Advisory Business

Firm History and Principal Owners

Independence is a division of Convergent and was launched on October 1, 2011. Convergent is a majority owned subsidiary of Convergent Capital Management LLC, which is in turn wholly owned by City National Corporation (NYSE:CYN), the parent company of City National Bank, a private and business bank based in California. Convergent's senior management team maintains significant minority ownership position in the company. Convergent is headquartered outside of Washington, DC, with offices in Los Angeles, New York, and Portland (OR).

Convergent began as CMS Financial Services ("CMS") in 1994, when Steven Lockshin and a handful of professionals formalized the investment consulting services they had been providing to a single high net worth family since 1990. 1st Virtual Holdings, a privately held financial services firm, acquired CMS in 2001. 1st Virtual changed its name to Lydian Trust Company in 2002, and CMS followed by changing its name to Lydian Wealth Management in early 2003. As of May 2007, Convergent Capital Management purchased the wealth management division of Lydian Wealth Management, rebranding it as Convergent.

Investment Advisory Services to Individuals and Families

Independence provides investment advisory services on a discretionary basis to each of its clients, including both individuals and families (details on the types of clients Independence serves are in Item 7-Types of Clients). Independence will assist a client in determining the client's investment needs and objectives, as well as risk tolerance through the use of an asset optimization model for asset allocation and research on investment managers and investments. After the client's asset classes have been determined, the Advisor recommends managers and/or products that have been evaluated by Convergent's research group, the Investment Strategy Group ("ISG"). Convergent provides similar investment advisory services on a discretionary and non-discretionary basis to ultra high net worth individuals, families, trusts family entities, and institutions. For a full description of the services Convergent provides, please request a copy at the phone number provided herein or by e-mailing compliance@independence.com.

The recommended strategies are based upon a client's goals, investment objectives, risk tolerance, and cash flow needs, which are documented in an Investment Policy Statement and reviewed periodically. Convergent will then implement the allocation into appropriate mutual funds, ETFs and/or investment managers within each asset class that meet the client's individual requirements. Convergent does not recommend individual company stocks and bonds.

In addition to its full consulting offering, Independence also provides financial planning services, including providing independent guidance during the planning of upcoming liquidity events. Financial Planning includes estate planning, tax planning, education funding planning, charitable gifting planning, etc, however, Independence will provide advice as appropriate and may not provide advice on all of the aforementioned types of financial planning.

Independence emphasizes the unrestricted right of clients to decline any investment recommendation by Independence. Clients may also request that Independence refrain from recommending affiliated private investment funds, if any, to them.

Independence focuses on mass affluent clients with approximately $1,000,000 to $10 million in investable assets, but may accept clients outside of that range.

Service Team

Each client works with an Advisor who assists with new client paperwork and provides prospective clients with information about Independence. Each client is then introduced to an Advisor who handles the ongoing service for each Client. Periodic meetings are conducted on the phone or via video conferencing.

Independence may also provide clients periodic investment-related white papers, research reports, and articles related to asset allocation and investment policy development without a charge as a part of its consulting services.

Once the Advisor and the client develop a suitable portfolio for the client and it is implemented, the portfolio will be monitored by Independence and, when necessary and appropriate, Independence will recommend subsequent modifications to a client's asset allocation or to specific mutual funds, ETFs, and/or investment managers in accordance with the investment goals and objectives established by the client. Each client will be provided the opportunity to place reasonable restrictions on the types of investments that may be recommended by Independence. Independence generally does not provide specific advice regarding individual stocks or bonds; however, on occasion, Independence performs analyses of individual portfolios where concentrated, low-tax-cost-basis individual stock positions exist in taxable portfolios. In those analyses and similar circumstances, Independence may advise clients on individual equity and debt holdings.

Independence will monitor the performance of mutual funds, ETFs, private investment funds, and/or investment managers recommended or invested in by Convergent. With respect to mutual funds, ETFs, and private investment funds, Independence cannot influence the holdings of the mutual fund, ETF, or private investment fund by providing a restricted list of securities. Mutual funds, ETFs, and private investment funds are pooled vehicles that run under their own guidelines for investment. Client restrictions will not apply to the underlying securities held by mutual funds, ETFs, and private investment funds, therefore clients may get exposure to securities that are prohibited by their individual investment policy statement. Independence may use third-party analytical and rebalancing software to facilitate management of certain accounts.

Among the assets to which Independence provides its continuous and regular investment supervisory or management services are assets held by clients in their 401(k) accounts with various mutual fund companies. Because Independence will be responsible for effecting the transactions in these accounts, it will request the client's user name and password permitting online access to the account. Independence has adopted appropriate physical and procedural safeguards to control access to the user names and passwords it obtains.

