Advisory Business

Firm Description

United Asset Strategies, Inc. (“UAS”) was organized as a corporation under the laws of the State of New York in 1992 and has offices in Garden City, New York. UAS is registered as an investment advisor with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the “SEC”). Registration does not imply a certain level of skill or training. Lee DeLorenzo principally owns UAS.

Types of Advisory Services

We provide the following investment management services:

- Supervising the investment and reinvestment of client assets on a continuing and discretionary basis (our “Discretionary Money-Management Services”);
 - Supervising the investment and reinvestment of client assets on a continuing and non-discretionary basis (our “Co-Managed Solution”);
 - Advising participant-directed employee retirement plans, participant-directed 401(k) plans in which the participant selects from a selected group of mutual funds offered by a several fund families and Savings Incentive Match Plans for Employees (each a “SIMPLE IRA”) as to the investment options that are offered (collectively our “Employee Retirement Plan Services”);
 - Assisting employee retirement plan participants in establishing their plan accounts and in selecting among investment options (our “Full Brokerage Services”); and
 - Providing financial, estate, and wealth planning services (our “Planning Services”).

Tailored Relationships

Our services include the selection and management of investments tailored to the individual needs, investment objectives, and risk tolerance of the client. Our investment advice is based on our evaluation of the financial situation and objectives of each client.

Discretionary Money-Management Services

With respect to Discretionary Money-Management Services, we offer three types of managed accounts:

- Accounts that invest exclusively in equity securities, such as common stock, preferred stock, equity exchange-traded funds (each an “ETF”), and options;

- Accounts that invest exclusively in fixed-income securities, such as corporate bonds, U.S. government bonds, and municipal bonds; and
- Balanced accounts that invest in a combination of equity securities and fixed-income securities.

When providing Discretionary Money-Management Services, we work with the client to establish his or her goals and objectives, including targeted rates of return and suitable risk parameters. We then research, select, purchase, monitor, and sell particular securities. We also perform all administrative functions.

Most accounts are allocated among industry sectors. For example, an account may include equity securities of issuers in the technology, utilities, pharmaceutical, and financial sectors, as well as securities of issuers not based in the United States. Some industry sectors may be further diversified into industry segments by, among other things, product line or region. We often establish a certain percentage, measured at the time of investment, to which we will limit concentration in a particular segment or sector. While we seek to achieve adequate diversification in client accounts, too much diversification may negatively impact account performance. As a result, any percentage limitations that we establish are only guidelines and are subject to change in our complete discretion at any time and from time to time.

Co-Managed Solution

With respect to our Co-Managed Solution, we offer two types of managed accounts:

- Accounts that invest exclusively in equity securities, such as common stock, preferred stock, equity ETFs, and options; and
- Balanced accounts that invest in a combination of equity securities and fixed-income securities, such as corporate bonds, U.S. government bonds, and municipal bonds.

As is the case with clients who have engaged us to provide Discretionary Money-Management Services, we build and monitor a customized portfolio of securities allocated among industry sectors. Unlike client accounts for which we provide Discretionary Money-Management Services, we are required to obtain the prior authorization of the client before purchasing or selling securities in an account for which we have been engaged to provide the Co-Managed Solution. We generally obtain prior authorization by means of a telephone call or by using electronic mail. We perform all administrative functions for these accounts.

Employee Retirement Plan Services

We offer several types of Employee Retirement Plan Services:

- Advice to plan trustees in their selection of securities to be included within the investment choices of a participant-directed employee retirement plan, a participant-directed 401(k) plan in which the participant selects from a limited group of mutual funds offered by a broker-dealer, or a SIMPLE IRA;
- Periodic reporting to plan trustees and plan participants as to the performance of mutual funds included within the investment choices;
- Advice to plan trustees as to whether to modify the investment choices of a participant-directed employee retirement plan, a participant-directed 401(k) plan in which the participant selects from a limited group of mutual funds offered by a broker-dealer, or a SIMPLE IRA;
- Assistance to plan participants in opening accounts and transferring or depositing assets in these accounts; and
- Advice to plan participants as to the investment options within a plan.

Full Brokerage Services Within Employee Retirement Plans

Through Full Brokerage Services, we assist employee retirement plan participants (1) in opening accounts and transferring or depositing assets into these accounts and (2) as to the investment options within a plan for clients who desire assistance with employee retirement plans in which we do not advise the plan trustee. Full Brokerage Services do not involve investment advice but rather data collection and retirement education.

Planning Services

We provide comprehensive financial, estate, and wealth Planning Services to develop a customized plan for a client (and, if requested, his or her spouse) based upon our analysis of financial goals, investment objectives, assets and liabilities, projected earnings, cash-flow needs, and estate distribution planning. We create a customized budget and a savings and investment plan that takes into account the need to save for college educations and retirement, estate transfers, inflation, and other issues and objectives. When approached to provide Planning Services, we meet with the client or prospective client for approximately one hour to gather information. This initial consultation is without charge or obligation. Based on the information gathered in the initial consultation, we provide a good-faith estimate of the amount of time that will be necessary to complete the plan and the associated cost. Fees for Planning Services do not include our providing Discretionary Money-Management Services, our Co-Managed Solution, Employee Retirement Plan Services, or Full Brokerage Services. If requested, these services are charged separately.

Allocation of Scarce Securities

We may have the opportunity to purchase securities in an initial public offering or other limited investment opportunity for client accounts. Subject to suitability considerations, we seek to allocate these “scarce” securities among the accounts for which we have received explicit instructions from clients who have engaged us to provide either Discretionary Money-Management Services or the Co-Managed Solution.

Assets Under Management

As of December 31, 2013, UAS managed approximately $694,100,000 in client assets. Of this amount, we managed approximately $618,700,000 on a discretionary basis and approximately $75,400,000 on a non-discretionary basis.

Fees and Compensation

Determining Aggregate Market Value of a Client Account

We base our fees for services other than Financial Planning Services on the aggregate market value (the “AMV”) of the client account on the valuation date, which (1) for accounts in which the fee is charged in advance, is the last business day of the calendar quarter immediately preceding the quarter in which the fee will be earned and (2) for accounts in which the fee is charged in arrears, is the last business day of the calendar quarter in which the fee is earned.

