communications end up being forms of “tabloid” (tabloidism), interesting or entertaining information that is not useful for integral decision making. If a Client observes any material discrepancy in RT Hickman web disclosures (in comparison to provided genuine tangible documents), Client is to bring it to RT Hickman’s attention.

CAVEAT**

Any reliance on these documents is subject to “authentication” which RT Hickman establishes via effective dated delivery of a Hard Copy document, complete with all RT Hickman required disclosure documents (as relative to the particular work or services Client is requesting). See “Agreement & Account Form Reference Examples” at Part 2B. The security settings in this document (when derived through any internet-source venue) and relative internet transmission venues are within a range of “imperfect,” to “no security at all.”

Some areas of Company (Firm) profile disclosures are obtained within Financial Regulator provisional systems (such as “CRD,” the Central Registration Depository System, “IARD,” the Investment Adviser Registration Depository System, and, “ORS,” the National Futures Association Online Registration System). Within these systems, the RT Hickman Companies have observed auto-populating data, and, data change entries occurring within RT Hickman profile disclosure fields which were incorrect; they were not entered by RT Hickman. In addition, some of these data-presentation-fields we found to be unchangeable (uncorrectable/out of our control). Because of these distortions, all readers of any web-based or electronic-file-based RT Hickman information are to strictly abide by our CAVEAT (above).

Readers are to also note that over the “internet years,” various financial institutions and regulators have reported thefts of R.T. Hickman ID, profile, and etc data (from within their “secure” data systems, not ours). Accordingly, readers should not be surprised if unusual disclosure information about R.T. Hickman ever appears in the internet realm.

Our business practice (policy) is for all communications, orders, etc. to bear the signature of an authorized person (meaning, a human being), or, an equivalent-serving authorization.

Financial Account Owners (FAOs), Investors, and Property Owners in general are to not forget that any communication lacking a bona-fide personal execution-authorization omits legitimacy of origin, and therein resides potentially great risk. Electronic Meta Data is not to be interpreted as an actual personal authorization.

RT Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC (RTHCA,LLC) is the Investment Advisory Services entity within the group of the RT Hickman Companies (a group of financial companies). RTHCA,LLC is 100% owned by Robert T. Hickman. A synopsis and summary-history of the RT Hickman Companies is as follows:

- R. T. Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC (a NFA Member, Registered Commodity Trading Advisor (Commodity Futures Trading Commission) Firm; and, Securities and Exchange Commission Registered Investment Adviser Firm);
- R. T. Hickman Securities, LLC (a Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA)/ National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) Member securities brokerage firm);
- R. T. Hickman Capital Protectors, LLC (an Insurance Production/Broker firm);
- R. T. Hickman Capital Consultation Services, LLC (a Financial Consulting Services firm for Businesses, Individuals, Trusts & Estates, and Employee Benefit Plans);
- R. T. Hickman Facilities Resources, LLC (a Holding Company serving the above list of Professional Financial Services/Practice Firms).

Please further understand from the above list of RTH companies that, with respect to investments, RTH activities operate under the regulatory domains (rules) of (a) the SEC and FINRA, and (b) the CFTC and NFA.

Robert T. Hickman is the 100% Owner and Chief Executive Officer (Executive Member and Executive Principal) of these companies.

A schedule of Mr. Hickman's Professional Credentials and Designations accompanies this ADV Part 2, at Part 2B "Advisor Biographical Information." Mr. Hickman formerly owned a CPA Firm over the years 1982-1989, which was a concentrated practice in financial consulting and estate consulting engagements. The name of this firm was "R.T. Hickman, Certified Public Accountant," which conducted business as a Proprietorship Entity. This Firm was sold at the close of 1989. In 1990, Mr. Hickman started a new company (R. T. Hickman Financial & Estate Consultants) which over the years has grown into the group of RT Hickman Companies. Mr. Hickman has been the CEO of these companies continuously. He received his Bachelors Degree in Accounting from The William Paterson University of New Jersey, and, accomplished schooling for Certified Financial Planning through Fairleigh Dickinson University and the Denver College of Financial Planning. Each Financial License and Professional Designation requires Mr. Hickman to earn a minimum number of Continuing Professional Education Credits. Accordingly, over the years Mr. Hickman has been a continuous student in diverse but focused financial studies. Please also refer to Section entitled: LIST OF PROFESSIONAL CREDENTIALS AND DESIGNATIONS (of the R. T. Hickman Financial Firms, and of Robert T. Hickman) within Item Section 10.

