Item 4 – Advisory Business

HFMNA provides asset management services for global equities portfolios using a bottom-up investment process designed to result in a portfolio that seeks to deliver outperformance relative to its benchmark, the MSCI All Country World Index. HFMNA primarily provides discretionary investment advice to institutional clients, including pension and profit-sharing accounts and a pooled investment vehicle, which is not registered for public sale in the United States. Investments for clients are managed in accordance with the client's investment objectives, strategies, restrictions and guidelines.

HFMNA was established in 2009 and became an SEC-registered investment advisor on November 16, 2009. As of March 31, 2012 HFMNA had $957 million in discretionary assets under management. There were no assets managed on a non-discretionary basis.

HFMNA is part of the Hermes Group of Companies ("Hermes"). HFMNA is an indirect, wholly-owned subsidiary of Hermes Fund Managers Limited ("HFML"), a UK holding company, which in turn is wholly owned by the BT Pension Scheme ("BTPS"). Hermes is primarily comprised of affiliated multi-specialist asset managers each of which are described in Item 10. The administration of HFMNA is handled by its General Partner, Hermes Fund Managers (North America), GP, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Hermes Investments (North America) Limited, which in turn is owned by HFML.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

HFMNA's standard fee schedule for institutional accounts ("Separate Accounts") managed in accordance with a global equity strategy is as follows:

Market Value of Assets Annual Percentage Fee

First $50 Million	0.65%
Next $50 Million	0.60%
Next $100 Million	0.55%
Over $200 Million	0.50%

Fees are typically invoiced quarterly in arrears and are based on the market value of assets in a Separate Account on the last trading day of each calendar quarter. In any partial calendar quarter, fees are pro rated based on the number of days in which the account is open during the quarter. For purposes of calculating HFMNA's advisory fees, the market value of assets in a Separate Account shall consist of the market value of securities and other investments held in the account, and will not be reduced by any margin or other indebtedness of clients with respect to such securities or other investments. Assets of Separate Accounts that have a business relationship to each other may, at the discretion of HFMNA, be aggregated for purposes of calculating the advisory fee applicable to each Separate Account.

In certain circumstances, Separate Account fees and minimums may be negotiable. To the extent that fees are negotiable, some clients may pay more or less than other clients for the same management services, depending, for example, on account inception date, applicable investment mandates or restrictions, total assets under management by HFMNA or number of related Separate Accounts. Generally speaking, HFMNA will negotiate lower fees when managing assets of BTPS, the owner of HFMNA's parent company, Hermes Fund Managers Limited ("HFML"), since HFMNA does not expend marketing or other administrative resources in obtaining advisory agreements with BTPS. HFMNA's trade aggregation and allocation policy ensures that all clients are treated fairly regardless of the fees charged. See Item 12, below, for HFMNA's trading policies.

HFMNA's fees are typically adjusted to reflect Separate Account deposits or withdrawals during a quarter, by pro-rating the fees (on number of days) within the quarter to before and after the deposits or withdraw. Clients' Separate Account agreements may be terminated in accordance with agreed terms. Typically, a refund of prepaid fees is not applicable as fees are charged in arrears. However, any unearned, pre-paid fees, should they arise, will be promptly refunded.

Fees and expenses, outside of the management fee outline above, that the client may pay in connection with HFMNA's advisory services, such as custodian and brokerage fees, are the responsibility of the client.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

HFMNA does not currently have performance-based fee arrangements and does not engage in side-by-side management.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

HFMNA currently provides portfolio management services to a corporate pension plan and sub-advisory services to a UCITs fund, which does not market or have clients in the US.

For segregated mandates the minimum account size is $25 million.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Registrant's high-conviction approach, coupled with sector/region neutrality and risk-budgeting is designed to attempt to create consistent risk-adjusted returns while striving to deliver alpha, predominantly through stock selection.