To establish AMV, we aggregate the value of cash holdings and (except as described below) the market value of each security held in the account using prices provided by TD Ameritrade, Inc., regardless of whether TD Ameritrade is the account custodian. We often hold cash in accounts for strategic and other purposes. In all cases, the value of cash holdings and other property is included in the AMV of the account. In general, dividends, interest, and other distributions are reinvested when received, which generally increases the AMV of the account and consequently our fee.

Many client accounts hold shares of mutual funds and ETFs. In computing the value of mutual fund shares, we use the value assigned by TD Ameritrade or the fund distributor.

Many client accounts hold securities other than mutual fund shares. In general, TD Ameritrade values a security that is listed on a national securities exchange at the last quoted sale price on the valuation date of the principal exchange on which the security is listed. TD Ameritrade generally values a security that is primarily traded on the NASDAQ Global Market, the NASDAQ Global Select Market, or another recognized NASDAQ market by using the NASDAQ Official Closing Price. If a NASDAQ Official Closing Price is not available, TD Ameritrade generally values the security at the last sale price on the valuation date or, if there were no sale on that day, at the mean between the bid and asked prices. TD Ameritrade generally values over-the-counter securities that are not principally traded on a NASDAQ market at the most recent trade price.

TD Ameritrade generally values options and securities issued by the United States government, such as Treasury bills, at the most recent bid price. If TD Ameritrade is unable to provide a value for a security held in a client account, we will establish the fair value of the security in good faith. In establishing fair value, we have complete discretion to use one or more pricing services, banks, and broker-dealers that we believe to be experienced in these matters.

Discretionary Money-Management Services

For equity accounts and balanced accounts, we offer Discretionary Money-Management Services at the fee level specified below that matches the AMV of the client account:

Up to $399,999	1.40% per year, with a $500 quarterly minimum
$400,000 to $999,999	1.25% per year
$1,000,000 and over	1.00% per year

For accounts that hold only fixed-income securities, we offer Discretionary Money-Management Services at the fee level specified below that matches the AMV of the client account:

Up to $499,999	0.85% per year, with a $500 quarterly minimum
$500,000 to $999,999	0.75% per year
$1,000,000 and over	0.65% per year

We reduce our fee to 0.40% per year on the dollar value in excess of $5,000,000 in a client account using Discretionary Money-Management Services. We charge fees quarterly and in advance, meaning that the fee is directly debited from the client account on or about the first day of the calendar quarter in which it will be earned.

Co-Managed Solution

We offer our Co-Managed Solution at a fee of 1.00% of AMV per year, with a $1,000 quarterly minimum. We reduce our fee to 0.75% per year on the dollar value in excess of $3,000,000 in a client account using the Co-Managed Solution. We charge quarterly fees in advance, meaning that the fee is directly debited from the client account on or about the first day of the calendar quarter in which it will be earned.

We limit the number of securities that we research at the request of a client who has engaged us to provide our Co-Managed Solution to thirty positions initially and to twelve positions per year after establishment of the account. We charge $50 per security to research securities in excess of these limitations. Securities and mutual fund shares with which we are familiar because we recommend them to other clients are not counted for purposes of these limitations.

Employee Retirement Plan Services

We offer Employee Retirement Plan Services at the fee level specified below that matches the aggregate AMV of the accounts of the plan participant:

Up to $999,999	1.00% per year
$1,000,000 and over	0.75% per year

We reduce our fee to 0.50% per year on the dollar value in excess of $2,000,000 in a client account that uses Employee Retirement Plan Services. If the plan participant has more than one account in the plan, the fee is apportioned among the accounts based on relative AMV. Except as provided below, the fee for Employee Retirement Plan Services is payable quarterly in advance, meaning that the fee is directed debited from the client account on or about the first day of the calendar quarter in which it will be earned, and is separately assessed to the accounts of each plan participant. Participant-directed 401(k) plans are charged fees in arrears, meaning that the fee is directly debited from the client account on or about the first day of the month following the calendar quarter in which it is earned or, if sooner, on the date on which the account is closed. For example, fees charged in arrears for the first calendar quarter would be debited in early April. Participant-directed 401(k) plans are also charged a $25 annual administrative fee if the account balance is less than $25,000.

Full Brokerage Services Within Employee Retirement Plans

The fee for Full Brokerage Services is 0.25% per annum of the aggregate AMV of the employee retirement accounts for which we provide assistance. Fees for Full Brokerage Services are payable in arrears by the client within ten days following the end of the quarter in which the services were performed or, if sooner, on the date on which the account is closed. For example, fees charged in arrears for the first calendar quarter would be debited in early April. Accounts that receive Full Brokerage Services are also charged a $25 annual administrative fee if the account balance is less than $25,000.

Financial Planning Services

Our fee for Financial Planning Services is based on the number of hours that our personnel expend to develop the plan. We charge $300 per hour for the services of a Certified Financial Planner®, $150 per hour for the services of a trained individual who has not achieved the designation of Certified Financial Planner®, and $75 per hour for individuals who perform administrative functions. Our minimum fee for Financial Planning Services is $750. Half of the estimated fee is payable at the time of engagement, and the balance is payable when the financial plan is presented. Most financial plans take two to six weeks to complete. To review and update a plan upon request, we charge the client our then standard hourly fees for Financial Planning Services.

Additional Fees

The fees for our services do not include:

- The costs, charges, or commissions, whether fixed or contingent, associated with securities transactions, including prime-broker charges;
- The advisory or management fee paid by a mutual fund or an ETF to the investment advisor of the fund or its affiliate;
- Other fees and expenses paid directly from a mutual fund out of its assets, such as rule 12b-1 distribution fees; or
- A sales charge or contingent deferred sales charge payable to a mutual fund, its affiliate, or its distributor.

Consequently, a client may pay a management fee to our firm and another advisory fee indirectly to the portfolio manager of one or more mutual funds or ETFs. There is additional information about costs associated with securities transactions in the section of this brochure entitled “Brokerage Practices.”

We generally recommend that most accounts invest in “no-load” mutual funds that have no sales charge. We do not receive compensation from the mutual funds that we recommend for client accounts or the distributors of these mutual funds.