Description of Advisory Business

LIST OF ACRONYMS TO THE GROUP OF RT HICKMAN COMPANIES AND THEIR MEANINGS:

RTHCA,LLC = R.T. Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC (former name was R.T. Hickman, Registered Investment Adviser, LLC).

RTHFR,LLC =R.T. Hickman Facilities Resources, LLC (former name was R.T. Hickman Financial Companies, LLC).

RTH Cos = all RT Hickman company-entities (as a group, or, "in reference to all RT Hickman entities").

RTHS,LLC =R.T. Hickman Securities, LLC (former name was R.T. Hickman Securities Brokerage Firm, LLC).

RTHCP,LLC =R.T. Hickman Capital Protectors, LLC (former name was R.T. Hickman, Licensed Insurance Producer, LLC).

RTHCCS,LLC =R.T. Hickman Capital Consultation Services, LLC
(former name was R.T. Hickman Financial & Estate Consultants, LLC).

RTH = Robert T. Hickman, the Principal (person) in charge of Operations and Policy in each and all RT Hickman entities.
Distinguishing Note: Some areas within this document may indicate "RTH" with the intended meaning..."as a matter of RTH operating policy, with uniform or general application throughout all of the RTH Cos, or, as within the realm of the disclosure-point."

FAO = Financial Account Owner. The RTH Cos provide services through the use of various types of financial instruments. Some are not referred-to as "Investments." Therefore, throughout this Brochure, in respective places, references shall be made to the "Financial Account Owner" (the "FAO"), rather than to the "Investor."

- RTHCA,LLC (the Investments Advisory Firm) consists of two "regulatory-separate" operating components:
 - A) RTHCA,LLC, in operative activity as a U.S. (SEC and State) investment advisory (IA) business; and,
 - B) RTHCA,LLC, in operative activity as a U.S. (CFTC with NFA) commodities trading advisor (CTA) business.
- Business background of the IA and CTA Firm components and its Principal:
 - The Firm moved its Principal Office (domicile) to the State of New York as of 3/2012. This move did not consist of a "succession" (no change in ownership, assets, operations, etc). The State of New York accepted this registration, but as according to its Limited Liability Company laws (Section 204), required the Firm's name to be changed. The State of New York accepted "R.T. Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC."
 - The Firm originated as a Limited Liability Company in the State of New Jersey on July 1, 1999.
 - The Firm originated its registration as an Investment Adviser (IA) Firm, effective on July 1, 1999, with SEC (Securities & Exchange Commission) registration effective on July 1, 1999, with Robert T. Hickman as IA Principal.
 - Prior to July 1, 1999 (during the 1990s), our prior Firm "RT Hickman Financial & Estate Consultants" was filed as a Registered Investment Adviser with the SEC.

- The Firm was formed with registration as a Commodities Trading Advisor Firm effective on July 6, 2006, with National Futures Association membership also effective on July 6, 2006. In this registration, Robert T. Hickman was registered as the Firm's Associated Person (AP) and listed as Principal.
- Commodities Futures Trading Commission registration information relative to Commodities Trading Advisors (meaning each CTA's Profile Data disclosures) is located within: www.nfa.futures.com. Therein, click into NFA's "BASIC" system.
- Intermediate Subsidiaries of the Investment Advisory Firm (RTHCA,LLC):
- NONE. RTHCA,LLC does not have subsidiaries.
- Associated "legal-formatively-separate," and, "regulatory-separate" Financial Firms which are also 100% owned by Robert T. Hickman:
 - R. T. Hickman Securities, LLC (a Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA)/ National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) Member securities brokerage firm). Refer to: www.finra.org/brokercheck.
 - R. T. Hickman Capital Protectors, LLC (an Insurance Production/Broker firm). Refer to: <http://licenseregistry.com>.
 - R. T. Hickman Capital Consultation Services, LLC (a Financial Consulting Services firm for Businesses, Individuals, Trusts & Estates, and Employee Benefit Plans). Services within this entity may be provided Professional practitioner financial licenses or certifications. For further information, refer to Part 2B, Brochure Supplement Sections: Adviser Biographical Information, and, Services Agreement and Account Form reference examples.
 - R. T. Hickman Facilities Resources, LLC (a Holding Company serving the above list of Professional Financial Services/Practice Firms).

Robert T. Hickman is the Chief Executive Officer (Executive Member and Executive Principal) of the RT Hickman Companies.

Please distinguish that with respect to Investments, RT Hickman Companies activities operate under the regulatory domains of:
 (a) The SEC and FINRA; and, (b) the CFTC and the NFA.