Services Provided to Clients of AdvicePeriod

In 2014, Steven Lockshin founded AdvicePeriod, an SEC registered investment adviser focused on providing wealth management solutions for ultra high net worth clients. Mr. Lockshin continues to serve as Chairman of Convergent Wealth Advisors' Board of Directors and as a client advisor. Marc Russell, a Convergent Managing Director, is an employee of AdvicePeriod and continues to be employed with Convergent. Convergent has a non-material ownership interest in AdvicePeriod.

Convergent provides all of its services to certain AdvicePeriod's clients except we do not evaluate the client's goals, investment objectives, risk tolerance, and cash flow needs. Accordingly, we do not document these objectives and constraints in an Investment Policy Statement nor do we review the statement with the client periodically. These services are provided to AdvicePeriod clients by AdvicePeriod, which is responsible for relaying that information to Convergent. If a client wishes to impose restrictions on its account, it should notify AdvicePeriod.

Professional Service Providers

Independence may introduce clients to other investment and non-investment related service providers/professionals, such as accountants, attorneys, insurance providers, other luxury service providers, etc. The client is under no obligation to engage the services of any such introduced professional. The client retains absolute discretion over all such implementation decisions and is free to accept or reject any introduction or recommendation from Independence. Although Independence may have experience with these service providers, Independence has not performed due diligence on these service providers and is not responsible for the services provided by these services providers and/or professionals. Independence is not responsible for any losses caused by the actions of any third party recommended by Independence, including, without limitation, any accounting or legal professional services. Independence cannot offer tax advice or replace the services provided by licensed CPAs or attorneys. Independence advises the client to contact individual tax consultants or legal advisors for additional information.

Investment Advice to City National Bank, Affiliates and Other Investment Advisers

Convergent also provides asset allocation and manager search and selection advice to City National Bank, certain of its affiliates, and other unaffiliated investment advisers as part of its open architecture business. In addition, Convergent will provide support, training, and collateral material creation, among other services. City National Bank and certain of its affiliates will compensate Convergent for these services. Additional information about Convergent's business relationship with City National Bank is in Item 10-Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations.

Assets Under Management

Convergent's Regulatory Assets Under Management are below as of December 31, 2013:

Regulatory Assets Under Management: $8,422,376,900

Discretionary: $6,170,643,536

Non-Discretionary: $2,251,733,365

Fees and Compensation

Fees

Fees for clients are charges based on the client's assets under management.

Asset-Based Fees

For asset-based fee clients, the annual fee for Convergent's investment management services, based on the market value of the client's account at the beginning of the calendar quarter, is as follows:

Fee Schedule

AUM	Fee Rate
$1,000,000 - $1.5 million	1.25%
$1.5 million - $3 million	1%
Over $3 million	.75%

The minimum annual fee is $7,500.

Independence may waive its investment advisory fee at any time when it deems it appropriate and/or necessary. Related client accounts may be aggregated for purposes of calculating fees.

If clients make contributions during the quarter, Independence reserves the right to bill the client for a pro-rata portion of the contributed assets to the investment account. Clients may be provided with a pro-rata refund when clients withdraw funds from the investment account during a calendar quarter.

Project Fees

Project fees range based on the scope of the project. These fees are at the sole discretion of management. Client fees are usually not stated on a project basis unless the project is expected to be completed in six months or less; otherwise, an annual retainer arrangement is employed. A portion of the client's project fee is billed at the commencement of the work. A standard arrangement, which may vary by client depending on the project, is to bill the remaining project fee in quarterly installments until completion of the work, at which any remaining project fees are billed.

Billing

Clients are billed quarterly in advance and are typically directly debited from their custodial account. Clients may review the amount of the fee in their custodial statement. Certain clients have negotiated to pay their advisory fees in arrears. Clients may also elect to be billed directly for fees. Please contact your advisors for questions and clarifications relating to the calculation of your fee.

Fees Charged by Custodians, Managers, Mutual Funds, Etc.

In addition to Independence investment management fees, clients bear trading costs, custodial fees, and other expenses that may be charged by other third parties. Independence's fees are exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses that shall be incurred by the client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by custodians, brokers, third party investment managers, and other third parties, such as fees charged by managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Clients should review all fees charged by Convergent and its affiliates, custodians, brokers, and others to fully understand the total amount of fees to be paid. For additional information about brokerage, please see Item 12-Brokerage Practices.

The fees charged by Independence for investment management services are separate and distinct from the fees charged by recommended mutual funds, exchange traded funds, private investment funds, and investment managers. A description of these mutual fund, and investment manager fees are available in each mutual fund's prospectus and/or investment manager's disclosure documents, and each of these products/services can be purchased directly or through an agent or broker, who charges a commission. Such charges, fees, and commissions are exclusive of and in addition to Independence's fee, and Independence shall not receive any portion of these commissions, fees, and costs. Therefore, clients investing in funds and with investment managers are essentially paying two or more levels of advisory fees on the same assets.

