Advisory Business

GoodHaven Capital Management, LLC (“we” or “us” or “our” or “GoodHaven”) was established in November 2010 and began managing individual accounts in February 2011. Larry Pitkowsky and Keith Trauner are the Managers of the firm, and GoodHaven is majority owned by entities controlled by Larry Pitkowsky and Keith Trauner. Larry has more than twenty-five years of research and portfolio management experience. Keith has more than thirty years of research, portfolio management, and executive experience. For the decade prior to their joining GoodHaven, both Larry and Keith held a variety of portfolio management and executive positions directly with or affiliated with Fairholme Capital Management, LLC and its related Fairholme Fund. Markel Corporation, a Virginia-based property/casualty insurance company, is the sole minority partner in GoodHaven and does not participate in day to day management of the firm.

GoodHaven provides investment supervisory services and investment advice for various types of investors with portfolios in excess of $1 million (each a “Client”). We manage portfolios of publicly traded securities, which consist primarily of common stocks, but may also include other securities, such as preferred stocks, bonds, debentures, warrants, and options. We invest using a “focused value investment philosophy” whereby accounts will be concentrated into a limited number of significant investments. Our primary strategy is to use fundamental research to identify securities issued by attractive businesses, whose affairs are managed by sensible and talented owners, and where those securities are selling at a reasonable price. Our strategy is not formally limited by industry, sector, or market capitalization. Our investment horizon is long-term and we expect relatively low portfolio turnover.

As a general rule, we seek Clients who share a similar objective of making money over the long-term by investing in a focused portfolio of undervalued securities. Due to the concentrated nature of the portfolios we manage, it is possible that a large percentage of a Client account may be invested in a single security, industry or sector. Accounts may sometimes hold significant balances in cash or similar securities if we are unable to find investments we believe satisfy our investment criteria. In addition, we may purchase securities other than common stocks as part of our investment strategies as described above and in greater detail below in “Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategy and Risk of Loss.” At a Client’s request or with their prior written consent, we may use margin borrowings or modest exposure to derivative securities to enhance the potential return of investments.

Our investment strategy is focused, and accordingly, we prefer to accept the management of accounts without restriction. We do, however, consider a Client’s needs and goals and may, in our sole discretion, consent to restrictions on how an account may be invested. For example, an officer of a public company may ask that we not purchase shares of that company for his account without specific permission in advance, or may request that his account not be invested in the shares of companies that directly compete with his employer. We normally accommodate such requests and maintain a “restricted” list of accounts we have agreed to manage with limits on our discretion. All such permanent restrictions must be set forth in writing in the Investment Advisory Agreement (the “Agreement”) between us and our Client.

We sponsor and manage accounts in a program we call the GoodHaven Separate Account Program (GSA Program, or GSAP). Unlike a widely diversified account, portfolios managed under the GSA Program will be concentrated, with a small number of individual securities (typically, but not always, between 7 and 15 holdings). The GSA Program is not limited in the number of holdings at any given time and a few securities could account for a majority of the market value of an account. GoodHaven receives a fee (as disclosed in “Fees and Compensation” below) for managing wrap accounts.

All clients will open a brokerage and/or custody account with a broker-dealer or custodian that uses software and technology that meets our minimum compatibility requirements. Clients that choose to open brokerage accounts with one of our primary broker/custodians and that elect the GSA Program will be charged an all-inclusive management fee that will include all transaction and custody costs. By having a certain critical mass of business at our primary broker/custodians, we expect to achieve lower transaction costs and better trading executions on behalf of our Clients. However, Clients are not required to use our primary broker/custodians. Clients who elect to hold securities or transact at a broker/custodian other than one of our primary broker/custodians will pay our investment management fee and bear their own transaction and custody expenses. These Clients may be subject to higher or lower overall costs, and transactions for these clients may be executed at prices that are higher or lower than our broker/custodian may charge other accounts. We do not negotiate transaction fees for Clients that select a broker/custodian other than with our primary broker/custodians, and while we will attempt to achieve favorable trading costs, we are not able to guarantee “best execution” of trades placed for those accounts.

