory account, preventing employees from benefiting from transactions placed on behalf of advisory accounts. Employee trading is continually monitored under the WWP Code of Ethics to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between WWP and its clients.

WWP's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of WWP's Code of Ethics by contacting Annette Brinton.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

As discussed in Item 8, WWP uses commercially available services, specifically financial publications and information services dealing with investment research and taxation to help develop its strategies and recommendations. WWP is required to disclose all relationships with investment research production companies that could result in compensation or benefits paid for by client commissions (called “soft dollars”) to WWP that could present a conflict of interest. WWP does not receive compensation in the form of research or any other soft dollar benefits.

Broker Recommendation

WWP requires each client to open one or more brokerage accounts with a specified independent company that provides account custody and brokerage services, commonly referred to as a “Custodian”. To perform appropriate transactions necessary to provide investment management services, WWP may from time to time establish non-binding relationships with one or more Custodians. WWP typically requires clients to maintain their assets with and place transactions through Fidelity Brokerage Services, LLC (“Fidelity”) or Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (“Schwab”) as broker, each a registered broker-dealer, member of FINRA/SIPC. The client will enter into a separate agreement with the Custodian to custody the assets. WWP is independently owned and operated and is not affiliated with any Custodian. The commission rates charged by Custodians may be higher than those obtainable from other brokers. While commission rates are an important factor in custodian/broker selection, WWP may consider a number of factors in addition to commission rates. These include, for example, reputation, financial strength and stability, efficiency of execution and error resolution, block trading and block position capabilities, willingness to execute related or unrelated difficult transactions, order of call, on-line access to computerized data regarding client accounts, custody, record keeping or other similar services, as well as other matters involved in the receipt of general brokerage services. The Custodian may provide us with access to their institutional trading and custody services, which are typically not available to retail investors. The benefits WWP receives under this arrangement are described in Item 14. All WWP clients with assets held by a Custodian may benefit from this arrangement.

Cross Transactions

It is WWP’s policy that we will not affect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for client accounts. WWP will also not cross trades between client accounts.

Trade Aggregation

Currently, while not prohibited from aggregating client orders, WWP typically manages and trades accounts on an individual basis. However, if WWP believes that the purchase or sale of a security is in the client’s best interest along with the best interests of its other clients, WWP may, but shall not be obligated to, aggregate the securities to be sold or purchased to obtain favorable execution or lower brokerage commissions, to the extent permitted by applicable laws and regulations. Each client that participates in an aggregated order will receive the average share price for all of WWP’s transactions in that security on a given business day; thus no client will be favored over any other client.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

Client accounts are carefully monitored and reviewed by the Investment Advisor Representative responsible for the account for alignment with the target asset allocation and clients' stated circumstances on an ongoing basis, at least annually, and more frequently in times of unstable markets or changing economic conditions.

Client Communication

Client communications occur at several levels:

- Trade confirmations and statements of accounts document all investment transactions and are provided directly to the client by the broker-dealer and/or Custodian.
- Monthly or quarterly statements are prepared and distributed by Custodian holding the assets.
- A newsletter on financial issues and other topics of interest is provided to all clients approximately three times a year.
- Client meetings are generally held at least annually to review the client's account and determine if there have been any material changes in the client's financial goals.
- Meetings, telephone calls, emails, and letters typically occur throughout the year as circumstances warrant.
- WWP will provide clients with quarterly performance reporting upon request.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Client Referrals

WWP does not accept referral fees. WWP may, from time to time compensate, either directly or indirectly, any person (defined as a natural person or a company) for client referrals. If a client is introduced to WWP by either an unaffiliated or affiliated solicitor, WWP may pay that solicitor a referral fee in accordance with the requirements of Rule 206(4)-3 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. If the client is introduced to WWP by an unaffiliated solicitor, the solicitor, at the time of the solicitation, must disclose the nature of the solicitor relationship, and must provide each prospective client with a copy of WWP's written disclosure statement as set forth in this Part 2 of Form ADV, together with a copy of the written disclosure statement from the solicitor to the client disclosing the terms and conditions of the arrangement between WWP and the solicitor, including the compensation to be received by the solicitor from WWP. Any affiliated solicitor of WWP must disclose the nature of the relationship to prospective clients at the time of the solicitation and will provide all prospective clients with a copy of WWP's written disclosure statement as set forth in Part 2 of Form ADV.

Additional Compensation

Custodian services are generally available to independent investment advisors on an unsolicited basis, at no charge to them so long as WWP maintains a minimum amount of its clients' assets in accounts with the Custodian. Some of the services provided by Custodians include brokerage, custody, research, and access to certain mutual funds and other investments that may not otherwise be available to non-institutional or retail investors, or would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment. In some cases, the Custodian does not charge separately for custody but is compensated by account holders through commissions or other transaction-related fees for security trades that are executed through the Custodian. The Custodian may also make other products and services available to WWP that benefit WWP but may not benefit its clients' accounts. Some of these other products and services may assist WWP in managing and administering clients' accounts. These may include software and other technology that provide access to client account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements), facilitation of trade execution (and allocation of aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts), providing research pricing information and other market data and assisting with back-office functions, recordkeeping and client reporting. Many of these services may be used to service all or a substantial number of the WWP's accounts, including accounts not maintained at the Custodian providing the services. The Custodian may also make available to WWP other services intended to help WWP manage and further develop its business enterprise. These services may include consulting, publications and conferences on practice management, information technology, business succession, regulatory compliance, and marketing. In addition, the Custodian may make available, arrange and/or pay for these types of services rendered to WWP by other independent third parties. While as a fiduciary, WWP endeavors to act in its clients' best interests, WWP's recommendation that its clients maintain their assets in accounts at a certain Custodian may be based in part on the benefit to WWP of the availability of some of the products and services discussed in this Brochure.

In addition, due to the fact that WWP does not directly pay for these services, including any research received, it may be construed as receipt of an economic benefit by WWP and therefore, a conflict of interest between WWP and the client.

Item 15 – Custody

WWP does not maintain custody of customer funds or securities.

Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker-dealer, bank or other qualified Custodian that holds and maintains client's investment assets. WWP urges clients to carefully review such statements and compare such official Custodian records to the account statements that WWP may provide to clients. WWP statements may vary from Custodian statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

WWP will typically have full discretion with respect to the selection, amount, purchase, and sale of securities without requesting and receiving specific advance client consent. WWP will only manage accounts on a non-discretionary basis in rare and unique circumstances and at the sole discretion of WWP.

WWP usually receives discretionary authority from the client at the beginning of an advisory relationship to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. This authority is granted in the investment advisory agreement the client signs. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular client account.

When selecting securities and determining amounts, WWP observes the investment policies, limitations and restrictions of the clients for which it advises.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

WWP's policy is to not vote proxies on behalf of its clients. Clients retain the right and authority to vote securities for their accounts, and therefore, WWP shall have no obligation or authority to take any action or render any advice with respect to the voting of proxies solicited by or with respect to issuers of securities presently or formerly held in a client's account. If the account is an ERISA account (pension, retirement or employee benefit account), the plan delegates such authority to another named fiduciary. Otherwise, the obligation to vote client proxies shall, at all times, rest with the client. Clients will receive their proxies or other solicitations directly from their custodian or a transfer agent. Clients may call us if they have questions about a particular solicitation, but WWP shall not be deemed to have proxy voting authority solely as a result of providing advice or information about a particular proxy vote to a client. Proxies issued on securities held by a registered investment company (i.e. mutual fund) are generally voted by the investment adviser that manages the assets of the mutual fund.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide clients with certain financial information or disclosures about WWP's financial condition. WWP has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
