ITEM 4 – ADVISORY BUSINESS

Firm Description

Emerald Asset Advisors, LLC (“Emerald”) was founded in 1998 and is registered with the SEC (US Securities and Exchange Commission) as a Registered Investment Adviser.

Emerald provides discretionary and non-discretionary investment management services to individuals, trusts, estates, foundations, retirement plans and corporations. Emerald also serves as the sub-adviser to clients who are also clients of wealth managers not affiliated with Emerald. Emerald supplies model portfolio strategies to turnkey asset management programs.

Assets under the direct management of Emerald are held at independent custodians including Charles Schwab Institutional. Emerald does not serve as a custodian of client assets.

Running Rebel Consulting, LLC is a 76% owner of Emerald. Running Rebel Consulting, LLC is wholly owned by the Scot L. Hunter Revocable Trust, for which Scot L. Hunter serves as the Trustee. DDIWA Consulting, Inc. is a 24% owner of Emerald. DDIWA Consulting, Inc. is wholly owned by Allan M. Budelman.

As of December 31, 2013, Emerald managed $198,007,821 on a discretionary basis, and $964,693 on a non-discretionary basis.

SERVICES PROVIDED

Asset Management Services for Private Clients of Emerald

Emerald provides advice as to the allocation of client portfolios and the investment of client assets. Investment advice is tailored to the individual needs of each client. Emerald evaluates the client’s personal and financial circumstances at the onset of the relationship, and periodically thereafter. Each client is advised that it remains his responsibility to promptly notify Emerald when there is any change in his financial situation and/or financial objectives for the purpose of reviewing, evaluating or revising previous recommendations or services.

Emerald will manage the client’s investment portfolio on a discretionary or a non-discretionary basis. As a discretionary investment adviser, Emerald will have the authority to supervise and direct the portfolio without prior consultation with the client. Clients who choose a non-discretionary arrangement must be contacted prior to the execution of any trade in the account(s) under management. This may result in a delay in executing recommended trades, which could adversely affect the performance of the portfolio. This delay also normally means the affected account(s) will not be able to participate in block trades, a practice designed to enhance the execution quality, timing and/or cost for all accounts included in the block. In a non-discretionary arrangement, the client retains the responsibility for the final decision on all actions taken with respect to the portfolio.

Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities. This must be executed in writing and signed by the client, Emerald and any third-party manager if applicable.

The advisory engagement requires execution of a written contract and includes implementation of recommendations accepted by the client, unlimited telephone support, meetings as required, on-going communication and provision of periodic performance and portfolio reports.

Selection of Separate Account Managers

When appropriate and in accordance with the Investment Plan for a client, Emerald may recommend the use of one or more Separate Account Managers, each a “Manager.” Having access to various Managers offers a wide variety of manager styles, and offers clients the opportunity to utilize more than one Manager if necessary to meet the needs and investment objectives of the client. Emerald will usually select or recommend the Manager(s) it deems most appropriate for the client. Factors that Emerald considers in recommending/selecting Managers generally includes the client's stated investment objective(s), management style, performance, risk level, reputation, financial strength, reporting, pricing, and research.

The Manager(s) will generally be granted discretionary trading authority to provide investment supervisory services for the portfolio. Under certain circumstances, Emerald retains the authority to terminate the Manager's relationship or to add new Managers without specific client consent. In other cases, the client will ultimately select one or more Managers recommended by Emerald. Fees paid to such Manager(s) are separate from and in addition to the fee assessed by Emerald.

In any case, with respect to assets managed by a Manager, Emerald's role will be to monitor the overall financial situation of the client, to monitor the investment approach and performance of the Manager(s), and to assist the client in understanding the investments of the portfolio.

Sub-Advisory Services (Asset Management for Clients of other Investment Professionals)

Other registered investment advisers and investment professionals (the "primary advisers") may hire Emerald to manage their clients' assets. In these arrangements, Emerald will implement and manage an investment strategy in the client's account; however, Emerald does not serve as the primary adviser to the client. The primary adviser will retain direct contact with the client and will manage the client relationship. The primary adviser's client will typically enter into an advisory contract directly with Emerald or alternatively, depending on the contractual arrangement the client has with his primary adviser, Emerald may contract directly with the primary adviser to provide the client investment advisory services.

Emerald will have exclusive investment discretion as to which securities shall be purchased or sold in the sub-advised client's account in a manner consistent with the client's selected product, investment objectives, policies and restrictions (if any) and the capabilities of the broker-dealer. Emerald currently provides investment advisory services to sub-advised clients through Charles Schwab Institutional Services and Fidelity Capital Markets. Emerald may enter into similar arrangements with other broker/dealers in the future.

Accounts will typically be invested in one of the three strategies described in Item 8 of this Brochure. In order to determine whether the strategy is suitable for a client, the primary adviser and the client are responsible for ascertaining the goals and objectives of the portfolio in question. In addition, Emerald will obtain initial documentation of the client's risk parameters and investment objectives. However, it is the responsibility of the primary adviser and/or the client to promptly notify Emerald of any changes in financial condition of the client that would necessitate a change in the client's investment objective.

Model Portfolios

Emerald provides model strategy portfolios to turnkey asset management programs ("TAMPS") and other third party investment platforms (together, the "Programs"). These model portfolios are used by other advisers in managing their clients' assets. Emerald earns a fee based on the value of the client assets assigned to their models. The adviser who enrolls clients in the models will explain the elements of the Emerald strategies, the applicable fees and will perform all screening, suitability and compliance processes applicable to such transactions. Emerald does not have investment discretion over the Programs' assets and may not place trades or vote proxies in Program accounts.

ITEM 5 – FEES AND COMPENSATION

Asset Management Fees for Direct Clients of Emerald

Fees are individually negotiated and are based on the aggregate asset value under advisement. In the event the client determines to engage Emerald, Emerald shall charge an annual investment management fee based upon a percentage of the market value of the assets being managed by Emerald. The investment management fee will be up to 1.25% of assets under management.

Assets Under Management Annual Fee
First $2 million	1.25%
Next $3 million	1.00%
Over $5 million	0.75%

Explanation of Fees

How Emerald's Fees are Calculated and Charged

Asset-based fees are billed quarterly in advance based on the value of the portfolio assets at the end of the prior quarter. Fee determination may vary among clients based on factors which include the total client relationship of all related parties' accounts. The first payment is due upon execution of the advisory contract and will be assessed pro rata in the event that the advisory contract is executed at any time other than the first business day of a calendar quarter. Thereafter, for succeeding calendar quarters the management fee shall be payable in advance, at the beginning of each calendar quarter and shall be based on the asset value of the account as of the last trading day of the previous calendar quarter. The client may make additions to the account at any time. Additional assets received into the account will be charged a pro rata fee based upon the number of days remaining in the quarter. No fee adjustments will be made for partial withdrawals or for account appreciation or depreciation within a billing period.