Convergent nor any of its related persons receive any form of compensation from any recommended funds or investment managers.

Termination

A client agreement may be canceled at any time, by either party, for any reason upon written notice. Certain client agreements specify an advance notice for cancellation by either party of between 30 days. Upon termination of any agreement, any prepaid, unearned fees will be promptly refunded, and any earned, unpaid fees will be due and payable.

Valuation

Independence does not generally independently value any private securities held in client accounts unless it determines it is necessary given the facts and circumstances and relies on Convergent's policy for any valuation issues. The fair valuation methodologies employed by Convergent shall attempt to represent the amount at which an asset could be acquired or sold in a current transaction between willing parties in which the parties each acted knowledgeably, prudently, and without compulsion. However, the valuations may be modified by Convergent, in its sole discretion, if and to the extent that it shall determine such modifications are advisable in order to reflect market or liquidity conditions or other factors affecting value.

For marketable securities, the prices provided by custodians are used for client reporting and fee billing.

In some instances, precise account balances are unavailable to Convergent on a timely basis. Billing in those situations is therefore based on the most current information available to Convergent when fees are calculated.

Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Independence does not charge any performance based fees.

Types of Clients

Types of Clients

Independence provides portfolio management services to individuals, high net worth individuals, trusts, and family entities.

Account Minimums

Generally, Independence manages portfolios between $1,000,000 and $10,000,000 while Convergent manages portfolios above $10,000,000. Independence may make exceptions based on each client's particular circumstances as it deems appropriate. Independence reserves the right to waive the minimum at any time.

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

Independence provides asset allocation and manager selection advice to clients. Convergent's Investment Strategy Group ("ISG") is responsible for Independence's investment strategy and manager due diligence and is overseen by the Investment Committee ("IC"). The IC is responsible for overseeing and monitoring various aspects of the investment process and the performance of client investment portfolios, including risk and diversification. The IC is also responsible for, among other things: determining Convergent's overall investment philosophy; analyzing and interpreting changing economic trends as they impact Convergent's investment process and portfolio performance; revising Convergent's investment philosophy and implementation strategies accordingly; and establishing and articulating Convergent's implementation philosophy, including the appropriateness of incorporating various asset classes, sub-asset classes, investment styles, and strategies in client portfolios. The IC meets at least quarterly.

Investment Strategies and Asset Allocation

Independence recommends or implements various investment strategies when providing asset allocation recommendations and advice to clients. Alongside Convergent's ISG, a committee meets periodically to evaluate Independence's current asset allocation and generate proposals on asset allocation to be presented to the IC. The IC is accountable for reviewing tactical and strategic asset allocation recommendations on a quarterly basis, if appropriate. Independence will evaluate investment alternatives (i.e., various asset allocations for investment in securities and with investment managers) to form a basis for the client to determine the strategies needed to achieve the client's investment goals and objectives.

Manager Due Diligence

For all Independence recommended managers or investments, ISG evaluates investment managers, mutual funds, ETFs, among other products and services. ISG employs a due diligence process that generally involves, among other things, a review of managers' Form ADVs, past performance, marketing literature, and possibly interviews with the investment managers and key personnel. ISG also considers a broad range of factors that may include investment performance, review of investment process, personnel depth, turnover and experience, operational issues, and financial condition. Periodically, ISG personnel conduct follow-up due diligence reviews on Independence recommended managers, including some or all of the above mentioned factors, in addition to other topics. In determining which investments are appropriate for recommendation and/or implementation for clients, ISG may also apply quantitative analysis using a factor based scoring system that ranks each investment option utilizing data and information obtained from third party databases. (However, the data and information provided by third party databases are not independently verified by ISG.) The factor-based methodology and the resulting investments derived and approved through this scoring process are reviewed periodically by ISG to evaluate whether they continue to meet ISG's minimum standards for recommendation or should be placed on hold or terminate status. It is important to note that not all managers or products recommended by Independence are or were evaluated under the current due diligence process or any formalized due diligence process. ISG retains the discretion, based on their experience and knowledge, to determine the level of due diligence appropriate for each manager and/or product. Specific securities analysis methods are determined by the managers of the recommended mutual funds and private investment funds, and the investment managers recommended by Independence.

ISG's decisions and recommendations are generally reviewed and approved by the IC subject to the terms in Convergent's IC Procedures, however manager terminations and adding ETFs and mutual funds to the firm's Approved List may be determined solely by ISG.

Additional information about investment managers, investment strategies, advisory fees, and other pertinent information is available and provided in the Form ADV Part 2 or other disclosure brochures made available by the investment managers (e.g., offering memorandum, prospectus).