Investment Management Agreement

Our relationship with each client is documented by a written investment management agreement. A new client has five business days after signing to terminate the agreement without incurring any obligation to pay fees. In addition, either party may terminate the agreement upon at least a fifteen-day prior written notice to the other party or as otherwise provided in the agreement. Termination of the agreement does not have the effect of canceling an order to deposit or invest cash, to purchase or sell securities or other property, to reinvest dividends or other distributions, or to take other similar action if the order was placed prior to actual receipt of the notice of termination. If an advisory relationship terminates, we will refund any unearned fee. Additional information about the adjustment of fees for account openings, closures, deposits, and withdrawals is included below.

A client has the unlimited right to pledge the securities held in his or her account. In addition, subject to voting restrictions applicable to accounts governed by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (“ERISA”), a client has the right to vote as a shareholder of the mutual funds held in his or her account.

Adjustment of Fees for Account Openings, Closures, Deposits, and Withdrawals

An account that is opened on a day other than the first day of a calendar quarter is charged a prorated fee based on the number of days remaining in the quarter, divided by ninety. An account closed within fifteen days of the end of a calendar quarter will be charged the full management fee for that quarter. An account that is closed on a day other than the last day of a calendar quarter, but more than fifteen days before the end of a calendar quarter, will be charged a prorated fee based on the number of days remaining in the quarter, divided by ninety. A client or (subject to the terms of the relevant employee retirement plan and other applicable conditions) a plan participant may deposit or withdraw cash, securities, and other property to or from his or her account at any time. If a client, a plan trustee, or the plan participant deposits or withdraws assets to or from an account on a day other than the last day of a calendar quarter, the fee payable for the quarter will be adjusted to reflect the number of days in which the assets that are deposited or withdrawn were actually held in the account. Notwithstanding the foregoing, we do not adjust fees during a quarter unless the net deposits or net withdrawals equal at least $50,000.

Negotiation of Fees

While our fees may be negotiated, it is unusual for us to do so. A variance in fees may be appropriate in cases in which a client requests a special account structure or has atypical objectives. We reserve the right to change, reduce, or waive our fees in our discretion.

Types of Clients

Description

We furnish investment management services to individuals, pension and profit-sharing plans, trusts, estates, charitable organizations, corporations, partnerships, and other business entities.

Minimum Account Size

We generally require that clients maintain (1) a minimum of $400,000 in AMV in Discretionary Money-Management Services accounts and (2) a minimum of $500,000 in AMV in Co-Managed Solution accounts. For these purposes, we aggregate all accounts that are under the common ownership or control of a client, such as individual retirement accounts, business accounts, and Uniform Gifts to Minors Act accounts. We reserve the right to increase or decrease the minimum account size that we accept. Some accounts are charged a minimum fee as described in the section of this brochure entitled "Fees and Compensation."

Know Your Customer

We strive to know and understand the identities of clients and prospective clients and the business reasons for any transactions in which we engage on behalf of our clients. We do not directly or indirectly conduct business with any person or entity whose identity and source of funds have not been verified to the satisfaction of the account custodian.

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

Investment Strategy

UAS believes that the single most important investment principle is diversification. A properly diversified portfolio can provide the checks and balances needed to protect a client in most investment climates. We are committed to customer service and prudent disciplined daily money management.

An important component of our services is our assessment of the suitability of a particular investment for a client. Our decisions about the securities that we purchase or recommend for each client are based on our evaluation of the investment objectives of the client and any investment restrictions that the client has imposed in the investment management agreement. Investing in securities always involves risk of loss that a client should be prepared to bear.

Our investment strategy includes the objective of a broad degree of issuer diversification. Generally, our clients authorize us to invest their assets primarily in publicly traded securities and shares of mutual funds and ETFs. The securities held in client accounts include, among other things, exchange-listed securities, securities traded over the counter, securities of foreign issuers, common stock, preferred stock, warrants, corporate debt securities, commercial paper, certificates of deposit, municipal securities, shares of mutual funds, United States government securities, options contracts on securities, futures contracts on tangibles and intangibles, partnership interests, and limited liability company interests.

We engage in long-term and short-term purchases of securities, trading, margin transactions, and option buying and writing. We consider securities held for at least a year as long-term strategies. Trading means securities that are sold within thirty days. Dependent on client objectives, we may buy or write covered or uncovered options and engage in spreading strategies and straddles. We may provide investment advice relating to limited partnership interests in real estate and other industries and in venture capital opportunities. We may also provide advice relating to the structuring of account ownership, including using grantor trusts, tenancies-in-common, joint tenancies, and co-tenancies.

Equity Strategy

Our approach to managing equity portfolios is to select investments with an asymmetrical risk-to-reward profile. Combined with strategic asset-allocation principles, we develop a customized portfolio to help the client achieve his or her financial goals. The portion of client accounts that is allocated to equities consists of three or four components:

Core holdings generally account for approximately 25% of the equity component. The core holdings in a portfolio consist of common stocks and preferred stocks that have been selected using bottom-up analysis with an emphasis on value and intermediate-term growth. Our research includes a combination of quantitative and financial-statement analysis performed by UAS personnel, technical analysis, and independent analyst research. Holding periods for core positions held long are generally expected to be in the one-year to three-year horizon. This portion of the portfolio will be implemented based on the valuation of the underlying securities.

Core ETFs generally account for approximately 25% of the equity component but may comprise up to 50% of the equity component at any time. The core ETF portfolio will generally be correlated to the S&P 500® index as a benchmark, and the portfolio may be modified to include increased exposure to international securities, precious metals, small-capitalization issuers, and real-estate issuers (such as real estate investment trusts). Changes to this portion of the client portfolio generally will be implemented by a client grant of a limited power of attorney for UAS to trade with cash on hand. This portion of the portfolio will not have automatic stop or limit sell orders in place.

Opportunistic and non-core positions generally account for up to 50% of the equity component. Opportunistic and non-core positions are general shorter term in nature, with a duration that typically ranges from a few weeks to 24 months, depending on current market conditions. Opportunistic and non-core positions permit us to take advantage of industry and sector trends, momentum plays, and swing-trading opportunities that may arise as a result of economic and world events. While the quality of our internal research is high with regard to opportunistic and non-core positions, this research is generally less extensive than our research relating to core holdings. Changes to this portion of the portfolio generally will be implemented based on our perception of appropriate market timing. We often have stop or limit sell orders in place for all or some positions.