Alternatively, clients in certain situations may negotiate a fixed hard dollar fee which is billed quarterly.

Emerald imposes a $3,000 minimum household annual fee requirement ($750.00 billed quarterly), which can exceed our highest published 1.25% annual fee rate. The minimum fee may be waived or reduced if we feel circumstances are warranted.

Both Emerald's advisory contract and the custodial/clearing agreement may authorize the custodian to debit the account for the amount of Emerald's investment advisory fee and to directly remit that management fee to Emerald in compliance with regulatory procedures. In the limited event that Emerald bills the client directly, payment is due upon receipt of Emerald's invoice.

As part of the advisory fee billing process, the client's custodian is advised of the amount of the fee to be deducted from that client's account. On at least a quarterly basis, the custodian is required to send to the client a statement showing all transactions within the account during the reporting period. Because the custodian does not calculate the amount of the fee to be deducted, it is important for clients to carefully review their custodial statements to verify the accuracy of the calculation, among other things. Clients should contact Emerald directly if they believe that there may be an error in their statement.

Termination and Proration of Fees

Clients may terminate without penalty within five days of Emerald's execution of the advisory contract. Otherwise, clients may terminate their account at any time, in which case fees will be prorated up to and including the termination date which is evidenced by receipt of written instructions from the client. If the daily proration results in an amount to be rebated to the client, the client will be promptly refunded. In the event the client terminates prior to twelve months from inception, a termination fee will be imposed to adjust the annual payment to a minimum of $2,500.

Fees and Commissions from Brokerage Transactions

The client's account custodian (or broker-dealer) charges brokerage commissions and transaction fees. Clients may also incur other charges imposed by custodians, brokers, third party investment advisers and other third parties such as fees charged by managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. These fees and charges are separate and in addition to Emerald's fees.

Clients may choose to custody their assets with (or purchase products through) broker-dealers not recommended by Emerald if administratively feasible. Typically, Emerald requires daily downloadable files compatible with Emerald's database management system from the custodian and a workable order entry platform and account interface. Emerald will provide adequate written disclosures to any client who requests directed brokerage explaining that the arrangement may impair our ability to obtain best execution for the client and that the client may not benefit from aggregated orders and negotiated commission rates. Item 12 – Brokerage Practices further describes the factors that Emerald considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

Other Fees

Emerald recommends no-load mutual funds to certain of its clients. These clients will pay two levels of advisory fees for the management of their assets, one directly to Emerald and one indirectly to the managers of the mutual funds held in their portfolio. In some instances, it may be less expensive for an investor to invest in the underlying funds directly.

Emerald advises certain of its clients on the asset allocation or investment selection within their variable annuities. These clients will pay two levels of advisory fees for the management of their assets, one directly to Emerald and one indirectly to the annuity company.

Emerald's advisory contract grants us the discretion to hire third-party unaffiliated separate account managers to manage all or a portion of the client's assets. When a separate account manager manages a client's assets, the client will be subject to the separate account manager's management fees and other expenses. These fees and expenses are in addition to Emerald's management fees and expenses.

Sub-Advisory Services Fees (Asset Management for Clients of Other Investment Professionals)

When other advisers and investment professionals (i.e., the primary advisers) hire Emerald to manage their clients' accounts, there are three components that comprise the fee/pricing structure in the sub-advisory relationship: the primary adviser's management fee, Emerald's management fee, and the broker-dealer's fee for brokerage and custody services. Emerald's fee is 0.75% per annum based on the client's assets under management. (For more information about how Emerald calculates and charges its fees, please see the previous section "Explanation of Fees.") Emerald's minimum sub-advised account size is $125,000. At the discretion of Emerald, minimum amounts to open accounts may be lowered and some clients may negotiate a lesser management fee. The client should see his primary adviser's Form ADV Part 2A for more information regarding the adviser's fees, as they will vary by adviser. For brokerage and custody services, the broker-dealer will charge a transaction fee on trades executed in the client's account and may also charge custodial and other fees.

Model Portfolios and TAMP Program Fees

When an adviser enrolls a client in an Emerald model on a Program platform, the client will pay Emerald's model provider fee, their adviser's management fee, and the Program fee, which includes custodial, transaction and administration fees. Emerald's fee may range up to 0.65% annually in these arrangements. Emerald reserves the right to negotiate model provision fees with a client's adviser based on the adviser's total client assets enrolled in Emerald models on the Program platform. Program fees vary by platform.

Other Compensation

Insurance Disclosure: Kristof Lewicki and Troy Sorels, portfolio managers of Emerald, are also licensed to sell insurance. They may recommend the purchase of insurance products under circumstances where they would be entitled to receive a commission or other compensation in the transaction. In all such circumstances, however, the client will be notified of this payment in advance of the transaction, and under no circumstances will the client pay both a commission to Mr. Lewicki or Mr. Sorels and a management fee to Emerald on the same pool of assets. Clients are under no obligation to act on any insurance recommendations and may retain other insurance professionals in their sole discretion.

ITEM 6 – PERFORMANCE BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

Emerald does not have any performance-based fee arrangements. "Side by Side Management" refers to a situation in which the same firm manages accounts that are billed based on a percentage of assets under management and at the same time manages other accounts for which fees are assessed on a performance fee basis. Because Emerald has no performance-based fee accounts, it has no side-by-side management.

ITEM 7 – TYPES OF CLIENTS

Emerald provides portfolio management services individuals, trusts, estates, foundations, retirement plans and corporations.

Employee benefit plans that select Emerald to provide investment advisory services should be aware that the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 ("ERISA") sets forth rules under which Plan Fiduciaries may retain investment advisers for various types of services with respect to Plan assets. For certain services, Emerald will be considered a fiduciary under ERISA. For example, Emerald will act as a fiduciary when providing non-discretionary investment advice to the Plan Fiduciaries by recommending a suite of investments as choices among which Plan Participants may select. Also, to the extent that the Plan Fiduciaries retain Emerald to act as an investment manager within the meaning of ERISA § 3(38), Emerald will provide discretionary investment management services to the Plan.