Retention of managers and/or investment products will be evaluated by ISG and potentially the IC. In the event ISG terminates a manager, the client's Advisor team will make alternative recommendations or implementations for clients taking into consideration the client's tax or other situation. Due diligence on the manager will be conducted for two quarters after the termination. In the event the client does not take the recommendation to terminate the manager, the client is notified and asked to acknowledge that Convergent will no longer conduct due diligence on the manager and will no longer provide any recommendation or advice regarding the manager.

Sources of Information

As discussed above, ISG employs a due diligence process to evaluate managers and investment products. In addition to information directly requested from managers, ISG will use published databases of mutual funds and investment manager performance or third party databases. Some of the information provided in these third party databases is sourced from Form ADV, monthly performance returns, manager's assets under management, narratives on the manager's investment process, biographies on portfolio managers, changes in personnel, information on managers' errors and omissions insurance, and litigation. ISG does not independently audit or verify the performance figures or other information reported by the funds or managers that appear in these databases.

Risks

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Past performance is no guarantee of future performance. Each investment is speculative and entails substantial risks. Market risks are inherent in all securities to varying degrees; therefore, no assurance can be given that the investment objectives will be realized.

Independence recommends or implements various strategies through asset allocation recommendations and manager selection. From time to time, Independence adjusts the allocations to each strategy based on a variety of factors, including the strategy's relative performance. Accordingly, a client's performance is affected by Independence's decisions concerning how much of the client's portfolio it allocates for management in each asset class and manager selection. A manager's performance depends on the portfolio managers' skill in making appropriate investments. As a result, a manager may underperform the market or similar funds/managers. For custom hedge fund portfolios, performance depends on the ability of the fund's investment manager to anticipate correctly the relative potential returns and risks of the asset classes in which the fund directly or indirectly invests.

Convergent is Not a Bank

Any investments recommended by Convergent are not deposits or other obligations of a bank, are not guaranteed by any bank, are not insured by the FDIC or any other Government Agency, are restricted as to any transfer, and involve investment risks, including possible loss of principal amounts invested.

Disciplinary Information

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to a client's evaluation of Convergent or the integrity of Convergent's or Independence's management. Convergent's or Independence's and its employees have not been involved in any legal or disciplinary events in the past 10 years that we believe would be material to a client's evaluation of Independence or integrity of Independence's management.

Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Convergent's Ownership Structure and Affiliations

Independence is a wholly owned, division of Convergent. As of May 2007, Convergent is majority-owned by Convergent Capital Management LLC ("CCM"), a holding company wholly-owned by City National Corporation ("CNC").¹ Employees of Convergent maintain a minority ownership in the firm. CNC makes available to its affiliates opportunities for cooperative purchasing of certain administrative programs and products.

Convergent operates independently from CCM and CNC and each of its investment advisory affiliates, does not conduct joint operations with any of these affiliated investment advisers, and does not provide investment advice that is formulated, in whole or in part, by such affiliated investment advisers except as described below.

CNC owns City National Securities ("CNS"), a broker-dealer. Convergent utilizes CNS as placement agent for private investment funds sponsored/managed by Convergent and interests in which are recommended to

Although clients may have accounts that trade at CNS, registered representatives that are also employees of Convergent will not receive any payment related to the execution of those trades.

CNC also owns City National Bank. Convergent may occasionally recommend the custodial services of City National Bank, which include banking and trust services that certain clients may require. These services may be obtained for other providers at a lower cost. In addition, City National Bank may refer related limited partnerships or limited liability companies sponsored/managed by Convergent to potential investors, and, as a result, may receive a portion of the administrative or management fee paid to Convergent. Additional information on referral arrangements with City National Bank and other affiliates is in Item 14-Client Referrals and Other Compensation.

City National Bank and its affiliates uses asset allocation and manager search information provided by Convergent. Information on these services is in Item 4-Advisory Business.

Convergent may add other affiliated managers to its platform after completing its due diligence process as described herein.

In 2014, Steven Lockshin founded AdvicePeriod, an investment advisor focused on providing wealth management solutions for ultra high net worth clients. Convergent's investment analysis and recommendation processes are designed to ensure that only appropriate recommendations are made to clients.

Gifts

In the normal course of business, Independence provides gifts and gratuities to various individuals or entities such as clients, vendors, consultants, and service providers. These gifts and gratuities are not premised upon any specific client referrals or any other type of benefit to Independence and guidelines relating to gifts and gratuities are included in Convergent's Code of Ethics.

All gifts or charitable contributions should be considered as gifts or charitable contributions from Convergent Wealth Advisors in its capacity as an investment advisor. Gifts and charitable contributions should not be considered from individuals representing Convergent or its affiliates.

