Item 4: Advisory Business

Introduction

Lumina Fund Management LLC (hereafter “Lumina”), is a fee based investment advisor that offers qualified investor clients two types of discretionary investment management services: Managed Accounts and a Private Investment Fund, Lumina Partners LP (hereafter “Fund”). Lumina does not offer broad based investment advisory services. Lumina only offers advisory services relating specifically to its proprietary equity market investment strategy.

Lumina was founded in 2004 and has been in business for approximately 8 years. Lumina is owned by Diego Giurleo. The experience, education and background of its professional staff is available in the Brochure Supplement document.

Types of Advisory Services

Lumina offers discretionary investment management services to both managed account clients and a private investment fund. Lumina tailors its investment strategies to meet established investment objectives. Lumina attends meetings and submits views to clients to discuss the investment accounts and provide investment outlooks.

In constructing investment portfolios, Lumina primarily invests in exchange-listed stocks, stock options, exchange-traded funds (ETFs), ETF options and mutual funds. On occasion, Lumina may recommend investments in private investment funds that are suitable and meet specific client investment guidelines. Lumina monitors client accounts on a daily basis so that it may make any necessary transactions in client accounts.

The securities mentioned above entail a wide range of equity market investment risk, including some securities that have high degrees of risk, such as options and private investment funds that are only suitable for sophisticated investors.

Lumina does not provide any “wrap programs” (programs that bundle brokerage and advisory services under a single comprehensive fee) so all securities recommended by Lumina may include additional transaction charges by the client’s broker-dealer/custodian separate from Lumina’s advisory fees.

Managed Accounts

For managed accounts, the client grants Lumina discretionary trading authority in the client’s broker-dealer/custodian account, subject to restrictions agreed upon in advance. This is accomplished by executing an investment management agreement with Lumina and the appropriate documents with the client’s broker-dealer/custodian. The discretionary authority will allow Lumina to enter securities transactions on the client’s behalf, determining which securities and the amount of securities to buy or sell. Clients will be notified of all transactions by trade confirmations from their broker-dealer/custodian and through communication with Lumina.

Under the managed account agreements, Lumina does not have the authority to make any withdrawals from the client's account(s) under management and Lumina does not provide any custodial functions. All withdrawals from the client's account(s) under management will be initiated and authorized by the client through direct communication with the broker-dealer/custodian including the payment of advisory fees to Lumina. Lumina recommends that clients always review their brokerage account statements to verify the trading activity and withdrawals that occur in their account(s). "FEES AND COMPENSATION" is discussed at greater length in Item 5 of this FIRM BROCHURE.

As of December 31, 2011, Lumina's discretionary managed account assets under management totaled approximately $537 million. Clients include a major corporation, a fund of funds, an endowment and a charitable foundation.

Private Investment Fund

Lumina provides the same discretionary management services to the Fund as describe above for managed accounts. "FEES AND COMPENSATION" is discussed at greater length in Item 5 of this FIRM BROCHURE.

As of December 31, 2011, the Fund did not have any client assets.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

Fees for Managed Accounts

Lumina charges two types of fees for managed accounts: management fee and performance fee. Lumina may also negotiate flat fee arrangements with clients. In addition, clients may incur custodian fees or mutual fund expenses in connection with Lumina's advisory services.

Management Fee

Lumina charges an annual 2% management fee, based on a percentage of assets under management. The management fee is paid quarterly in arrears.

Lumina calculates and charges its management fee at the end of each calendar quarter. Once the fee amount is agreed upon between the client and Lumina, the client instructs its broker-dealer/custodian to withdraw the fee from the client's account and make the payment to Lumina. As stated above, with respect to managed accounts, Lumina does not have the authority to make any withdrawals from the client's broker-dealer/custodian account.

Lumina may negotiate its management fee and may offer discounts for strategic investors, employees, friends and family.

Performance Fee

Lumina charges an annual performance fee of 20% of the participation of the net return generated for the client's account. The net return is defined as the gross return less annual management fees.

If the net return is negative, no performance fee is paid by the client to Lumina until the value of the client's account at the end of successive calendar years exceeds the highest level reached at the end for all previous calendar years.