We may enter into other separate account programs with other broker/custodians at our discretion or manage accounts in a similar or related investment style for clients that do not choose our GSA Program. These other programs and other accounts may have terms that are substantially similar to, or different from, those of the GSA Program, and could potentially include accounts with performance related fees, if requested by a client. The firm has adopted procedures to ensure that trades are allocated appropriately so that accounts with performance related fees are not treated better than or worse than any other separate account under management. Equitable and fair treatment of all Client accounts is one of our core principles. Please see “Code of Ethics” below which describes our Code of Ethics governing the behavior of the firm’s managers and employees with respect to the equitable treatment of all accounts.

As of February 28, 2013, GoodHaven managed $469,610,209 on a discretionary basis.

Fees and Compensation

Our fees are payable quarterly in advance, based on assets under management at the end of the previous quarter. Clients will authorize their broker/custodian to deduct the fee from the Client's account upon submission of an appropriate invoice to the broker/custodian, with a copy to the Client, and have the broker/custodian pay the fee to us directly. Generally, our fee schedule is not negotiable, but we reserve the right to negotiate a fee in our sole discretion for any reason we deem appropriate. In our sole discretion, we may agree to invoice a fee.

For non-mutual fund clients, we charge an annual fee as follows:

First $1 million 1.5% of assets under management

From $1 –$ 5million 1.25% of assets under management

Over $5 million 1.125% flat fee retroactive to the first dollar

We also manage the assets of the GoodHaven Fund, a registered investment company that is a series of Professionally Managed Portfolios (SEC File No. 811-05037). For the GoodHaven Fund, we have agreed to charge a management fee of 0.90% of assets under management and a support services fee of 0.20% of assets under management. In addition, we have agreed to be responsible for the payment of all normal day-to-day operating expenses of the Fund so that under normal circumstances, the Fund will pay us total annual fees at a rate of no more than 1.10% of assets under management, calculated daily and invoiced monthly. Different accounts may be charged different fees because they require different services, such as greater reporting services, more frequent consultations, individualized restrictions, or because they require us to follow regulatory or other limitations.

GSA Program Accounts

Clients whose assets are managed in our GSA Program are charged an annual management fee, payable quarterly in advance, based on a percentage of assets under management. The minimum account size for our GSA Program is $1 million, but we may lower this amount at our discretion. The first quarterly fee is due upon execution of the GSAP Agreement and the fee will be assessed pro-rata if the Agreement is signed at any time other than the beginning of a calendar quarter. GSA Program clients will be billed quarterly in advance based on the value of supervised assets in their account on the last day of the preceding calendar quarter.

Accounts not domiciled at our primary broker/custodians, pooled vehicles, investment companies, or certain institutional accounts may pay advisory or management fees on a different schedule and will generally be responsible for their own transaction and custody costs. For such accounts, the timing and payment of management fees may differ from GSA Program Clients.

Unless explicitly covered in a Client's written Agreement, fees do not include brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which the Client may incur. Our Clients may also incur charges imposed by custodians, brokers, and other third parties, including but not limited to, fees charged by managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differential charges, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. To the extent we invest in a professionally managed vehicle, you will be responsible for other expenses charged by that vehicle. For example, other investment advisors charge fees to manage the assets of mutual funds and exchange traded funds, which are disclosed in the funds' prospectuses. Mutual funds or financial intermediaries may also impose sales charges, Rule 12b-1 fees and/or redemption fees, which may be retained by the financial intermediary from proceeds of any withdrawal. All of these types of fees and commissions are in addition to our fees, and we do not receive any portion of these commissions, fees, and costs. Notwithstanding the foregoing, if an account we manage also owns shares of the GoodHaven Fund, we will not charge our Client a management fee on that holding beyond the pro rata advisory fee paid by that fund directly to us.

For the purpose of calculating our advisory fees and advisory fee breakpoints, we may consent, in our sole discretion, to combine the assets of related accounts (e.g. family total assets under management).

