The Supplement must contain disclosures about certain key investment personnel of the adviser (referred to as "Supervised Persons"). Disclosure is required for each Supervised Person who formulates or provides investment advice to clients, regardless of whether or not they have direct client contact. If investment advice is provided by a team larger than five Supervised Persons, Supplements need only be provided for the five Supervised Persons with the most significant responsibility for day-to-day advice provided to the client. Similar to the requirements for the Brochure, the Supplement must be written in plain English and follow a specific format. Advisers do, however, have some flexibility to customize the Supplement based on their structure. For example, advisers may include Supplement information within the Brochure or in a separate document. Advisers may also choose to prepare multiple Supplements for different groups of Supervised Persons as long as each supplement follows the same format. Part 2B consists of six items, including items related to a Supervised Person's educational background and business experience, material disciplinary history, other substantial business activities and any associated material conflicts of interest and sources of additional compensation from someone other than a client (such as sales awards). Advisers are also required to describe their procedures for monitoring Supervised Persons and must identify the person(s) responsible for such oversight.

Procedures for monitoring Supervised Persons

IAM is registered as an investment adviser with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and therefore is required to adopt written compliance policies pursuant to Rule 206(4)-7 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended. IAM has adopted written compliance policies and procedures which includes the supervision of all supervised persons of IAM. A primary responsibility of IAM is the supervision of its employees, to ensure that all of IAM's activities comply with disclosures made to clients and with the provisions of applicable securities laws. IAM has fulfilled this responsibility by constructing and implementing a comprehensive system of internal controls and supervisory procedures. Particular attention is given to controls in those areas of IAM's activities that pose the greatest potential for creating conflicts of interest or other results that can harm clients. IAM conducts ongoing compliance inspections of its supervisory control program and carefully examines and evaluates its internal controls and supervisory procedures in order to verify that its supervision of employees is effective within all areas of IAM's operations.

Persons Responsible For Oversight of Supervised Persons

IAM's written compliance policies require the appointment of a chief compliance officer (the "Chief Compliance Officer") who will be responsible for the day-to-day administration of the compliance program in accordance with the provisions thereof. As such, IAM has appointed Michael Paciullo as the Chief Compliance Officer and he is authorized to do and perform any and all such acts and functions as he is charged with under the provisions of IAM's written compliance and policy program.
