ITEM 4

Advisory Business

A. General Description of Advisory Firm

Brandywine Global Investment Management, LLC ("Brandywine Global") is registered as an investment adviser with the SEC. Brandywine Global is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Legg Mason, Inc. ("Legg Mason"), a publicly-held global asset management company. Founded in 1986, Brandywine Global offers an array of equity, fixed income, and balanced portfolios that invest in U.S., international, and global markets. Brandywine Global is headquartered in Philadelphia with an office in San Francisco. Brandywine Global also operates two affiliated companies with offices in Singapore and London.

B. Description of Advisory Services

Brandywine Global provides discretionary investment management services to a variety of clients including institutions, individuals, and various registered and unregistered pooled investment vehicles. In addition, Brandywine Global is the sub-adviser to affiliated and non-affiliated mutual funds and acts as a sub-adviser to several wrap programs sponsored by unaffiliated program sponsors. Brandywine Global also provides portfolio research services in the form of model investment portfolios to affiliated and non-affiliated investment advisers or other financial service providers for negotiated fees.

C. Client Restrictions

Each client portfolio is tailored to meet the individual needs of each individual client. Clients have the ability to provide Brandywine Global with specific investment parameters in the form of investment guidelines. The guidelines may include, for example, restrictions on investing in certain securities, industries, security types, issuers or securities with certain credit ratings. The investment guidelines form a part of our management agreement with a client, and Brandywine Global manages the client's account within these parameters. Clients should be aware, however, that some restrictions can limit our ability to act and as a result, the account's performance may differ from and be less successful than that of other accounts that have not limited our discretion. Clients should also be aware that investment guidelines sometimes do not anticipate every investment scenario and can therefore sometimes be open to multiple interpretations. In such circumstances, Brandywine Global will use its best efforts to interpret the investment guidelines in a manner that is consistent with a client's investment goals and such interpretations will govern the management of the account.

D. Wrap Programs

Brandywine Global serves as an investment adviser in one or more "wrap" programs that are offered by third-party wrap program sponsors (typically broker-dealers). A wrap program is an investment advisory program under which a client typically pays a single fee to the sponsor based on assets under management. Fees paid are not based directly upon transactions in the client's account or the execution of client transactions. Wrap program clients typically select Brandywine Global from a list of investment advisers presented to clients by registered representatives of the sponsor. Wrap program clients are typically high net worth individuals. The program sponsor has primary responsibility for client communications and service, and Brandywine Global provides investment management services to the clients. The program sponsor typically executes client's portfolio transactions, and in most cases, provides custodial services for the client's assets for a single fee paid by the client to the sponsor. Brandywine Global is paid a portion of the wrap fee (management fee) for its services by the program sponsor.

Brandywine Global also advises several "model only" investment programs whereby program sponsors utilize a Brandywine Global "model" portfolio to implement an investment program for investors. In such cases, Brandywine Global receives a management fee from the sponsor based on the assets managed by the sponsor in accordance with the model portfolio.

Investment decisions for wrap program clients through sponsor programs and other non-wrap accounts are managed in the same investment style. There may be differences, however, at the individual account level due to restrictions or limitations imposed on Brandywine Global by the wrap program account holder and/or the wrap program sponsor.

E. Assets Under Management

As of March 31, 2013, Brandywine Global managed $46,030,481,627.00 on a discretionary basis and $4,475,245.00 on a non-discretionary basis.

ITEM 5 Fees and Compensation

A. Fee Calculations - Percentage of Assets Under Management

Brandywine Global's fees are typically charged based on a percentage of the value of a client's assets under management with Brandywine Global. Billing is generally based on the total market value of the client's assets under management, as shown on the client's custodial statements. Fees are billed either quarterly or monthly and are payable either in advance or in arrears as mutually agreed upon with the client. Exceptions are mutually agreed upon with the client. Brandywine Global deducts fees from clients' assets or invoices clients for fees incurred, depending on what the client requests. Upon request, the firm may consider an alternative billing structure.

A client may terminate its investment advisory agreement by providing written notice of termination within the parameters set forth in the management agreement. Upon termination, fees paid in advance will be prorated and any unearned portion thereof will be returned to the client via check or wire automatically upon termination of the investment advisory agreement. The refund will be calculated based on the number of days remaining in the billing period after the date of termination. Fees paid in arrears will be pro rated and any earned portion thereof will be due to Brandywine Global. The fee will be calculated based on the number of days during the billing period that the account was managed before the date of termination.

While it is the general policy of Brandywine Global to charge fees to its clients in accordance with the firm's standard fee schedules in effect at the time of executing the investment management agreement, fees are subject to negotiation and may vary from the schedules below to reflect circumstances that may apply to a specific client account. For example, fees may differ from those stated herein because of long-standing relationships, anticipated client additions to assets under management, changing market conditions, or for other reasons.

B. Fee Schedules - General

SEPARATE ACCOUNT MANAGEMENT FEE SCHEDULES:

Fees applicable to separate accounts are computed based on the following annualized rates and are payable in arrears or on such other basis as is mutually agreed upon with the client.

With respect to such services (which may include, but are not limited to, custodial, securities lending, brokerage, banking, consulting or third-party advisory services) each client will be required to establish business relationships with relevant service providers or other counterparties based on the client's own credit standing.

Private funds also may bear their own operating and other expenses including, but not limited to, in addition to those listed above: (i) custodial fees; (ii) legal expenses; (iii) external accounting; (iv) audit and tax preparation expenses; and (v) operating and other expenses.

ITEM 6 Performance-Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management

A. Performance-Based Fees

Brandywine Global may manage client accounts that pay performance-based fees. Client accounts that pay performance-based fees reward Brandywine Global based on the performance in those accounts. Performance fee arrangements could provide a heightened incentive for portfolio managers to make investments that may present a greater potential for return but also a greater risk of loss and that may be more speculative than would exist if only asset-based fees were applied.

B. Side-by-Side Management

At times, Brandywine Global may manage client accounts that pay performance-based fees alongside client accounts that pay asset based fees and utilize the same investment strategy and invest in the same assets. The simultaneous management of client accounts that pay performance-based fees alongside client accounts that only pay an asset-based fee may create a conflict of interest as the portfolio manager may have an incentive to favor client accounts with the potential to receive greater fees. For instance, a portfolio manager may be faced with a conflict of interest when allocating scarce investment opportunities given the possibly greater fees from accounts that pay performance-based fees as opposed to accounts that do not pay performance-based fees.

To address these types of conflicts, Brandywine Global periodically reviews the performance and trading of client accounts that pay performance-based fees to seek to ensure that no account, or group of accounts, is receiving preference in the trading process. Brandywine Global has developed allocation policies and procedures. Orders for all accounts seeking to make the same investment are aggregated and executions are allocated pro rata across all participating accounts (See Section 12 “Brokerage Practices” below). Furthermore, in instances where Brandywine Global is managing accounts that pay performance fees alongside accounts that pay only asset-based fees (and in instances in which Brandywine Global personnel have an interest in funds or strategies managed by Brandywine Global) Brandywine Global conducts regular and routine reviews to monitor that no account, or group of accounts, is receiving preference in the trading process.

Types of Clients

Brandywine Global provides investment management services to a wide variety of institutional and other clients, including corporate pension and profit-sharing plans, trusts, corporations, endowments, foundations, public retirement plans, governments, insurance companies, high net-worth investors, multi-employer retirement plans, financial institutions, intermediaries, and registered and unregistered pooled investment vehicles.

Brandywine Global generally requires its clients to have a minimum amount of assets under management to open and to maintain an account for its various types of services in the amounts specified in the fee schedules set forth in Item 5 “Fees and Compensation” above. These minimum amounts may be lowered because of long-standing relationships, anticipated client additions to assets under management or for a variety of other reasons. Brandywine Global in its sole discretion may accept or maintain accounts below the stated minimums.

