- A. Alpha Team Capital LLC (“Alpha Team Capital” or “Advisor”) is a Delaware Limited Liability Company formed on May 7, 2012. The principal owners are Stanley H. Chan. Stanley H. Chan leads Alpha Team Capital and is responsible for the investment activities of Alpha Team Capital’s clients as well as Alpha Team Capital’s research strategy and firm management.
- B. Alpha Team Capital provides investment advisory services exclusively to Alpha Team Capital LP (“Fund”). In this capacity it selects investments based on fundamental analysis. See Item 8 for more detail on Alpha Team Capital’s fundamental analysis strategy.
- C. Alpha Team Capital’s advisory services are generally not tailored to the individual needs of Fund investors and Fund investors are generally not permitted to impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities.
- D. Alpha Team Capital does not participate in wrap fee programs.
- E. As of June 11, 2012, Alpha Team Capital manages $0.00 in client assets.

All material conflicts of interest under CCR Section 260.238 (k) are disclosed regarding the investment adviser, its representatives or any of its employees, which could be reasonably expected to impair the rendering of unbiased and objective advice.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

- A. Alpha Team Capital charges a 2% annual management fee (calculated as a percentage of assets under management) for its advisory services. Alpha Team Capital does not directly accept performance-based allocations. However, supervised persons directly accept performance-based allocations through Alpha Team Capital Holdings LLC, the general partner of the Fund, which has contracted certain management responsibilities to Alpha Team Capital. Alpha Team Capital and supervised persons only manage accounts that collect a performance-based allocation. The performance-based allocation allocable to the Alpha Team Capital Holdings LLC, the general partner of the fund, is equal to twenty percent (20%) of the aggregate net gain allocated annually to the Fund's capital account subject to a "high water mark" limitation, so that no allocation is made to the general partner with respect to its performance-based allocation until prior net losses allocated to a client are recouped. The high water mark shall be re-set on an annual basis. The amount of prior period net losses that must be recouped before a performance-based allocation is made shall be adjusted to take into account any distributions to or withdrawals by a client, with the amount of such prior net losses being reduced in proportion to the distribution or withdrawal. In certain circumstances, fees may be individually negotiated by Fund investors and/or managed accounts. Negotiated fees may be higher or lower than those discussed above. Similar services may be available from other investment advisers at a lower cost.
- B. Alpha Team Capital deducts fees from clients' assets. Management fees are deducted quarterly in advance. Performance-based allocations are deducted annually in arrears.
- C. Clients of Alpha Team Capital incur brokerage and other transaction costs. See Item 12 for more information on brokerage.
- D. Alpha Team Capital charges a quarterly management fee in advance. If the advisory contract is terminated before the end of the billing period, Alpha Team Capital will automatically refund the management fee on a pro rata basis to the client in the form of a certified check.
- E. Alpha Team Capital and our supervised persons do not accept compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Alpha Team Capital does not directly accept performance-based allocations. However, supervised persons directly accept performance-based allocations through Alpha Team Capital Holdings LLC, the general partner the Fund, which has contracted certain management responsibilities to Alpha Team Capital. Alpha Team Capital and supervised persons only manage accounts that collect a performance-based allocation and all clients are charged the same performance-based allocation. Performance-based fees will only be charged in accordance with the provisions of CCR Section 260.234.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

Alpha Team Capital generally provides investment advice to "accredited investors" and "qualified purchasers", as such terms are defined in the federal securities laws, either directly or through private investment vehicles. Clients and Fund investors include individuals, trusts, pension plans, corporations, and public and private entities. Fund investors must meet the investor qualifications associated with the Fund. Other than those qualifications required by law, there are no specific requirements to open an account.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

- A. Alpha Team Capital's investment strategy is based on the theory that, in a dynamic market, the prices of securities sometimes violate sensible risk/return boundaries. In managing its clients' assets, Alpha Team Capital seeks to identify and exploit these opportunities through detailed fundamental analysis of specific companies.

Rigorous fundamental analysis is performed to confirm the attractiveness of the candidates and reduce negative event risk. Facts and insights are ascertained through financial statement analysis, industry analysis, and discussions with company management and other industry professionals.

Once the fundamental analysis has been performed, Alpha Team Capital will evaluate a company by its risk and reward over a specific time frame. Various absolute and relative valuation techniques are used. However, Alpha Team Capital's primary valuation techniques are cash-based methods, as Alpha Team Capital believes that strong cash generation leads to increased shareholder value and strong stock performance.

On occasion, Alpha Team Capital may recommend the purchase of options linked to the underlying equities of companies that it holds in client portfolios.