Agreements may be terminated by either us or a Client upon written notice, without penalty or liability, but Clients must pay us any accrued but unpaid advisory fees. Any Client who terminates an agreement will receive a pro-rata refund of pre-paid advisory fees allocable to the period after the effective date of the termination notice. Refunds are calculated and paid promptly, within 30 days after the Client notifies us that they are terminating the relationship (or after we terminate a Client relationship).

Neither our managing principals nor our employees receive compensation for the sale of securities or investment products. We do not receive commissions or sales fees and only charge fees for investment advice pursuant to an investment advisory relationship.

Please see Brokerage Practices for a description of the factors that we consider in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for Client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

We may enter into performance-based fee arrangements for qualified clients, under which we will receive a fee based in whole or in part upon a share of the capital gain or overall profit in the Client's account. All such performance-based fees will be individually negotiated with each Client. If we agree to manage accounts using performance-based fees, the performance-based fee arrangements will be structured to satisfy Section 205(a)(1) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 ("Advisers Act") and exemptions thereto. In calculating performance-based fees, we generally include realized and unrealized capital gains and losses as well as income and expenses. For pooled vehicles, we will calculate performance-based fees in accordance with the applicable advisory agreement and governing operating agreement. If market quotations are not available, we will "fair value" assets for purposes of calculating performance-based fees.

To the extent that we manage accounts with both fixed management fee rates and accounts with performance-based fee arrangements, we may have a conflict of interest in that an account with a performance-based fee arrangement will offer the potential for higher profitability when compared to an account with a fixed management fee. Performance-based fee arrangements may create an incentive for us to recommend investments which may be riskier or more speculative than those which would be recommended under a different fee arrangement. Performance-based fee arrangements may also create an incentive to favor higher fee paying accounts over other accounts in the allocation of investment opportunities.

To minimize these and other such issues, we have adopted policies designed to ensure that we treat all Clients equitably in allocating investment opportunities. These policies include our Code of Ethics, which governs the behavior of all employees, review procedures designed to identify unfair or unequal treatment of accounts, periodic performance reviews to identify potential problems, and trade allocation and aggregation policies. We do not consider fee structures in allocating investment opportunities.

Types of Clients

We provide investment advice and portfolio management services primarily to high net worth individuals, trusts, corporate pension and profit-sharing plans, financial institutions, and other corporations. In addition, we may also accept accounts from Taft-Hartley plans, charitable institutions, foundations, endowments, municipalities, registered investment companies, private investment funds, trust programs, sovereign funds, non-U.S. investment pools such as UCITs and SICAVs, and other U.S. and foreign institutions. We are the investment adviser to GoodHaven Fund, a series of Professionally Managed Portfolios (SEC File No. 811-05037).

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Certain of our strategies may result in greater volatility and greater risk of loss than other more diversified strategies. All of our strategies will expose Clients to various risks, including, but not limited to, concentration risk, market risk, interest rate risk, and illiquidity risk.

Methods of Analysis

Our primary method of analysis is fundamental research. Generally, we believe that identifying a significant difference between the market value of a security and the intrinsic value of that security is what defines an investment opportunity. We define intrinsic value as the amount that would accrue to the owners of a security if the underlying company were sold to a rational and well-informed buyer, or the company was liquidated with the proceeds distributed to security holders, or where the particular security sells at a price that would yield no better than a security considered ultra-safe, such as a U.S. Treasury note or bond. We also believe that the market performance of a share of common stock, over an extended period of time, is likely to follow the business performance of the underlying company. Accordingly, our favorite type of investment will be a common stock that is significantly undervalued where we expect future corporate performance to be significantly positive compared to its present position. Securities we believe are undervalued are often not well known by the investing public, or have been the subject of considerable negative publicity, although from time to time these qualities may be found in larger and better known businesses. We are not constrained by geography, sector, industry, or market capitalization in seeking these investment opportunities.