Brandywine Global also offers investment advisory services to the clients of sponsors. In accounts introduced to Brandywine Global by a Sponsor, the client either enters into agreements directly with both Brandywine Global and the Sponsor (“Dual Contract Accounts”), or enters into an agreement solely with the Sponsor or another entity that has an agreement with the Sponsor (“Sponsored Accounts”).

Brandywine Global also provides portfolio research services in the form of model investment portfolios to affiliated and non-affiliated investment advisers or other financial service providers for negotiated fees. Under certain of these arrangements, all or a portion of the securities purchase and sale transactions for accounts of the model recipient’s clients are implemented by the model recipient or another entity on the basis of the research furnished to the model recipient. Brandywine Global typically has no execution responsibilities with respect to transactions executed by the model recipient.

In certain instances, Brandywine Global and a model recipient may agree that Brandywine Global will be responsible for executing certain transactions necessary to implement the model. With respect to such transactions, the model recipient will communicate to Brandywine Global the amount of securities to be purchased or sold, and Brandywine Global will have discretionary authority with respect to the timing of execution of such transactions.

ITEM 8

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

A. Analysis by Core Strategy

I. LARGE CAP EQUITY MANDATES

For accounts managed by our Large Cap portfolio management team, we strive to provide investors with competitive risk-adjusted long-term performance relative to the Russell 1000 Value Index by investing in stocks of selected U.S.-traded companies with market valuations that we believe to be low. Our Fundamental Value, Traditional Value Equity and Classic Large Cap Value focus on prospects for companies with depressed share prices to resume earnings growth patterns and employ a larger-cap emphasis. We focus on selecting those stocks that offer the most value industry-by-industry.

II. MIDCAP, SMALL-MID CAP, SMALL CAP VALUE AND DOMESTIC MICROCAP EQUITY MANDATES

For accounts managed by our Absolute Value portfolio management team, we strive to provide investors with competitive risk-adjusted long-term total returns relative to the Russell Mid Cap Value Index, the Russell 2500 Value Index, the Russell 2000 Value Index and the Russell Microcap Value Index, respectively. The portfolios generally invest in companies that are under-valued relative to what we estimate the underlying businesses are worth. We term this business value as the “Intrinsic Value” of the company and we regard this as what the business would be worth to a private owner. A primary consideration in estimating the Intrinsic Value of a stock is the cash the business returns to the owners. We construct diversified portfolios but focus our holdings in the stocks that we believe represent the best values and opportunities irrespective of sector or industry.

III. DIVERSIFIED EQUITY MANDATES

For accounts managed by our Diversified portfolio management team, we strive to provide investors with competitive risk-adjusted long-term total returns relative to the relevant Russell or MSCI indices. The relevant index for a portfolio is based on market capitalization and geography. To attempt to limit risk, we create widely diversified portfolios of the common stocks of companies with low value-based ratios. Some portfolio construction approaches utilize a blend of fundamental and quantitative factors and some are primarily quantitative-driven. We offer strategies covering the large-cap, mid-cap, small/mid cap, small-cap, and small/micro-cap ranges as well as global and international all-cap strategies.

IV. FIXED INCOME MANDATES

For accounts managed by our Global Fixed Income investment management team, we strive to provide investors with competitive risk-adjusted total returns relative to the unhedged Citigroup World Government Bond Index ("CWGBI") or the CWGBI ex-US for International Fixed Income portfolios, over a 3-5 year period. To do so, we follow a value philosophy, and we concentrate portfolio assets in countries and currencies that fit our definition of value. We believe value is signified by high real (inflation adjusted) interest rates and an appreciating currency. We seek to limit risk by investing primarily in the sovereign debt of developed countries.

For Domestic Fixed Income accounts, we apply a top-down process when structuring portfolios. We attempt to uncover undervalued securities by analyzing macroeconomic conditions, business and liquidity cycles, and the level of real (inflation-adjusted) interest rates. We also look for price-spread anomalies, which might signal opportunities among specific sectors or securities. The U.S. economy's growth trend and its position in both the business and liquidity cycles are key components in determining the appropriate duration and maturity structure of our fixed income portfolios. In periods where real interest rates are high, we are more likely to lengthen portfolio duration relative to the Barclay's Capital U.S. Aggregate Index.

V. BALANCED MANDATES

For Balanced accounts we seek to outpace the long-term performance of a blended benchmark (60% S&P Index/40% Barclay's Capital Global Aggregate Index) while adhering to our value-oriented investment philosophy. The typical asset allocation of our Domestic Balanced portfolios is 60% equities and 40% fixed income securities. We vary this mix based on the assessment of macroeconomic and market conditions. To begin the stock selection process, we screen certain domestic equity securities to identify those with price-to-earnings ratios in the bottom 40% and/or price-to-book ratios in the bottom 25%. To the resulting universe of 500-plus stocks, we apply our relative screen. We compare each stock's current valuation -- as measured by its price-to-earnings, price-to-book, and price-to-cash flow ratios, prior sales growth, insider activity yield, and return on equity -- to historical norms, and then select stocks that appear inexpensive relative to the market, their peers, and their historical trading ranges. Through fundamental analysis, we seek to understand why those stocks are undervalued and to identify those companies we believe most likely to return to normal valuation levels.

VI. ALTERNATIVE MANDATES

The LIBOR + ALPHA: Global Opportunistic Fixed Income strategy aims to separate the alpha delivered by our traditional Global Opportunistic Fixed Income strategy and deliver it independent of the beta. This investment process involves investing cash in money market instruments or deposits and entering into non-cash transactions including forwards, futures and swaps to approximate the alpha of our Global Opportunistic Fixed Income strategy.

The Absolute Return Strategy aims to generate positive returns that are independent of market cycles. The portfolio's goal is to outperform LIBOR on a rolling 36 month basis by 300 basis points compounded net of fees. As asset prices in the global market over-extend in one direction, we believe currencies and interest rates adjust accordingly, eventually impacting economic behavior and setting economic forces in motion that renormalize valuations in the opposite direction. This provides potential return generating opportunities for our long-short approach to exploit bond markets and currencies that we have identified as either over or undervalued. We apply a top-down, macro-driven investment process and invest only where we believe opportunities exist with respect to interest rate levels and currency valuations. We attempt to identify bond markets that provide the highest or lowest real yields, as potential longs or shorts, respectively. Currency valuations are also continuously monitored for indications of over or under valuation.

The Macro Strategy aims to maximize total return primarily through capital appreciation using a broad-based macro approach. Investments may, at any point in time, reflect a range of macro-based themes derived from top down analysis in combination with various indicators and models that have been constructed to help quantify asset pricing anomalies, establish key cyclical influences and provide timing input. Assets will be invested in a concentrated or diversified manner and may be short or long among or within any group of investments including, but not limited to, cash or cash equivalents, currencies, stocks, bonds, commodities, futures, options, indexes, exchange traded funds as well as open and closed-end funds. The range of possible investments is global. At any one time, assets may be 100% in cash, or have no cash and be leveraged across a variety of investment positions.

The Enhanced Alpha strategy aims to provide investors with excellent risk-adjusted total returns relative to the un-hedged Citigroup World Government Bond Index over a 3-5 year period. We apply a top-down, value-driven process to identify bonds we believe have the highest and lowest real yields and to manage currency with a goal to protect principal and increase returns. We employ a symmetrical long-short approach that allows us to pursue opportunities in all applicable markets by making allocation ranges symmetrical around the benchmark. We seek to capture excess returns through strategic investment in countries, sectors and securities rather than by maintaining minimum, core requirements. Investments are typically concentrated in eight to sixteen countries we deem to offer the most attractive return potential.

The Tactical Opportunistic Fixed Income strategy aims to achieve absolute return by concentrating and rotating investments among sub-sectors of the fixed income markets including, among others, mortgage-backed securities, high yield and investment grade corporate debt and emerging market debt. Since we do not believe in constant exposure to any of these sub-sectors, investment is only made in those sectors and securities that we believe are significantly undervalued. In general, we will attempt to capture spread compression as a sector returns to normal valuation. In addition, we hope to pick the most attractive securities within a sector, and thus earn a security selection premium.