Investment Process

The MSCI All Country World Index serves as our primary investable universe. However we will make pragmatic additions which give us a universe of approximately 2,500 stocks. Our focus tends to be on larger cap (and some mid cap) liquid stocks with market capitalizations that are greater than $1 billion USD and typically have an average daily trading volume of greater than $25 million. Our investment process can be characterized by three distinct value adding steps as described below:

1. Research and Idea Generation

The eight global portfolio managers each maintain responsibility for managing their own global sector portfolio. The global sector funds are paper portfolios that serve as the primary source of ideas and as a “buy-list” for our broader diversified global equity portfolios. In reducing a broad global universe down to an investable idea, the sector specialists conduct their own primary research leveraging external research and industry contacts.

Fundamental Assessment:

Within the context of a systematic assessment, each sector specialist screens his/her sector (using their own proprietary models), seeking to identify stocks that are growing their earnings faster than their industry peers. Direct company contact is also crucial. We spend a significant amount of time meeting with company management teams to understand both their strategy and adherence to that strategy. Sector specialists then question companies within their sector, build their own earnings, cash-flow and balance sheet models and analyze the sources of risk to their forecasts. The managers also are provided with research support from external sources covering the US, Europe, Japan, Asia and Emerging Markets at a local-level. The global sector specialist cross-correlates the external research with other sources and their own research ensuring that the portfolio is invested in the most attractive stocks on a global basis. By marrying the local perspective with a global view we are able to research markets as local investors but analyze them as global investors.

Assessment of growth:

The culmination of our exhaustive fundamental research process and our overall recommendation hinge on our ability to successfully answer four key questions for each stock analyzed:

- What are the growth drivers?
- How sustainable is the growth?
- What are the risks associated with that growth?
- How much of the growth is already reflected in the market value?

2. Global Equity Team Collaboration

To ensure that we fully leverage the insight and experience of our collective team, we compensate our investment professionals in a way that ensures they are equally incentivized to generate strong selection within their own sector, as well as ensure the ideas generated by their peers are equally well-founded. We believe this approach delivers the best results and aligns the entire team's interests with those of our clients. Our investment team meets regularly to discuss new investment proposals, existing holdings, risk positioning and key developments. Investment proposals for our global equity portfolio all come from our sector portfolios to ensure proper filtering of ideas. For portfolio investment proposals a full investment case is produced and circulated to the team a day in advance of the meeting accompanied by conflicting street research reports. This helps ensure the team understands the range of perspectives on "the street" and what we have potentially identified that consensus does not fully appreciate.

The framework of the team discussion is based around collectively agreeing on the following points:

- Does the team understand the story?
- Does the team believe that we have identified something the street has not?
- Does the team believe the FCF/earnings forecast?
- Does the team believe the valuation/target price?

Decision-Making

The idea is to achieve consensus among the team members. However CIO, Lode Devlaminck maintains final decision-making authority and veto power. Once a decision has been made on "what?" to buy or sell, the next question becomes "how much?" should be bought or sold.

3. Portfolio Construction

All proposed portfolio holdings are modeled within the Barra risk model to understand both their impact to the risk budget, as well as their interaction effects on the risk of other holdings in the portfolio. Position sizes will be based on the potential relative attractiveness of a stock, its risk profile, and their degree of conviction. For example, the stocks that have the highest marginal contribution to tracking error should represent the highest conviction stocks with the greatest upside, since they will likely exert the largest influence on overall relative performance. All residual exposures are evaluated in the context of their contribution to the risk budget and the team's level of conviction. This ensures that all risk exposures are both intended and justified.

The portfolio is relatively concentrated at approximately 50 stocks ensuring that the team is able to capitalize on their conviction. Regional and sector exposures are a residual effect of the team's bottom-up stock selection process, but are controlled for risk purposes. In general we seek to remain fully-invested and sector neutral with a maximum cash level of 3% and maximum sector exposures relative to the benchmark of +/-3%. Additionally, we seek to maintain regional exposures within approximately +/-5% of the benchmark to minimize volatility, currency effects and further ensure the risk budget is focused at the stock-level.

Once the model portfolio is created, the final stage in their investment process is the construction of the actual portfolio taking into account client-specific benchmarks and guidelines, while minimizing deviation from the decisions taken by the portfolio managers.

