In such cases, there may be variable additional costs incurred, including investment trust management fees and derivative transaction execution fees. In such cases, total investment management costs may also vary.

TYPES OF CLIENTS

DIAM Co., Ltd. offers discretionary and non-discretionary investment advisory services to pension funds, public funds, financial institutions, institutional clients, and corporate clients, for whom we provide strategic products tailored to suit their respective investment goals and investment time spans.

METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

An investment philosophy that aims for strict risk control and stable excess returns

DIAM Co., Ltd. continuously watches for the market inefficiencies that can create gaps between market price and fair value. By evaluating markets with consistent investment measures, we are able to predict relative moves between individual stocks and markets, capturing market inefficiencies and achieving excess returns.

To capture market inefficiencies and make investment judgments with high precision, we perform bottom-up analysis of research resources, top-down analysis of macro-economic trends, and quantitative analysis using the latest financial engineering.

By strictly controlling portfolio risk, we are able to convert the inefficiencies captured to stable excess returns, and to secure both transparent investment action and reproducible investment performance.

A team approach that ensures better service at every level

DIAM Co., Ltd. takes a team approach that enables us to continuously provide top-level services to all clients. Our approach is based on the belief that a team composed of professionals who share a common goal and rules enables us to avoid individual misjudgments, and to make high-quality investment decisions through creative information exchange and discussion. At all levels of investment meetings held at DIAM, investment professionals are reviewed and examined closely as to whether they have fulfilled their individual roles on the team, and contributed to the common goal of high-quality investment services.

A broad product line-up backed by global expertise

DIAM Co., Ltd. provides a variety of strategies and funds by fully utilizing qualitative and quantitative investment platforms. With a combination of flexible investment approaches and strict risk management, we manage assets ranging from equity and fixed income investments, to quantitative and REIT products with various geographical focuses such as Japan, regional and global. Whether it be active or passive, alpha-focused or beta-focused, our professionals are equipped with the know-how and experience to meet client needs.

Japanese Equity

DIAM Co., Ltd. not only have well-built bottom-up and passive quantitative products, but also unique and strong top-down and active quantitative products. In Japan, DIAM Co., Ltd. has been a leading force in the creation of active quantitative products and environment-related funds. From large-cap focused blue-chips to high-growth potential small/mid-caps, we customize products according to various client needs.

Regional and Global Equity

DIAM Co., Ltd. is not only an expert in managing Japanese products, but also has the expertise to provide first-class Asian portfolios. Utilizing both qualitative and quantitative strategies, we have developed solid diversified global portfolios for our large domestic institutional clients for many years, and are now drawing on that experience to expand internationally.

Japanese Fixed Income

In times of market uncertainty, global investors face a more challenging task when diversifying their assets for investment. For international institutional investors interested in fixed income investment, yen-denominated fixed income products are one major vehicle of currency and market diversification. In terms of Japanese fixed income strategies, DIAM has a team of dedicated specialists with wide-ranging investment experience and extensive knowledge of the unique practices and attributes of the Japanese fixed income market. Fully utilizing the strong economic research resources provided by our parent group companies and internal economic and credit groups, we offer a comprehensive product line covering relative return and absolute return strategies, and short-, mid-, and long-term investment horizons.

Quantitative

Product innovation has been vital to DIAM's success in the pension market. It has led to the development of quantitative products based on our proprietary Excess Return Model (ERM) that have won high recognition from large domestic and international pension clients. Since 1992, the ERM has been applied to DIAM's various quantitative products both in relative return and absolute return areas. The following strategies are some examples of the strategies applying the ERM.

REITs and Other Alternatives

For investors who want to diversify their investments into assets other than traditional equity or fixed income products, we have strengthened our REIT-related and alternative product lines. In REITs, we offer a full line-up of Japanese REITs, as well as both active and passive global products. In alternative products, we draw on our strong customization capabilities to offer a diverse range of strategies with an absolute return focus.

Investment Advisory Service Financial Product Risks

Securities and other instruments (stocks, government bonds, corporate debentures, real estate investment trusts, investment trust securities, etc.) are expected to experience price fluctuations, and such fluctuations may cause the value of discretionary and advisory account assets under management to fall below their value at time of purchase. As such, neither purchase price principal nor any specific dividend yield or performance rate is guaranteed. The purchaser shall assume responsibility for any losses incurred.

Major risks related to our investment strategies include the following:

• Price Volatility Risk:

Prices of stocks and securities are known to fluctuate widely and such price fluctuations in individual stocks and the stock market overall may contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management.