VII. SOCIALLY CONSCIOUS INVESTING

Socially conscious portfolios generally avoid companies that produce items some consider dangerous or objectionable, such as alcohol, tobacco, weapons, and nuclear power, as well as those that cannot meet local standards on fair employment and the environment. This approach to investing can be coupled with any of our strategies. It can be tailored to fit each client's individual investment requirements.

B. Risk Management

In managing client accounts, Brandywine Global utilizes various investment strategies and methods of analysis. This section contains a discussion of the primary risks associated with these investment strategies. The particular investment risks to which a client is subject will differ depending on the particular strategy, strategies or product in which a client has invested, and the securities and investments comprising such product or strategy. However, it is not possible to identify all of the risks associated with investing and the particular risks applicable to a client account will depend on the nature of the account, its investing strategy or strategies, and the types of securities held.

While Brandywine Global seeks to manage accounts so that the risks are appropriate to the strategy, it is often not possible or desirable to fully mitigate risks. Any investment includes the risk of loss and there can be no guarantee that a particular level of return will be achieved. Clients should understand that they could lose some or all of their investment and should be prepared to bear the risk of such potential losses.

C. Other Risks

American Depositary Receipts. Brandywine Global may invest in American Depositary Receipts (“ADR”), also known as an American depositary shares. An ADR is a receipt for the shares of a foreign-based corporation held in the vault of a U.S. bank and entitling the shareholder to all dividends and capital gains. Instead of buying shares of foreign-based companies in overseas markets, Americans can buy shares in the U.S. in the form of an ADR. ADRs are available for hundreds of stocks from numerous companies. ADRs make trading foreign securities in the U.S. easier by eliminating currency exchange, legal obstacles, foreign ownership transfers and the need to trade on a foreign exchange. While an ADR removes direct foreign currency ownership, the value of the ADR share is still impacted by changes in the U.S. Dollar to foreign currency exchange rate.

ADRs can be created/canceled through a custodian depository bank. The bank usually charges a fee for conversion. If the ordinary shares are bought in the foreign market, those shares are sent to the depository custodian where they are converted from ordinary to ADR form. In the case of a sale, the custodian cancels the ADR and delivers the ordinary shares. ADRs that are created in this manner may have low trading liquidity on the U.S. exchanges. Selling a low liquidity ADR on a US exchange may have excessive transaction costs. Thus, such shares may need to be sold in their home foreign market and delivered through cancellation of their ADR.

Equity Securities. An account investing substantially all of its assets in common stocks bears the risk that the value of the stocks it holds may decrease in response to the activities of an individual company or in response to general market, business and economic conditions. If this occurs, the account value may also decrease.

Market Risk. This risk exists in all of our accounts and means that the risk of the price of securities in a market, a sector or an industry will fluctuate and that such movements might reduce an investment's value.

Concentration Risk. Concentrating investments in a particular country, region, market, industry or asset class means that performance will be more susceptible to loss due to adverse occurrences affecting that country, region, market, industry or asset class. A portfolio concentrating in a single state is subject to greater risk of adverse economic conditions and regulatory changes than a fund with broader geographical diversification.

Non-Diversification Risk. Non-diversification of investments means a portfolio may invest a large percentage of its assets in securities issued by or representing a small number of issuers. As a result, the portfolio's performance may depend on the performance of a small number of issuers.

Small Companies. Typically, securities of small companies are less liquid than securities of large companies. The stocks of small companies are generally more sensitive to purchase and sale transactions and, therefore, the prices of such securities may be more volatile than those of larger companies. Transaction costs for the stocks of small companies can thus be greater than for the stocks of large companies. Recognizing these factors Brandywine Global will endeavor to effect securities transactions in a manner to avoid causing significant price fluctuations in the market for these securities.

Foreign Issuers. Such investments involve risks that are not associated with investments in U.S. public companies. Such risks may include legal, political and/or diplomatic actions of foreign governments, such as imposition of withholding taxes on interest and dividend income payable on the securities held, possible seizure or nationalization of foreign deposits, establishment of exchange controls or the adoption of other foreign governmental restrictions which might adversely affect the value of the assets held by an account. Further, foreign issuers are not generally subject to uniform accounting, auditing and financial reporting standards comparable to those of U.S. public companies and there may be less publicly available information about such companies than comparable U.S. companies. Due to historically higher volatility in both currency and security prices, investments in emerging markets are deemed to possess greater risk relative to developed markets.

Foreign Currencies. Some investments may be denominated in foreign currencies. Changes in the relative values of foreign currencies and the U.S. dollar, therefore, will affect the value of investments in those accounts which invest in foreign currencies. These accounts may purchase foreign currency futures contracts, forwards, and options in order to achieve foreign currency exposure, or to hedge or cross-hedge against changes in the level of foreign currency exchange rates. Such contracts involve an agreement to purchase or sell a specific currency at a future date at a price set in the contract and enable the account to protect against losses resulting from adverse changes in the relationship between the U.S. dollar and foreign currencies. However, such contracts also tend to limit the potential gains that might result from a positive change in such currency relationships. In addition, an imperfect correlation may exist between these instruments and the currency they are intended to hedge.

Fixed Income Securities. Because each of the fixed income accounts primarily invest in debt securities, those accounts are subject to interest rate risk and credit risk. Fixed income investments are subject to price fluctuations resulting from various factors, including rising or declining interest rates (interest rate risk). The value of a client account's investments (other than an interest-only class of a collateralized obligation) tends to decrease when interest rates rise and tends to increase when interest rates fall. In addition, investments with longer maturities, which typically provide better yields, may subject an account to increased price changes resulting from market yield fluctuations. The value of fixed income securities is subject to the ability of the issuers of such securities to make payment at maturity (credit risk).

Lower Rated Debt Securities. Ratings of debt securities purchased in client accounts represent the rating agencies' opinions regarding their quality, are not a guarantee of quality and may be reduced after an account has acquired the security. Ratings agencies may fail to make timely changes in credit ratings in response to subsequent events affecting an issuer, so that an issuer's current financial condition may be better or worse than the rating indicates. Lower rated debt securities generally offer a higher current yield than that available from higher grade issues, but they involve higher risks in that they are especially subject to adverse changes in general economic conditions and in the industries in which the issuers are engaged, to changes in the financial condition of the issuers and to price fluctuation in response to changes in interest rates. The risk of loss due to default by such issuers may also be significantly greater.

Mortgage- and Asset-Backed Securities. Some client accounts may invest in mortgage- and asset-based securities. The principal on these securities may be prepaid at any time because the underlying mortgage loans or other assets generally may be prepaid at any time. Amounts available for reinvestment due to prepayments are likely to be greater during a period of declining interest rates and, as a result, are likely to be reinvested at lower interest rates. Accelerated prepayments on securities purchased at a premium also impose a risk of a loss of principal. Mortgage- and asset-backed securities may benefit less than other fixed income securities from declining interest rates because of the risk of prepayment.

The principal prepayments on the mortgage pass-through assets underlying a Collateralized Mortgage Obligation (“CMO”) may cause the CMOs to be retired substantially earlier than their stated maturities. The principal and interest on a mortgage pass-through security may be allocated among several classes of a CMO in many different ways. As a result, CMOs may provide a wide variety of investment characteristics, such as yield, effective maturity, and interest rate sensitivity. As market conditions change, particularly during periods of rapid or unanticipated changes in market interest rates, the attractiveness of the CMO classes and the ability of the structure to provide the anticipated investment characteristics may be significantly reduced. These changes can result in volatility in the market value, and in some cases reduced liquidity, of the CMO. The rate of interest payable on CMO classes may be set at levels that are either above or below market rates at the time of issuance, so that the securities will be sold at a substantial premium to, or at a discount from, par value.