Risk Management

We control risk several ways within our portfolio. The first is through our portfolio structure and internal guidelines which are designed to control tracking error and focus the risk on stock selection which is in line with our explicit skill. We believe that over the long term, significant sector and regional deviations from the benchmark can create excessive volatility in a portfolio and detract from the consistency of performance. By keeping the portfolio sector-neutral (and region constrained) we can focus the risk control and management of the portfolio on stock specific risk, which is where we believe that the most consistent performance can be generated. Our team also employs a unique risk-based approach to portfolio construction which ensures that risk management is a central component in our entire process from idea generation to portfolio construction. We build our position sizes ensuring that the stocks which carry the highest marginal contribution to tracking error are our highest conviction holdings with the best opportunity for upside.

Our investment team qualifies fundamental risks within each investment case and provides an indication of downside relative to upside so that we can continuously align the risk in our portfolio with the team's conviction. We then use the Barra system to model risk before implementing trades so that we can better understand the inter-related factors between stocks and the effects of replacing one holding with another on the balance of the entire portfolio. We further use Factset as our primary attribution tool so that we can evaluate the source of our returns and ensure that they align with our process.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

HFMNA has no disciplinary information to report.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

There are no other industry activities to disclose in relation to HFMNA.

HFMNA is affiliated with the following investment advisers:

- BT Pension Scheme Management Limited (“BTPSM”)
- Hermes BPK Partners LLP (“HBPK”)
- Hermes Equity Ownership Services (“HEOS”)
- Hermes Fund Distributors LLC (“HFD”)
- Hermes Fund Managers Australia Pty Ltd (“HFMA”)
- Hermes Fund Managers Limited (“HIML”)
- Hermes GPE LLP (“HGPE”)

BTPSM, HBPK, HIML, HGPE & HSL are all authorized and regulated by the Financial Services Authority in the United Kingdom.

HBPK, HIML, HGPE, and HSL are all registered investment advisers with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

HFMA is licensed with the Australian Securities and Investments Commission.

HFD is a broker-dealer and a FINRA member.

Please see Item 14 for information on cash solicitation arrangements with certain entities listed above.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

HFMNA has adopted a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) for all supervised persons of the firm describing its high standard of business conduct and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, a prohibition of rumor mongering, restrictions on the acceptance of significant gifts and the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. All supervised persons at HFMNA must acknowledge the terms of the Code of Ethics upon hire and at least annually thereafter.

HFMNA anticipates that, in appropriate circumstances, consistent with clients' investment objectives, it will cause accounts over which HFMNA has management authority to effect, and will recommend to investment advisory clients or prospective clients, the purchase or sale of securities in which HFMNA, its affiliates and/or clients, directly or indirectly, have a position of interest. HFMNA's employees and persons associated with HFMNA are required to follow HFMNA's Code of Ethics. Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of HFMNA and its affiliates may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for HFMNA's clients. The Code is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the employees of HFMNA will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of HFMNA's clients. In addition, the Code requires pre-clearance of many transactions, and restricts trading in close proximity to client trading activity. Nonetheless, because the Code in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. Employee trading is continually monitored under the Code, and to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between HFMNA and its clients.

Certain affiliated accounts may trade in the same securities with client accounts on an aggregated basis when consistent with HFMNA's obligation of best execution. In such circumstances, the affiliated and client accounts will share commission costs equally and receive securities at a total average price. HFMNA will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated on a pro rata basis. Any exceptions will be explained on the order.

HFMNA's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the Code by contacting us at +44(0)20 7702 0888 or l.staley@hermesfundmanagers.com.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

Separate Account clients are free to select their own custodians and may propose a brokerage relationship which HFMNA will consider within its overall counterparty approval process. Depending on the terms of the client's agreement with HFMNA, HFMNA is generally given authority to make the following determinations without obtaining client consent before effecting transactions:

- Which securities are to be bought and sold;
- The total amount of the securities to be bought or sold;
- The broker or dealer through whom securities are to be bought or sold; and

- The commission rates or prices at which securities transactions for client accounts are effected.