Our Portfolio Managers attempt to understand the long-run dynamics of specific companies by performing extensive fundamental research to review candidates for investment. Normally, this research involves scrutinizing corporate reports, press releases, and financial statements, and reviewing documents filed with the SEC or other regulatory entities, court filings, newspaper, magazine, and internet articles, audio or transcripts of conference calls, presentations, and a variety of additional sources. From time to time, our Portfolio Managers may conduct surveys or other projects or may employ consultants to conduct surveys or other projects that have the potential to provide additional insight into the competitive position of a particular industry or company. The Portfolio Managers may also seek to meet with management to attempt to better understand the long-term strengths and weaknesses of the industry or the conditions under which the company operates. Although a normal portfolio will hold approximately 7-15 securities, it is entirely possible that a portfolio under our management may hold a single security that accounts for 25% of the account's value (measured at the time of purchase) and that a large part of an account's value may consist of just a few securities.

Our strategies are generally long-term and intended to have relatively low portfolio turnover. We are not interested in short-term corporate results except to the extent we believe such results have a bearing on our long-term expectations for growth and profitability of a business, and most of our investment strategies do not contemplate short term trading. We may, however, pursue other value investing strategies involving securities that require more frequent purchases or sales such as those related to risk arbitrage, spin-offs, and companies in bankruptcy. These types of strategies may carry additional costs and risks.

Concentration Risks

Portfolios are concentrated in a smaller number of securities, which while offering significant potential for gain may also result in larger losses to capital than would occur in a more widely diversified portfolio. By concentrating our portfolios, the performance of a single security can dramatically affect the overall value of a portfolio, both up and down. To the extent that our analysis is flawed, or markets become unduly depressed, a large loss in a single concentrated investment could result in a loss that is material to the portfolio as a whole and significantly larger than would be indicated by the movement of the general securities markets.

Market Risk

We have no control over and cannot predict the day to day fluctuations of the stock and bond markets. While we believe that volatility can sometimes lead to favorable investing conditions, every Client is at the risk of loss from adverse movements in general security prices, which have been substantial in recent years and which could continue for a prolonged period. Moreover, a Client's overall investment gain or loss may be significantly influenced by the market prices and conditions at the time of the opening or closing of an account.

Interest Rate Risk

Most securities represent claims against the cash flows or earnings power of a business. To the extent that interest rates increase significantly or that inflation begins to become widespread, the value of both stocks and bonds could decline and remain depressed for an extended period of time. Many businesses may be permanently impaired if inflation becomes significant and stock and bond prices will generally decline if interest rates move up and could suffer large declines if interest rates move up rapidly.

Illiquidity Risk

To the extent we buy securities for our Clients that are thinly traded or illiquid, it may be difficult or impossible to sell a position during times of market stress, leading to significant potential capital loss. To the extent we own illiquid securities based on a business whose fundamentals become impaired, we may not be able to sell all or a portion of our investment and may incur significant losses as a result.

Counterparty Risk

To the extent we invest in derivatives, Client portfolios may be exposed to counterparty credit risk as well as risk of capital loss. Further, we are not brokers or custodians and cannot control the counterparty risk assumed by our primary broker/custodians to third parties or the risks that other brokers or custodians selected by clients may assume by dealing with independent third parties. In certain instances, affiliates of brokers or custodians may have significant counterparty risk to other large financial institutions over which we have no control.

Disciplinary Information

We have no information applicable to this Item.

Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

The Markel Corporation (“Markel”), a publicly-traded property/casualty insurance company domiciled in Virginia, has a non-managing minority ownership interest in GoodHaven and has agreed to have us manage a separate account on its behalf. However, Markel does not exercise any management or portfolio management authority over us and is a passive investor in our firm.

We have entered into arrangements with two large broker/dealers to act as primary broker/custodians for separate accounts managed as part of the GSA Program and who will provide brokerage and other related services to our Clients. We believe these arrangements reflect competitive industry terms. Neither Mr. Pitkowsky nor Mr. Trauner has any material relationship with Markel or any broker/dealer whose services we use other than their participation as an investor or service provider to us.

We manage the investment portfolio of the GoodHaven Fund, a series of Professionally Managed Portfolios (SEC File No. 811-05037).

Otherwise, we have no material relationships or arrangements with any broker/dealer, investment adviser, futures commission merchant or commodities trading advisor or pool operator, bank or thrift institution, accounting firm, law firm, pension consultant, real estate broker, or partnership syndicator.