Hedging generally account for up to 10% of the equity component. Through the use of hedging strategies, we may use alternative investments, including options, to attempt to minimize loss or to maximize market momentum. We make our decision to hold positions on a long basis or on a short basis based on technical analysis or economic, geopolitical, or event-driven catalysts that we perceive to overlay sector rotations.

Fixed-Income Strategy

As market conditions warrant, we actively trade fixed-income securities (such as bonds), basing our decisions on changes in interest rates, issuer credit quality, and current tax laws. Being independent and having access to a variety of issues is very important to our tactical approach. Our approach to fixed-income investing focuses on the following components:

Principal Protection: If we believe that interest rates are likely to decline, we generally seek to extend the maturity of fixed-income holdings and to increase call protection. This strategy is meant to reduce reinvestment risk relating to the prepayment of principal by the issuer and to position fixed-income holdings for price appreciation as rates trend downward. If we believe that interest rates are likely to increase, then we generally seek to reduce the average maturity in the client portfolio by purchasing issues with shorter maturities. This strategy may result in a lower yield, but the value of the portfolio generally will not decrease as sharply. During an economic downturn, we generally purchase higher quality issues. In our experience, higher quality issues retain their value better than lower quality issues in a challenging economic climate.

Total Return: We perform analysis designed to anticipate the direction in which interest rates are headed, and we strive to purchase and sell fixed-income securities to benefit from the expected changes. When the economy appears to be gaining strength, we may purchase lower quality bonds. In our experience, lower quality bonds produce higher yields and are less vulnerable to the inability of an issuer to repay principal.

Tax Selling: Fixed-income securities may be sold at a loss to offset capital gains from equity securities, real estate, and other income sources. Because a myriad of fixed-income issues are available, we are usually able to identify a replacement investment that closely matches the investment objectives of the client with respect to maturity, credit quality, and price without jeopardizing the tax treatment of the sale under the wash-sale rules.

We offer our fixed-income client accounts an important resource through prime brokerage services. Prime brokerage services allow us to execute transactions in fixed-income securities through a variety of broker-dealers rather than being limited to the broker-dealer that serves as custodian to the client account. Our access to prime brokerage services gives us the ability to choose among a large variety of new and existing issues, and we believe that it may reduce some of the hidden costs associated with purchasing and selling fixed-income securities from a dealer that charges a mark-up or mark-down rather than a commission that is readily disclosed. Our use of strategies that have generally proven successful over many years and in many investment climates enables us to concentrate on seeking to increase the total returns in our client portfolios and to protect against the price fluctuations created by changing interest-rate environments.

Sources of Information

We use information, reports, and data from various sources, but the investment decisions that we make on behalf of our clients and employee retirement plans are based primarily on our own internal research and analysis, as well as the experience of our key personnel. We obtain research information from third parties, including published reports of companies and issuers, general economic data, and governmental publications and data compilations.

Our main sources of information include research materials prepared by others, corporate rating services, company press releases, annual reports, prospectuses, and other SEC filings, financial newspapers and magazines, inspections of corporate activities, and timing services.

Managing Risk of Loss

All investment programs involve risks that are borne by the investor. Our investment approach constantly keeps the risk of loss in mind. We utilize specific risk-management tactics to minimize investment losses by our clients. These tactics involve the following disciplines:

We believe that selling once a security appreciates to a specific price target is one of the most effective methods to protect against loss.

Protecting profit and principal in the event that the price of a security drops significantly is achieved through our use and monitoring of stop orders to initiate selling and by manually entered limit and market orders.

Monitoring industry and issuer-specific news, such as product developments, competition, earnings, executive changes, and mergers and acquisitions activity, aids our personnel in assessing the possible effect on a pricing of a security. Data are continually analyzed to trigger possible risk-management strategies, adjustments to existing stop orders, or initiations of sell orders.

If specifically approved by a client, buying and selling options is another strategy that we have successfully used to minimize the risk of loss.

Like other investors, our clients face the following investment risks:

Interest-Rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on bonds tend to become less attractive, which in turn causes their market values to decline.

Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors regardless of the particular circumstances that affect a security. For example, political, economic, and social conditions may influence market conditions.

Options Risk: An option is a contract in which the holder (the buyer) pays a specified amount (the premium) to the writer (the seller) to obtain the right, but not the obligation, to buy from the writer (in a call) or to sell to the writer (in a put) a specific asset at an agreed-upon price (the strike price or exercise price) at or before a specified time (the expiration date). The holder pays the premium at inception and has no further financial obligation. The holder of an option will benefit from favorable movements in the price of the underlying asset. In the event of adverse movements in the value of the underlying asset, losses are limited to the total premium paid when the option was purchased. The writer of an option will receive fees or premiums but is exposed to losses due to changes in the value of the underlying asset.

Inflation Risk: When inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because the purchasing power of the dollar is eroding at the rate of inflation.

Currency Risk: A security that is not denominated in United States dollars is subject to fluctuations in the value of the United States dollar as against the currency in which the security is denominated. For example, the value of a security denominated in euros will decrease if the United States dollar strengthens against the euro. This type of risk is also called exchange-rate risk.

Reinvestment Risk: Future proceeds from investments may be reinvested at a lower rate of return because yields generally have decreased. This primarily relates to fixed-income securities.

Business Risk: This risk is associated with a particular industry or a particular issuer. For example, an oil production company depends upon the lengthy process of finding oil and then refining it before the company generates a profit. As a result, an oil production company carries a higher risk of profitability than an electric company, which generates its income from a relatively stable customer base that must purchase electricity regardless of the economic environment.

Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ready ability to convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.

Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance the operations of a business increases the risk of profitability, because the company is required to repay principal and interest in both good and bad economic times. During periods of financial stress, the inability of a company to meet its loan obligations may decrease the value of its securities and, in some cases, may force the company to seek bankruptcy protection.

Mutual funds and other securities have differing degrees of risk associated with them. No investment in mutual funds is free of risk, and some mutual funds involve a significant amount of risk. Often mutual funds that invest in futures contracts, stock index futures contracts, options on stock index futures contracts, and options on securities and stock indices are perceived to involve greater risk.

Financial Industry Activities

United Financial Group, Ltd., which is under common control with UAS, is a licensed insurance agency that offers life, health, long-term care, medical, and dental insurance to businesses and individuals.