• Securities Selection Risk:

Securities selection may contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management irrespective of overall securities market trends.

• Liquidity Risk:

An inability to execute trades at the most advantageous time due to low trading volume may contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management.

• Credit Risk (Stocks):

In such a case when the issuer of the stock goes into financial difficulty or default etc, invested assets may become unrecoverable. Additionally, in the case when the issuer is expected to go into such situation, the price of the stock issued by the issuer will decline and it may be the factor for the depreciation in the assets under management.

• Interest Risk:

Bond prices generally fall as interest rates rise, and such price fluctuations may contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management.

• Credit Risk (Fixed Income):

Invested assets may become unrecoverable if issuers of corporate/sovereign bonds, commercial paper or short-term financial instruments become insolvent or experience calamitous declines in creditworthiness. Market anticipation of such declines may also contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management.

• Foreign Currencies Risk:

Fluctuations in the currency market may have an impact on the value of assets under management. As a result, investors may suffer losses arising from foreign exchange fluctuations. Investment in foreign currency denominated assets may also be affected by regional political and economic conditions, currency and capital regulations and other factors that may contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management.

- Country Risk:

Financial market turbulence caused by country-specific political, economic or regulatory changes may constrain fund management and contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management.

- Derivative Risk:

Some products may include derivatives in their investment strategy. In such cases, declining or low correlation with underlying hedged products, liquidity risks, margin deposit losses, leverage risks and other factors may contribute to a decline in the value of assets under management.

BROKERAGE PRACTICES

DIAM Co., Ltd. selects the broker-dealers based on a variety of factors set forth in the Broker Selection Principles. These include, for instance, the reputation, financial stability, level of experience relevant to the securities being traded, research coverage, available bid-ask spreads, commission rates, size of the transaction, the desired timing of the trade, confidentiality, execution, clearance and settlement practices, the quality of information services, and so forth. By recognizing the value of above factors, DIAM may pay a brokerage commission in excess of that which another broker might have charged for effecting the same transactions. However, DIAM does not pay brokerage commissions higher in return for any proprietary research receives from brokers nor does DIAM engage in any soft dollar practices.

Research and other Soft Dollar Benefits

The use of client securities transactions to obtain research and other benefits creates incentives that result in conflicts of interest between investment advisers and their clients. As a result, DIAM chooses not to enter into such arrangements.

DIAM receives proprietary research products from its executing broker-dealers as part of the ordinary course of business, without DIAM having any obligation to route our clients' trades to any specific broker-dealers. These research products include, but are not limited to, published reports and analysis of issuers, industries, market trends and related technical information, computer-based products, on-line data links, as well as access to analysts on the telephone and at broker-dealer-sponsored research conferences and seminars. Research products may be used in servicing any or all of DIAM's clients.

Brokerage for Client Referrals

DIAM does not engage in and not intend to enter into the practice of selecting, recommending or otherwise rewarding broker-dealers where those broker-dealers refer clients to DIAM or any of its affiliates.

Directed Brokerage

DIAM can accept that its clients direct it to execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer in accordance with clients request or the guidelines, provided that there shall be the approval by the president of DIAM over such directed brokerage.

By accepting directed brokerage, DIAM may be unable to achieve most favorable execution of client transactions. And also, directing brokerage may cost clients more money, for instance, the client may pay higher brokerage commissions because DIAM may not be able to aggregate order to reduce transaction cost, or the client may receive less favorable prices.

Trade Aggregation

Clients engaging an investment adviser can benefit when the investment adviser aggregates the purchase or sale of securities to reduce transaction costs. DIAM aggregates client orders where investment strategies are identical or substantially similar.

REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS

Client accounts are reviewed daily by the portfolio managers for triggers such as release of economic data, price movements, or other material changes.

On daily basis, the Risk Management Group, a department in charge of monitoring and control of risk management independent from the Investment Division, monitors portfolios with checking allocation rate of securities, investment trust ownership ratio, and other materials important to investment risk management.

On monthly basis, the Compliance Group, a department independent from the Investment Division, conducts a fund examination to ensure consistency and stability of investment management and to see if funds are managed in accordance with the designated investment management processes, as well as to raise investment management quality. Generally, the Compliance Group chooses several funds to be reviewed for each month.

The Compliance group also conducts a client guideline check to monitor compliance with investment activities and a trade monitoring to prevent market manipulation and other illegal trade executions as well as unfair trade practices, such as making use of special position as an investment adviser. To implements a client guideline check and a trade monitoring systematically, DIAM established the compliance database containing laws and regulations, industry-wide self-regulating rules, and client guidelines.