In seeking execution of client transactions, HFMNA utilizes the central trading desk ("Central Trading") provided through its affiliate HIML. HFMNA's investment professionals select all client investments and submit trading requests to Central Trading. It is understood that transactions placed on behalf of HFMNA clients are placed through Central Trading and may be aggregated, allocated and otherwise treated alongside transactions for clients of affiliated advisers of HFMNA.

Selection Criteria for Brokers and Dealers

In determining the ability of a broker or dealer to provide best execution of securities transactions, Central Trading considers a number of factors, including the execution capabilities required by the transactions; the characteristic of the financial instrument; the importance of speed, efficiency and confidentiality; the likelihood of settlement; the broker or dealer's apparent familiarity with sources from or to whom particular securities might be purchased or sold; the reputation and perceived soundness of the broker or dealer; as well as other matters relevant to the selection of a broker or dealer for portfolio transactions, which may include research. See also, "Soft Dollar" or Research/Execution Policy and Trade Aggregation and Allocation Policy, below.

Commission Rates or Equivalents

Central Trading will seek to be aware of current commission rates of eligible brokers and dealers and to minimize the expenses incurred for effecting portfolio transactions to the extent consistent with clients' interests and objectives. Although Central Trading generally seeks competitive commission rates, it will not necessarily pay the lowest commission or commission equivalent. Commission rates paid for equities vary from 0% up to 0.75% depending on the asset class, market (by country), investment style, and type of transaction (execution only or bundled trades). HFMNA is responsible for periodically reviewing and consulting with Central Trading on its executions for HFMNA clients.

The execution component of bundled rates (See "Soft Dollar" policy below) are separately negotiated with brokers and dealers based on the particular mix of execution services, research services received, and the appropriate rates for each. Additional information can be provided on request.

Commissions on exchange traded derivatives are paid to the clearing broker on trade date. They are split into a clearing commission that the clearing broker keeps and an execution commission that the clearing broker pays to the execution broker on receipt of a monthly invoice. Each contract has a different rate that is agreed by Central Trading on a transaction-by-transaction basis.

Research and other Soft Dollar Benefits

When appropriate under its discretionary authority and consistent with its duty to obtain best execution, HFMNA may direct brokerage transactions for client accounts to brokers and dealers who provide HFMNA with research and brokerage services. The brokerage commissions used to acquire these services are known as “soft dollars.” The Securities Exchange Act of 1934, Section 28(e) and related SEC interpretive materials provide a “safe harbor” which allows HFMNA to pay for research and brokerage services with soft dollars generated by client account transactions. Section 28(e) permits HFMNA, under certain circumstances, to cause client accounts to pay brokers and dealers a commission for effecting portfolio transactions in excess of the commission another broker or dealer would have charged to effect such transactions.

Brokers and dealers typically provide a bundle of services, including research and execution. The services provided can be either proprietary (created and provided by the broker or dealer, including tangible research products as well as access to analysts and traders) or third-party (created by a third party but provided by the broker or dealer). HFMNA may use soft dollars to acquire either type. Accordingly, HFMNA may pay brokers and dealers commissions for effecting clients’ portfolio transactions in excess of amounts other brokers and dealers would have charged for effecting similar transactions if HFMNA determines in good faith that such amounts are reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and/or research services provided by those brokers and dealers, viewed either in terms of a particular transaction or HFMNA’s overall duty to its discretionary accounts. On a semi-annual basis, HFMNA will consolidate execution and research commissions paid from client commissions into a disclosure report, which can be provided to clients as requested.

In determining whether a service or product qualifies as research or brokerage, HFMNA must evaluate whether the service or product provides lawful and appropriate assistance to it in carrying out its investment decision-making responsibilities. Brokerage and research services that may be provided under Section 28(e) include: (1) furnishing advice as to the value of securities, the advisability of investing in, purchasing or selling securities, and the availability of securities or purchasers or sellers of securities; (2) furnishing analyses and reports and sponsoring seminars or conferences concerning industries, issuers, securities, economic factors and trends, portfolio strategy, and the performance of accounts; and (3) effecting securities transactions and performing functions incidental thereto (such as clearance, settlement, and custody). Under the HFMNA policy, HFMNA may only pay for certain market publications and commentaries, research and data reports and economic forecasts with client commissions.