Minimum Investment for Private Clients

Emerald requires a minimum investment for a new client household (i.e., a client's aggregate accounts under management) in the amount of $2,000,000 for private asset management services. The minimum annual fee is $3,000. These minimums may be waived or reduced at Emerald's discretion.

Minimum Investment for Clients of Other Investment Professionals (i.e., Sub-Advised Accounts)

Emerald requires a minimum investment in the amount of $125,000 for each sub-advised account. The minimum investment may be waived at Emerald's discretion. Emerald does not serve as the primary adviser in these arrangements.

ITEM 8 – METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

Emerald uses the following securities analysis methods:

Fundamental Analysis: a method of evaluating a security that entails attempting to measure its intrinsic value by examining related economic, financial and other qualitative and quantitative factors. Fundamental analysts attempt to study everything that can affect the security's value, including macroeconomic factors (like the overall economy and industry conditions) and company-specific factors (like financial condition and management).

The end goal of performing fundamental analysis is to produce a value that an investor can compare with the security's current price, with the aim of figuring out what sort of position to take with that security (underpriced = buy, overpriced = sell or short).

Emerald's fundamental analysis may include the following:

1. Our view of the global economic and investment climate, as driven by investment committee's research efforts.
2. Where are the Bull Markets on a cyclical and secular basis?
3. What themes (e.g., arbitrage, convertibles, small-cap companies, emerging markets, gold) should be included in the portfolio that offer the strongest reward/risk opportunities over multiple time frames, but with an emphasis on periods further out in time.
4. Identify funds and/or ETFs that, in our opinion, best embody that theme. In some cases, options may be used to express the theme in the portfolio.
5. Does each particular theme fit into the overall portfolio, without overlapping significantly?

Technical Analysis (or "Charting"): is a set of techniques in which charts, graphs and algorithmic quantitative models are used to plot price movements, volume and other indicators, in order to anticipate future price movements. Users of these techniques, called chartists or market technicians, believe that past trends in these indicators can be used to extrapolate future trends, and those conditions of undervaluation and overvaluation can be identified. Emerald uses technical analysis to help determine when to enter/exit particular asset classes, market sectors or securities. More specifically, we look to enter when we view the security that we are buying as technically "undervalued" on a short to medium term basis. The opposite applies for a sell (i.e. look for overvalued).

Cyclical Analysis: a form of fundamental analysis involving the process of making investment decisions based on the different stages an industry is at during a given point in time. The type of position taken will depend on firm specific characteristics, as well as where the industry is at in its life cycle.

Where We Obtain Information

Primary sources of information include Morningstar, Zephyr, fund prospectuses, financial newspapers, company press releases and magazines, research materials prepared by others and annual reports. Investment committee members also conduct on and off-site visits with funds and portfolio managers, participate in conference calls, and attend industry conferences.

Types of Investments

Emerald typically invests client assets in the following types of securities:

- No-load mutual funds;
- Closed-End Funds
- Exchange traded funds (ETFs);
- Exchange traded notes (ETNs);
- Equities;
- Government, corporate and municipal bonds;
- Certificates of deposit;
- Commercial paper;
- Equity and index options;
- Mutual funds, ETNs or ETFs that provide exposure to the short side of the market (i.e., they are designed to provide investment returns that are opposite of the market index they track); and

Emerald may also hire unrelated third-party separate account managers with expertise in certain investment techniques or styles to sub-advise its clients' accounts.

Investment Strategies

Emerald uses strategic asset allocation as its primary investment strategy for its clients. Like many others, our philosophy centers on the preservation and growth of capital. However, we employ a flexible and adaptive approach in our investment practice - flexible in the types of investment sub-styles and strategies we pursue (including the use of short positions) and adaptive in our ability to be nimble and capitalize on changing market conditions. Emerald has an open architecture platform and when allocating a client's portfolio, we may elect to use our own model portfolios or we may choose unaffiliated funds, individual securities and/or utilize the services of separate account managers (sub-advisers) that we believe have expertise in certain techniques or styles; whichever we believe will best accomplish the client's objectives and goals.

Model Portfolios

Emerald has developed model portfolios for three investment strategies. Each strategy is designed to target a different investment time horizon, risk tolerance and potential for return. We maintain diversification by utilizing multiple mutual fund managers and investment styles. We control the net long equity exposure in our strategies by using hedging techniques when we feel appropriate.

Emerald's model portfolios may sometimes be used to manage Emerald's private or sub-advised accounts and are also provided to turnkey asset management platforms for other advisers' use. Models provided to turnkey asset management platforms typically vary in composition from those models used with Emerald's private clients due to fund availability issues inherent in the platforms; however, the styles, themes and objectives are the same.

EAS Hybrid: Hybrid's objective is to achieve real, absolute returns (i.e., positive net of inflation) over any three-year period, regardless of market conditions, and without resorting to the use of high-quality bond funds. Hybrid holdings typically come from 10 sub-sectors/styles in the alternative mutual fund universe (such as equity long-short, market-neutral, arbitrage, high-yield and bond hedge). Hybrid investing is similar to the approach employed by low volatility hedge fund-of-funds managers but without the unfavorable characteristics of hedge funds or the limited partnership structure (e.g., – lock-up periods; illiquidity; lack of transparency; excessive leverage; high fees; high investment minimums and tax inefficiency).

EAS Concentrated Equity: Concentrated Equity seeks to generate investment “alpha” (excess return versus stock market benchmarks) through the purchase of a carefully selected group of equity mutual funds or separate account managers, which each confine their portfolios to a very limited number of holdings (typically under 30 stocks). Dedicated short funds may be used as a portfolio hedge in perceived periods of high market risk.

EAS Global Cycle: Global Cycle is a long-term approach to growing capital which focuses on selecting compelling global and domestic equity managers that use a limited number of holdings (typically 40 or less) compared to the average equity fund or managed account. We attempt to lower volatility by diversifying among a group of underlying managers, each specializing in their own niche. We may also buy short-index securities as a hedge in perceived periods of high market risk.

The three disciplines can be pursued individually or blended together in various allocations to provide a set of complementary strategies, each managed with distinct risk/return characteristics and objectives.

Risk of Loss

Clients must understand that past performance is not indicative of future results. Therefore, current and prospective clients should never assume that future performance of any specific investment or investment strategy will be profitable. Investing in securities (including stocks, mutual funds, and bonds) involves risk of loss. Further, depending on the different types of investments, there may be varying degrees of risk. Clients and prospective clients should be prepared to bear investment loss including loss of original principal.