Code of Ethics

We believe that the interests of Clients and portfolio managers are best served when they are similarly aligned. One of our core principles is that our portfolio managers should “eat their own cooking” and be willing to invest in the same securities we recommend or purchase for clients. While these practices help to align the interests of our portfolio managers, officers, and employees with those of our Clients, they will create conflicts of interest from time to time. We have adopted a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) including procedures designed to avoid having Clients suffer disadvantages from these conflicts of interest.

In following a policy of overlapping holdings, our portfolio managers may purchase or sell securities for their own accounts or those of related persons that are later purchased or sold by clients and our portfolio managers’ personal holdings will often include securities held in Client portfolios. However, our portfolio managers are not required to participate in any particular trade and may, in some instances, be precluded from participating in a block trade due to law or regulation. To demonstrate a financial commitment, our portfolio managers also hold significant personal investments in shares of the GoodHaven Fund to help align their personal interests with those of the Fund’s shareholders. Pursuant to the Code of Ethics, we have adopted procedures to ensure that all clients are treated equitably and that none are materially disadvantaged by the investing activities of our staff.

Our Code for all supervised persons describes our high standard of business conduct and our fiduciary duty to clients. The Code includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, restrictions on the acceptance of significant gifts, the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other topics. All of our supervised persons must acknowledge the terms of the Code annually, or when it is amended. A copy of our Code will be provided upon request.

Our employees and persons associated with us are required to follow the Code. Subject to the Code and applicable laws, our members, officers, directors and employees and our affiliates may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for our Clients. The Code is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of our employees will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory Clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code, certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would not materially interfere with the best interest of our Clients. In addition, the Code requires pre-clearance of many transactions. Nonetheless, because the Code in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as Clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a Client in a security held by an employee. Employee trading is continually monitored under the Code, and our procedures are designed to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between our principals, our employees, and our Clients.

Pursuant to the Code, we have adopted trading policies and procedures to promote fairness and uniformity in our dealings with Clients. However, due to different client objectives, strategies, restrictions, and cash holdings, not all Clients will participate in a particular trade and the fact that a security has been purchased for or held by one Client does not mean it will be purchased by or held by another Client. Similarly, a security sold for one Client does not automatically mean that the same security will be sold by another Client in similar amount or at all based on the above potential differences and restrictions. Due to market conditions and other factors, it is possible that we may purchase or sell a security on behalf of some Clients that we have sold or purchased on behalf of others. We expect to apply a pre-approved allocation methodology depending on the nature of the order, the size of the trade, the number of accounts participating and the aggregate dollar value of the trade. We may use any of the following types of allocation methodologies: pro rata allocation, rotation, random, top down and bottom up.

We require Access Personnel to “pre-clear” trades in securities that we hold for Clients. We have adopted policies allowing, where applicable law and the nature of orders permit, employees to aggregate trade purchases and sales so that Clients (including the Portfolio Managers) receive an average or similar price, subject to significant oversight policies. We believe that aggregating employee and client trades may be a fair and equitable procedure designed to align employee interests with Clients. Certain related accounts may trade in the same securities with Client accounts on an aggregated basis as described further in “Brokerage Practices.” In such circumstances the participating accounts will all receive the same average price and to the extent applicable, will share commission costs equally. We will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated using one of the pre-approved methods. Any exceptions will be explained on the order.

It is our policy not to effect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for Client accounts. We will also prohibit cross trades between Client accounts. Principal transactions are generally transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliated broker-dealer, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. An agency cross transaction is generally a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser, or any person controlled by or under common control with the investment adviser, acts as broker for both the advisory Client and for another person on the other side of the transaction.

GoodHaven’s clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Larry Pitkowsky, Managing Partner, at (305) 677-7650, by e-mailing info@goodhavenllc.com or by visiting our website at www.goodhavenllc.com.

Brokerage Practices

We have agreements with two large broker/custodians to act as our primary broker/custodians whereby accounts managed in our GSA Program will not be charged commissions for accounts domiciled at those broker/dealers and all such commissions will be our obligation and included in the cost of the GSA Program Client's advisory fee. We believe such arrangements are generally conducive to receiving scale benefits offered by large broker/custodians such as reasonable commission expense and block allocations services, two components of determining best execution. However, Clients also may choose their own broker or custodian, acceptable to us, where the Client will remain responsible for all brokerage commissions or mark-ups and custody costs in addition to the advisory fee.