The RT Hickman Companies are predominately (mostly) a Federal (nationally) registered and regulated regime of entities. The majority (nearly all) of the Regulatory Authorities the RTH Cos operate under are Federal (nationally) based. Accordingly, regulatory registration follows (and must follow) this federal-national application to prevent and protect activities from regulatory distortions and dangerous bifurcations (which otherwise would occur).

For RTHCA,LLC, this means that RTHCA,LLC applies Investment Adviser Registration according to the SEC and CFTC (federal, nationally-based) firm applications.

With respect to RTHCP,LLC, regulatory attendance is pursued through the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) nationally-designed model regulations.

The RTH Cos do respect the rights of sub-national governments to form their own (jurisdictional-specific) laws and regulations, and we strive to comply with them.

NAVIGATING THROUGH COMPLICATED, SOMETIMES FAULTY REGULATIONS, WHILE MAINTAINING A PROTECTIVE STANCE

Financial Account Owners (FAOs), Investors, and Property Owners are to consider every area where departures from National uniform legitimate regulation can cause risks or losses of National consequence, or upon the FAO, where the sub-national lacks the resources or reliable protective constructs (statute-constructs, not only in form, but in actual substance) to cure such consequential damages. In some cause-of-loss areas the FAO may find ways to full recovery, but in others, means for effective recovery may not actually exist. FAOs must carefully study these risks and distinctions.

Each RTH Company operates under its own distinct "Books Of Rules" (meaning, as under U.S. laws, each within its own protocol of financial regulations). This is also the case for the Personal Professional (Financial Practitioner) Credentials possessed by Robert T. Hickman. By virtue of these various "Books Of Rules," each RTH Company features its own Pricing Structure/Fee Structure (see Item Section#5). The RTH Cos give Clients access to a wide range of types of financial services. In areas where Conflicts Of Interests exist, the RTH Cos have instituted proprietary methods and procedures which, structurally, enforce the interests of the Client ahead of all others. Throughout this Form ADV Document-Brochure-Set, areas Conflicts of Interests are disclosed with described procedures of how in these areas the RTH Cos structure the interests of the Client first, including how RTH constantly monitors Client business for any improper diminishment effects which the RTH strive to guard Clients from. One common area of concern for Clients receiving multiple types of financial services from the RTH Cos (which means, Client undertakings must comply with multiple sets of "Books Of Rules") is whether or not (as the Client is implemented through various types of pricing-structures) the Client is being duplicatively charged ("double-charged" or "overcharged"). As explained in Item-Section-#5, the RTH Cos have procedures in place which serve to avoid this potential problem from occurring, and, for justifying cost-charges in every implementation through agreed-recording with the Client.

Throughout compliance with all required financial regulations, the RTH Cos conduct business (to the degree permitted under US laws) according to respecting the legitimate Rights of the people of our USA as paramount to all others. Every FAO must also understand there can be scenarios where (when truly validated) "common-good" issues or situations may be paramount to even the Rights of the people of our USA. For example, "common-good" issues are valid when they serve to protect and preserve the Rights of the people of our USA. But the point here of utmost concern is that "common-good" law requirements preempt the paramount – the People. This means that in some FAO procedural (areas) "common good" regulations do preempt the FAO's personal rights. Therefore, every FAO must understand that whenever any assets are placed into any kind of Financial Account, the FAO places assets into this incredibly-dynamic realm because in our USA, all financial markets reside within and must be compliant with this realm. The people of our USA are here reminded that placement of your personal assets into Financial Accounts/Financial Marketplaces is done by your personal choice to do so, it is not mandatory in our USA.

A "COMMON GOOD" EXAMPLE TO CONSIDER: INDUSTRIAL SPYING

Industrial spying exists and occurs in multiple ways in governmental and self-regulating bureaus. It can originate from industry, from within regulatory bureaus, and by intrusion. This risk causes regulators to apply very strict protocols (understandably so). But when the types of regulatory procedures which protect the bureaus are improperly asserted into industry participants and investors, the result can be ruinous consequential damages upon industry participants and investors. BEWARE: When regulators appear to be placing their operational interests (which are important) ahead of the interests of legitimate industry participants/investors, consider timely departing (moving away) from the investment area before becoming ensnared into a loss or frozen status.

Refer also to Item Section 8, at "Risks of Well Intended but Counter Productive Financial Regulations and Legislation."