Principal Risks

- Market Risk – Either the stock market as a whole, or the value of an individual company, goes down resulting in a decrease in the value of client investments. This is also referred to as systemic risk.
- Equity (Stock) Market Risk – Common stocks are susceptible to general stock market fluctuations and to volatile increases and decreases in value as market confidence in and perceptions of their issuers change. If you held common stock, or common stock equivalents, of any given issuer, you would generally be exposed to greater risk than if you held preferred stocks and debt obligations of the issuer.
- Company Risk – When investing in stock positions, there is always a certain level of company or industry specific risk that is inherent in each investment. This is also referred to as unsystematic risk and can be reduced through appropriate diversification. There is the risk that the company will perform poorly or have its value reduced based on factors specific to the company or its industry. For example, if a company’s employees go on strike or the company receives unfavorable media attention for its actions, the value of the company may be reduced.
- ETF and Mutual Fund Risk – When the client is invested in an ETF or mutual fund, it will bear additional expenses based on its pro rata share of the ETFs or mutual fund’s operating expenses, including the potential duplication of management fees. The risk of owning an ETF or mutual fund generally reflects the risks of owning the underlying securities the ETF or mutual fund holds. Clients will also incur brokerage costs when purchasing ETFs.

- Management Risk – Your investment with Emerald varies with the success and failure of our investment strategies, research, analysis and determination of portfolio securities. If our investment strategies do not produced the expected returns, the value of the investment will decrease.
- Inverse Correlation Risk: Inverse funds (including ETNs) should lose value as the index or security tracked by such fund's benchmark increases in value; a result that is the opposite from traditional mutual funds. Successful use of inverse funds requires that the adviser correctly predict short term market movements. If a client invests in an inverse fund and markets rise, the client could lose money. Inverse funds may also employ leverage such that their returns are more than one times that of their benchmark.
- ETF Tracking Risk: ETFs will not be able to replicate exactly the performance of the indices they track because the total return generated by the securities will be reduced by transaction costs incurred in adjusting the actual balance of the securities. In addition, the ETFs incur expenses not incurred by their applicable indices. Certain securities comprising the indices tracked by the ETFs may, from time to time, temporarily be unavailable, which may further impede the ETFs' ability to track their applicable indices.
- Foreign Investment Risk: Foreign investing involves risks not typically associated with U.S. investments, including adverse fluctuations in foreign currency values, adverse political, social and economic developments, less liquidity, greater volatility, less developed or less efficient trading markets, political instability and differing auditing and legal standards. Investing in emerging markets imposes risks different from, or greater than, risks of investing in foreign developed countries.
- Foreign Currency Risk: Currency market risk results from the price movement of foreign currency values in response to shifting market supply and demand. Interest rate risk arises whenever a country changes its stated interest rate target associated with its currency. Country risk arises because virtually every country has interfered with international transactions in its currency. Interference has taken the form of regulation of the local exchange market, restrictions on foreign investment by residents or limits on inflows of investment funds from abroad. Restrictions on the exchange market or on international transactions are intended to affect the level or movement of the exchange rate. This risk could include the country issuing a new currency, effectively making the "old" currency worthless.
- Options and Futures (Derivatives Risk): Even a small investment in options may give rise to leverage risk, and can have a significant impact on the accounts' performance. Derivatives are subject to credit risk and liquidity risk.
- Commodity Risk: Investing in the commodities markets may subject investors to greater volatility than investments in traditional securities. Commodity prices may be influenced by unfavorable weather, animal and plant disease, geologic and environmental factors as well as changes in government regulation such as tariffs, embargoes or burdensome production rules and restrictions.
- Credit Risk: Issuers of fixed-income securities (including ETNs) may default on interest and principal payments. Generally, securities with lower debt ratings have speculative characteristics and carry greater risk that the issuer may default on its obligation. Changes in economic conditions or other circumstances are more likely to lead to a weakened capacity of those issuers to make principal or interest payments, as compared to issuers of more highly rated securities.

- Derivatives Risk: Investments in futures and options are considered "derivative" investments. A small investment in derivatives could have a potentially large impact on an investor's performance. The use of derivatives involves risks different from, or possibly greater than, the risks associated with investing directly in the underlying assets. Derivatives can be highly volatile, illiquid and difficult to value, and there is the risk that the hedging technique will fail if changes in the value of a derivative held by an investor do not correlate with the securities being hedged.
- Distressed Securities Risk: An investor may face legal delays and competing claims by creditors when negotiating with distressed issuers. There may be lengthy delays between the time an investment is made and when the value of the investment is realized.
- Emerging Markets Risk: Countries with emerging markets have relatively unstable governments, social and legal systems that do not protect shareholders, economies based on only a few industries, and securities markets that trade a small number of issues.
- Interest Rate Risk: In general, the price of a debt security falls when interest rates rise. Securities with longer maturities tend to be more sensitive to interest rate changes.
- Lower-Rated Securities Risk: Securities rated below investment-grade, sometimes called "high-yield" or "junk" bonds, generally have more credit risk than higher-rated securities. Companies issuing high yield fixed-income securities are not as strong financially as those issuing securities with higher credit ratings. These companies are more likely to encounter financial difficulties and are more vulnerable to changes in the economy, such as a recession or a sustained period of rising interest rates, which could affect their ability to make interest and principal payments.
- Real Estate Risk: REIT share prices may decline because of adverse developments affecting the real estate industry and real property values. In general, real estate values can be affected by a variety of factors, including supply and demand for properties, the economic health of the country or of different regions, and the strength of specific industries that rent properties.
- Smaller Capitalization Securities Risk: Investments in smaller capitalization companies may be more vulnerable than larger, more established organizations to adverse business or economic developments. In particular, smaller capitalization companies may have limited product lines, markets, and financial resources and may be dependent upon a relatively small management group.

ITEM 9 – DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of Emerald or the integrity of Emerald's management. Emerald has no information applicable to this Item.

ITEM 10 – OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES AND AFFILIATIONS

Consulting Services

Emerald performs general business consulting services for certain legacy consulting clients. Starting January 1, 2013, Emerald will no longer offer business consulting services to new consulting clients. Emerald's owners have formed a separate company, CPS Partners, LLC, to perform future and ongoing business consulting services.