"Soft Dollars"

We do not currently use "soft-dollar services" whereby we will receive research or other services from a broker-dealer in return for directing client commissions. Should we elect to do so, Clients will be promptly notified of the services provided and the difference, if any, between the commission rates of the broker providing the services and other brokers of comparable capabilities. To the extent that the firm does use "soft-dollar" services, the soft-dollar benefits will not be proportionally allocated to any accounts that may generate different amounts of the soft-dollar benefits.

We may also receive research or other execution services provided directly or indirectly by broker-dealers who execute portfolio transactions for our Clients. This research is the type that brokerage houses customarily provide to institutional investors and include statistical and economic data and research reports on particular companies and industries, financial publications, electronic databases and other appropriate research-related products or services. If we receive this type of research, we will use it in connection with managing all of our clients. Although we will use our best efforts to select a brokerage firm whose commission charges are reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and other services we determine in good faith, the price to the client in any particular transaction may be less favorable than that available from another broker-dealer.

We intend for any arrangements concerning receipt of research and brokerage services to comply with the requirements of Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. Section 28(e) provides a "safe harbor" for advisers who use commissions or transaction fees paid by their advised accounts to obtain investment research. Research that provides lawful and appropriate assistance to an adviser in performing investment decision-making responsibilities falls within the safe harbor. These research services supplement our own research and analysis that we use in connection with providing advice to our clients; but there is no reduction in fee by reason of such research. As required by Section 28(e), we will make a good faith determination that the amount of commission or other fees paid is reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and research services provided.

We do not select broker dealers for execution services on the basis of research or brokerage services provided.

Selection of Brokers

We seek prompt execution of orders at the most favorable prices reasonably obtainable. Brokers are selected generally based on providing competitive execution services for trades, however determining the best execution for trades is based a number of factors including, but not limited to, the overall direct net economic result to the Client (including commissions, which may not be the lowest available but which ordinarily will not be higher than the generally prevailing competitive range), the ability of the broker to effectively execute individual or block orders, the nature of the securities being purchased or sold, the expertise of the broker when transacting in a particular security or type of security, the broker's willingness to make a market in an over the counter security, and the reasonableness of the commission rates when compared to the overall services provided. We also consider, generally, execution and clearing capabilities, the financial strength, creditworthiness, reputation and stability of the broker, the broker's ability to effect the transaction at all where a large block is involved, the broker's availability to stand ready to execute possibly difficult transactions in the future and other relevant factors.

Client Directed Brokerage

When a Client directs the use of a specific broker, we will not select broker-dealers to effect portfolio transactions for the Client, but will use the Client-directed broker. Clients that direct the use of a particular broker may be charged additional expenses by that broker.

For transactions effected with Client-directed brokers, we cannot assure best execution for each transaction because we are not controlling the selection of broker-dealers for execution.

If the broker-dealer designated by the Client has referred the Client to us, there may be a conflict between our interest in receiving future referrals from that broker-dealer and the Client's interest in obtaining best execution. We understand the existence of this conflict.

When a Client directs us to use a particular broker-dealer, the Client's orders may not be aggregated with orders for our other accounts. When the Client's order is not aggregated with orders for other accounts, a trade for the Client may be executed at different prices and commission rates, either more or less favorable, than trades in the same security for other accounts.

Trade Aggregation and Allocation

We have policies and procedures to manage the conflicts of interest that may result from Trade Aggregation and Allocation. We summarize these below. Trade Aggregation may benefit our clients, because clients may obtain better overall executions by being part of a large trading block. In some cases, however, not every Client can participate fully in an aggregated trade.