Interest only (IO) and principal only (PO) securities may be created from CMO’s and other types of mortgage-backed securities. The yields on these securities are extremely sensitive to the rate of principal payments on the underlying mortgage assets. In the most extreme case, one class will be entitled to receive all or a portion of the interest but none of the principal from the underlying mortgage assets (IO), and one class will be entitled to receive all or a portion of the principal but none of the interest (PO). Some CMO classes are structured to pay interest at rates that are adjusted in accordance with a formula, such as a multiple or fraction of the change in a specified interest rate index, so as to pay at a rate that will be attractive in certain interest rate environments but not in others. If the underlying pool of securities experiences an excessive amount of prepayments, an IO security may lose some of its principal value. In the most extreme situation the security would have no principal worth and not be entitled to future payments from the underlying pool of securities.

Inverse floaters are instruments whose interest rates bear an inverse relationship to the interest rate on another security or the value of an index. Changes in the interest rate on the other security or index inversely affect the residual interest rate paid on the inverse floater, with the result that the inverse floater’s price will be considerably more volatile than that of a fixed-rate bond. The market value of such securities generally is more volatile than that of a fixed rate obligation.

Sovereign Debt of Non-U.S. Countries. Some client accounts may invest in the sovereign debt of non-U.S. countries. Such debt differs from debt obligations issued by private entities in that generally remedies for defaults must be pursued in the courts of the defaulting party. Legal recourse is therefore somewhat diminished. A sovereign debtor’s willingness to or ability to repay the principal and interest due in a timely manner may be affected by, among other factors, its cash flow situation, the extent of its foreign reserves, the availability of sufficient foreign exchange on the date a payment is due, the relative size of the debt service burden to the economy as a whole, the sovereign debtor’s policy toward principal international lenders and the political constraints to which a sovereign debtor may be subject. With respect to sovereign debt of emerging market issuers, clients should be aware that certain emerging market countries are among the largest debtors to commercial bank and foreign governments. At times, certain emerging market countries have declared a moratorium on the payment of principal and interest on external debt. Certain emerging market countries have experienced difficulty in servicing their sovereign debt on a timely basis which led to defaults on certain obligations and the restructuring of certain indebtedness. Restructuring arrangements have included, among other things, reducing and rescheduling interest and principal payments.

Derivative Risk. Using derivatives, especially for non-hedging purposes, involves a significant risk of loss to a client's account and can reduce opportunities for gains when market prices, interest rates, currency rates or the derivative instruments themselves behave in a way not anticipated. Using derivatives also can have leveraging effect and increase volatility. Derivatives may be difficult to sell, unwind or value, and the counterparty may default on its obligations. Using derivatives may also have adverse tax consequences for a client. The successful use of derivatives requires sophisticated management, and, to the extent that derivatives are used, the account will depend on Brandywine Global's ability to analyze and manage derivative transactions. An account may not fully benefit from or may lose money on derivatives if changes in their value do not correspond as anticipated to changes in the value of the account's holdings. Using derivatives may also increase volatility. Derivatives are subject to counterparty risk, which is the risk that the other party in the transaction will not fulfill its contractual obligation. Other risks arise from the potential inability to terminate or sell derivative positions. A liquid secondary market may not always exist for an account's derivatives positions. In fact, many over-the-counter instruments will not be liquid.

Recent legislation calls for new regulation of the derivatives markets. The extent and impact of the regulation are not fully known and may not be known for some time. New regulation of derivatives may make them more costly, may limit their availability, or may otherwise adversely affect their value or performance.

Swap agreements will tend to shift an account's investment exposure from one type of investment to another. Credit default swap contracts and related instruments, such as credit default swap indexed products, involve special risks, including leverage risks, liquidity risks and increased risk credit, and may result in sudden and substantial losses. They may also be difficult to value.

Currency futures, forwards or options may not always work as intended, and in specific cases a client may be worse off than if it had not used such instrument(s). There may not always be suitable hedging instruments available. Even when suitable hedging instruments are available, the client's account may not hedge its currency risk.

Exchange Traded Funds ("ETFs"). Brandywine Global may also invest in exchange traded funds ("ETFs"). There may be an extra layer of fees when Brandywine Global invests in an ETF. In addition to the account-level fees that are charged for Brandywine Global's investment advisory services, a client will bear a proportionate share of the fees and expenses incurred by any unaffiliated ETF in which a portion of such client's account is invested.

Hedging. Hedging risk comes into play when an account will use a security whose value is based on an underlying security or index to “offset” the account's position in another security or currency. The objective of hedging is to offset potential losses in one security with gains in the hedge. However, a hedge can eliminate or reduce gains as well as offset losses.

Commingled Accounts. Investors in the commingled accounts listed in Item 5 have risks associated based on there currently being no public or other market for the units (“Units”) described in the respective Offering Memorandum, and it is not contemplated that one will develop. Transfer of the Units is significantly restricted by the terms of the relevant agreement and Declaration of Trust. The Units have not been registered under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, (the “Act”) and in no event may an investor sell his Units unless such Units are registered under the Act or qualify for exemption from such registration.

Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Brandywine Global maintains a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) governing, among other things, the personal trading activities of employees in order to help protect the interests of clients. The Code is based on the principle that employees owe a fiduciary duty to Brandywine Global's clients and must avoid activities, interests and relationships that might interfere with making decisions in the best interests of Brandywine Global's clients. All employees are subject to the provisions of the Code.

The Code includes policies and procedures (1) restricting personal trading, (2) requiring the pre-clearance of most types of personal securities transactions, and (3) requiring the reporting to Brandywine Global of all personal securities holdings and transactions. In certain specified situations, the Code mandates blackout periods during which employees are prohibited from making personal transactions in certain securities. Exceptions to this or any other limitation set forth in the Code may be granted by the Brandywine Global Chief Compliance Officer if the CCO concludes that the contemplated action does not pose a material conflict of interest of the nature sought to be mitigated or eliminated by the Code. Compliance with the Code is monitored by Brandywine Global's Compliance Department.

Brandywine Global will provide a copy of the Code to any client or prospective client upon written request to the Compliance Department:

Brandywine Global Investment Management, LLC
Attention: Compliance Department
2929 Arch Street, 8th Floor
Philadelphia, PA 19104

Brandywine Global may, from time to time, recommend to clients that they buy or sell securities in which employees or other related persons have a financial interest. These types of transactions may present a conflict of interest in that employees or related persons might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. In order to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Brandywine Global and its client, employee trading is monitored under the Code of Ethics. Brandywine Global provides investment management services to private investment vehicles. Brandywine Global employees or other related persons may invest in any of these private investment vehicles. In some cases, such investments may constitute the entire assets of a private investment vehicle. Brandywine Global employees or other related persons may also be clients of Brandywine Global.

ITEM 12 Brokerage Practices

A. Selection of Brokers, Dealers and Other Trading Venues

Brandywine Global places orders for the execution of transactions for client accounts according to its best execution policies and procedures. We believe best execution consists of obtaining the most favorable result, considering the full range of services provided, under the prevailing market conditions. Best execution is not necessarily measured by the circumstances surrounding a single transaction but may be measured over time through multiple transactions. While Brandywine Global generally seeks reasonably competitive execution rates, it does not necessarily pay the lowest spread or commission available. As a result, in selecting broker-dealers, Brandywine Global may take into account many factors, including but not limited to the following: size of the order; price of the security; execution difficulty of the transaction; liquidity of the security; market and exchange conditions; macro economic conditions; current news events; order flow information; speed of execution desired; broker willingness to commit capital and minimize trading costs associated with implementing an investment decision; broker ability to execute a large or small trade; ability or inability of electronic communication network to handle transactions; value of brokerage and research services provided to Brandywine Global; and commission cost. We periodically review the execution performance of the broker-dealers used to execute client trades.