Affiliation with CPS Partners, LLC

CPS Partners, LLC ("CPS") was formed in January 2013 by Scot Hunter and Allan Budelman, who are also the owners of Emerald. CPS's services consist of consulting with the officers of business entities concerning matters relating to the company's growth and generally any matter arising out of the business affairs of the company. CPS does not provide investment supervisory or management services, investment recommendations or discretionary or non-discretionary investment advisory services. Because consulting services are typically unique, the fees charged for these services are separately negotiated with each client but are generally based on a flat annual rate.

From time to time, Mr. Hunter or Mr. Budelman may refer an Emerald advisory client to a CPS consulting client for services or products. CPS does not earn referral fees for referring clients (advisory clients or otherwise) to consulting clients of CPS. Emerald clients are under no obligation to use a CPS consulting client's services and are free to obtain the services of other service providers at their sole discretion. However, to mitigate any potential conflict of interest, any such referrals will only be made on a fully disclosed basis.

Kristof Lewicki and Kris Lewicki & Associates, LLC

Kristof Lewicki, an investment adviser representative of Emerald, also maintains a separate and independent investment advisory firm, Kris Lewicki & Associates, LLC ("KLA") (CRD #156536) through which Mr. Lewicki provides ongoing financial planning services. From time to time, an Emerald client may be referred to KLA for financial planning services. Emerald will earn a referral fee from KLA for recommending planning services clients. Clients are not obligated to use the services of KLA and may choose other service providers in their sole discretion.

KLA also provides investment advisory services (i.e., portfolio management services) to certain legacy clients of KLA. However, starting January 2014, KLA will no longer offer investment advisory services to new clients.

As a portfolio manager, Mr. Lewicki receives confidential information regarding Emerald's trading and research by way of participation in Emerald's Investment Committee. To mitigate any conflicts of interest, Mr. Lewicki and KLA are subject to Emerald's Code of Ethics and its reporting requirements.

EAS Crow Point Alternatives Fund

From August 2008 until March 2013, Emerald served as the investment adviser to the EAS Alternatives Fund which is now the EAS Crow Point Alternatives Fund (the "Fund"), an open-end mutual fund. Although Emerald no longer serves as the Fund's investment adviser, Emerald may receive reimbursement of previous payments made to service providers on behalf of the Fund if the Fund's total assets reach a specified level. Thus, Emerald may have incentive to recommend the Fund to its direct clients or model portfolios based on the potential receipt of such compensation.

ITEM 11 – CODE OF ETHICS

Code of Ethics and Personal Trading

Emerald has adopted a Code of Ethics ("the Code"), the full text of which is available to you upon request. Emerald's Code has several goals. First, the Code is designed to assist Emerald in complying with applicable laws and regulations governing its investment advisory business. Under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, Emerald owes fiduciary duties to its clients. Pursuant to these fiduciary duties, the Code requires persons associated with Emerald's (managers, officers and employees) to act with honesty, good faith and fair dealing in working with clients. In addition, the Code prohibits such associated persons from trading or otherwise acting on insider information.

Next, the Code sets forth guidelines for professional standards for Emerald's associated persons. Under the Code's Professional Standards, Emerald expects its associated persons to put the interests of its clients first, ahead of personal interests. In this regard, Emerald associated persons are not to take inappropriate advantage of their positions in relation to Emerald clients.

Third, the Code sets forth policies and procedures to monitor and review the personal trading activities of associated persons. From time to time, Emerald's associated persons may invest in the same securities recommended to clients. Under its Code, Emerald has adopted procedures designed to reduce or eliminate conflicts of interest that this could potentially cause. The Code's personal trading policies include procedures for limitations on personal securities transactions of associated persons, reporting and review of such trading and pre-clearance of certain types of personal trading activities. These policies are designed to discourage and prohibit personal trading that would disadvantage clients. The Code also provides for disciplinary action as appropriate for violations.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

Because client accounts are invested primarily in open-end mutual funds and ETFs, there is little opportunity for a conflict of interest between personal trades by Emerald associated persons and trades in client accounts, even when such accounts invest in the same securities. However, in the event of other identified potential trading conflicts of interest, Emerald's goal is to place client interests first.

Consistent with the foregoing, Emerald maintains policies regarding participation in initial public offerings (IPOs) and private placements in order to comply with applicable laws and avoid conflicts with client transactions. If an Emerald associated person wishes to participate in an IPO or invest in a private placement, he or she must submit a pre-clearance request and obtain the approval of the Chief Compliance Officer

Emerald's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Allan Budelman at 954-385-9624 or abudelman@emeraldasset.com.

Other Policies to Mitigate Conflicts between Affiliated Accounts and Clients

Aggregation of Trades

Certain affiliated accounts may trade in the same securities with client accounts on an aggregated basis when consistent with Emerald's obligation of best execution. In such circumstances, the affiliated and client accounts will receive securities at a total average price and transaction costs will be assessed at the custodian's commission rate applicable to each account. The commission rate is predicated on the client's total household assets on deposit at the custodian. No preference will be given to employee accounts in the allocation process. Emerald will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated on a pro rata basis. Any exceptions must be approved by Emerald's Chief Compliance Officer.

ITEM 12 – BROKERAGE PRACTICES

Best Execution and Benefits of Brokerage Selection

When given discretion to select the brokerage firm that will execute orders in client accounts, Emerald seeks "best execution" for client trades, which is a combination of a number of factors, including, without limitation, quality of execution, services provided and commission rates. Therefore, Emerald may use or recommend the use of brokers who do not charge the lowest available commission in the recognition of research and securities transaction services, or quality of execution. Research services received with transactions may include proprietary or third party research (or any combination), and may be used in servicing any or all of Emerald's clients. Therefore, research services received may not be used for the account for which the particular transaction was effected.

Emerald may recommend that clients establish brokerage accounts with Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (Schwab), a FINRA registered broker-dealer, member SIPC, as the qualified custodian to maintain custody of clients' assets. Emerald may also effect trades for client accounts at Schwab, or may in some instances, consistent with Emerald's duty of best execution and specific agreement with each client, elect to execute trades elsewhere. Although Emerald may recommend that clients establish accounts at Schwab, it is ultimately the client's decision to custody assets with Schwab. Emerald is independently owned and operated and is not affiliated with Schwab.

Schwab Advisor Services provides Emerald with access to its institutional trading, custody, reporting and related services, which are typically not available to Schwab retail investors. Schwab also make available various support services. Some of those services help Emerald manage or administer our clients' accounts while others help Emerald manage and grow our business. These services generally are available to independent investment advisors on an unsolicited basis, at no charge to them. Schwab's brokerage services include the execution of securities transactions, custody, research, and access to mutual funds and other investments that are otherwise generally available only to institutional investors or would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment.