United Retirement Consultants, Inc., which is under common control with UAS, is a pension and employee-benefit consulting firm that provides fee-based consulting services to businesses relating to the ERISA plans that they offer.

The chief compliance officer of UAS is a registered representative of a broker-dealer in her capacity as chief compliance officer of the broker-dealer. The broker-dealer is not affiliated with UAS. Our chief compliance officer does not purchase or sell securities in connection with her duties for the broker-dealer. Our chief compliance officer is also a licensed New York real estate broker.

Other Affiliations

The chief compliance officer of UAS is an attorney who practices through a professional services corporation. She serves as chief compliance officer for several other investment advisors and one broker-dealer. UAS believes that these arrangements create no material conflicts of interest.

Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions, and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

We have a written code of ethics that requires us and our personnel to comply fully with all applicable laws, including applicable federal securities laws, in conducting investment advisory services and related activities. The code of ethics is based on the principle that we have a fiduciary obligation to our clients. In this fiduciary capacity, we are obligated to place the interest of our clients before the personal interests of our personnel and the interests of persons and entities that may be related to our personnel. We seek to avoid conflicts of interest with our clients and will take appropriate steps consistent with our code of ethics to resolve any conflicts of interest that may arise. We will provide a copy of our code of ethics to any client or prospective client upon request.

Our code of ethics and our policies and procedures manual establish policies and procedures in a number of areas, including the treatment of confidential proprietary information, recordkeeping, conflicts of interest, and personal securities transactions. We permit our supervised persons to purchase and sell securities for their personal accounts and for the accounts of certain persons and entities related to them, so long as the purchases and sales are in compliance with our code of ethics. Our personnel may from time to time have an interest, directly or indirectly, in a security that is purchased or sold in client accounts and may effect transactions in the security for client accounts that may be the same as or different from the actions taken with respect to personal accounts. If we purchase or sell a particular security for client accounts, then purchasing or selling the security in personal accounts is required to comply with our trade aggregation policy. More information about trade aggregation is contained in the section of this brochure entitled "Brokerage Practices."

Violations of Law

Our chief compliance officer conducts annual compliance reviews, and her designee monitors for indications of potential violations of law or our code of ethics. In addition, we have a written policy that requires personnel who become aware of a violation of the code of ethics to report the possible violation promptly on a confidential basis to the chief compliance officer. The code of ethics requires the chief compliance officer to investigate these reports and prohibits retaliation against someone who reports a violation. Disciplinary action under the code of ethics may include termination of employment.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

UAS or one or more of our officers, directors, employees, and agents may from time to time have an interest in a security that is purchased, sold, or otherwise traded in client accounts and may effect transactions in the security for client accounts that may be the same as or different from the actions that UAS or such a related person may take with respect to its, his, or her own account.

UAS or one or more of our officers, directors, employees, and agents may receive compensation for referring UAS clients to an unaffiliated broker-dealer that executes securities transactions for these clients or to an unaffiliated insurance agency that writes variable annuity contracts or life or health insurance policies for these clients. In addition, officers and directors of UAS receive compensation for referring UAS clients to American Portfolios Advisors, Inc., an unaffiliated investment advisor, which in turn may execute securities transactions through its affiliated broker-dealer, American Portfolios Financial Services, Inc. These practices may present a conflict of interest. If we believe that the conflict of interest is material, we will discuss the conflict with the clients involved in advance and obtain their assent to the proposed arrangement.

As an agent for a client, we may effect transactions in securities while also acting as agent for another client that is the counterparty to the transaction. Any client may revoke, by written notice to our firm, the authority granted in the investment management agreement to participate in these so-called cross transactions.

Personal Trading

We permit our personnel to purchase and sell securities for their personal accounts and for the accounts of persons and entities related to them, so long as our personnel are in compliance with the code of ethics. These securities may be among those recommended to UAS clients.

Our code of ethics requires our personnel providing advisory services to obtain advance clearance from our chief compliance officer or her designee for securities transactions involving initial public offerings, limited offerings, and private placements of securities. Our code of ethics also requires our personnel to provide quarterly holdings and transaction reports. In addition, we have a written insider trading policy that is designed to prevent the improper use of material nonpublic information.

Brokerage Practices

Selecting Brokerage Firms

We require all clients who engage us to provide Discretionary Money-Management services to authorize our firm to select the securities to be bought or sold, the amount of securities to be bought or sold, and the broker-dealers to be used. We frequently use TD Ameritrade, the Schwab Advisor Services division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc., and Fidelity Brokerage Services LLC as broker-dealers to effect securities transactions and to maintain custody of client assets. UAS is independently owned and operated and is not affiliated with any of these broker-dealers. While we may recommend that clients establish accounts at one of these broker-dealers, it is the decision of the client to establish an account. We permit clients who engage us to provide other services to direct our firm as to the broker-dealers to be used. Not all advisors permit or require their clients to direct brokerage. In some cases, federal and state laws (such as ERISA) may limit or restrict our selection of broker-dealers.

We receive non-monetary benefits, including research services, from broker-dealers in consideration for using them to execute securities transactions. Research services may include reports on economic and political developments, portfolio strategy, industry and company information, opinions regarding capital market conditions (including market prices, news, and trading information), economic projections, and information about recommended asset allocations and portfolio structures. We use research services in connection with the services that we provide to all clients, not just those who maintain accounts with the broker-dealer that provides the research.

Obtaining research and other benefits from broker-dealers benefits UAS because we do not have to produce or pay for the research, products, and services. In addition, we may have an incentive to select or recommend a broker-dealer based on our interest in receiving research or other products and services rather than the interests of our clients in receiving the most favorable execution.

Broker-dealers may also provide us with business consulting and management products offered by third parties, some of which primarily benefit our firm rather than our clients because they assist us in developing our business enterprise.

Best Execution

Unless otherwise directed by the client, our firm selects the broker-dealers used to effect securities transactions. Our choice of broker-dealers is based on a number of factors, including but not limited to the familiarity with the security to be purchased or sold, execution skill, order-flow capacity, commission or other fee arrangements, access to initial public offerings and other limited investment opportunities, quality of custodial services, and perceived financial strength. Consistent with our duty to seek best execution in connection with securities transactions for client accounts over which we have discretionary authority, we have determined in good faith that the commission levels charged by the broker-dealers that we use, while perhaps not the lowest available commission levels, are reasonable in light of the value of the brokerage and other services (including research services) that the broker-dealers provide. In reaching this conclusion, we have considered not only the particular transaction involved but also our overall responsibility to seek best execution.

