Clients should be prepared to bear this loss.
- B. In implementing our primary strategy of asset liability management there is the possibility of loss due to modeling error of assets or liabilities, abnormal market circumstance affecting client liabilities or portfolio assets. Our strategy relies extensively on the input of third parties including but not limited to actuaries, accountants, data services and information providers.

- b. Our firm does not direct client transactions to a particular broker-dealer in return for client referrals.

3. Directed Brokerage.

- a. Our firm does not recommend, request or require that a client execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer. Not all advisers require their clients to use a particular brokerage. Our firm has no affiliates or any other economic relationship that creates a material conflict of interest. Advisers that direct clients to a specific brokerage may be unable to achieve most favorable execution of client transactions, possibly costing clients more money.
 - b. We do permit clients to direct brokerage trades to specific broker-dealers. We discourage this practice and explain to them that this may cause the client to pay more money as the execution of the trade may not be the most favorable. Also, if the specific broker-dealer does not have the best execution it does not allow us to aggregate trades with other clients.
- B. Our firm is from time to time involved in the aggregate purchase or sale of securities for various clients. If we determine that the sale or purchase of securities is appropriate for a client we will aggregate the sale or purchase based on percentage market value of each individual client portfolio relative to the entire amount of portfolios managed. Not aggregating trades can result in higher transaction costs.

Item 13 Review of Accounts

- A. Our firm periodically reviews client accounts. The frequency and nature of the review depends on the client's needs, but we attempt to review at least monthly, if not more frequently. The reviews are conducted by an Executive Vice-President of the firm.