For Emerald client accounts maintained in its custody, Schwab generally does not charge separately for custody services but is compensated by account holders through commissions and other transaction-related or asset-based fees for securities trades that are executed through Schwab or that settle into Schwab accounts. Schwab Advisor Services also makes available to Emerald other products and services that benefit Emerald but may not directly benefit its clients' accounts. Many of these products and services may be used to service all or some substantial number of Emerald accounts, including accounts not maintained at Schwab.

Schwab's products and services that assist Emerald in managing and administering clients' accounts include software and other technology that (i) provide access to client account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements); (ii) facilitate trade execution and allocate aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts; (iii) provide pricing and other market data; (iv) facilitate payment of Emerald's fees from its clients' accounts; and (v) assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping and client reporting.

Schwab Advisor Services also offers other services intended to help Emerald manage and further develop its business enterprise. These services may include: (i) technology compliance, legal and business consulting; (ii) publications and conferences on practice management and business succession; and (iii) access to employee benefits providers, human capital consultants and insurance providers. Schwab may make available, arrange and/or pay third-party vendors for the types of services rendered to Emerald. Schwab Advisor Services may discount or waive fees it would otherwise charge for some of these services or pay all or a part of the fees of a third-party providing these services to Emerald. Schwab Advisor Services may also provide other benefits such as educational events or occasional business entertainment of Emerald personnel. In evaluating whether to recommend that clients custody their assets at Schwab, Emerald may take into account the availability of some of the foregoing products and services and other arrangements as part of the total mix of factors it considers and not solely on the nature, cost or quality of custody and brokerage services provided by Schwab, which may create a potential conflict of interest.

Research and other Soft Dollar Benefits

Schwab Institutional pays third-parties to provide Emerald other products and services ("soft dollar benefits") that benefit Emerald but may not directly benefit its clients' accounts. Federal securities law provides a "safe harbor” which allows an investment adviser to pay more than the lowest available commission for brokerage and research services if it determines in good faith that the commission paid was reasonable in relation to the brokerage and research services provided.

Soft dollar benefits are given by brokers to money management firms in return for the money manager’s client transaction business. Client transaction business generates commissions for brokers. The brokers agree to use a portion of the client commissions to pay for certain products and services that the money manager designates, such as research reports and other products that assist with investment decision making. Soft dollar benefits are not limited to clients whose transactions have generated the benefit although certain soft dollar allocations are connected to particular clients or groups of clients. As well, soft dollar benefits are not proportionally allocated to any accounts that may generate different amounts of the soft dollar benefits.

Emerald obtains the following types of products and services from third-parties through Soft Dollar arrangements with Charles Schwab:

- Investment analysis software that assists with calculation of performance and risk analytics, peer group analysis, style attribution, manager search, asset allocation and custom reporting, portfolio construction and optimization and Monte Carlo simulations.
- Software to facilitate trading and rebalancing of our client’s securities portfolios as well as enhance investment decisions by providing tax-efficiency information, style drift reports and sample model portfolio construction and analysis.
- Programs that provide access to the largest investment databases in the industry, collecting data directly from primary sources and running it through extensive checks for accuracy. This program also allows access to the industry’s best bond information.

When Emerald uses client brokerage commissions (or markups or markdowns) to obtain research or other products or services, we receive a benefit because we do not have to produce or pay for the research, products or services. Consequently, we may have an incentive to select or recommend a broker-dealer based on our interest in receiving the research or other products or services, rather than on our clients’ interest in receiving most favorable execution.

Directed Brokerage

Clients may direct Emerald to use a particular broker for custodial or transaction services on behalf of the client’s portfolio. In directed brokerage arrangements, the client is responsible for negotiating the commission rates and other fees to be paid to the broker. Accordingly, a client who directs brokerage should consider whether such designation may result in certain costs or disadvantages to the client, either because the client may pay higher commissions or obtain less favorable execution, or the designation limits the investment options available to the client.

The arrangement that Emerald has with Schwab is designed to maximize efficiency and to be cost effective. By directing brokerage arrangements, the client acknowledges that these economies of scale and levels of efficiency are generally compromised when alternative brokers are used. While every effort is made to treat clients fairly over time, the fact that a client chooses to use the brokerage and/or custodial services of these alternative service providers may in fact result in a certain degree of delay in executing trades for their account(s) and otherwise adversely affect management of their account(s).

By directing Emerald to use a specific broker or dealer, clients who are subject to ERISA confirm and agree with Emerald that they have the authority to make the direction, that there are no provisions in any client or plan document which are inconsistent with the direction, that the brokerage and other goods and services provided by the broker or dealer through the brokerage transactions are provided solely to and for the benefit of the client's plan, plan participants and their beneficiaries, that the amount paid for the brokerage and other services have been determined by the client and the plan to be reasonable, that any expenses paid by the broker on behalf of the plan are expenses that the plan would otherwise be obligated to pay, and that the specific broker or dealer is not a party in interest of the client or the plan as defined under applicable ERISA regulations.

Synopsis of Emerald's Trading Practices

Investment Allocation and Trade Aggregation

The overriding principle governing Emerald's allocation and aggregation process is the fair and equitable treatment of all clients in the allocation of investment opportunities and in the aggregation of client orders and resulting allocation of securities or transaction proceeds.

Emerald has various model strategies that are used in the management of its separate accounts. These model strategies are also provided to other advisers and third-party investment platforms for use with clients that are unrelated to Emerald's advisory practice. When communicating any models or model changes, Emerald will first notify its internal trading department to take action with respect to Emerald's advised separate accounts. Emerald will then communicate its models and model changes to other Programs (such as turnkey asset management platforms) on a rotational basis.

The Emerald trading department prioritizes the release of trading orders with respect to its advised separate accounts as follows:

1. Discretionary accounts that have no restrictions that require manual trade adjustments (such as deviations from the model for cash requirements or that hold non-model securities, etc.);
2. Accounts with restrictions that require manual intervention to process trades;
3. Accounts with directed brokerage arrangements (i.e., clients that choose to custody their assets outside of Charles Schwab & Co.);
4. Non-discretionary accounts that require a client's pre-approval of trades.

Due to the sequence of placing trades for accounts it is possible that accounts that are traded first may receive more favorable pricing than accounts that are traded last.