The receipt of research in exchange for soft dollars benefits HFMNA by allowing HFMNA, at no cost to it, to supplement its own research and analysis activities. This creates a conflict of interest which HFMNA recognizes. HFMNA limits its use of soft dollars to only those services which are within the HFMNA policy and in compliance with the safe harbor. Moreover, any research services received by HFMNA are in addition to, and not in lieu of, services required to be performed by HFMNA under its investment management agreements.

Primary analysis of companies and industries is generally provided by counterparties, while HFMNA’s portfolio managers undertake comparative company evaluations internally, meeting company management wherever possible to complete their assessment. Central Trading has put in place commission sharing arrangements with several counterparties to separate the research component of bundled commissions using an independent third party to facilitate onward payment to research service providers.

As a general matter, brokerage and research services may be used to service HFMNA's other discretionary accounts. However, each and every brokerage or research service may not be used for the benefit of each and every account managed by HFMNA, and brokerage commissions paid by one account may be used to pay for brokerage and research services that may not be used to service that account.

HFMNA will not enter into any agreement or understanding with any broker or dealer which would obligate HFMNA to direct a specific amount of brokerage transactions or commissions in return for such services. However, certain brokers or dealers may state in advance the amount of brokerage commissions they require for certain services and the applicable cash equivalent.

Block Trading

Both HFMNA at the time it creates an order and Central Trading at the time it receives orders, whether from HFMNA or other affiliated advisers, may aggregate or "bunch" orders being placed for execution at the same time for the accounts of two or more clients where they believe such aggregation is appropriate and in the best interest of clients. This practice may enable HFMNA and Central Trading to seek more favorable executions and net prices for the combined order. All orders placed for execution on an aggregated basis are subject to Hermes' Trade Aggregation and Allocation Procedures (the "Procedures"). The Procedures are designed to ensure that no client or account will be favored over another. The Procedures are summarized as follows.

All client orders are executed promptly by Central Trading, whose sole responsibility is to obtain the best price for all clients whose accounts are traded through Central Trading. Central Trading does not give unfair preference to any particular client or any group of clients. Central Trading must ensure that:

- there are reasonable grounds evidenced (or attached or otherwise referred to) on the trade ticket for believing that the allocation is fair;
- the allocation is reasonable and in the interests of all, and
- does not conflict with client instructions or the client agreement.

The overall goal of these requirements is to treat each account fairly, with no inappropriate biases, while retaining tradable position sizes in each account.

The portfolio manager must determine that the purchase or sale of the particular security order is appropriate for the client and consistent with the client's investment objectives and with any investment guidelines or restrictions applicable to the client's account. In determining to include a client account in a bunched order, Central Trading considers the nature and size of the expected bunched order, and other factors appropriate under the circumstances.

Central Trading must reasonably believe that the bunched order is consistent with the overall duty to seek best execution and may benefit each client participating in the aggregated order. Central Trading is required to have a reasonably good faith judgment at the time the order is placed for the execution. It does not mean that the determination made in advance of the transaction must always prove to have been correct in hindsight.

Generally, each client that participates in a bunched order shares in commissions or other transaction costs on a pro rata basis. However, in the event a bunched order is traded on an Electronic Trading System, some client accounts may pay a lower rate in commissions than other client accounts, as determined by the executing broker or dealer, pursuant to special discounted rates offered by the executing broker or dealer based on the number of shares executed at the client account level. When a bunched order is partially filled, the securities actually purchased or sold by the close of each business day must be allocated in a manner that is consistent with the initial trade allocation process and that does not consistently advantage or disadvantage particular clients or groups of client accounts. However, adjustments to the allocation may be made to avoid de minimis allocations to client accounts or to avoid deviations from pre-determined holding limits established for any account.

