OTHER BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

In addition to serving as your investment advisory representative Patrick J. Boria is engaged in the following business activities:

- President, Boria Wealth Management. Boria Wealth Management provides financial planning and wealth management services for individuals and businesses.

There are certain business activities in which an investment advisor representative may engage that present potential conflicts of interest. If applicable, additional disclosures relevant to your Advisor's outside business activities are outlined below. Please note that these are potential conflicts of interest and it is your Advisor's fiduciary duty to act in your best interest. If you have any questions about the disclosures please ask your Advisor as this is an opportunity to better understand your relationship and your Advisor's activities.

Your advisor is also a registered representative with Cambridge Investment Research, Inc., ("Cambridge") a registered securities broker/dealer, member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and the Securities Investors Protection Corporation (SIPC). When acting as a registered representative of Cambridge, your advisor may sell, for commissions, general securities products such as stocks, bonds, mutual funds, exchange-traded funds, and variable annuity and variable life products to advisory clients. Clients are not obliged to purchase or sell securities through Cambridge or their Advisor. However, if you choose to establish an account with your Advisor, it is important to understand that due to regulatory constraints, your Advisor must place all purchases and sales of securities products in commission-based accounts through Cambridge or other institutions approved by Cambridge.

The receipt of commissions may create an incentive for your Advisor to recommend those products for which they will receive a commission. Consequently, the objectivity of the advice rendered to clients could be biased. Your Advisor controls for this potential conflict of interest by discussing with clients their specific needs, the benefits and negatives of establishing a fee-based account through a third-party custodian versus establishing a commission-based account through Cambridge Investment Research, Inc. and also the compensation arrangements under the different scenarios.

Your Advisor may receive 12b-1 fees from certain mutual fund companies as outlined in the fund's prospectus. 12b-1 fees are considered distribution or marketing fees and come from fund assets and indirectly from client assets through fund expenses. There are numerous reasons why your Advisor may recommend a certain mutual fund but it is possible the receipt of such fees represents an incentive for your Advisor to recommend funds with 12b-1 fees over funds that have no fees or lower fees.

Your Advisor is independently licensed to sell insurance and annuity products through various insurance companies. When acting in this capacity, your Advisor will receive commissions for selling insurance and annuity products. Clients may choose any independent insurance agent and insurance company to purchase insurance products and are not obligated to purchase insurance products through your Advisor. Regardless of the insurance agent selected, the insurance agent or agency may receive normal commissions from the sale. The receipt of compensation and other potential incentive benefits creates an incentive to recommend products to clients. At the time of any recommendations your Advisor will discuss the products, your needs and any compensation arrangements.

ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION

Patrick refers clients to Dyste Williams Financial Group and receives compensation for these referrals.

Certain product sponsors may provide economic benefits as a result of recommendations or sale of the product sponsors' investments. The economic benefits received can include but are not limited to, financial assistance or the sponsorship of conferences and educational sessions, marketing support, incentive awards, payment of travel expenses, and tools to assist your Advisor in providing various services to clients. These economic benefits may be received directly by your Advisor or indirectly through Cambridge Investment Research, Inc. who have entered into specific arrangements with product sponsors. These economic benefits could influence your advisor to recommend certain products/programs over others.

DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of each supervised person providing investment advice. No information is applicable to this Item.

SUPERVISION

OTHER BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

In addition to serving as your investment advisory representative Howard D. Richards is engaged in the following business activities:

- Partner, GHLR, LLC. This partnership is a real estate investment with two other registered representatives (Paul Humphrey and James Goodland, both with Cambridge Investment Research, Inc.) GHLR, LLC was formed to purchase its current office space. It collects rents from other tenants, mostly other registered representatives and support staff.

There are certain business activities in which an investment advisor representative may engage that present potential conflicts of interest. If applicable, additional disclosures relevant to your Advisor's outside business activities are outlined below. Please note that these are potential conflicts of interest and it is your Advisor's fiduciary duty to act in your best interest. If you have any questions about the disclosures please ask your Advisor as this is an opportunity to better understand your relationship and your Advisor's activities.

Your advisor is also a registered representative with Cambridge Investment Research, Inc., ("Cambridge") a registered securities broker/dealer, member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and the Securities Investors Protection Corporation (SIPC). When acting as a registered representative of Cambridge, your advisor may sell, for commissions, general securities products such as stocks, bonds, mutual funds, exchange-traded funds, and variable annuity and variable life products to advisory clients. Clients are not obliged to purchase or sell securities through Cambridge or their Advisor. However, if you choose to establish an account with your Advisor, it is important to understand that due to regulatory constraints, your Advisor must place all purchases and sales of securities products in commission-based accounts through Cambridge or other institutions approved by Cambridge.

The receipt of commissions may create an incentive for your Advisor to recommend those products for which they will receive a commission. Consequently, the objectivity of the advice rendered to clients could be biased. Your Advisor controls for this potential conflict of interest by discussing with clients their specific needs, the benefits and negatives of establishing a fee-based account through a third-party custodian versus establishing a commission-based account through Cambridge Investment Research, Inc. and also the compensation arrangements under the different scenarios.

Your Advisor may receive 12b-1 fees from certain mutual fund companies as outlined in the fund's prospectus. 12b-1 fees are considered distribution or marketing fees and come from fund assets and indirectly from client assets through fund expenses. There are numerous reasons why your Advisor may recommend a certain mutual fund but it is possible the receipt of such fees represents an incentive for your Advisor to recommend funds with 12b-1 fees over funds that have no fees or lower fees.

Your Advisor is independently licensed to sell insurance and annuity products through various insurance companies. When acting in this capacity, your Advisor will receive commissions for selling insurance and annuity products. Clients may choose any independent insurance agent and insurance company to purchase insurance products and are not obligated to purchase insurance products through your Advisor. Regardless of the insurance agent selected, the insurance agent or agency may receive normal commissions from the sale. The receipt of compensation and other potential incentive benefits creates an incentive to recommend products to clients. At the time of any recommendations your Advisor will discuss the products, your needs and any compensation arrangements.

ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION

Certain product sponsors may provide economic benefits as a result of recommendations or sale of the product sponsors' investments. The economic benefits received can include but are not limited to, financial assistance or the sponsorship of conferences and educational sessions, marketing support, incentive awards, payment of travel expenses, and tools to assist your Advisor in providing various services to clients. These economic benefits may be received directly by your Advisor or indirectly through Cambridge Investment Research, Inc. who have entered into specific arrangements with product sponsors. These economic benefits could influence your advisor to recommend certain products/programs over others.