The FAO is to also understand that each "Book Of Rules" subjects each and every kind of Financial Account or Financial Service to mandatory regulatory procedures therein. In our USA, this means at both Federal and State levels. Accordingly, the FAO is required to understand that when a certain type of Financial Account is opened, a relative "Book Of Rules" are procedurally applied. Also, when a Client engages a Professional Financial Practitioner for services, each Professional Credential (such as "Attorney", "Broker", "CFP", "CPA", "Insurance Agent", etc...) mandates application of "Books Of Rules" procedurally into the services that you (the Client) select to be engaged. Therein, further understand that if you simultaneously engage multiple Credentials (for example: an "Attorney, CFP, CPA") all three kinds of "Books Of Rules" would have to be procedurally done within your engagement.

Although it may be very beneficial to have this simultaneous multiple-dimension of competency in your work, costs would be higher, and the potential conflict of "duplicative charges" then have to be managed for properness. Therefore, carefully evaluate what is most-suitable for you before enacting your Professional Services engagements.

For more information on this disclosure-point, the reader may refer to the following Item-Section-#10, at: "How Financial Regulatory Frameworks (the rules of Financial Regulations) Apply to the RTH Cos and, How the RTH Cos Operate According to Financial Regulations."

TYPES OF CLIENTS

- Corporations, Business Institutions
- Pension Plans, Profit Sharing Plans, etc. (including Union Plans);
- Trusts, Estates, Foundations/Charitable Organizations;
- Individuals (usually High Net Worth &/or Complex Cases);

Investment Boards of Trustees & Complex Investor Portfolios seeking diligent & vigilant applied expertise into Investment Portfolio situations should call us.

TYPES OF FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

- Securities : including Equity, Debt, Unitary Investment Securities such as those of third party Investment Companies, Securitized Debt. (Examples of Unitary Investment Securities are Mutual Funds & Variable Annuities. Investment Companies are "Issuers" of Unitary Investment Securities);
- Contracts (including Futures on Intangibles and Options on Securities, Commodities, etc.);
- Insurances;
- Cash, Margin, or Apps-Way-Only Positioning(s) Accounts;
- Long Term, Short Term., Trading, Short Sales, Controlled-Leverage Contracts (covered, naked, spreads, etc).

TAILORING OF SERVICES TO NEEDS OF CLIENTS

- Tailoring is done in every case through extensive Suitability Diagnostics, with every Client providing a "Client Suitability Statement"

Every service provided is implemented according to (1) "Client-Specific Prescriptions" via a Client or Customer's Suitability Statement (a Workpaper-Set); and, (2) an Agreement Document. We believe that suitability diagnostics are an imperative to client/customer and financial marketplace integrity. From these procedures, every service/implementation is tailored to every client's needs by virtue of their provided Suitability Statement Forms. Also, client restrictions become self-evident by the data and answers they provide on their Suitability Statement Forms. Each client's suitability statement forms-sets are also used to surface the kinds of investments that the client would consider to be "restricted." Each customer suitability statement endeavors to have every investor to plan each implementation not only on the merits of each investment placement, but also via a suitability of integration within the client/customer's provided (unique) financial profile. Client-Specific Prescription records are treated as confidential records. Issuer (Investment or Insurance) specific Prospectuses or Offering Disclosure Documents are included with each Client's Suitability diagnostics and Statement.

PHILOSOPHY OF INTEGRITY IN THE INTERESTS OF "HUMAN BEING" INVESTORS

The RTHCos believe In Regulatory Oversight in effort for the protection first-and-foremost of Human Beings (HBs) (individually, as well as the collective effects thereupon).

The FAO is to carefully consider how there are thousands of different laws & regulations throughout our world.

Laws and Regulations in ways and places may not protect HB Interests first. It should only be by rare and justifiable exception that Law or Regulation can evolve away from protecting HB interests first in America. The RTHCos believe that Capital Formation generates from the Human Being (HB). Machines may generate capital, but it is the Human Being that is (and should be) making the machine. In this Credo, the interests of the HB are paramount to all others. Collective-constructs made of or for HBs, when therein occurs diminishment to the HB, must not be paramount to the HB. When the HB is diminished, life-legitimate Capital Formation is destroyed. The RTHCos believe that in the world of finance, this Credo is the perpetual lifeblood of the United States of America and America's founding, framing documents, where within is Lady Liberty's cast for universal HB eminence in the purpose of property ownership in financial laws and regulations.

Accordingly, the RTHCos attempt to exist within such formats of regulation in America. However, by America, the RTHCos also offer the option to HB FAOs (individually, and collectively when in the legitimate interests of the HBs) to work with RTHCos in a design where the FAO employs RTHCos via a Power Of Attorney construct, with the operations of these engagement designs (at/within the RTHCos-POA level) — not being conducted within a Regulatory-oversight framework. In such cases, the FAO privately, and knowingly as a HB person, elects-out of Regulatory oversight upon (within) the RTHCos-POA engagement, with such elections (when necessary or required) submitted by the FAO's execution, to America's National Regulatory Commissioners. FAOs are to understand that the US Code of Federal Regulations does provide venue for FAOs to send their opted undertakings to the Office Of The Commissioner, and the Commissioner, with Authority, is responsible for accommodating the FAO's chosen undertakings in legitimacy. The Commissioners of America have a duty to uphold the rights of America's human being Citizens.