Brokerage Practices

Brokerage Discretion

Independence recommends investments to clients, including mutual fund and/or ETFs. Unless directed otherwise, Independence will have brokerage discretion over client accounts. Independence typically executes transactions through the custodian who maintains custody over each client's assets. As a result, Independence generally (except as described below) does not aggregate orders when it has the opportunity to do so. We seek to recommend a custodian/broker who will hold client assets and execute transactions on terms that are overall most advantageous when compared to other available providers and their services. We consider a wide range of factors, including, among others, these: combination of transaction execution services along with asset custody services (generally without a separate fee for custody); capability to execute, clear and settle trades (buy and sell securities for client accounts); capabilities to facilitate transfers and payments to and from accounts (wire transfers, check requests, bill payment, etc.), breadth of investment products made available (stocks, bonds, mutual funds, exchange traded funds (ETFs), etc.), availability of investment research and tools that may assist us in making investment decisions, quality of services, competitiveness of the price of those services (commission rates, margin interest rates, other fees, etc.) and willingness to negotiate them, reputation, financial strength and stability of the provider, their prior service to us and our other clients, availability of other products and services that benefit us, as discussed below.

In selecting or recommending broker-dealers to execute portfolio transactions for the client's account, Independence may consider the quality and reliability of the brokerage services, as well as research and investment information and other services provided by the brokers or dealers. Commission rates, being a component of price, are one factor considered by Independence together with other factors. Independence is not obligated to seek in advance competitive bidding for the most favorable commission rate applicable to any particular transaction for the client's account or recommend any broker or dealer on the basis of its purported posted commission rate. Accordingly, recommended brokers or dealers may charge commission rates in excess of the amounts another broker or dealer would have charged for effecting transactions when Independence has determined in good faith that the broker's or dealer's commission rates generally are reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and/or research provided by the broker or dealer.

For most clients, Independence recommends that clients establish brokerage accounts with the Schwab Institutional division of Charles Schwab & Co., Inc., ("Schwab") a FINRA registered broker-dealer and member of SIPC, to maintain custody of clients' assets and to effect trades for their accounts. Although Independence may recommend that clients establish accounts at Schwab, it is the client's decision to custody assets with Schwab and to open an account with Schwab by entering into an account agreement directly with them. Independence is independently owned and operated and not affiliated with Schwab. Schwab will hold client's assets in a brokerage account and buy and sell securities when we or the client instruct them. Schwab Advisor Services (formerly Schwab Institutional) is Schwab's business serving independent investment advisor firms like us. They provide Independence with access to its institutional trading and custody services typically not available to Schwab retail investors. Schwab Advisor Services also makes available various support services, some of those services help Convergent manage or administer our client's accounts while other help Convergent manage and grow our business. These services generally are available to independent investment advisors at no charge to them as long as a total of at least $10 million of the advisor's clients' account assets are maintained at Schwab Advisor Services.

Schwab's institutional brokerage services include access to a broad range of investment products, execution of securities transactions, and custody of client assets. The investment products available through Schwab include some to which we might not otherwise have access or that would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment by our clients. Schwab's services described in this paragraph generally benefit the client and the client's account. Schwab also makes available to Convergent other products and services that benefit Convergent but may not directly benefit the client or the client's account. These products and services assist Convergent in managing and administering our clients' accounts. They include investment research, both Schwab's own and that of third parties. We may use this research to service all or some substantial number of our clients' accounts, including accounts not maintained at Schwab. In addition to investment research, Schwab also makes available software and other technology that provide access to client account data (such as duplicate trade confirmations and account statements); facilitate trade execution and allocate aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts; provide pricing and other market data; facilitate payment of our fees from our clients' accounts; and to assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping and client reporting. Many of these services may be used to service all or a substantial number of Independence accounts, including accounts not maintained at Schwab Advisor Services. Schwab may also discount or waive its fees for some of these services or pay all or a part of a third party's fees. Schwab may also provide Convergent with other benefits such as occasional business entertainment of our personnel.

The availability of these services from Schwab benefits Convergent because we do not have to produce or purchase them. We don't have to pay for Schwab's services so long as we keep a total of at least $10 million of client assets in accounts at Schwab. Beyond that, these services are not contingent upon Convergent committing any specific amount of business to Schwab in trading commissions or assets in custody. The $10 million minimum may give Convergent an incentive to recommend that the client maintain their account with Schwab based on our interest in receiving Schwab's services that benefit our business rather than based on the client's interest in receiving the best value in custody services and the most favorable execution of the client's transactions. This is a potential conflict of interest. We believe, however, that our selection of Schwab as custodian and broker is in the best interests of our clients. It is primarily supported by the scope, quality and price of Schwab's services (based on the factors discussed above) and not Schwab's services that benefit only us. We have over $8,000,000,000 in regulatory assets under management, and do not believe that maintaining at least $10 million of those assets at Schwab in order to avoid paying Schwab quarterly service fees presents a material conflict of interest. When negotiating fees on behalf of Independence's clients, Schwab takes into consideration the entire Independence relationship and not individual clients. Aggregating Independence clients' assets should result in lower negotiated fees.