Emerald may aggregate orders for its advised accounts to reduce transaction costs and facilitate efficient execution of client orders in the same securities on the same day. In the event that a trade is partially completed, Emerald will allocate the executed portion of the transaction on a pro rata basis among participating accounts. The participating accounts will receive the average price and transaction costs will be assessed at the custodian's commission rate applicable to each account. The commission rate is typically predicated on the client's total household assets on deposit at the custodian. Emerald will document the allocation of its bunched orders and review them at least annually to ensure that all clients receive fair and equitable treatment. Written approval from the CCO is required for any departures from the stated allocation process. Deviations may occur for good cause and would include, but not be limited to: cash or liquidity limitations; client-specific investment objectives, policies, or restrictions; or inadequate number of shares to justify the processing expenses (e.g. a client would receive a de minimis allocation).

Cross Transactions

A cross trade is a transaction between two accounts managed by the same investment adviser. Cross trades can be executed by an adviser either on a direct or indirect basis and can save brokerage commissions and related transactions costs. In a direct cross transaction, securities are transferred from the account of one client to that of another client. In an indirect cross trade, purchase and sale orders for the same securities are placed for execution through an unaffiliated broker-dealer, usually with no or minimal commission expense. The price for a cross transaction will be determined by an independent broker-dealer, and is usually the mid-point between the best bid and offer prices available for the size of the transaction.

It is Emerald's policy to engage in cross trade transactions only in accordance with its fiduciary duty to seek to receive the best available execution on behalf of its clients. All cross trades must receive the prior written approval of Emerald's Chief Compliance Officer.

Client Participation in Transactions

In general, investment decisions for each account are made independently from those of other accounts and are made with specific reference to the circumstances and objectives of each account. A particular account may or may not participate in any specific transaction, or may receive allocations of securities or investments that differ from that provided to other accounts, based on a number of factors including, but not limited to, the trade rotation policy, previous transactions, account restrictions, account size, tax status, risk tolerance, cash and liquidity. Although Emerald generally will seek to be consistent in its investment approach for all accounts with the same or substantially similar investment objectives, strategies and restrictions, the act of purchasing, selling or holding a security for one account does not mean it will be purchased, sold or held for another account. Emerald will transact for some accounts in securities already owned by other accounts. Due to differing market conditions and factors previously cited, Emerald may purchase (or sell) a security on behalf of some accounts that Emerald has sold (or purchased) on behalf of other accounts.

ITEM 13 – REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS

Periodic Reviews

Client accounts are reviewed periodically for investment style adherence and performance related to benchmarks appropriate for the selected style. The analysis is performed by the Portfolio Manager in charge of the account. Typically, the Portfolio Manager meets with each client at least semi-annually to review asset allocation and portfolio rebalancing, review performance, provide information about investments, assess cash flow needs and more. The number of client relationships managed by each Portfolio Manager depends on the size and complexity of the relationship, the time required to service the accounts and client preference.

Account reviews are performed by Scot Hunter, Chief Executive Officer; Allan Budelman, Managing Partner; and Kris Lewicki, Portfolio Manager.

Triggers for More Frequent Reviews

Reviews for direct asset management clients are performed more frequently when market conditions dictate, when a client's financial situation or objectives change or at any time upon the client's request.

Regular Reports

Regular written reports are provided to Emerald's direct asset management clients based on the negotiated frequency of reviews. The report generally consists of a statement of holdings, asset allocation analysis, portfolio performance information and graphs, tax-related information and other reports as needed. Reports are also available upon request. The account custodian provides account statements on a not less than quarterly basis and monthly if there is account activity.

ITEM 14 – CLIENT REFERRALS AND OTHER COMPENSATION

As noted above, Emerald receives an economic benefit from Schwab in the form of support products and services it makes available to Emerald and other independent investment advisors that have their clients maintain accounts at Schwab. These products and services, how they benefit our firm, and the related conflicts of interest are described in Item 12 - Brokerage Practices. The availability of Schwab's products and services to Emerald is based solely on our participation in the programs and not in the provision of any particular investment advice.

Incoming Referrals

If a client is introduced to Emerald by either an unaffiliated or an affiliated solicitor, Emerald will pay that solicitor a referral fee in accordance with the requirements of Rule 206(4)-3 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, and any corresponding state securities law requirements. Any such referral fee shall be paid solely from Emerald's investment management fee, and shall not result in any additional charge to the client. If the client is introduced to Emerald by an unaffiliated solicitor, the solicitor, at the time of the solicitation, shall disclose the nature of the solicitor relationship, and shall provide each prospective client with a copy Emerald's written disclosure statement, Form ADV 2A. Concurrently, the Solicitor will also provide a copy of the written disclosure statement from the solicitor to the client disclosing the terms of the solicitation arrangement between Emerald and the solicitor, including the compensation to be received by the solicitor from Emerald.

Outgoing Referrals

Certain third parties compensate Emerald for client referrals in accordance with Rule 206 (4)-3 under the Investment Adviser's Act of 1940. The compensation paid to Emerald will typically consist of a cash payment stated as a percentage of the third party's advisory fee. When Emerald solicits for third parties it will provide the prospective client with a copy of the third party's Form ADV 2A, together with the written disclosure statement disclosing the terms of the solicitation arrangement between the third party and Emerald, including the compensation to be paid by the third party to Emerald.

Should the third party use Emerald's investment models in the management of the client's accounts, the value of those assets will not be included when calculating Emerald's compensation. In such instances, Emerald will be compensated indirectly by the client through model provision fees earned on the client's account. Emerald may partly base its decision to refer prospective clients to other advisers based on the potential for compensation through the adviser's use of its investment models. This may create a potential conflict of interest.

ITEM 15 – CUSTODY

Emerald has established procedures to ensure all client funds and securities are held at a qualified custodian in a separate account for each client under that client's name. A client will be apprised in writing when accounts are established and will be provided the qualified custodian's name, address and the manner in which the funds or securities are maintained. Finally, account statements are delivered directly from the qualified custodian to each client at least quarterly. Clients should carefully review those statements and are urged to compare the statements against reports received from Emerald. When clients have questions about their account statements or do not receive an account statement, they should contact Emerald or the qualified custodian preparing the statement.

ITEM 16 – INVESTMENT DISCRETION

As described in Item 4 - Advisory Business, Emerald will accept clients on either a discretionary or non-discretionary basis. For discretionary accounts, a Limited Power of Attorney ("LPOA") is executed by the client, giving Emerald the authority to carry out various activities in the account, generally including the following: trade execution; the ability to request checks on behalf of the client; and, the withdrawal of advisory fees directly from the account. Emerald then directs investment of the client's portfolio using its discretionary authority. The client may limit the terms of the LPOA to the extent consistent with the client's investment advisory agreement with Emerald and the requirements of the client's custodian.