PROTECTING THE HB INVESTORS

There can also be places or occasions where the applied policies or procedures of a Financial Institution or Firm produce counter-effects upon the FAO, sometimes with no escape for the FAO due to the requirements of the applied laws or Regulations, with these consequences being unintended, but resulting in flaws or something worse upon the FAO. At such times, a FAO may legitimately reconstruct their relationship with the RTHCos through a RTHCos-POA engagement design. In this circumstance, the POA would not be designed Inside of a financial Regulatory protocol (meaning postured within the RTHCos regulated firms level). The legitimately appointed powers and duties within each POA shall usually control supreme with respect to any and all rules.

In these types of engagements, the benefit of depth-of-knowledge furnished to Clients is that since the RTHCos are experienced In Regulatory Protocol, clients that structure a POA arrangement that is not to function inside of a regulatory protocol (here meaning at the Client-with-Professional level), is yet done with RTH's regulatory knowledge and experience. As legitimately done, this is very helpful for keeping Clients out of accidental troubles.

IMPORTANT DISTINCTION ABOUT INVESTMENT "FUNDS"

Clients should also understand that if or when an investment is pursued through a "Fund" design, even though if done through a Power Of Attorney arrangement, regulators usually then mandate the investment to exist and function inside of a regulatory protocol. A "Fund" design many times is not really necessary, which can be determined when RTH is invited to offer alternatives, which we can do with proper transparency for all parties legitimately concerned. Funds usually diminish transparency, creating a very serious reason of why investing in a Fund can be very risky. Remember that diminished transparency = investing blindly. And even though Funds are regulated, the regulators cannot guarantee to protect you from risk-of-loss. Worse yet, it is common practice for Funds to dodge regulations by petitioning for unbecoming exemptions. All of this can result in a very distorted realm to place monies into.

Regulators sometimes decide, or sometimes are "mandated" to structure their procedures and requirements in ways which result in serving special interests, or, themselves (placing these interests ahead of, or In discrimination of, the public). These kinds of regulatory protocols usually evolve through a legal system, but the actual resulting framework can be defective (flawed, discriminatory, wrongfully-obstructive, not of a proven-configuration, corrupt, etc.). Sometimes FAOs trying to conduct legitimate business through these defective protocols find roadblocks obstructing their endeavors. When these situations arise, the RTHCos here bring to your attention: consider moving to a different Jurisdiction where your business will be treated In your legitimate better interest.

Description of Fees & Compensation

Important Distinctions:

RTHCA,LLC is (A)- an Investment Advisory Firm, and (B)- a Commodities Trading Advisor Firm.

RTHS,LLC is a Broker-Dealer (B/D) Firm.

RTHCP,LLC is an Insurance Brokerage/Agency Firm.

RTHCCS,LLC is a Capital Consultation Firm that earns Fees from Consultative work provided.

By (based on) legal and regulatory-structured design, these entities do not cross or overlap in the kinds of services they provide (additional information RE: Conflicts Of Interests is disclosed at Item-Section #10).

RTHS,LLC is only an "Applications-Way" Broker Dealer. RTHS,LLC only earns and receives income from Independent-Third Party "Prospectus-Regulatory-Price-Structured" placements. All of the other various kinds of earnings that traditional B/Ds earn do not exist in RTHS,LLC. Basically, if a FAO buys an issuer's product (Mutual Fund, Variable Annuity, etc) through RTHS,LLC, the FAO is agreeing to compensate RTHS,LLC according to the independent Issuers Compensation design ("sales load") as formulated by the independent Issuer and disclosed in the Issuers Prospectus. This B/D design removes the normal Compensation Conflicts Of Interests issues that can exist between Fees & Compensation — by implementing it through Client's formulated Design with Client therein confirming fairness.