Directed Brokerage

When a client directs our firm to use a broker-dealer other than TD Ameritrade, Schwab, or Fidelity, we are not free to seek to obtain best execution. When a client directs brokerage, we disclose to the client that we may be unable to negotiate commissions and that the client may pay higher commissions and charges than others of our clients. Many broker-dealers have established a minimum ticket charge for each transaction. The cost of executing a smaller transaction through a client-directed broker-dealer may be greater as a result of a minimum ticket charge. In addition, because we may be unable to achieve most favorable execution of securities transactions when a client directs brokerage, this practice may cost a client more money.

TD Ameritrade

We participate in the TD Ameritrade Institutional program. TD Ameritrade Institutional is a division of TD Ameritrade, which is a member of FINRA, the Securities Investor Protection Corporation, and the National Futures Association. TD Ameritrade is an independent and SEC-registered broker-dealer unaffiliated with UAS. TD Ameritrade offers services to independent investment advisors that include custody of securities, trade execution, clearance, and settlement of transactions. We receive benefits from TD Ameritrade as a result of our participation in TD Ameritrade Institutional. Information about our participation in AdvisorDirect, a client referral program sponsored by TD Ameritrade, is included in the section of this brochure entitled “Client Referrals and Other Compensation—Incoming Referrals.”

Schwab

Schwab provides our firm with access to its institutional trading and custody services, which are typically not available to Schwab retail investors. These services generally are available to independent investment advisors on an unsolicited basis, at no charge to them, so long as a total of at least $10,000,000 of our client assets are maintained in accounts at Schwab. These services are not contingent upon our committing to Schwab any specific amount of business, such as assets in custody or trading commissions. Schwab brokerage services include the execution of securities transactions, custody, research, access to mutual funds and other investments that are otherwise generally available only to institutional investors or that would require a significantly higher minimum investment amount.

For client accounts maintained in its custody, Schwab generally does not charge separately for custody services but is compensated by account holders through commissions and other transaction-related or asset-based fees for securities trading that is executed through Schwab or that settles into Schwab accounts.

Schwab also makes available other products and services that benefit UAS and indirectly our clients. Some of these other products and services assist us in managing and administering client accounts. They include software and other technology that (1) provide access to client account data, (2) facilitate trade execution and allocation of aggregated trade orders for multiple clients, (3) provide research, pricing information, and other market data, and (4) assist with back-office support, recordkeeping, and client reporting.

Schwab may also provide other services intended to help us manage and further develop our business enterprise. These services may include consulting, publications, and presentations on practice management, information technology, business succession, regulatory compliance, and marketing. Schwab may waive or discount fees of third parties that provide these services to our firm. Schwab may also provide other benefits, such as educational events or occasional business entertainment of our personnel. In evaluating whether to recommend that clients establish accounts at Schwab, we may take into account the availability of some of the foregoing products and services and other arrangements as part of the total mix of factors that we consider and not solely on the nature, cost, or quality of the custody and brokerage services provided by Schwab. This practice may create a potential conflict of interest between our needs and the needs of our clients.

Soft-Dollar Arrangements

Our firm and our clients receive, either without cost or at a discount as a result of our participation in TD Ameritrade Institutional, benefits from TD Ameritrade that are not available to retail customers. Specifically, these additional services include reimbursement for Bloomberg terminals, Morningstar products and services, and Schwab Performance Technologies. We may make some of these services available to our affiliates. UAS does not pay to participate in TD Ameritrade Institutional, and participation is not dependent upon the volume of securities transactions that we execute through TD Ameritrade.

The value of the services that we receive under these so-called soft-dollar arrangements is not expected to exceed $40,000 in any year. We use the benefits that we receive to serve all of our clients rather than only those whose accounts are held by TD Ameritrade as custodian. We expect to direct client securities transactions to TD Ameritrade in return for the soft-dollar benefits that we receive, but we will use other broker-dealers and prime brokerage arrangements as well to execute client transactions.

When we use client brokerage commissions to obtain research or other products and services from broker-dealers, we receive a benefit because we do not have to produce or pay for the research, products, or services ourselves. This practice may present a conflict of interest. Specifically, we may have an incentive to select or recommend TD Ameritrade based on our interest in obtaining research or other products and services rather than on the interests of our clients in receiving the most favorable execution.

Trade Aggregation Policy

It is our policy to treat all client accounts fairly and equitably. We strive not to favor one client or one group of clients over another client or another group of clients. In order to handle all client transactions in the manner that is fair and cost effective, we often aggregate transactions executed through a broker-dealer for suitable discretionary client accounts to obtain a better price for the security being bought or sold. In other words, we purchase or sell a larger quantity of the security in a single transaction and then allocate the quantity among participating client accounts, rather than executing multiple transactions in the same security for individual client accounts. Trade aggregation generally saves our clients money because smaller orders may incur a minimum ticket charge, and it ensures more uniformity in the prices at which a particular security is purchased or sold for our clients. Allocation of an aggregated order to particular client accounts generally occurs in advance of the placement of the order. Clients who engage us for the Co-Managed Solution will not participate in aggregated trades unless client authorization for the transaction is obtained prior to the placement of the aggregated trade for accounts to which we provide Discretionary Money-Management Services.

When an aggregated order is not filled by the end of a trading day, we generally allocate the quantity of securities that were purchased or sold among the participating client accounts on a basis relative to the percentage of the aggregated order that the allocation to the particular client constituted. For example, if five percent of the aggregated order were allocated to a particular client account, then that account would receive five percent of the order as filled. We also take into consideration the reduction of positions that are overweighted and the avoidance of small lots. Trades placed through other broker-dealers may receive different prices, and multiple trades (whether or not aggregated) may be placed with multiple broker-dealers.

Aggregated trades may include orders for the personal securities accounts of our personnel and their related persons, unless we determine in advance that the resulting order would probably not be fully filled at the best available price. In the event of this determination, orders for personal securities account will not be executed until the aggregated client order has been fully filled. Shares of a mutual fund are priced at the time and subject to the conditions set forth in the prospectus for the mutual fund. Consequently, it is highly unlikely that the inclusion of personal accounts in an order for mutual fund shares would change the price at which the order is filled by the mutual fund.