During periods of general market "bullishness," Alpha Team Capital will recommend a net long exposure to the U.S. equity market. Conversely, during periods of general market "bearishness," Alpha Team Capital will recommend a net short exposure to the U.S. equity market and may hold a portion of its portfolio in U.S. Treasury Indices.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

- B. All securities investments risk the loss of capital. The nature of the securities to be purchased and traded by Alpha Team Capital and the investment techniques and strategies to be employed by Alpha Team Capital may increase this risk. While Alpha Team Capital will devote its best efforts to the management of its clients' portfolio, there can be no assurance that Alpha Team Capital will not incur losses. Many unforeseeable events, including actions by various government agencies, and domestic and international economic and political developments, may cause sharp market fluctuations that could adversely affect clients' portfolio performance.

There is no assurance that Alpha Team Capital will correctly evaluate the nature and magnitude of the various factors that could affect the prospects of the securities in which Alpha Team Capital invests. Alpha Team Capital's clients may lose their entire investment or may be required to accept cash or securities with a value less than their original investment.

Alpha Team Capital's models are constructed based on their risk-adjusted back-tested performance. Back-tested performance does not represent actual performance and should not be interpreted as an indication of such performance. Back-tested performance differs from actual performance because it is achieved through the retroactive application of the Alpha Team Capital models designed with the benefit of hindsight. As a result, the models theoretically may be changed from time to time to obtain more favorable performance results. Back-tested performance results have other inherent limitations. Such results do not represent the impact that material economic and market factors might have on a portfolio manager's decision-making process if the portfolio manager were actually managing client money. Back-tested performance does not factor in a fundamental review that may be completed by Alpha Team Capital prior to investment. This fundamental review is subjective and may increase or decrease actual returns. Actual future performance may be materially different than that of the back-tested portfolio.

Alpha Team Capital is not required to attempt to hedge portfolio positions in Alpha Team Capital and, for various reasons, may determine not to do so. Furthermore, Alpha Team Capital may not anticipate a particular risk so as to hedge against it. Alpha Team Capital may utilize financial instruments, both for investment purposes and for risk management purposes in order to seek to: (i) protect against possible changes in the market value of clients' investment portfolios resulting from fluctuations in the securities markets and changes in interest rates, (ii) protect clients' unrealized gains in the value of clients' investment portfolios, (iii) facilitate the sale of any such investments, (iv) enhance or preserve returns, spreads or gains on any investment in clients' portfolios, (v) hedge the interest rate or currency exchange rate on any of clients' liabilities or assets, (vi) protect against any increase in the price of any securities Alpha Team Capital anticipates purchasing at a later day or (vii) for any other reason that Alpha Team Capital deems appropriate.

The success of any hedging strategy that Alpha Team Capital may employ will be subject to its ability to correctly access the degree of correlation between the performance of the instruments used in the hedging strategy and the performance of the investments in the portfolio being hedged. Since the characteristics of many securities change as markets change or time passes, the success of Alpha Team Capital's hedging strategy will also be subject to its ability to continually recalculate, readjust and execute hedges in an efficient and timely manner. While Alpha Team Capital may enter into hedging transactions to seek to reduce risk, such transactions may result in a poorer overall performance for clients than if it had not engaged in any such hedging transactions. For a variety of reasons, Alpha Team Capital may not seek to establish a perfect correlation between such hedging instruments and the portfolio holdings being hedged. Such imperfect correlation may prevent Alpha Team Capital from achieving its intended hedge or expose it to risk of loss. The successful utilization of hedging and risk management transactions requires skills complementary to those needed in the selection of clients' portfolio holdings.

Alpha Team Capital is not limited with respect to the amount of capital which may be committed to any one investment. Accordingly, Alpha Team Capital may from time to time hold a few (or even one), relatively large (in relation to its capital) securities positions, with the result that a loss in any one position could have a more material adverse impact on client capital than would a loss position in a more diversified portfolio.

Leverage is the use of borrowed funds for investment. To the extent Alpha Team Capital purchases securities with borrowed funds, its net assets will tend to increase or decrease at a greater rate than if borrowed funds are not used. If the interest expense on borrowings were to exceed the net return on the portfolio securities purchased with borrowed funds, Alpha Team Capital's use of leverage would result in a lower rate of return than if Alpha Team Capital were not leveraged. If the amount of borrowings which Alpha Team Capital may have outstanding at any one time is large in relation to its capital, fluctuations in the market value of clients' portfolios will have a disproportionately large effect in relation to its capital and the possibilities for profit and the risk of loss will therefore be increased. Any investment gains made with the additional monies borrowed will generally cause the value of Alpha Team Capital's assets to rise more rapidly than would otherwise be the case. Conversely, if the investment performance of the additional monies fails to cover their cost to Alpha Team Capital, the value of Alpha Team Capital's assets will generally decline faster than would otherwise be the case. This is the speculative factor known as "leverage."