When a client or customer wishes to acquire a financial product that is offered through Broker-Dealers, access to these types of products usually requires the Client/Customer to incur a Commission or Basis-Points cost charge (these are called "Cost-Loaded" products). When a Client/Customer instead acquires a "No-Load" product (which means, the product is acquired directly from the product-issuer, and not through a broker dealer firm) the Client/Customer then typically avoids all of (or sometimes most of) a Commission or Basis-Points cost charge. If a Client/Customer selects a "Cost-Loaded" product, and if or when the Client/Customer acquires its product from RT Hickman Securities, LLC (RTHS,LLC), RTHS,LLC then receives this compensation. The RTHCos do not require or specifically recommend Clients or Customers to acquire "Cost-Loaded" products, nor, to acquire products specifically from RTHS,LLC. But if or when a Client/Customer engages RTHCA,LLC and then also proceeds to acquire a "Cost-Loaded" product from RTHS,LLC — this (obviously) presents a situation of Conflicts Of Interests which may not, or may, be acceptable to the Client/Customer (and either way, in every case, proven to be in the best interest of the Client/Customer, based on the Client/Customer's executed "Suitability Statement Form"). Basically, the Conflicts that must be addressed are:

1. If possible, would the Client/Customer prefer to acquire a "No-Load" product; and,
- 2.. If the Client/Customer intentionally desires or must acquire a "Cost-Loaded" product, and does so from RTHS,LLC — would the Client/Customer enter a situation of being unfairly cost-charged (such as an unjustifiable or improper "Double-Charge")?

To remove these potentially unfair or detrimental "Conflicts Of Interests" effects from RTH's services with Customer/Clients, RTH formally and procedurally does so through the following RTH advance disclosure documents (which accompany this brochure) entitled*:

- "RTHCA, LLC Investment Advisory Services Engagement Agreement, With Investment Advisory Services Schedule of Investment Advisory Fees;" and,
- "How Clients Receive Services and Work With The Group of RT Hickman Companies;" and,
- "RTHCos Ethical Policy and Procedure for Avoiding "Double-Charges" To A Customer or Client When Financial Implementations Are Done;" and,
- "The RTHCos Financial & Estate Consulting Services and Financial Vehicle/Product Implementation Services Engagement Agreement."

These formal documents serve to inform, address, and remove any potentially unfair dealings with Client/Customers, while preserving and investor's "Right To Choose Investment and Investment-Provider" (in tact). Every client or customer is required to read these RTH advance-disclosure documents prior to investing. Please refer to them in Item-Section: "Part 2B Brochure Supplement: Agreement & Account Form Reference Examples." Also, in Part 2B, carefully read Disclosure Items #4 & #5.

In addition, issues of Conflicts of Interests are intensively addressed in every client's "Customer Suitability Statement" as executed by Client/Customer and provided to RTH.

*Refer also to Item-Sections #10, 11, &12— controls over potential Conflicts Of Interests , Ethical procedures, & controls over potential compensation conflicts.

INVESTMENT ADVISORY SERVICES SCHEDULE OF INVESTMENT ADVISORY FEES ("Fee Schedule")

➤ S-1. Advisory fees will be assessed based on an annual percentage of the market value of the net assets of Advisory Client's Account. All Fee structures are negotiated with each Client, and implemented via their "Customer Suitability Statement" and Agreement document(s) with RTHCA. Pre-investment educational conferences may be billed to client based on an hourly rate for such consultation time incurred, or on a Project-By-Project basis at mutually-agreed prices. Also, occasionally clients pay fees for financial consultation, with sometimes apportioning (at client's discretion) a part of such fees for Investment Advisory work, and sometimes visa-versa (at clients discretion). These arrangements are mutually-agreed when such compensation designs are requested by clients.

- S-2. Other than when a Qualified (Sophisticated) Investor engages RTHCA,LLC for a Proprietary Trading Program, Performance Fee designs are not specifically offered by RTHCA, LLC. (What this means is that the Advisor shall NOT be compensated on the basis of a share of capital gains upon or capital appreciation of the funds or any portion of the funds of the client). Client hereby understands that fees earned by Advisor through this form of money management shall be disclosed in a Prospectus (or, if applicable, a similar regulatory-approved disclosure document). Assessment Of Securities Representative Placement Costs

When financial products (securities) are sold/placed to a client through a securities representative, such transactions are an activity that is regulated through the oversight of a Broker-Dealer. Therefore, such placements are effectuated through a Broker-Dealer, and earnings on such placement transactions are effectuated through a Broker-Dealer. Another way to entitle placements obtained through a Broker-Dealer is: "Regulatory Cost-Loaded Financial Product Placements."

When financial products (securities) are purchased directly by a client, such purchases are not effectuated through the particular Broker-Dealer of the particular Securities Representative. For distinction, these types of Investors establish themselves as "Investment Advisory Clients." Advisory Clients decide which avenue of purchase (with, or without a Broker-Dealer) is suitable for them. If/when client decides to purchase financial products not through the Broker-Dealer utilized by R.T. Hickman, client may then engage RTHCA,LLC on a Fee Basis pursuant to the RTHCA, LLC Investment Advisory Services Engagement Agreement.