Directed Brokerage Accounts

In some circumstances, a client may arrange to direct its securities transactions to a particular broker or dealer (“designated broker”) in exchange for various account services (“directed account”) and may negotiate its brokerage commissions or fees directly with the designated broker. By directing trades to a specific and exclusive brokerage firm, the account may not participate in potential savings on execution costs resulting from volume discounts that Central Trading might otherwise be able to obtain for clients which have not directed HFMNA to send their trades to designated brokers (“non-directed accounts”). The brokerage commission rates charged to directed accounts may differ substantially from the rates charged to non-directed accounts.

Central Trading generally attempts to aggregate or “block” trades for client accounts. By directing HFMNA to use a designated broker, an account will generally be unable to participate in block trades. However, Central Trading may, from time to time and at its discretion, execute a trade for a directed account as part of a block trade under either of the following circumstances: a) the designated broker is the executing broker or dealer for an otherwise blocked trade; or b) the executing broker or dealer for the block trade is willing to “step out” the directed account’s portion of the trade in a way that does not disadvantage other participating accounts and the designated broker is willing to accept a trade handled in such manner.

Where a client designates a particular broker or dealer, HFMNA and Central Trading may not be in a position where they can negotiate commission rates or spreads or obtain volume discounts and best price may not be achieved. Trades for a client that has designated a particular broker or dealer may be placed at the end of batched trading activity for a particular security. Accordingly, directed transactions may be subject to price movements, particularly in volatile markets, that may result in the client receiving a price that is less favorable than the price obtained for the batched order. Under these circumstances, the direction by a client of a particular broker or dealer to execute transactions may result in higher commissions, greater spreads, or less favorable net prices than might be the case if HFMNA or Central Trading could negotiate commission rates or spreads freely, or select brokers or dealers based on best execution. These potential results are particularly relevant if directed accounts are trading after large block trades, involve illiquid securities or occur in volatile markets.

Central Trading may execute trades in over-the-counter securities with market makers on a net basis in those securities. Unless, and even if, the designated broker is a market maker in such securities which Central Trading may purchase or sell on behalf of these accounts, Hermes may be unable to obtain best execution on such transactions.

HFMNA generally does not participate in any Commission Recapture or Directed Commission programs.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

Holdings across client accounts are reviewed continuously. The investment team meets daily to discuss ongoing market events, as well as company and industry news. The investment team also holds twice-weekly meetings to focus on the portfolio holdings and risk composition of the strategies. Performance on all accounts is monitored daily and formal performance reviews for the strategy including attribution analysis are typically conducted monthly. The entire portfolio management team is involved in reviewing client accounts. Compliance performs daily guideline monitoring on a pre-trade and post-trade basis. Client Guidelines are coded from the client Investment Management Agreement prior to initial investment and are subject to testing review.

Generally, clients receive quarterly and annual reports from HFMNA. Quarterly and annual reports include a Portfolio Appraisal, Realized Gains & Losses, Unrealized Gains & Losses, Interest, Dividends and Expenses, Contributions/Withdrawals, and Performance History statements. HFMNA will work with clients on a case by case basis to determine their reporting needs and provide customized reporting where applicable and necessary.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

HFMNA may from time to time compensate, either directly or indirectly, either employees or third parties for client referrals. Any such referral arrangements will comply with the relevant portions of the “cash solicitation” rule (Rule 206(4)-3). In particular, third party referral arrangements will be pursuant to a written agreement between HFMNA and the solicitor and all required disclosures will be made. The cost of any referral fees is borne entirely by HFMNA and not by any clients.

Some of HFMNA’s clients may retain consulting firms to assist them in selecting investment managers. Some consulting firms provide services to both those who hire investment managers and to investment management firms. HFMNA may pay to attend conferences sponsored by consulting firms and/or purchase services from consulting firms where it believes those services will be useful in operating our investment management business. HFMNA does not pay referral fees to consultants. However, HFMNA’s clients and prospective should be aware that consulting firms might have business relationships with investment management firms that they recommend to their clients.