In executing brokerage transactions involving securities of issuers domiciled in countries other than the U.S., Brandywine Global may or may not execute such transaction on the principal stock exchanges of such countries. Brokerage commissions and other transaction costs on foreign stock exchange transactions generally are higher than in the U.S., although Brandywine Global will endeavor to achieve the best net results in effecting its portfolio transactions. There generally is less governmental supervision and regulation of foreign stock exchanges and broker-dealers than in the U.S.

B. Soft Dollars

Brandywine Global may direct client brokerage to broker-dealers who provide research and brokerage services to Brandywine Global. Such arrangements are subject to Brandywine Global's policy of seeking best execution and are structured to comply with the safe harbor of Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, which permits the payment of commissions that exceed commissions other broker-dealers may charge if Brandywine Global determines that such commissions are reasonable in relation to the research or brokerage services provided.

The research or brokerage services that Brandywine Global may obtain from broker-dealers may include, among others, economic statistics and forecasting services, industry and company analyses, portfolio strategy services, quantitative data and market information systems. Research and brokerage services received may include proprietary research generated by the broker-dealers that execute the transactions, brokerage services, or a rebate on brokerage services, provided by the executing broker-dealer, or research generated by third parties. Brandywine Global also may receive research in connection with purchases of fixed price offerings on behalf of managed accounts or as a result of executing fixed income transactions through broker-dealers acting on an agency basis.

A broker-dealer might also furnish Brandywine Global with a "mixed-use" product or service that is useful both in making investment decisions for managed accounts and in performing administrative or other non-research functions. Where this occurs, Brandywine Global allocates the cost of the product or service such that the portion or specific component that assists in the investment decision-making process is obtained with portfolio commissions and the portion or specific component that provides non-research assistance is paid for by Brandywine Global from its own funds.

Brandywine Global may have an incentive to select a broker-dealer based on Brandywine Global's interest in receiving the research of other products or services, rather than on its clients' interest in receiving the most favorable execution.

Brandywine Global may enter into research service arrangements in which it may incur obligations to pay for research services with its own funds to the extent that the services are not fully paid for by client brokerage that Brandywine Global directs to the broker-dealer or broker-dealers providing the services. Such an obligation may present a conflict between Brandywine Global's interest in avoiding having to pay for the research services with its own funds and Brandywine Global's interest in seeking best execution for client transactions.

The Brokerage Committee reviews quarterly the firm's use of portfolio commissions to obtain research and brokerage services. It evaluates such matters as the types and costs of services received, the commissions used to obtain such services and the allocation of "mixed-use" items.

Brandywine Global does not allocate the relative costs or benefits of research or brokerage services, believing that the services received are, in the aggregate, of assistance in fulfilling overall responsibilities to clients. Accordingly, any research or brokerage services received for a particular client's brokerage commissions may be useful to the client, but also may be useful in the management of other client accounts. Similarly, the research or brokerage services received for the commissions of such other client accounts may be useful for the client.

Brandywine Global may participate in commission sharing arrangements ("CSAs") under which Brandywine Global may execute transactions through a broker dealer and request the broker dealer allocate a pre-negotiated portion of the commissions or commission credits to another firm that provides that research to Brandywine Global at Brandywine Global's direction. Participating in commission sharing arrangements may enable Brandywine Global to consolidate payments for brokerage and research services through one or more channels using accumulated client commissions or credits from transactions executed through a particular broker dealer to obtain research and brokerage services provided by other firms. Such arrangements also help to ensure the continued receipt of brokerage and research services while facilitating Brandywine Global's ability to seek best execution in the trading process. Brandywine Global believes such arrangements are useful in its investment decision making process by, among other things, ensuring access to a variety of high quality research, access to individual analysts and availability of resources that Brandywine Global might not be provided access to absent such arrangements.

C. Brokerage for Client Referrals

In selecting broker-dealers, Brandywine Global does not consider whether it or an affiliate receives client referrals from the broker dealer or third party. However, Brandywine Global may execute transactions through program sponsors or other broker dealers that may also bring clients to Brandywine Global. Additionally, a client may direct Brandywine Global to use services of a particular broker-dealer in executing transactions for that client's account. In some cases, the directed broker may have recommended Brandywine Global as a manager for that account.

D. Directed Brokerage

Brandywine Global may accept a client's instructions for direction of a portion of the client's brokerage transactions to a particular broker-dealer. For any such directed brokerage arrangement, Brandywine Global will not be responsible for negotiating commissions, may not obtain volume discounts or price improvements, and best execution may not be obtained.

Investment decisions are generally applied to all accounts participating in a particular investment strategy. These decisions may take into consideration specific client restrictions or instructions, as well as cash balance requirements and tax related issues. Given these specific considerations, disparities are possible between clients in the strategy for securities purchased, pricing and/or commissions paid.

Clients who instruct Brandywine Global to direct brokerage business to specific broker dealers are solely responsible for negotiating commission rates. The client may pay higher commission costs, transactions costs, and other fees since Brandywine Global may not be able to obtain volume and/or price discounts that it may otherwise receive through its ability to aggregate trades. Similar brokerage services may be obtained from other broker dealers at lower costs. A client might also miss investment opportunities because its broker-dealer may not have access to certain securities, such as new issues. Directing Brandywine Global to use a particular broker-dealer might also affect the timing of a client's transaction. There may be times when Brandywine Global may not trade with a client's directed broker-dealer until all non-directed brokerage orders are complete. In addition, not all broker-dealers have the systems or expertise to effectively process transactions that may be beneficial for a client's account.

Orders for clients that have directed Brandywine Global to send all or some trades to particular broker-dealers may be aggregated with orders for other accounts. In these instances, this could include the use of step out arrangements.

E. Trade Aggregation

When Brandywine Global decides to purchase or sell the same security for multiple clients, Brandywine Global may, consistent with its obligation to seek best execution, aggregate client orders in an effort to achieve a timely, equitable or efficient execution.

When orders to purchase or sell the same security on identical terms are placed by more than one client account, it is the policy of Brandywine Global to aggregate or bunch these orders when it is determined that it is in the best interests the client. It is in the trader's discretion to determine that an aggregated order may result in a more timely, equitable or efficient overall execution. No order may be aggregated unless it has been determined that aggregation is consistent with the duty to seek best execution and is consistent with the terms of the investment management agreement of each client to whom the order relates.

Client orders will generally not be aggregated for execution where there are specific limitations, such as brokerage direction, that would prevent such aggregation. As a result, a client who instructs Brandywine Global to use a particular broker-dealer will not necessarily obtain commission rates as favorable as those that might be obtained when Brandywine Global has discretion to select brokerage firms and negotiate rates with those selected firms. In the event Brandywine Global purchases or sells the same security for clients whose orders are aggregated and those where orders are not aggregated due to client brokerage direction, Brandywine Global seeks to treat all clients fairly in connection with prices obtained on such transactions. However, in such cases, because clients who instruct Brandywine Global to direct brokerage to particular broker-dealers will generally be executed after transactions for clients who have not so instructed Brandywine Global, the price paid or received by one group of accounts may differ from that paid or received by the remaining accounts due to market activity.

F. Trade Execution

Pursuant to and subject to limitations of the agreements under which Brandywine Global provides investment management services, Brandywine Global generally has authority to determine, without obtaining specific client consent, the securities to be bought and sold for client accounts, including the amounts of such securities. Brandywine Global also generally has the authority to select broker/dealers to execute transactions, determine the price at which to transact and to negotiate transaction costs. Such authority may be subject to client directions relating to trade execution.

In executing brokerage transactions involving securities of issuers domiciled in countries other than the U.S., Brandywine Global may or may not execute such transaction on the principal stock exchanges of such countries. Brokerage commissions and other transaction costs on foreign stock exchange transactions generally are higher than in the U.S., although Brandywine Global will endeavor to achieve the best net results in effecting its portfolio transactions. There generally is less governmental supervision and regulation of foreign stock exchanges and broker-dealers than in the U.S.