When financial product placements are effectuated through the Advisor's Broker-Dealer (R. T. Hickman Securities, LLC with Robert T. Hickman as a Securities Representative) such placement costs assessed shall be paid to RTHS. RTHS will then pay a portion of such earnings to Robert T. Hickman as a Registered Representative of RTHS. This compensation design is structured in accordance with Securities & Exchange Commission, and, the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) regulations.

The amount of Commission paid to Robert T. Hickman (via RTHS) may or may not be sufficient in amount to cover this agreement's "Minimum Amount Of Compensation Rule." * This outcome typically arises when a client purchases a small quantity of Investments, and thus, the Commission paid to R. T. Hickman is a small amount (inadequate). In this typical scenario, client may have requested R. T. Hickman to perform various financial and product research analyses which result in a total value of work amount that is greater than the amount of Sales Commission payment. In such cases, this agreement's "Minimum Amount Of Compensation Rule" would apply.

As evidenced by a signed Prospectus Receipt, Client confirms understanding that Securities Representative Placement Costs (commonly known as "Commissions," "Front-End Sales Charges," "Contingent Deferred (Back-End) Sales Charges," or, "12b-1 Asset-Based-Charges") represent costs that apply to the sale/placement of an investment. Securities Representative Placement Costs (SRPCs) are therefore understood to have a different meaning than fees. Fees are assessed for investment advisory efforts. SRPCs are assessed for sale/placement efforts. Both cost types are within the realm of (the subject of) Investment Advisory Compensation.

MINIMUM AMOUNT OF COMPENSATION RULE

RTHCA, LLC endeavors to be of service to clients of any size. In every engagement RTHCA, LLC must ascertain that sufficient profit is yielded out of each engagement so that engagements are not performed at a loss. An averaged hourly rate is usually used as gauge (or sensor) for determining sufficient profitability. In the event that a Commission Payment Arrangement and/or an Annual Percentage Fee Payment Arrangement does not produce an amount which at least achieves our firm's minimum necessary hourly rate (relative to the billable value of the total hours of services provided to client), then R. T. Hickman may assess client for such shortfall amounts. Upon mutual agreement, any unearned fees which should be returned to client will promptly be returned by R. T. Hickman (within 10 business days after mutual understanding and agreement).

How Fees Are Paid (Processed), and why no Investment Adviser Fees constitute "Prepaid Fees"

RTHCA, LLC requests and processes Fees via deduction from each Financial Account pursuant to formally advance-agreed terms. Fees are charged monthly, in whole-month calculations only (RTHCA, LLC does not provide partial-month pro-rata calculations and Client agrees that whole-month Fees do not represent "Prepaid Fees"). For accounts into which Clients do not have perpetual-view capability, and subject to Client's approval, RTHCA, LLC requests permission to advance-send each monthly charge calculation to each Client prior to Fee extraction. The logical and legitimate reasons for RTHCA, LLC applying this Fee Design and Payment Procedure is explained and formally advance-agreed to (as a part of Suitability Confirmation) with Client. Financial Account Owners are to distinguish here that RTHCA, LLC is not granted a Power to Execute Distributions from Client's account. RTHCA, LLC and the RTHCos do not adopt powers which would enable RTH to execute Distributions from Client's account.

Third Party Fees

Financial Accounts usually also consist of Third Party operations that are independent of the RTHCos. Common examples of Third Parties are: Custodian Firms or Institutions, Clearing Firms, Marketplace Exchanges, Mutual Funds, & Insurance Companies. Before a Client opens an Account with RTHCA,LLC (or any RTH Company), each relative Third Party Fee Schedules are provided for Client to also review and accept as a part of Suitability Confirmation.

Regulatory Cost-Loaded Financial Product Placements

The aforementioned section entitled "Disclosure Of Differences Between Fees Assessed For Investment Advisory Services —vs- Assessment Of Securities Representative Placement Costs" explains this concept. RTHCA,LLC and the RTHCos do not undertake these kinds of placements in ways which form Conflicts Of Interests onto Clients. The choice of acquiring Cost-Loaded products is entirely left to all Clients, and confirmed through Suitability Diagnostics. Clients may acquire Cost-Loaded Products anywhere, there is no mandate for these products to be acquired from any RT Hickman Company. However, as in the proper and necessary mission of preserving ethical, fair, and legitimate business procedures, all Clients are to bear- in-mind RTHCA,LLCs "Minimum Amount Of Compensation Rule." For example: if we (any RTHCos) are engaged for Consultative work which constructs Suitability of a Cost-Loaded Product Placement, but then Client decides to make the acquisition elsewhere, the legitimate and ethical responsibility for the Client's requested services would be to pay for the Consultative work performed.