When a broker-dealer that we use executes an aggregated client order in more than one transaction during a trading day, it automatically determines the average price to be received by each client in the aggregated order. For example, if half of the order is filled at one price in the morning and the balance is filled at a higher price in the afternoon, then each client will receive his or her allocation of the aggregated order at the average price of the two transactions. We are generally able to fill the entire aggregated order for fixed-income securities at a single price, because the broker-dealer will confirm that it has sufficient inventory to fill the order prior to order placement.

Trade Error Policy

On occasion, we may experience errors with respect to trades made on behalf of client accounts. We endeavor to detect trade errors and to correct them in an expeditious manner. We will reimburse client accounts for losses directly due to uncorrected trade errors attributable to our personnel.

Review of Accounts

Periodic Reviews

The relationship manager responsible for a client reviews each of the accounts of the client at least quarterly, and our reviews frequently occur more often. Our reviews are geared toward preservation of capital with a view toward enhancing after-tax net worth, consistent with the risk tolerance and objectives defined by the client. A client may meet in person or by telephone with his or her relationship manager to review an account on a quarterly or more frequent basis.

Review Triggers

Client inquiries, changes in the general market outlook, changes in the tax laws, new investment information, changes in the financial situation of a client, and changes in the opinions of our relationship managers on specific issues may prompt periodic reviews of some or all client accounts.

We proactively review all client accounts when significant changes in market conditions or changes in the tax law occur. A client should notify us promptly upon any important changes in his or her personal or financial situation or if he or she believes that changes in economic factors may impact his or her financial position.

Regular Reports

We will send a written performance report to a client upon request and as frequently as the client requests. We will also post the report to a secure website that a client may access to review the information. This report will detail, as of the last day of the preceding calendar quarter, the percentage asset allocation by industry sector or segment (and for balanced accounts, by type of security), a list of portfolio holdings and cash balances, the AMV of the account, fees paid to our firm, and net capital gain or loss by security. We produce another report that includes year-to-date dividend and interest amounts. Each client also receives directly from the account custodian a standardized monthly statement for each of his or her accounts that details account holdings and the transactions that occurred during the month. If requested by a client, we will send a written report that includes cost-basis information and a summary of advisory fees paid during the year, and we will provide the report to the tax preparers for the client.

Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Incoming Referrals

From time to time, we enter into written agreements with third parties that refer prospective clients to our firm. Clients bear no additional costs or expenses as a result of these arrangements.

Specifically, we participate in AdvisorDirect, a client referral program sponsored by TD Ameritrade, and may recommend TD Ameritrade to clients for custody and brokerage services. TD Ameritrade is a discount broker-dealer independent of and unaffiliated with UAS, and there is no employee or agency relationship between TD Ameritrade and UAS. TD Ameritrade has established AdvisorDirect as a means to refer its brokerage customers and other investors who are seeking fee-based personal investment management services or financial planning services to independent investment advisors. TD Ameritrade does not supervise our firm and has no responsibility for our management of client portfolios or our other advice and services. In addition to meeting the minimum eligibility criteria to participate in AdvisorDirect, we may have been selected based on the volume and profitability to TD Ameritrade of the assets in and transactions placed for client accounts of which TD Ameritrade serves as custodian. We pay a fee for these referrals based on a percentage (not to exceed 25%) of the management fee that we charge for referred clients and members of their families, including a spouse, a child, or any other immediate family member who engages our firm on the recommendation of a referred client. We do not charge clients referred through AdvisorDirect any fee or charge that is higher than our standard fees and charges, nor do we pass any of the fee that we pay to TD Ameritrade to referred clients. Additional information regarding fees paid directly or indirectly to TD Ameritrade in connection with AdvisorDirect is contained in the TD Ameritrade AdvisorDirect Disclosure and Acknowledgment Form.

Our arrangements with TD Ameritrade may raise a potential conflict of interest in the context of best execution. Specifically, we may have an incentive to select or recommend TD Ameritrade based on our interest in obtaining client referrals rather than on the interests of our clients in receiving the most favorable execution. We expect to direct client securities transactions to TD Ameritrade in return for the referrals that we receive, but we will use other broker-dealers and prime brokerage arrangements as well to execute client transactions.

We do not believe that the arrangements result in an actual conflict of interest because we have determined that TD Ameritrade generally provides best execution. Nevertheless, the benefits that we receive as a result of our arrangements with TD Ameritrade may influence our choice of TD Ameritrade for custody and brokerage services. TD Ameritrade will most likely refer clients through AdvisorDirect to investment advisors that encourage their clients to hold their assets in TD Ameritrade accounts. Consequently, in order to obtain client referrals through TD Ameritrade, we may have an incentive to recommend to clients that the assets under our management be held in custody with TD Ameritrade and to place transactions for client accounts with TD Ameritrade. In addition, we have agreed not to encourage clients who are referred through AdvisorDirect to transfer their accounts to a custodian other than TD Ameritrade or to establish brokerage or custody accounts at other custodians, except when our fiduciary duty requires us to do so.

As described in the section of this brochure entitled “Brokerage Practices—TD Ameritrade,” we participate in the TD Ameritrade Institutional program as well as AdvisorDirect, and we may recommend TD Ameritrade to clients for custody and brokerage services. There is no direct link between our participation in the TD Ameritrade Institutional program or AdvisorDirect and the investment advice that we provide to our clients, although we receive economic benefits through our participation in these programs that are typically not available to TD Ameritrade retail investors. These benefits include the following products and services that are provided without cost or at a discount:

- Receipt of duplicate client statements and confirmations;
- Research-related products and tools;
- Consulting services;
- Access to a trading desk that serves advisor participants;
- Access to block trading, which provides the ability to aggregate securities transactions for execution and then to allocate the appropriate shares to client accounts;
- The ability to have advisory fees deducted directly from client accounts;
- Access to an electronic communications network for client order entry and account information;

- Access to mutual funds with no transaction fees and to certain institutional money managers; and
- Discounts on compliance, marketing, research, technology, and practice management products or services provided to us by third-party vendors.