In selecting a specific broker-dealer to execute a transaction, Brandywine Global may consider any one or more of the following factors, based on the specific circumstances of the transaction: size of the order; price of the security; execution difficulty of the transaction; liquidity of the security; market and exchange conditions; macro economic conditions; current news events; order flow information; speed of execution desired; broker willingness to commit capital and minimize trading costs associated with implementing an investment decision; broker ability to execute a large or small trade; ability or inability of electronic communication network to handle transactions; value of brokerage and research services provided to Brandywine Global; and commission cost.

Brandywine Global does not allocate the relative costs or benefits of research or brokerage services, believing that the services received are, in the aggregate, of assistance in fulfilling overall responsibilities to clients.

Brandywine Global will seek to achieve best execution. Sponsor accounts and Dual Contract accounts may direct Brandywine Global to direct trades through or with the Sponsors or any other broker or dealer. In such cases, clients may pay higher commission rates. If Brandywine Global effects transactions through a non-Sponsor broker-dealer, the client may pay commissions or commission equivalents charged by such broker or dealer, in addition to any trade execution compensation already agreed upon between the client and the Sponsor and paid by the client as part of the Sponsor's fee. Due to this additional cost of executing trades with broker-dealers unaffiliated with the Sponsor, Brandywine Global expects that it will cause a large percentage of trades for clients who have already agreed to such compensation to be executed by the Sponsor.

Brandywine Global may utilize "step-out" trades if it believes such trades will help to obtain best execution. Step-out trades are trades in which an executing broker-dealer executes an order, but agrees to allocate a designated portion of the order for clearance and settlement by another broker-dealer. The executing broker-dealer clears and settles the portion of the order not stepped out, and may add a charge to the overall cost of the trade. Step-out trades may benefit clients by allowing Brandywine Global to find liquidity and execute trades with natural buyers and sellers on terms more favorable than might otherwise be available in the market. Sponsors of sponsored accounts and Dual Contract accounts may also charge additional fees for any trades that are stepped out to another broker-dealer. Confirmations from Sponsors with respect to "step-out" trades in Sponsor accounts and Dual Contract accounts may reflect, within the price per share, applicable commission costs instead of reflecting this as a separate item on the confirmation.

G. Trade Rotation

Brandywine Global has adopted trade rotation policies designed to ensure that trade orders for the purchase or sale of securities and portfolio research provided to model recipients are communicated in a manner and sequence that is fair and equitable to all clients. The process generally includes the use by each investment team of a trade rotation list to determine the sequence in which to communicate trade orders to broker-dealers and portfolio research to model recipients. Certain Sponsor accounts must be traded on the Sponsor's proprietary trading system. The availability of such system is beyond the control of Brandywine Global. To the extent that such system is unavailable, Brandywine Global may be unable to execute orders for such accounts at the time otherwise dictated by Brandywine Global's rotation policy.

H. Opposite Direction Trades

Brandywine Global may at times be trading identical securities in the opposite direction for multiple client accounts. This typically occurs in accounts that have different investment mandates and are managed by separate investment teams. In some instances, opposite direction trades may occur in accounts with similar investment mandates due to differing cash flows in client accounts.

I. Trade Allocation Policy

It is the policy of Brandywine Global to allocate securities to its clients in a fair and equitable manner in order to ensure that no client, or group of clients, is routinely advantaged or disadvantaged over any other.

Fully Filled Orders

Each client participating in an aggregated order that has been fully filled will receive the client's pre-order allocation (subject to minimum security denomination requirements for certain fixed income securities). Each client also will receive the average share price for the transaction and will share transaction costs on a pro-rata basis based on the client's level of participation in the aggregated order. Orders are typically allocated to the appropriate accounts by the end of the day on which the order was executed.

Partially Filled Orders

In all cases of partially filled orders, each client participating in the aggregated order will receive the average security price for the transaction and each will share transaction costs on a pro-rata basis based on the client's level of participation in the aggregated order. All orders must be allocated to the appropriate accounts by the end of the day on which the order was executed.

Fixed Income

If an aggregated order is partially filled, each account participating in the aggregated order will generally be allocated an interest in the transaction pro rata based upon the account's percentage participation in the order. A partially filled order may not be allocated pro rata if such a small amount has been transacted that pro rata allocation among accounts would result, in Brandywine Global's judgment, in a non-meaningful allocation for particular accounts. In such cases, Brandywine Global will use its best efforts to allocate such de minimis amounts obtained from partial fills to the various accounts in a manner that is fair and equitable.

Diversified Equity

If an aggregated order is partially filled, the order is allocated by a random, computer-generated selection process that fills the complete pre-allocation interest of selected accounts until the final randomly selected account's pre-allocation is greater than the remaining shares left to allocate. This final account will receive the remaining shares from the order. Each partially filled order is an independent event, such that each account is eligible to participate in each random allocation even if the account received an allocation in the prior allocation.

A pro rata allocation may be used from time to time if, in the judgment of the trader, a pro rata allocation is more fair and equitable under the circumstances. A pro rata allocation may be used, for example, if the accounts are establishing a new position, if the accounts are liquidating a position that no longer meets the fundamental requirements of the investment strategy or if a Diversified mandate is presented with the opportunity to purchase or sell an order at a price more favorable than the current market price or in a quantity that permits a meaningful allocation to all clients.

Equity (other than Diversified)

If an aggregated order is partially filled, each account participating in the aggregated order will receive a pro rata portion of the shares filled based on the account's percentage participation in the order. In allocating partially filled orders, Brandywine Global may also consider the need to accommodate clients' cash positions, the incurring of expensive minimum brokerage fees for minimal allocation actions, the need to allocate in round lots, or any special client requests for cash balance usages. A partially filled order may not be allocated pro rata if such a small amount has been transacted that pro rata allocation among accounts would result, in Brandywine Global's judgment, in a non-meaningful allocation for particular accounts. In such cases, Brandywine Global will use its best efforts to allocate such de minimis amounts obtained from partial fills to the various accounts on a random basis.

J. Wrap Programs

When Brandywine Global is retained as investment manager under wrap programs sponsored by broker-dealers or other financial institutions, Brandywine Global does not negotiate on the client's behalf brokerage commissions for the execution of transactions in the client's account that are executed by or through the program sponsor. These commissions are generally included in the "wrap" fee charged by the program sponsor, although certain execution costs are typically not included in this fee and may be charged to the client (including but not limited to dealer spreads, certain dealer mark-ups or mark-downs on principal trades, auction fees, fees charged by exchanges on a per transaction basis, other charges mandated by law, and certain other execution costs).

Generally, Brandywine Global executes orders for wrap accounts separately from transactions for its institutional accounts. It is operationally difficult to aggregate trades for wrap accounts and institutional accounts because Brandywine Global's wrap accounts typically execute through multiple brokers and involve many small accounts. In the event that Brandywine Global's wrap accounts and institutional accounts trade the same securities at the same time, Brandywine Global will determine, based on trading volume, market conditions, and other appropriate factors, the order in which such transactions will be entered. Factors considered may include the relative size of the transactions, liquidity, and trading volume of the securities or other instruments involved, and the length of time needed to complete the respective transaction. Taking into account these factors, Brandywine Global will use its best efforts so that such decisions are made in a manner that ensures overall fair and equitable treatment of all clients over time.

K. Error Correction

It is the policy of Brandywine Global that trade errors be identified and resolved promptly, and resolved in a manner consistent with Brandywine Global's fiduciary duty to its clients. Consistent with this duty, the overriding goal in trade error resolution is to seek to place the client in the same position that the client would have been in had the error not occurred.

A "Trade Error" is an error by a Brandywine Global employee that: (i) prevents an account from being traded in a manner consistent with instructions provided by the portfolio manager; (ii) results in the execution of a trade on behalf of a client that was not intended for that client; or (iii) causes a violation of any applicable investment policy or restriction mandated by the client or by law.

