Scott R. McMillian, CPA, CFP®
Chief Executive Officer

Item 2 – Educational Background and Business Experience

Scott is Chief Executive Officer, founding partner of Sendero Wealth Management and a member of the Sendero Investment Committee. He began his career in 1990 with Arthur Andersen's Personal Financial Planning group, a team dedicated to servicing high net worth individuals and families. In 1998, Scott joined Fred Middleton at PaineWebber, which became Redstone Consulting – San Antonio in 2000. In 2008, Scott led the transition of that office to Sendero Wealth Management and became Chief Executive Officer. He graduated with a BBA and MS from Texas A&M University and enjoys endurance mountain biking and spending time outdoors with his wife, Elizabeth, and their two teenagers. Scott is a licensed CPA and a Certified Financial Planner.

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT (CPA) CPAs are licensed and regulated by their state boards of accountancy. While state laws and regulations vary, the education, experience and testing requirements for licensure as a CPA generally include minimum college education (typically 150 credit hours with at least a baccalaureate degree and a concentration in accounting), minimum experience levels (most states require at least one year of experience providing services that involve the use of accounting, attest, compilation, management advisory, financial advisory, tax or consulting skills, all of which must be achieved under the supervision of or verification by a CPA), and successful passage of the Uniform CPA Examination. In order to maintain a CPA license, states generally require the completion of 40 hours of continuing professional education (CPE) each year (or 80 hours over a two year period or 120 hours over a three year period). Additionally, all American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) members are required to follow a rigorous Code of Professional Conduct which requires that they act with integrity, objectivity, due care, competence, fully disclose any conflicts of interest (and obtain client consent if a conflict exists), maintain client confidentiality, disclose to the client any commission or referral fees, and serve the public interest when providing financial services. The vast majority of state boards of accountancy have adopted the AICPA's Code of Professional Conduct within their state accountancy laws or have created their own.

The CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ (CFP®) certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 62,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- Education – Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;
- Examination – Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination, administered in 10 hours over a two-day period, includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;
- Experience – Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and
- Ethics – Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals.

Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

- Continuing Education – Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field
- Ethics – Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients. CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.

To learn more about the CFP certification, visit www.cfp.net.

Thomas A. Carter, CPA, CFA
Chief Financial Officer

Item 2 – Educational Background and Business Experience

Tommy serves as Chief Financial Officer for Sendero Wealth Management and a member of the Sendero Investment Committee. Working at USAA from 1986 to 2001, Tommy worked in a number of accounting positions at the USAA Investment Management Company and completed his tenure as an Equity Securities Analyst picking stocks for the USAA Mutual Funds. He joined Redstone Consulting – San Antonio in 2001 – helping the firm grow into an autonomous business unit and eventually transitioning that office into Sendero Wealth Management in 2008. Tommy has a BBA in Economics & Finance from Texas Tech University and an MBA in Accounting from St. Mary's University. Outside of work, Tommy enjoys gardening, water skiing, and relaxing with his family at the lake. He is a licensed CPA and is a CFA Charter holder.

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT (CPA) is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CPA certification. CPAs are licensed and regulated by their state boards of accountancy. While state laws and regulations vary, the education, experience and testing requirements for licensure as a CPA generally include minimum college education (typically 150 credit hours with at least a baccalaureate degree and a concentration in accounting), minimum experience levels (most states require at least one year of experience providing services that involve the use of accounting, attest, compilation, management advisory, financial advisory, tax or consulting skills, all of which must be achieved under the supervision of or verification by a CPA), and successful passage of the Uniform CPA Examination. The CHARTERED FINANCIAL ANALYST (CFA) charter is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFA certification. It is a globally respected, graduate-level investment credential established in 1962 and awarded by CFA Institute – the largest global association of investment professionals. There are currently more than 90,000 CFA charterholders working in 135 countries.

To attain the right to use the CFA marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

- pass three sequential, six-hour examinations
- have at least four years of qualified professional investment experience
- join CFA Institute as a member
- commit to abide by, and annually reaffirm, their adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct

Ethics - The CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct, enforced through an active professional conduct program, require CFA charterholders to:

- Place their clients' interests ahead of their own
- Maintain independence and objectivity
- Act with integrity
- Maintain and improve their professional competence
- Disclose conflicts of interest and legal matters

Global Recognition - Passing the three CFA exams is a difficult feat that requires extensive study (successful candidates report spending an average of 300 hours of study per level). Earning the CFA charter demonstrates mastery of many of the advanced skills needed for investment analysis and decision making in today's quickly evolving global financial industry. As a result, employers and clients are increasingly seeking CFA charterholders—often making the charter a prerequisite for employment. Additionally, regulatory bodies in 19 countries recognize the CFA charter as a proxy for meeting certain licensing requirements, and more than 125 colleges and universities around the world have incorporated a majority of the CFA Program curriculum into their own finance courses.

Comprehensive and Current Knowledge -The CFA Program curriculum provides a comprehensive framework of knowledge for investment decision making and is firmly grounded in the knowledge and skills used every day in the investment profession. The three levels of the CFA Program test a proficiency with a wide range of fundamental and advanced investment topics, including ethical and professional standards, fixed-income and equity analysis, alternative and derivative investments, economics, financial reporting standards, portfolio management, and wealth planning. To learn more about the CFA charter, visit www.cfainstitute.org.

Fred H. Falls, CPA
Investment Advisor

Item 2 – Educational Background and Business Experience

Fred is an Investment Advisor with more than 30 years of investment experience. Fred started Falls Wealth Management in 2000, servicing high net worth families in San Antonio. He joined Redstone Consulting – San Antonio in 2004 and transitioned to the Sendero Wealth Management team in 2008. He enjoys spending time in Rockport, Texas with his grandchildren. Fred is a Certified Public Accountant, a credentialed AICPA Personal Financial Specialist and has a BBA from St. Mary's University.

CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT (CPA) is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CPA certification. CPAs are licensed and regulated by their state boards of accountancy. While state laws and regulations vary, the education, experience and testing requirements for licensure as a CPA generally include minimum college education (typically 150 credit hours with at least a baccalaureate degree and a concentration in accounting), minimum experience levels (most states require at least one year of experience providing services that involve the use of accounting, attest, compilation, management advisory, financial advisory, tax or consulting skills, all of which must be achieved under the supervision of or verification by a CPA), and successful passage of the Uniform CPA Examination. In order to maintain a CPA license, states generally require the completion of 40 hours of continuing professional education (CPE) each year (or 80 hours over a two year period or 120 hours over a three year period). Additionally, all American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) members are required to follow a rigorous Code of Professional Conduct which requires that they act with integrity, objectivity, due care, competence, fully disclose any conflicts of interest (and obtain client consent if a conflict exists), maintain client confidentiality, disclose to the client any commission or referral fees, and serve the public interest when providing financial services. The vast majority of state boards of accountancy have adopted the AICPA's Code of Professional Conduct within their state accountancy laws or have created their own.