The amount of any borrowing may also be limited by regulations imposed by the Federal Reserve Board or by the availability and cost of credit. If, due to market fluctuations or other reasons, the value of Alpha Team Capital's assets should fall below required regulatory levels, Alpha Team Capital will be required to reduce its debt by selling securities in its long portfolio.

Alpha Team Capital's annual portfolio turnover rate may vary, depending on market conditions, and at times Alpha Team Capital will engage in substantial short-term trading. Alpha Team Capital has not placed any limit on the rate of portfolio turnover and portfolio securities may be sold without regard to the time they have been held when, in the opinion of Alpha Team Capital, investment considerations warrant such action. A high rate of portfolio turnover involves correspondingly greater expenses than a lower rate.

- C. Small Companies – Alpha Team Capital may invest a substantial portion of its assets in small and/or less well-established companies. While smaller companies generally have potential for rapid growth, they often involve higher risks because they may lack the management experience, financial resources, product diversification, and competitive strength of larger corporations. In addition, in many instances, the frequency and volume of their trading is substantially less than is typical of larger companies. As a result, the securities of smaller companies may be subject to wider price fluctuations. When making large sales, Alpha Team Capital may have to sell portfolio holdings at discounts from quoted prices or may have to make a series of small sales over an extended period of time due to the trading volume of smaller company securities.

Foreign Securities – Alpha Team Capital reserves the right to invest a portion of its assets in securities of companies domiciled or operating in one or more non-U.S. countries, although at present Alpha Team Capital intends to invest primarily in U.S. markets. Investing in non-U.S. securities involves considerations and possible risks not typically involved in investing in securities of companies domiciled and operating in the United States, including instability of some governments, the possibility of expropriation, limitations on the use or removal of funds or other assets, changes in governmental administration or economic or monetary policy (in the United States or abroad) or changed circumstances in dealings between nations. The application of local tax laws (e.g., the imposition of withholding taxes on dividend or interest payments) or confiscatory taxation may also affect investment in non-U.S. securities. Higher expenses may result from investment in non-U.S. securities than would from investment in domestic securities because of the costs that must be incurred in connection with conversions between various currencies and brokerage commissions that may be higher than in the United States. Non-U.S. securities markets also may be less liquid, more volatile and less subject to governmental supervision than in the United States. Such investments could be affected by other factors not present in the United States, including lack of uniform accounting, auditing and financial reporting standards and potential difficulties in enforcing contractual obligations.

In addition, Alpha Team Capital's investments that are denominated in currencies other than the U.S. dollar are subject to the risk that the value of a particular currency will change in relation to one or more other currencies. Among the factors that may affect currency values are trade balances, the level of short-term interest rates, differences in relative values of similar assets in different currencies, long-term opportunities for investment and capital appreciation and political developments. Alpha Team Capital may seek to hedge these risks by investing in currencies, but there can be no assurance that such strategies will be effective.

Short Selling – Short selling involves the sale of a security that Alpha Team Capital clients do not own and must borrow in order to make delivery in the hope of purchasing the same security at a later date at a lower price. Short sales can, in certain circumstances, substantially increase the impact of adverse price movements on clients' portfolios. A short sale involves the risk of a theoretically unlimited increase in the market price of the particular investment sold short, which could result in an inability to cover the short position and a theoretically unlimited loss. Additionally, there can be no assurance that securities necessary to cover a short position will be available for purchase. If Alpha Team Capital "shorts" securities of companies which are not deteriorating to the extent Alpha Team Capital believes them to be, or if the market advances or continues to advance generally, Alpha Team Capital is likely to experience losses from its short sales that can increase rapidly and without effective limit. Moreover, short selling is limited to securities which can be borrowed, and it may be necessary to cover short positions at an undesirable time and at high prices because stocks which were shorted can no longer be borrowed.

Options – Put options and call options typically have similar structural characteristics and operational mechanics regardless of the underlying instrument on which they are purchased or sold. A put option gives the purchaser of the option, upon payment of a premium, the right to sell, and the writer the obligation to buy, the underlying security, commodity, index, currency or other instrument at the exercise price. A call option, upon payment of a premium, gives the purchaser of the option the right to buy, and the seller the obligation to sell, the underlying instrument at the exercise price.

With certain exceptions, exchange-listed options generally settle by physical delivery of the underlying security or currency, although in the future cash settlement may become available. Index options are cash settled for the net amount, if any, by which the option is "in-the-money" (i.e., where the value of the underlying instrument exceeds, in the case of a call option, or is less than, in the case of a put option, the exercise price of the option) at the time the option is exercised. Frequently, rather than taking or making delivery of the underlying instrument through the process of exercising the option, listed options are closed by entering into offsetting purchase or sale transactions that do not result in ownership of the new option. Alpha Team Capital's ability to close out its position as a purchaser or seller of a listed put or call option is dependent, in part, upon the liquidity of the option market.