Lumina calculates and charges its performance fee at the end of each calendar year. The performance fee is charged in arrears. Once the fee amount is agreed upon between the client and Lumina, the client instructs its broker-dealer/custodian to withdraw the fee from the client's account and make the payment to Lumina. As stated above, Lumina does not have the authority to make any withdrawals from the client's broker-dealer/custodian account. Performance fees are paid in the month following the end of the calendar year (e.g. January, 2012 for the full year 2011 investment period).

Lumina may negotiate its performance fee and may offer discounts for strategic investors, employees, friends and family.

Fees for Private the Fund

The Fund incurs two types of fees: management fee and performance fee. The Fund may incur additional administration, legal and accounting fees in compliance with its investment management and limited partnership agreement.

Management Fee

Lumina charges an annual 2% management fee, based on a percentage of assets under management. The management fee is paid quarterly in arrears. Lumina may negotiate its management fee and may offer discounts for strategic investors, employees, friends and family.

Performance Fee

The Fund's General Partner, Lumina Fund Advisors LLC, will be entitled to an annual performance fee equal to 20% of the appreciation of each Limited Partner's Capital Account. This fee will be charged in arrears upon any of the following payment dates: (i) the end of each fiscal year, (ii) the complete withdrawal from the Fund or (iii) a withdrawal exceeding 50% of the Limited Partner's Capital Account.

If the net return is negative, no performance fee is paid by the Limited Partner until the value of the Limited Partner's Capital Account at the end of successive payment dates exceeds the highest level reached at the end for all previous calendar years. Lumina may negotiate its performance fee and may offer discounts for strategic investors, employees, friends and family.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

As stated above, in addition to receiving performance fees based on the capital appreciation of assets under management, Lumina also receives management fees based on the client assets under management and flat fees from certain clients.

While managing these accounts side-by-side, Lumina is fully cognizant of its fiduciary obligations to its clients. There may be a conflict caused by offering a performance fee which may encourage undue risk taking. To avoid these conflicts, all actions undertaken by Lumina personnel are in strict accordance with Lumina's Code of Ethics, which outlines its principles and business standards of conduct. The code emphasizes among other things, that it is the duty and obligation of each employee to put the interest of the client first, comply with all applicable securities laws, obtain approval before engaging in certain outside activities, avoid conflicts of interest, treat all client information with the utmost confidence and report any violations of the code to the Chief Compliance Officer. Lumina's Code of Ethics will be provided to any client upon request.

Item 7: Types of Clients

Lumina will provide advisory services to various types of clients.

Lumina's Managed Account clients generally will include: corporations, fund of funds, trusts, endowments, foundations and other charitable organizations. The minimum investment is $25,000,000; however Lumina may accept smaller amounts.

Lumina's Private Investment Fund clients generally will include: qualified high net-worth individuals, trusts, fund of funds and family offices. The minimum investment is $1,000,000; however Lumina may accept smaller amounts.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Lumina structures investment strategies to meet clients' financial goals within specific investment guidelines outlined in the investment management agreement with the client. In achieving this objective, Lumina applies fundamental, quantitative/technical and behavioral analysis to select investment candidates and construct client portfolios.

Lumina's fundamental analysis aims to establish the intrinsic value of equities based on thorough analysis of fundamental metrics including: analysis of financial statements, earnings, dividends, management structure, competitive advantages, product offerings, competitors and markets. Fundamental analysis provides a sound evaluation of the overall financial condition of investment candidates. Despite the fundamental analysis performed by Lumina, any investment in equity securities carries market risk and investors may lose their principal investment.

In its quantitative/technical analysis, Lumina does thorough research of past market price and volume trends to assist in determining the future direction of equity prices. This is done by investigating past price movements to identify trends and patterns used in the selection of securities to purchase and price points to buy and sell. Lumina applies a set of parameters to chart and analyze the movement of various securities. Despite the quantitative/technical analysis performed by Lumina, any investment in securities carries market risk and investors may lose their principal investment.

In its behavioral analysis, Lumina applies the basic principles of behavioral finance to complement and strengthen its fundamental and quantitative/technical analysis. In deploying its behavioral finance approach, Lumina seeks to invest in securities that not only present attractive fundamental and quantitative metrics, but also demonstrate an element of over and/or under-reaction to material market information. Lumina focuses on information such as: earnings announcements, changes in analyst ratings and corporate actions. Despite the behavioral finance analysis performed by Lumina, any investment in securities carries market risk and investors may lose their principal investment.