As described below in Item 14. Client Referrals and Other Compensation, Schwab will refer clients to Independence. Independence considers this referral arrangement in addition to the various services and products received from Schwab that benefit clients and Independence, in recommending Schwab to clients. While Independence may recommend that clients establish accounts at Schwab, it is the client's decision to custody assets with Schwab.

Clients may have a pre-established relationship with a broker and they will instruct Convergent to execute all transactions through that broker. In directing the use of a particular broker or dealer, clients may lose out on certain benefits that may otherwise be obtained and it should be understood the Convergent will not have authority to obtain volume discounts. Consequently, clients directing the use of a particular broker may not receive best execution. As a result of the client directing Convergent to use a specific broker, the client acknowledges that he/she/it may pay higher commissions or other transaction costs or greater spreads, or receive less favorable net prices, on transactions for the account than would otherwise be the case had the client effected transactions through brokers recommended by Convergent.

Each investment manager that Convergent selects or recommends to its clients generally will have investment discretion over that portion of the client's accounts managed by the particular investment manager. For non-discretionary clients, the client will have a direct contractual relationship with each such investment manager. Discretionary client assets may be placed with an investment manager based on an umbrella agreement between Convergent and the manager. These investment managers are responsible for providing their firm's Form ADV Parts 2A and 2B and other required disclosures to our mutual clients. The designation by a client of a particular broker for execution of client account transactions (particularly if it differs from the brokers used by that manager for execution of most of the manager's other clients' accounts) may affect the commission rates and the method and pricing of execution of the client's account transactions for the portion of the client's portfolio managed by a particular investment adviser. Non-discretionary clients are urged to review each portfolio investment manager's disclosures on brokerage practices in deciding whether to direct the investment manager to use a particular broker for execution of the client's portfolio transactions.

Certain clients set up margin accounts in connection with their Convergent managed brokerage accounts. After a discussion with a client, Convergent may utilize margin on the account either for short term transaction or as leverage, based on the clients individual risk profile.

Review of Accounts

Review of Accounts

Client accounts generally are reviewed at least quarterly, but often more frequently, for performance, adherence to the client's investment objectives, and client restrictions. All accounts are typically reviewed by each client's Advisor. Triggering factors include material changes in a client's financial situation, changes in a money manager's management team or advisory fee, as well as political and economic events.

Reporting to Investment Supervisory and Performance Measurement Clients

All clients receive on-line access via a portal to their account and performance information. Independence will also create a performance report annually as of year-end. These reports detail the client's positions, gains and losses (as reported by the custodian), income and expenses, and the performance of all mutual funds, ETFs, and/or investment managers in the client's portfolio managed by Independence. Independence may retain the services of a third party to generate performance reports or prepare reports itself. In all cases, Convergent reviews performance reports for accuracy and completeness.

Clients should rely exclusively on their qualified custodian to provide cost basis.

In addition, the reports compare the client's performance to relevant index benchmarks. In certain cases, a portfolio may be compared to a benchmark that is not directly investable. Indices included in the report are for the purpose of comparing a client's returns to the returns on a broad-based index of securities most comparable to the types of securities held in a client's account(s), to the general equity market or to another agreed upon benchmark. Although a client's account is invested in securities that are generally similar in type to the related indices, the particular issuers, industry segments, geographic regions, and weighting of investments in a client's account do not necessarily track the index. Independence may compare the same or similar investments to different benchmarks depending on the role the investment is intended to be positioned within the portfolio, client type, or business division. In addition, clients who request specific benchmarks may have different benchmarks than other clients.

Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Solicitation or Referral for Economic Benefit Arrangements

If a client was introduced to Independence through a solicitor, Independence may pay that solicitor a referral fee in accordance with Rule 206(4)-3 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940. The referral fee shall be paid solely from Independence's fee as defined in the client investment advisor agreement, and shall not result in any additional charge to client.

Independence has entered into a solicitation arrangement with City National Bank, an affiliated entity. Representatives of City National Bank and/or City National Securities may receive cash or non-cash compensation for the referrals of clients and investors who ultimately become clients of Independence or investors in the Affiliated Private Investment Funds. In addition, Independence may enter into other solicitation agreements between or among Independence and its affiliates.

An inherent conflict of interest arises on behalf of the solicitor because it is receiving an economic benefit for the referral or recommendation of Independence's services. In all cases, Independence will provide all clients subject to a solicitation or referral fee a disclosure which they will be required to sign.