Over-the-counter ("OTC") options are purchased from or sold to securities dealers, financial institutions or other parties ("Counterparties") through direct bilateral agreement with the Counterparty. In contrast to exchange listed options, which generally have standardized terms and performance mechanics, all the terms of an OTC option, including such terms as method of settlement, term, exercise price, premium, guarantee, and security, are set by negotiation of the parties. Alpha Team Capital expects generally to enter into OTC options that have cash settlement provisions, although it is not required to do so. Unless the parties provide for it, there is no central clearing or guaranty function in an OTC option. As a result, if the Counterparty fails to make or take delivery of the security, currency or other instrument underlying an OTC option it has entered into with Alpha Team Capital or fails to make a cash settlement payment due in accordance with the terms of that option, Alpha Team Capital's loss of premium it paid for the option will not be offset by any anticipated benefit of the transaction.

When Alpha Team Capital purchases an option, it must pay the price of the option and transaction charges to the broker effecting the transaction. If Alpha Team Capital acquires a security by exercising an option as opposed to purchasing such security directly, the total cost of acquiring a security to Alpha Team Capital may be more than the amount of the brokerage costs which would be payable if the security were to be purchased directly. If a put or call option purchased by Alpha Team Capital were permitted to expire without being sold or exercised, the premium that Alpha Team Capital paid for the option will not be offset by any potential gain on the exercise of the option. The risk involved in writing a put option is that there could be a decrease in the market value of the underlying security caused by rising interest rates or other factors. If this occurred, the option could be exercised and the underlying security would then be sold to Alpha Team Capital at a higher price than its current market value. The risk involved in writing a call option is that there could be an increase in the market value of the underlying security caused by declining interest rates or other factors. If this occurred, the option could be exercised and the underlying security would then be sold by Alpha Team Capital at a lower price than its current market value. Purchasing and writing put and call options and, in particular, writing "uncovered" options are highly specialized activities and entail greater than ordinary investment risks.

Newly Created Securities; Initial Public Offerings– Alpha Team Capital may invest in securities sold pursuant to initial public offerings (so-called "new issues") or securities created as a result of spin-offs, split-offs, recapitalizations or other significant corporate events. The risk of loss associated with new issues is greater than that in connection with general securities trading. While Alpha Team Capital believes that new issues offer significant potential for gain, the prices of newly issued securities may not increase as expected, and in fact may decline to a significant extent. Securities created as a result of spin-offs, split-offs, recapitalizations or other corporate events have no public market prior to their initial offering or creation and there is no assurance that (i) an active public market in such securities will develop or continue after commencement of trading or (ii) that the initial public offering price or initial trading level of such securities will be indicative of the market price for such securities on a "fully-distributed" basis.

- A. Alpha Team Capital has authority to vote client securities. Alpha Team Capital has adopted formal written Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures. Clients may obtain a copy of Alpha Team Capital's proxy voting policies and procedures and information on how clients' securities have been voted upon clients' requests.

Most of the securities held for Alpha Team Capital's clients constitute a small percentage of the ownership of the issuer of such securities. Therefore Alpha Team Capital does not expect such issuers to be impacted by its clients' proxy votes related to such securities. Accordingly, Alpha Team Capital has determined that its clients' interests will not be impacted by such proxy votes and that the benefits to its clients related to any such vote would be small and the costs associated with investigating how best to vote such proxies would exceed such benefits. Consequently, Alpha Team Capital will not vote or evaluate proxies relating to a security if its clients are beneficial owners of no more than one percent (1%) of the outstanding securities of such issuer. If, however, Alpha Team Capital believes that the subject matter of a proxy for any such security may nonetheless be material to clients' accounts and that the vote may impact the outcome of such vote, Alpha Team Capital will vote the proxy in a manner that is in the best interest of its client. Alpha Team Capital will evaluate proxies relating to a security if its clients are the beneficial owners of more than one percent (1%) of the outstanding securities of such issuer and has the right to vote securities (which it may not possess if the securities are loaned out). Alpha Team Capital will vote these proxies in a manner that is in the best interest of its clients. In voting on each and every issue, Alpha Team Capital will vote in a prudent and timely fashion and only after a careful evaluation of the issue(s) presented on the ballot.

In exercising its voting discretion, Alpha Team Capital and its employees will avoid any direct or indirect conflict of interest raised by such voting decision. In the event of a material conflict of interest, Alpha Team Capital will disclose the conflict of interest and obtain clients' consent before voting the affected client securities.