By way of example, Brandywine Global considers Trade Errors to include:

- Purchasing securities not legally permitted for an account or not in compliance with an account's investment guidelines;
- Purchasing or selling the wrong securities for an account;
- Purchasing or selling securities for the wrong account;
- Allocating the wrong amount of securities to an account;
- Failing to purchase or sell securities for an account as instructed by the portfolio manager; or
- Failing to follow client instructions regarding the timing of the investment of contributions to, or distributions from, a client's account.

While an error made by any non-Brandywine Global employee is not a Trade Error within the meaning of this policy, Brandywine Global will use its best efforts so that such an error is corrected in a manner that is as favorable to the client as possible.

There is no single method of calculating gains, losses or compensation due as a result of a Trade Error. The determination of which method is most appropriate is highly dependent on the facts and circumstances of an error. Brandywine Global will determine the most appropriate calculation methodology on a case-by-case basis in light of the specific facts and circumstances of each Trade Error. Compensation due may include: (i) payment for losses on positions; (ii) payment of interest for loss of use of funds; (iii) payment for transaction costs incurred as a result of a Trade Error; or (iv) any other amount that Brandywine Global believes puts the client in the same position that the client would have been had the Trade Error not occurred.

Brandywine Global will notify clients of Trade Errors only if Brandywine Global concludes that the error warrants client notification unless the client has requested Brandywine Global to notify the client of all Trade Errors. Gains realized as a result of correcting a Trade Error will normally be left, at the client's discretion, in the client's account. If the client has notified Brandywine Global that the client is unable to, or restricted from receiving the gain, Brandywine Global will typically donate the client's gain to a charity of Brandywine Global's choice.

Certain program sponsors maintain "in-house" error accounts for Brandywine Global. These accounts allow for the netting of Trade Error gains and losses occurring with respect to that particular broker-dealer's clients. Any net losses residing in these accounts require reimbursement from Brandywine Global. Any net gains will accumulate to be used to offset future Trade Error losses. In no instances will Brandywine Global use net error gains for anything other than the offsetting of Trade Error losses. In no circumstances will Brandywine Global use soft-dollar credits to offset Trade Errors.

L. Counter-Party Review Process

Brandywine Global evaluates the creditworthiness of counterparties on an ongoing basis. In addition to information provided by credit agencies and other regulatory organizations, Brandywine Global may evaluate each approved counterparty using various methods of analysis including the broker-dealers' reputation, past experiences with the broker dealer, and market levels for the counter-party's debt and equity. The counterparties utilized by the firm are approved in advance and semi-annually thereafter by the Brokerage Committee.

ITEM 13 Review of Accounts

Brandywine Global strives to ensure compliance with each client's investment guidelines, consistent with its fiduciary responsibility to manage the account in the best interest of the client. Accordingly, Brandywine Global maintains compliance systems that capture most investment parameters from each client's guidelines and facilitate automated pre-trade and post-trade testing for compliance with those parameters. The firm monitors each client account to ensure that it is invested consistently with any written client investment guidelines and restrictions, as well as applicable law and regulation.

The frequency, depth and nature of account reviews are often determined by negotiation with individual clients pursuant to the terms of each client's written investment management agreement or by the mandate selected by the client and the particular needs of each client. Reviews of accounts also occur when investment strategies and objectives are changed by the client. Reviews are conducted by the relevant Portfolio Management and client service personnel that are responsible for the particular account. Additional independent quarterly reviews are conducted by Brandywine Global's Investment Committee to determine that all accounts within a specific strategy are being treated equitably, to the extent possible, taking into consideration any account-specific guideline restrictions.

The frequency and content of reports for clients vary according to the particular needs of each client and the agreement between the client and Brandywine Global. Brandywine Global typically provides separate account and commingled fund clients with written monthly and quarterly reporting via BrandywineDIRECT, our secure client portal. Other supplemental reporting may be provided to clients as needed, upon agreement between Brandywine Global and the client. The monthly and quarterly reports typically include a summary of performance analysis, a summary of holdings, including a portfolio valuation and a summary of all purchase and sale activity in the account. On a quarterly basis, portfolio manager commentary is also made available via BrandywineDIRECT.

ITEM 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Brandywine Global employees market services on a direct basis. In addition, Brandywine Global may enter into solicitation arrangements with affiliated or unaffiliated individuals or entities that may be compensated for client referrals. A solicitor who introduces a client to Brandywine Global may be paid a solicitation fee in accordance with the requirements of Rule 206(4)-3 of the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 and the rules set forth by the respective state jurisdictions.

Brandywine Global currently has a solicitation agreement in place with Brandywine Canada. See Item 10 “Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations” above.

Referral fees paid to unaffiliated parties are paid pursuant to written agreements between Brandywine and the solicitor and/or referring party. Clients referred through such arrangements receive from the solicitor a copy of this Brochure and a copy of the disclosure document describing the terms and conditions of the solicitation arrangement, including the compensation paid to the solicitor. Generally, the compensation paid to the solicitor from Brandywine Global is based upon the revenue generated by client accounts referred by the solicitor.

Brandywine Global may provide investment management services to clients of investment consultants who introduce such clients to Brandywine Global. Under no circumstances will Brandywine Global pay such investment consultants for such introductions. Brandywine Global may purchase products or services, such as portfolio analytics or access to databases, from such investment consultants, or may pay to attend conferences hosted by such consultants. Such consultants face a potential conflict of interest when receiving such revenues from investment advisors as the acceptance of such revenues has the potential to affect the objectivity of such consultants’ advice to its clients.

Custody

Brandywine Global generally does not have custody of its clients' assets. However, because certain institutional clients authorize Brandywine Global to receive its advisory fees out of the assets in such clients' accounts by sending invoices to the respective custodians of those accounts, Brandywine Global may be deemed by the SEC to have custody of the assets in those accounts. Such clients generally will receive account statements directly from their third-party custodians for the accounts and should carefully review these statements. Such clients should contact Brandywine Global immediately if they do not receive account statements from their custodian on at least a quarterly basis. As noted in Item 13, Brandywine Global may provide clients with separate reports or account statements providing information about the account. Clients should compare these carefully to the account statements received from the custodian. If clients discover any discrepancy between the account statement provided by Brandywine Global and the account statement provided by the custodian, then they should contact Brandywine Global immediately.

Brandywine Global may also be deemed to have custody of certain private funds for which it serves as managing member or general partner. Investors in such private funds will receive the fund's annual audited financial statements. Such investors should review these statements carefully. If investors in the private funds do not receive audited financial statements in a timely manner, then they should contact Brandywine Global immediately.

Investment Discretion

Brandywine Global accepts discretionary authority to manage investments on behalf of clients. Clients are required to sign an investment advisory agreement that authorizes Brandywine Global to direct the investment and reinvestment of assets, with discretion, on client's behalf and at client's risk, before Brandywine Global assumes discretionary authority. Brandywine Global's discretionary authority is limited by the terms of its investment advisory agreements and the investment guidelines agreed between Brandywine Global and each client. The investment guidelines or other account documents generally include any limitations a client may place on Brandywine Global's discretionary authority, including any reasonable restrictions on the securities and other financial instruments in which Brandywine Global is authorized to invest.

Voting Client Securities

A. Proxy-Voting

Brandywine Global votes proxies for securities in client accounts for which it possesses proxy voting authority or is required by law to vote proxies. Brandywine Global votes proxies in accordance with the proxy voting policies and procedures it has adopted. These policies and procedures, which are summarized in this section, require Brandywine Global to follow general fiduciary principles by seeking to act prudently and solely in the best economic interests of the clients on whose behalf it is voting. Brandywine Global does not exercise its proxy voting discretion to further policy, political or other issues that it views as having no connection to enhancing the economic value of the client's investment.