Independence receives client referrals from Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. ("Schwab") through Independence's participation in Schwab Advisor Network® ("the Service"). The Service is designed to help investors find an independent investment advisor. Schwab is a broker-dealer independent of and unaffiliated with Independence. Schwab does not supervise Independence and has no responsibility for Independence's management of clients' portfolios or Independence's other advice or services. Independence pays Schwab fees to receive client referrals through the Service. Independence's participation in the Service may raise potential conflicts of interest described below.

Independence pays Schwab a Participation Fee on all referred clients' accounts that are maintained in custody at Schwab and a Non-Schwab Custody Fee on all accounts that are maintained at, or transferred to, another custodian. The Participation Fee paid by Independence is a percentage of the fees the client owes to Independence or a percentage of the value of the assets in the client's account, subject to a minimum Participation Fee. Independence pays Schwab the Participation Fee for so long as the referred client's account remains in custody at Schwab. The Participation Fee is billed to Independence quarterly and may increased, decreased or waived by Schwab from time to time. The Participation Fee is paid by Independence and not by the client. Independence has agreed not to charge clients referred through the Service fees or costs greater than the fees or costs Independence charges clients with similar portfolios who were not referred through the Service.

Independence generally pays Schwab a Non-Schwab Custody Fee if custody of a referred client's account is not maintained by, or assets in the account are transferred from Schwab. This Fee does not apply if the client was solely responsible for the decision not to maintain custody at Schwab. The Non-Schwab Custody Fee is a one-time payment equal to a percentage of the assets placed with a custodian other than Schwab. The Non-Schwab Custody Fee is higher than the Participation Fees Advisor generally would pay in a single year. Thus, Independence will have an incentive to recommend that client accounts be held in custody at Schwab.

The Participation and Non-Schwab Custody Fees will be based on assets in accounts of Independence's clients who were referred by Schwab and those referred clients' family members living in the same household. Thus, Independence will have incentives to encourage household members of clients referred through the Service to maintain custody of their accounts and execute transactions at Schwab and to instruct Schwab to debit Independence's fees directly from the accounts.

For accounts of Independence's clients maintained in custody at Schwab, Schwab will not charge the client separately for custody but will receive compensation from Independence's clients in the form of commissions or other transaction-related compensation on securities trades executed through Schwab. Schwab also will receive a fee (generally lower than the applicable commission on trades it executes) for clearance and settlement of trades executed through broker-dealers other than Schwab. Schwab's fees for trades executed at other broker-dealers are in addition to the other broker-dealer's fees. Thus, Independence may have an incentive to cause trades to be executed through Schwab rather than another broker-dealer. Independence nevertheless, acknowledges its duty to seek best execution of trades for client accounts. Trades for client accounts held in custody at Schwab may be executed through a different broker-dealer than trades for Independence's other clients. Thus, trades for accounts custodied at Schwab may be executed at different times and different prices than trades for other accounts that are executed at other broker-dealers.

Independence has entered into an agreement in which it employs an individual who is a family member of one of Independence's solicitors and receives payment for doing so. In addition, as part of this relationship, the solicitor may be permitted in the future to solicit clients that is has previously referred to Independence.

Custody

Neither Independence nor Convergent takes possession of client funds or securities, nevertheless Convergent and Independence have custody of some client assets through the direct debiting of management fees from client custodial accounts, sponsorship of Convergent's Affiliated Private Investment Funds, or custody by an affiliate.

Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker dealer, bank, or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains client's investment assets. Independence urges the client to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that we may provide to clients. Our performance reports may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Independence is deemed to have custody over the assets in the Affiliated Private Investment Funds described in Item 4-Types of Clients and Convergent's Part 2A of Form ADV. These funds are each subject to an annual audit by an independent auditor and audited financial statements are sent to investors annually.

Independence is deemed to have custody over assets where City National Bank is the qualified custodian and Independence is the investment adviser. City National Bank undergoes an annual SSAE 16 (fka SAS 70) review annually.

Investment Discretion

Independence has the authority in managing discretionary client accounts to determine the amount and type of investments to be bought and sold and managers to be hired and terminated. In all cases, such discretion is exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular client account.

ISG and the IC determine the investment strategy and manager selection options for Convergent. Depending on the ISG/IC recommendation, Convergent will adopt an implementation plan that considers the goals of the ISG/IC decision, fairness to all clients, and practical issues (such as short term redemption fees). The Independence team is responsible for considering how and when to implement the investment strategy and manager selection options for each client and considers these factors, among others, when making those decisions: investment objective, policies, and strategy of the account; appropriateness of the investment to the account's time horizon and risk objectives; existing levels of ownership of the investment and other similar investments; immediate availability of cash or buying power to fund the investment; and complexity of client portfolio (including whether the portfolio holds private investment vehicles or more liquid securities). As a result of customizing client portfolios based on the above considerations, the time frame for implementing the investment strategy and/or manager selection may vary client by client which may result in different clients receiving favorable or disadvantageous execution. Convergent will monitor the implementation plan to ensure all investment decisions are implemented fairly and in accordance with the goals and objectives of ISG/IC.