TD Ameritrade may also have paid for business consulting and professional services that persons related to UAS receive. Some of the products and services that are made available by TD Ameritrade through the Institutional program and AdvisorDirect may benefit UAS rather than our client accounts. These products or services may assist us in managing and administering client accounts, including accounts not maintained at TD Ameritrade. Other services made available by TD Ameritrade are intended to help us manage and further develop our business enterprise. The benefits that UAS and our personnel receive as a result of participation in the TD Ameritrade Institutional program do not depend on the amount of brokerage transactions directed to TD Ameritrade. As part of our fiduciary duty to our clients, we endeavor at all times to put the interests of our clients first. Clients should be aware, however, that the receipt of economic benefits by our firm or our related persons in and of itself creates a potential conflict of interest and may indirectly influence our choice of TD Ameritrade for custody and brokerage services.

We also receive from TD Ameritrade additional economic benefits ("Additional Services") in the form of services that may or may not be offered to other independent investment advisors that participate in the TD Ameritrade Institutional program. Specifically, these Additional Services include Bloomberg, Morningstar, and Schwab Performance Technologies products and services. TD Ameritrade provides these Additional Services to UAS in its sole discretion and at its own expense, and we do not pay any fees to TD Ameritrade for these services. We have entered into an Additional Services Addendum with TD Ameritrade to govern the terms of the provision of these Additional Services.

Our receipt of the additional services raises potential conflicts of interest. In providing additional services to our firm, TD Ameritrade most likely considers the amount and profitability to TD Ameritrade of the assets in, and trades placed for, our client accounts held with TD Ameritrade. TD Ameritrade has the right to terminate the additional services addendum in its sole discretion, provided that certain conditions are met. Consequently, in order to continue to obtain the additional services from TD Ameritrade, we may have an incentive to recommend to our clients that their assets under our management be held in custody with TD Ameritrade and to place transactions for client accounts with TD Ameritrade. Our receipt of the additional services does not diminish our duty to act in the best interests of our clients, including our duty to seek best execution of trades for client accounts.

Outgoing Referrals

UAS or one or more of our officers, directors, employees, and agents may receive compensation for referring UAS clients to an unaffiliated broker-dealer that executes securities transactions for these clients or to an unaffiliated insurance agency that writes annuities or life or health insurance policies for these clients. Specifically, officers and directors of UAS receive compensation for referring UAS clients to American Portfolios Advisors, Inc., an unaffiliated investment advisor, which in turn may execute securities transactions through its affiliated broker-dealer, American Portfolios Financial Services, Inc. These practices may present a conflict of interest. If we believe that the conflict of interest is material, we will discuss the conflict with the clients involved in advance and obtain their assent to the proposed arrangement.

Custody

Account Statements

All client funds and securities are held at qualified custodians. These custodians provide or make account statements available electronically at least quarterly, and most provide or make statements available on a monthly basis. Account statements are generally sent directly to each client at his address of record. If the client prefers, the account statements may be posted to a secure website.

UAS Reports

Clients are urged to compare the account statements received directly from their custodians to the reports provided by UAS.

Investment Discretion

Discretionary Authority for Trading

We generally have discretionary authority to manage securities accounts on behalf of clients who have engaged us to perform Discretionary Money-Management Services. In these instances, we have the authority to determine, without obtaining specific client consent, the securities to be bought or sold and the amount of the securities to be bought or sold. Discretionary trading authority facilitates placing trades in client accounts on behalf of clients so that we may promptly implement our investment strategies.

The client approves the custodian to be used and the commission rates paid to the custodian or the executing broker-dealer. We do not receive any portion of the transaction fees or commissions paid by the client to the custodian or the executing broker-dealer.

Unlike client accounts for which we provide Discretionary Money-Management Services, we are required to obtain the prior authorization of the client before purchasing or selling securities in an account for which we have been engaged to provide the Co-Managed Solution. We generally obtain prior authorization by means of electronic mail or a telephone call.

Limited Power of Attorney

Many clients grant UAS a limited power of attorney, which is an authorization that gives UAS authority to purchase and sell securities in a client account and to deduct our fees from the account.

Voting Client Securities

Proxy Voting

We have adopted written proxy-voting policies and procedures. Our clients generally grant us the exclusive right to vote proxies on their behalf, except that a client retains the right to vote as a shareholder of the mutual funds held in his or her account, subject to voting restrictions applicable to accounts governed by ERISA. We may delegate the right to vote client proxies to a third-party proxy service provider. To the extent that a client retains proxy-voting authority or has specific instructions regarding proxy voting, we document this consideration in the investment management agreement. Our proxy-voting procedures are available upon request to any client. Also available upon request to any client is a record of how we have voted client proxies.

In the absence of specific voting guidelines from the client, we vote proxies in the best interests of clients. Absent restrictions from a client, we vote all proxies from a specific issuer the same way for each client. We generally vote in favor of routine corporate housekeeping proposals, such as the election of directors and the selection of auditors, absent conflicts of interest raised by non-audit services. We generally vote against proposals that we perceive to cause board members to become entrenched or that promote unequal voting rights. In reviewing proposals, we consider the opinion of management and the effect on management, shareholder value, and the business practices of the issuer. In some cases, such as when the proxy materials are in a language other than English, the expense of obtaining a translation may mean that the best interests of the client are served by our not voting the proxy.

Conflicts of Interest

If a matter to be voted upon were to involve a potential conflict of interest, our relationship managers would consult with the chief compliance officer prior to contacting the client to describe the conflict presented. The proxy would then be voted in accordance with the instructions of the client.

Financial Information

Financial Condition

UAS does not have any financial impairment that will preclude us from meeting our contractual commitments to our clients.

Other Business Activities

Ms. DeLorenzo is the founder of United Asset Strategies, Inc. and has been its president and its chief investment officer since its inception in 1992. She serves as president of United Financial Group, Ltd. and United Retirement Consultants, Inc. Ms. DeLorenzo controls each of these entities.

Supervision of UAS Personnel

Ms. DeLorenzo supervises UAS personnel. She closely monitors the advice that supervised persons provide to our clients to ensure that the information correctly expresses the views of the relationship managers regarding the securities to be purchased and sold for client accounts. Because the vast majority of clients grant discretionary authority to UAS, our personnel render investment advice primarily by effecting transactions in client accounts rather than by recommending transactions to clients for their approval. Questions relating to the supervision of UAS personnel may be addressed to Ms. DeLorenzo, its president, at 516.222.0021.