For non-discretionary accounts, the client also generally executes an LPOA, which allows Emerald to carry out trade recommendations and approved actions in the portfolio. However, in accordance with the investment advisory agreement between Emerald and the client, Emerald does not implement trading recommendations or other actions in the account unless and until the client has approved the recommendation or action. As with discretionary accounts, clients may limit the terms of the LPOA, subject to Emerald's agreement with the client and the requirements of the client's custodian.

ITEM 17 – VOTING CLIENT SECURITIES

Emerald generally votes proxies for securities we have selected that are held in client accounts, unless the client directs us to the contrary. We have adopted written policies and procedures designed to reasonably ensure that we vote client securities in the best interest of clients.

How We Vote Proxies

For proxy voting purposes, the following guidelines should be followed:

1. Proxies will be voted in a timely manner.
2. Emerald will maintain records of each proxy vote, by client, and will adhere to the SEC's five-year record retention requirements governing proxy voting.
3. In order to satisfy its fiduciary duty by casting proxy votes consistent with the best interests of its clients, client interests will always take precedence over Emerald's interests.
 - Routine matters: it is the general policy of Emerald, absent a compelling reason to the contrary, to vote with management's recommendations.
 - Non-recurring extraordinary matters: generally, best practices for corporate governance and protection of shareholder's authority will be accepted. Generally value dilution and reduction of shareholders' power or interests will be rejected.

Client Proxy Voting Policies

If a client has a proxy-voting policy and instructs us to follow it, we will comply with that policy except when doing so would be contrary to the client's economic interest or otherwise imprudent or unlawful. As a fiduciary to ERISA plans, we are required to discharge our duties in accordance with the documents governing the plan (insofar as they are consistent with ERISA), including statements of proxy voting policy. We will, to the extent possible, comply with each client's proxy voting policy. If client policies conflict, we may vote proxies to reflect each policy in proportion to the respective client's interest in any pooled account (unless voting in such a manner would be imprudent or otherwise inconsistent with applicable law).

When We Do Not Vote Proxies

We generally do not vote proxies for securities we have not selected but that are held in a client account, or where we do not have discretionary authority over securities held in a client account.

Client Requests for Information

Clients may contact Emerald to obtain, free of charge, a copy of Emerald's proxy voting policy and/or information with respect to specific proxy votes. In response to any request, the firm's Chief Compliance Officer or her nominee will prepare a written response to the client with the information requested, and will include the name of the issuer, the proposal voted upon, and how Emerald voted the client's proxy with respect to each proposal.

Emerald's Policies for Class Action Lawsuit Participation

A securities "class action" lawsuit is a civil suit brought by one or more individuals ("Plaintiffs") on behalf of themselves and others who have the same grievance against the issuer of a certain security. When a class action is filed, a written notice of filing and/or settlement is prepared (the "Notice"), which outlines the reasons for the lawsuit, the parameters for qualification as a member of the class and certain legal rights that need to be considered before becoming a member of the class (i.e., participating in the settlement). The Notice is required to be delivered to the owners/beneficiaries of the security by the Claims Administrator (usually the attorney for the Plaintiffs), or by the broker-dealers or other nominees (e.g., custodians) who hold the security on behalf of the owners/beneficiaries.

In some cases, in addition to the owner/beneficiary, Emerald may also receive notification of a class action. However, because each class action involves certain legal rights that must be considered by the owner/beneficiary of the security before becoming a member of the class, Emerald does not instruct or give advice to its clients on whether or not to participate as a member of the class and does not automatically file claims on its clients' behalf.

If we receive any information intended for our clients pertaining to a class action lawsuit, we will use our reasonable efforts to forward it to them on a timely basis. If a client notifies Emerald that they intend to participate in a class action lawsuit, we will provide the client any supporting documentation (e.g. statements and confirmations) required to file the claim on a best efforts basis.

ITEM 18 – FINANCIAL INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide you with certain financial information or disclosures about our financial condition. PROFESSIONAL DESIGNATION DISCLOSURES

Certified Financial Planner™, CFP®

Certified Financial Planner™ (CFP®) professional certification marks are granted in the United States by Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. ("CFP Board").

The CFP® certification is a voluntary certification; no federal or state law or regulation requires financial planners to hold CFP® certification. It is recognized in the United States and a number of other countries for its (1) high standard of professional education; (2) stringent code of conduct and standards of practice; and (3) ethical requirements that govern professional engagements with clients. Currently, more than 62,000 individuals have obtained CFP® certification in the United States.

To attain the right to use the CFP® marks, an individual must satisfactorily fulfill the following requirements:

Education – Complete an advanced college-level course of study addressing the financial planning subject areas that CFP Board's studies have determined as necessary for the competent and professional delivery of financial planning services, and attain a Bachelor's Degree from a regionally accredited United States college or university (or its equivalent from a foreign university). CFP Board's financial planning subject areas include insurance planning and risk management, employee benefits planning, investment planning, income tax planning, retirement planning, and estate planning;

Examination – Pass the comprehensive CFP® Certification Examination. The examination, administered in 10 hours over a two-day period, includes case studies and client scenarios designed to test one's ability to correctly diagnose financial planning issues and apply one's knowledge of financial planning to real world circumstances;

Experience – Complete at least three years of full-time financial planning-related experience (or the equivalent, measured as 2,000 hours per year); and

Ethics – Agree to be bound by CFP Board's Standards of Professional Conduct, a set of documents outlining the ethical and practice standards for CFP® professionals.

Individuals who become certified must complete the following ongoing education and ethics requirements in order to maintain the right to continue to use the CFP® marks:

Continuing Education – Complete 30 hours of continuing education hours every two years, including two hours on the Code of Ethics and other parts of the Standards of Professional Conduct, to maintain competence and keep up with developments in the financial planning field; and Ethics – Renew an agreement to be bound by the Standards of Professional Conduct. The Standards prominently require that CFP® professionals provide financial planning services at a fiduciary standard of care. This means CFP® professionals must provide financial planning services in the best interests of their clients.

CFP® professionals who fail to comply with the above standards and requirements may be subject to CFP Board's enforcement process, which could result in suspension or permanent revocation of their CFP® certification.