In certain circumstances, the ISG/IC's recommendation may impact all client accounts and Convergent's and Independence's plan will be to implement the recommendation for all client accounts at the same time or on the same day to make an effort that all clients receive a similar execution price. However, given that trading is executed through each client's custodian, Independence may be limited in its ability to aggregate orders. Independence may, but need not, aggregate and block orders or enter execution for all client accounts in an investment or manager on the same day for accounts, depending on the type of investment, mutual fund, ETF, or SMA, in circumstances in which Independence believes will result in a more favorable overall execution.

Depending on the implementation plan, transactions in client accounts could be executed at a higher or lower price than would be otherwise paid by a client absent the implementation plan. In the opinion of Convergent, the result of the implementation plans will on the whole over time be in the best interests of each of the participating client accounts. In some instances, however, the implementation plan could have an adverse effect on a particular account.

Clients with individual investment policies or restrictions may not be able to participate in the implementation plan and may only be invested in such investments after compliance with respect to the investment policies or restrictions has been established. These clients may receive a less favorable price on such transactions. Certain limitations may preclude Convergent from implementing the recommendation for all client accounts at the same time, such as the client custodies its assets at a custodian that requires the client's letter of authorization prior to implementation, the client has certain assets margined, or other factors that may limit Convergent's ability to implement investment discretion on clients' behalf.

When placing trades for all clients and on an ongoing basis, Convergent will determine whether to reinvest dividends for each investment unless specified by the Client.

Any trade errors will be rectified to make the client whole as if the error did not occur.

It is Independence's policy that the firm will generally not affect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for client accounts. Convergent will also not cross trades between client accounts. Principal transactions are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliated broker-dealer, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. However, Independence may rarely engage in principal transactions under certain circumstances. In each of these circumstances Independence will comply with Rule 206(s)'s disclosure and consent requirement prior to the completion of each principal transaction. At a minimum, the disclosure will include information sufficient to identify and explain the potential conflict of interest. A principal transaction may also be deemed to have occurred if a security is crossed between an affiliated hedge fund and another client account. An agency cross transaction is defined as a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser, or any person controlled by or under common control with the investment adviser, acts as broker for both the advisory client and for another person on the other side of the transaction. Agency cross transactions may arise where an adviser is dually registered as a broker-dealer or has an affiliated broker-dealer.

Voting Client Securities

Proxy Voting

Independence will not exercise proxy voting authority over client securities with the exception of proxies voted on behalf of any ERISA clients. The obligation to vote client proxies shall at all times rest with the client, except for those specific client assets over which an independent investment manager has assumed proxy voting authority. Clients shall in no way be precluded from contacting Independence for advice or information about a particular proxy vote. However, Independence shall not be deemed to have proxy voting authority solely as a result of providing such advice to client.

Should Independence inadvertently receive proxy information for a security held in a client's account, then Independence will immediately forward such information on to client, but will not take any further action with respect to the voting of such proxy. Upon termination of its Investment Management Agreement with a client, Convergent shall make a good faith and reasonable attempt to forward proxy information inadvertently received by Independence on behalf of the client to the forwarding address provided by the client to Convergent.

For ERISA accounts, Convergent shall exercise proxy voting authority where appropriate. However, if the ERISA plan's governing documents state that proxy voting authority is retained by a named fiduciary, that fiduciary shall be responsible for voting proxies.

When required to vote, Independence votes client proxies in the interest of maximizing shareholder value. Independence believes that we are unlikely to be in a situation that results in a material conflict of interest between our clients' interests and the interest of our firm. However, if a situation should arise where a material conflict of interest is determined to exist, Independence will make an effort to seek out the opinion of a qualified independent third party regarding this issue.

Independence, through Convergent, has developed written policies and procedures governing proxy voting to be followed, when applicable. A copy of Convergent's complete proxy voting policy is available upon request. Convergent clients may request copies of their proxy voting records by sending a written request to Convergent, ATTN: Compliance, 12505 Park Potomac Avenue, Suite 400, Potomac, MD 20854, by emailing Compliance@Independence.com, or by issuing an oral request.

Class Actions

With regard to all matters (other than proxies) for which shareholder action is required or solicited with respect to securities beneficially held by the client's account, such as: (i) all matters relating to class actions, including without limitation, matters relating to opting in or opting out of a class and approval of class settlements and (ii) bankruptcies or reorganizations, Convergent affirmatively disclaims responsibility for voting (by proxies or otherwise) on such matters and will not take any action with regard to such matters.

Financial Information

Neither Independence nor Convergent has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