HFMNA is affiliated, and has business relationships, with HSL, HBPK, HIML and HGPE, all UK entities registered with the SEC and authorized and regulated by the FSA through cash solicitation arrangements with all four entities under which it receives compensation for referring prospects to HSL, HBPK, HIML and HGPE for the boutiques’ advisory services.

In addition, HIML has a cash solicitation arrangement in place with HFMNA under which HIML is compensated for referring prospects to HFMNA. The cost of this referral fee is borne entirely by HFMNA and not by clients. The referral fee is a percentage of net fee income generated on investments made by the client.

Item 15 – Custody

It is HFMNA’s policy not to accept custody of client funds or securities. We also have policies and procedures designed to prevent us from having inadvertent or deemed custody. From time to time, custodians or other parties may mistakenly send us share certificates, dividend checks or other client assets. HFMNA has procedures that require such assets to be returned in a timely manner.

Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker or dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains the client’s investment assets. HFMNA recommends you carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that we provide to you. Our statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

HFMNA usually receives discretionary authority from the client at the outset of an advisory relationship to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular client account.

When selecting securities and determining amounts, HFMNA observes the investment policies, limitations and restrictions of the clients for which it advises. For registered investment companies, HFMNA's authority to trade securities may also be limited by certain federal securities and tax laws that require diversification of investments and favor the holding of investments once made.

Before accepting discretionary authority, HFMNA will discuss with the client HFMNA's investment strategy in order for the client to decide if it meets with their investment objective. The client's investment guidelines and restrictions must be provided to HFMNA in writing and are usually part of the Investment Management Agreement signed by the client and HFMNA.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

HFMNA believes that voting proxies is an important aspect of portfolio management as it represents an opportunity for shareholders to make their voices heard and to influence the direction of a company. HFMNA is committed to voting corporate proxies in the manner that it reasonably believes serves the best interest of its clients. In accordance with Advisers Act Rule 206(4)-6, HFMNA has adopted a Proxy Voting and Disclosure Policy & Procedure ("Proxy Procedures") to vote proxies on behalf of each discretionary client who has not retained voting authority to itself or delegated voting authority to a third party. HFMNA is affiliated with Hermes Equity Ownership Services ("HEOS"), an entity dedicated to corporate governance and shareholder voting. HEOS and Hermes have adopted corporate governance standards applicable to proxy voting generally. As a Hermes affiliate, HFMNA's Proxy Procedures with respect to voting on specific issues are largely governed by this group-wide policy. Clients of HFMNA who choose not to rely on HFMNA's proxy voting services may independently select HEOS as their third party service provider. If so selected, HEOS will take responsibility for votes cast on behalf of all voting securities held in such clients' accounts. HEOS will be separately compensated directly by such clients and no part of this compensation will be shared with HFMNA.

The quality and depth of management is a primary factor that HFMNA considers when investing in a company. HFMNA will consider each proxy proposal on its merits, and will not follow management recommendations if HFMNA reasonably believes those recommendations are not in the best interest of its clients. For example, HFMNA generally does not vote in favor of proposals to raise barriers to shareholder action, create or increase poison pill provisions, create separate classes of stock with disparate voting rights or elect auditors if there is a question as to the auditors' independence. Because HFMNA considers each proxy proposal and the related corporate circumstances independently, it may vote differently with respect to similar proposals for different companies.

HFMNA recognizes that under certain circumstances it may have a material conflict of interest in voting proxies on behalf of its clients. Such circumstances may include situations where HFMNA, its principals, officers or employees, have or are seeking a client relationship with the issuer of the security that is the subject of the proxy vote. In the event of a material conflict of interest, an independent third party proxy service provider will be engaged by HFMNA to obtain a vote recommendation. HFMNA will adopt the vote recommendation of the third party proxy service provider if HFMNA reasonably believes that recommendation appears to be in the best interest of its clients.

For each proxy, HFMNA maintains all related records as required by applicable law. A client who delegates voting authority to HFMNA may obtain a copy of the Proxy Policy, or a copy of the specific voting record for his or her account(s), by contacting HFMNA at the address identified on the face of this Brochure. The Proxy Policy may be amended from time to time.