For each of Brandywine Global's equity investment teams, the proxy voting policies and procedures set forth generally applicable voting positions for certain proxy issues and list factors that each investment team or its designee generally considers in determining how to vote for certain other proxy issues. In the case of a proxy issue for which there is an applicable stated position, the investment team or designee generally votes in accordance with that stated position. In the case of a proxy issue for which there is an applicable list of factors to be considered, the investment team or designee considers those factors and votes on a case-by-case basis in accordance with the general fiduciary principles set forth above. Proxy issues for which there are stated positions or lists of factors to consider fall into a variety of categories, including anti-takeover measures and various capital structure, compensation and corporate governance matters. In the case of a proxy issue for which there is no applicable stated position or list of factors, the applicable investment team or designee votes on a case-by-case basis in accordance with the general fiduciary principles set forth above.

Different Brandywine Global investment teams (or their designees) may vote differently on the same proxy issue. In addition, a stated position on a proxy voting issue can always be superseded by the investment team responsible for voting the proxy, subject to the duty to act solely in the best economic interests of the clients whose shares are being voted. In addition, in the case of Taft-Hartley clients, Brandywine Global will comply with a client direction to vote proxies in accordance with Glass Lewis & Co. PVS Proxy Voting Guidelines, which Glass Lewis & Co. represents to be fully consistent with AFL-CIO guidelines.

Brandywine Global's proxy voting policies and procedures include procedures designed to identify and address any material conflicts that may arise between Brandywine Global's interests and the interests of its clients before a proxy is voted. To seek to identify conflicts of interest, Brandywine Global requires its employees to annually complete a questionnaire designed to elicit information that may reveal potential conflicts of interest. Brandywine Global treats significant client relationships as a potential conflict of interest in voting proxies of securities issued by the client or the client's known affiliates.

Brandywine Global's Investment Committee reviews and addresses potential conflicts of interest brought to its attention. With respect to such a conflict of interest, the Investment Committee first determines whether the conflict of interest is material. A conflict of interest is considered material to the extent that it is determined that the conflict is likely to influence, or appear to influence Brandywine Global's decision-making in voting proxies. If it is determined by the Investment Committee that a conflict of interest is not material, Brandywine Global may vote proxies notwithstanding the existence of the conflict.

If it is determined by the Investment Committee that a conflict of interest is material, the Investment Committee shall determine an appropriate method or combination methods to resolve such conflict of interest before the proxy affected by the conflict of interest is voted by Brandywine Global. Such determination shall be based on the particular facts and circumstances, including the importance of the proxy issue, the nature of the conflict of interest, etc. Such methods may include: (i) confirming that the proxy will be voted in accordance with a stated position or positions in the Proxy Voting Policy (ii) confirming that the proxy will be voted in accordance with the recommendations of an independent proxy service firm retained by Brandywine Global; (iii) in the case of a conflict of interest resulting from a particular employee's personal relationships or circumstances, removing such employee from the decision-making process with respect to such proxy vote; (iv) disclosing the conflict to clients and obtaining their consent before voting; (v) suggesting to clients that they engage another party to vote the proxy on their behalf; or (vi) such other method as is deemed appropriate given the particular facts and circumstances. A written record of the method used to resolve a material conflict of interest shall be maintained.

Upon Brandywine Global's receipt of any oral or written client request for information on how Brandywine Global voted proxies for that client's account, Brandywine Global promptly provides the client with such requested information in writing.

Brandywine Global may deliver to each client, for which it has proxy voting authority, no later than the time it accepts such authority, a written summary of this Proxy Voting policy and procedures upon request. This summary includes information on how clients may obtain information about how Brandywine Global has voted proxies for their accounts and also states that a copy of Brandywine Global's Proxy Voting policy and procedures is available upon request.

B. Legal Proceedings Relating to Portfolio Securities

Brandywine Global does not render any advice or take any action on behalf of clients with respect to any legal proceedings, including bankruptcies and shareholder litigation, to which any securities or other investments held in client accounts, or the issuers thereof, become subject. Further, Brandywine Global does not initiate or pursue legal proceedings on behalf of clients with respect to transactions, securities or other investments held in client accounts, or the issuers thereof.

ITEM 18 Financial Information

Legg Mason is audited annually by an independent accounting firm and files consolidated financial statements with the Securities and Exchange Commission on Form 10-K. Although Brandywine Global is included in these financial statements, Brandywine Global is not audited separately and, accordingly, does not issue stand-alone audited financial statements nor receive an internal control letter from an independent accounting firm. Legg Mason's Form 10-K for its most recent fiscal year-end is available free of charge at <http://www.leggmason.com> in the "Investor Relations" section. There are no financial conditions that are reasonably likely to impair our ability to meet contractual commitments to clients.

APPENDIX B

Compensation Disclosure Statement Furnished Pursuant to Rule 408b-2 under ERISA

This Disclosure Statement is for ERISA Plans

This Compensation Disclosure Statement is being furnished to you pursuant to the U.S. Department of Labor's Rule under Section 408(b)(2) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 ("ERISA"). It provides disclosure concerning the direct and indirect compensation expected to be received by Brandywine Global in connection with the investment management services Brandywine Global will provide to your employee benefit plan (the "Plan").

- Brandywine Global will provide investment management services to the Plan in accordance with the investment strategy and guidelines which will be set forth in a soon to be agreed upon investment management agreement ("Agreement") between Plan and Brandywine Global.
- Brandywine Global will provide investment management services to the Plan as a "fiduciary," as such term is defined in Section 3(21) of ERISA, and as an investment adviser registered under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.
- Brandywine Global will receive direct compensation in the form of an investment management fee directly from the Plan which will be calculated as a percentage of assets under Brandywine Global's management. This management fee calculation will be specified in the Agreement.
- As described in this Brochure, Brandywine Global may, in seeking best execution, consider the value of research services provided by broker-dealers in selecting broker-dealers to execute securities transactions on behalf of client accounts. Such arrangements are subject to Brandywine Global's policy of seeking best execution and are structured to comply with the safe harbor of Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, which permits the payment of commissions that exceed commissions other broker-dealers may charge if Brandywine Global determines that such commissions are reasonable in relation to the research or brokerage services provided. Such research received may include proprietary research generated by broker-dealers that execute the transactions or research generated by third parties. In such cases, Brandywine Global does not have the necessary data to unbundle the costs of execution and ancillary brokerage and research services provided by the full-service broker-dealer. Further, Brandywine Global does not allocate the relative costs or benefits of such "soft dollar" research to particular client accounts as Brandywine Global believes that such research, in the aggregate, assists it in fulfilling its overall responsibilities to client accounts.

- From time to time, employees of Brandywine Global may receive non-monetary compensation such as gifts and entertainment from vendors (e.g., broker-dealers) with whom Brandywine Global may engage in business dealings on behalf of clients, including the Plan. Under Brandywine Global's compliance policies, any gifts and entertainment must be reasonable under the circumstances and not excessive in either value or frequency. In no event may an employee of Brandywine Global accept gifts or entertainment that is conditioned on directing specific transactions or a specific level of business to another firm. Brandywine Global believes that any gifts and entertainment received by its employees from a vendor are received in the context of a general business relationship between Brandywine Global and the vendor and should not be viewed as attributable or allocable to any transactions engaged in with such vendor on behalf of Brandywine Global's clients, including the Plan.
- Pursuant to the terms of the Agreement, Brandywine Global will be paid its investment management fee quarterly. If the Agreement is terminated during any quarter, fees paid in advance will be prorated and any unearned portion thereof will be returned to the client via check or wire automatically upon termination of the Agreement. The refund will be calculated based on the number of days remaining in the billing period after the date of termination. Fees paid in arrears will be pro rated and any earned portion thereof will be due to Brandywine Global. No other compensation will be payable to Brandywine Global in the event that the Agreement is terminated.
- If permitted by the terms of the Agreement, Brandywine Global will collect its investment management fee by invoicing the Plan's custodian and instructing the custodian to debit the Plan's account and remit payment directly to Brandywine Global. If Brandywine Global is not authorized by the Agreement to instruct the Plan's custodian to debit the Plan's account, Brandywine Global will invoice the Plan or other designated contact for payment of its investment management fee. The Plan will then be responsible for arranging for the payment of such invoice.