In creating its investment strategies, Lumina uses the following main sources of information: its own proprietary research, research materials provided by others, annual reports, prospectuses, filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, company press releases and financial publications.

The investment strategies may include: long term purchases (securities held over 1 year), short term purchases (securities held less than 1 year), trading (securities sold within 30 days), short sales, margin transactions and option writing, including covered options, uncovered options and spread strategies.

While Lumina does not engage in day-trading, active strategies may entail additional risk due to a greater frequency in transactions. As such, active strategies may involve additional brokerage fees, transaction costs, and taxes. Also, strategies that use options may entail additional risk as losses may exceed those seen in the underlying stock. Lastly, strategies that include private investment funds entail greater risk as these offerings have limited regulatory oversight, have less liquidity, and depend on the due diligence of the investor or investment advisor.

For Managed Account Clients, the investment strategies used will vary depending on the client's financial goals and risk tolerance. Generally, clients seeking capital preservation with limited risk will be managed less actively with strategies using equities, mutual funds, index funds and ETFs. Clients seeking growth with greater risk will be managed with active strategies using equities, ETFs, and stock options.

For the Private Investment Fund, the Fund will be actively managed and seek growth with a risk profile in line with our active managed account platform. The Fund will deploy active strategies using stocks, ETFs, and stock options.

Item 9: Disciplinary Information

Neither Lumina nor any of its related persons have had any legal or disciplinary events in their past. Clients and prospective clients can always view the CRD records (registration records) for Lumina or any of its related persons through the SEC's Investment Adviser Public Disclosure (IAPD) website at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov. The CRD number for Lumina is 144082. Lumina's BROCHURE SUPPLEMENT document contains biographical information for Lumina's personnel.

Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Lumina Fund Advisors LLC, an affiliated company of Lumina, is the General Partner of Lumina Partners LP, a private investment fund. Clients should be aware of potential conflicts of interest before considering an investment in Lumina Partners LP. Accordingly, as a matter of policy and practice, Lumina discusses with every client in advance that (i) there is a conflict of interest; (ii) that the client is not required to invest with Lumina Partners LP; (iii) that the client alone makes the decision to invest with Lumina Partners LP.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

Pursuant to SEC Rule 204A-1, Lumina has a Code of Ethics that promotes the fiduciary duty of Lumina and its personnel. The Code of Ethics articulates the importance of trust as a foundation to the relationship between an investment advisor and its clients and establishes policies and procedures to ensure that Lumina and its personnel place the interests of the clients first. The Code of Ethics requires that Lumina and its personnel adhere to all applicable securities and related laws and regulations. The Code of Ethics also requires that Lumina and its personnel follow industry "best practices" involving: confidential information, suitability of investments, personal trading on the part of Lumina and its personnel, outside business activities of its personnel, and the disclosure of conflicts of interest.

A copy of the Lumina's Code of Ethics is available upon request for any client or prospective client.

Participation of Interest in Client Transactions

As explained in Item 10, "OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES AND AFFILIATIONS" above, an affiliate of Lumina, Lumina Fund Advisors LLC, is the General Partner of Lumina Partners LP, a private investment fund in which the principal of Lumina has personally invested. To avoid any conflict of interest between the investment activities of Lumina Partners LP and those of any other Lumina advisory clients, Lumina strictly adheres to its Code of Ethics. (See Item 11 CODE OF ETHICS SECTION above). Specific trading and investment guidelines are in place to ensure that best practices for all accounts are adhered to fairly, equally and in compliance with our Code of Ethics.

Personal Trading

Lumina may have an interest in client transactions insofar as Lumina, its affiliates, and/or its personnel may invest in the same securities recommended to advisory clients. These transactions involve a conflict of interest as Lumina, its affiliates, and/or its personnel may benefit from an increase in price from subsequent purchases by advisory clients. To address this conflict of interest, Lumina, its affiliates, and its personnel will adhere to the following procedures regarding their personal trading:

- (1) Client transactions will always be placed ahead of those for Lumina, its affiliates, and its personnel;
- (2) Lumina, its affiliates, and its personnel will mostly recommend investments that are widely traded;
- (3) Lumina, its affiliates, its personnel and advisory clients will never have enough funds invested in any given security to move the market in that particular security.