We may aggregate broker transactions for our clients in order to obtain a favorable execution, favorable transaction costs, or equitable treatment of participating accounts. In such an event, we will allocate the securities or investments to be purchased or sold, as well as the expenses incurred in the transactions (to the extent such expenses are not borne by us) in a manner that we consider equitable and consistent with our obligations to our Clients. Not all transactions may be aggregated and not all clients participate in every aggregated transaction. To the extent allowed by law, we may also, in our discretion, permit employees or related accounts to participate in aggregated trades so long as we believe such aggregation is fair and equitable to all participating Clients. In these cases, our employee accounts will have obtained “pre-clearance” for these trades and we will allocate these transactions in manner that ensures fair allocations across all participating accounts.

Allocations are made contemporaneously with the submission of trade orders for execution, but may be adjusted afterwards if the trade is not entirely filled.

Other than as described above, we do not expect to receive any benefits as a result of directing brokerage to any particular broker.

Review of Accounts

Our portfolio accounting system will be reconciled with our broker/custodian records on a daily basis. All Client accounts may be reviewed at any time, and are reviewed at least quarterly. GSA Program accounts will be reviewed at least monthly by a member of the portfolio management team, currently composed of Larry Pitkowsky and Keith Trauner. During a period when we are attempting to buy or sell significant amounts of securities on behalf of our Clients, such reviews may occur more frequently. Any notification of unusual activity or request for a significant withdrawal of capital will be immediately reviewed by one of the Portfolio Managers.

GSA Program accounts will receive independent trade confirmations and monthly statements from their broker/custodian and we will provide quarterly reporting in writing with respect to Client accounts, including, at a minimum, a Statement of Investments, a Performance Report, and a Billing Statement. We will provide information of a similar nature to any client upon request at any time during the measurement period.

Client Referrals and Other Compensation

We do not have any arrangements under which we compensate anyone specifically for referring clients to us. We do not have any cash solicitation arrangements.

The GoodHaven Fund, to which we provide investment advice, may engage in certain customary business practices involving distribution, which could include payment of per account fees or revenue sharing fees. The Fund may benefit from revenue sharing or other arrangements to obtain access to distribution networks and platforms as the costs of participating in these arrangements is borne directly by us and not the shareholders of the Fund.

Custody

We do not intend to have custody of Client assets; Client assets will be held in brokerage accounts or with third party custodians under which our Clients will grant us discretion to place trades. We provide quarterly reporting on Client accounts, including a Statement of Investments, a Performance Report and a Billing Statement. Our reports may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities. Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains the Client's account. We urge Clients to carefully review these statements and compare them to the account statements that we may provide to you.

Investment Discretion

After consultation with a potential client regarding their objectives and understanding of the firm's investment philosophy and strategy, we will enter into an Investment Advisory Agreement with the Client which explicitly grants us a limited power of attorney to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. In all cases, we exercise our investment discretion in a manner consistent with the Client's investment objectives for the particular account. Clients may request that we invest the account in accordance with specific investment guidelines and restrictions. We may decline to manage accounts if these proposed investment guidelines or restrictions conflict with our investment philosophy or strategies or for any reason we deem appropriate. When selecting securities and determining amounts, we will observe the restrictions and limitations that we have agreed to follow on behalf of our Clients.

For registered investment companies or series thereof, our authority to trade securities may also be limited by applicable federal securities and tax laws, in addition to the fund's investment strategies and restrictions.

Voting Client Securities

GoodHaven prefers that our Clients retain exclusive authority to vote proxies for securities in their account. Therefore, it is the firm's general practice not to vote securities for accounts managed by the firm other than for accounts that are employee related, where we have a pecuniary interest (such as a pooled vehicle), or where we advise or sub-advise an investment company. Accordingly, we expect Clients to receive and vote proxies for any and all securities maintained in their portfolios. We may provide advice to Clients regarding the voting of proxies and may forward Client instructions to the appropriate broker/custodian. Notwithstanding the above, we may, under limited circumstances and in our sole discretion, consent to vote proxies on behalf of certain unaffiliated clients upon request. In connection with such activity, GoodHaven has formulated a proxy voting policy that is generally supportive of shareholder rights and good corporate governance.

We expect to vote proxies for the GoodHaven Fund in accordance with our proxy voting policy and such policies and procedures that may be established or delegated by the Fund's Board of Trustees.