The Chief Compliance Officer is responsible to monitor all personal trading and to insure conformity to the guidelines provided in Lumina's Code of Conduct.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

In selecting broker-dealers for client transactions, Lumina applies the following criteria: efficient trading platform, adept trade execution, low cost commission structure and smooth transaction settlement. In exercising its fiduciary duty, Lumina constantly canvasses the broker-dealer market place to ensure that advisory clients are benefitting from the best brokerage services at the most reasonable cost.

Research and other Soft Dollar Benefits

While Lumina has access to broker-dealer research which may be considered "soft dollar benefits" and constitute a conflict of interest, this does not factor in Lumina's decision to do business with any broker-dealer. Lumina does not receive any other "soft dollar benefits".

Directed Brokerage

Lumina only selects broker-dealers on the basis of our clients' interest in receiving the most favorable execution for its trades. As such, Lumina selects to execute transactions with specific brokers with the sole intention of receiving efficient low cost execution which is in our clients' best interest. Lumina does not engage in markups or markdowns of brokerage commissions. Lumina never directs client transactions to a particular broker dealer in return for client referrals.

None of our clients require Lumina to direct its brokerage to any particular firm. Lumina has no affiliation with any broker-dealer.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

Lumina reviews all client accounts on a daily basis. Lumina conducts regular portfolio reviews which involve performance and risk analysis and may result in the appropriate portfolio rebalancing to meet clients' investment objectives. Lumina's managed account clients have full access to all account details, transactions and net asset valuations on an ongoing basis, and also receive weekly risk reports and monthly statements.

Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

In accordance with applicable SEC rules, Lumina may compensate other financial professionals to refer clients to Lumina for investment advisory services. For referrals that engage Lumina for investment advisory services, Lumina will compensate the financial professional a portion of Lumina's fees. The use of referral compensation may constitute a conflict of interest. Lumina currently has no such compensation arrangements. In the event that Lumina engages in such arrangements, Lumina will ensure all conflict of interest issues are eliminated within the framework of Lumina's compliance guidelines and Code of Ethics. (See Item 11 CODE OF ETHICS SECTION above).

Item 15: Custody

For Managed Accounts, clients engage an independent broker-dealer/custodian to maintain their accounts and so Lumina does not have physical custody or access of clients' assets, monies, or securities. Clients receive and/or have access to account statements directly from the custodian.

For the Private Investment Fund, under the investment management agreement the Fund will engage an independent broker-dealer/custodian to maintain its account so Lumina does not have physical custody of, or access to, the Fund's assets, monies, or securities. The Fund will receive and/or have access to account statements directly from the custodian and/or administrator in connection therewith, Lumina will advise the Fund to carefully review such account statements.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

As described in Item 4 "ADVISORY BUSINESS" section of this FIRM BROCHURE, Lumina has investment discretion for its advisory clients. Before assuming this authority, Lumina will execute an investment management agreement with each client which grants such authority within the specific guidelines of the agreement. Clients will also sign a trading authorization form with their broker-dealer/custodian which specifies Lumina's investment discretion in the clients' accounts.

When clients grant discretionary authority to Lumina, clients may still place restrictions on Lumina, such as a prohibition on investing in specific securities, industries, or markets that the client chooses. These restrictions are outlined and specified in the investment management agreements between Lumina and its clients.

In executing its investment discretion, Lumina ensures that it maintains its clients' investment profile in-line with the guidelines stipulated in the investment management agreements executed between Lumina and its respective clients.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities

With respect to managed accounts, for any security that entails a voting right in the underlying company, Lumina will not have or accept authority to vote client securities. All voting issues, proxies, and solicitations will be communicated to advisory clients through the client's broker-dealer/custodian. Upon request, however, Lumina may help explain or answer questions regarding a given voting issue.

For the Private Investment Fund, Lumina will fulfill its voting duties with the best interest of clients in mind.

Item 18: Financial Information

Lumina would be required to disclose additional financial information if it were to charge fees in advance, but as described in Item 4 "ADVISORY BUSINESS" section of this FIRM BROCHURE, Lumina charges all advisory fees in arrears. Lumina has no material financial conditions (e.g. bankruptcies, liens, judgments) in its backgrounds that would be likely to impair its ability to meet contractual commitments.

Item 19: Requirements for State-Registered Advisers

Lumina is not a state registered advisor; accordingly, the question is not applicable to Lumina.