Combination-Fee Client Designs

Clients are to distinguish that RTHCA,LLC does not charge Commission Markups in addition to Fees. From our Clients Suitability Designs and choices, when the RTH Companies receive both Fees and Commissions, pursuant to the regulatory requirements of each relative set of "Books Of Rules" (refer to Item-Section#4), Client/Customer Suitability Diagnostics are prepared. According to Client's Suitability criteria, but also in accordance with mandatory-regulatory ("Books Of Rules") compliance procedures, reductions of Advisory Fees to offset Commissions or Markups may (or may not) be permissible. The RTHCos do not prohibit legitimately-based fee reductions. (For further clarification, refer to page-3 of the RTHCos document entitled "Ethical Policy and Procedure for avoiding "Double Charges" to Client when Financial Implementations are done"; see Item-Section #10). However, Clients are to bear-in-mind that usually the RTHCos are not allowed to change Regulatory Cost-Loaded or Designed financial implementations; and that also, for legitimate and preservative reasons (which Client finds fair and agreeable), the RTHCos feature a "Minimum Amount Of Compensation Rule."

MISCELLANEOUS

- RTHS,LLC is a Registered Broker-Dealer under the United States Securities Exchange Act of 1934 with State CRD registrations (refer to Item-Section-4).
- RTHCA,LLC does not earn more than 50% of revenues from Commissions and Other Compensation For The Sale Of Investment Products.
- Compensation provision designs made by Issuers (independent from the RTH Companies) can be unsuitable for Clients and/or for the RTH Companies. Compensation Designs of Issuers can have limitations, flaws, and possible non-compliance issues.
- Clients/Financial Account Owners should be in understanding that there can be improper ("Red Flag") reasons for underpaying as well as for overpaying. Suitability Diagnostics establish reasonableness of Fee, Commission (compensation) designs and sizes.
- For further information about "basis point compensation" that is structured according to SEC. Rule 12-b1, refer to: www.sec.gov/rules/proposed. In this area, specifically refer to File Number: 57-15-10.

Performance Fees

Currently, the only Investment Placement (type of Investment Placement) in which RTH Clients are subjected to "Performance Fees" is when a Client utilizes a RTH invented and constructed Trading Program Method. Only Qualified Eligible (sophisticated) types of Clients may invest within this type of Investment Method. These implementations follow Regulatory Exemption Procedures (for example: refer to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission Regulation 4.7). They are implemented through specific Agreement with each Investor, with each Investor providing their "Customer Suitability Statement" (a workpaper-set prepared by Client in which they diagnose and frame their own financial suitability diagnostics and confirmation). Therein, with performance-based fees diagnosed, these fees are confirmed as being nondiscriminatory, without unacceptable Conflicts Of Interests, suitably designed, and integral. In addition, Clients having these Accounts are allowed perpetual viewing into their Account(s) for ongoing integrity-monitoring (via an Independent Custodian). RTH avails a way for Clients to inspect or "spot-check" the Trading for Integrity through secure methods.

These accounts are not discriminatory, do not consist of conflicts between Investors, nor function in conflict as an incentive in which they are favored and therefore cause disadvantage in comparison to non-performance-based accounts. All RTH Company accounts are constructed so that there are no cross-conflicts between different types of Investor Accounts. Each Client's Suitability Statement confirms Client's evaluation and acceptance of Risk. In addition, perpetual "Best Execution" monitoring procedures are applied to every transaction for integrity-assurance with regulatory-prescribed records prepared.

RTH does not offer Investment Services in two or more differently priced versions for the same service. This conflict (of construct) is not done and does not exist in RTHCos offerings. (RTH does not offer "Side-By-Side" service arrangements).

Item-8: Methods, Strategies, & Loss Risks

This section must be understood before investing or opening any kind of financial account.

Afterwards , continually refer back to this Section especially at areas specifically relevant to you and your suitability diagnostics, to remain vigilant in protecting yourself from potentially devastating emerging risk-of-loss situations.

PREFACE

The majority of this section provides a comprehensive list of the Risks that exist in the Investments Industry and in ownership of Financial Accounts (risks which can cause you to incur losses). Distinguish that "Risk," in and of itself, is not an entirely bad thing because where there is Risk, there are opportunities to achieve generous gains. What devastates investors is when or where they are unknowing or unaware about Risks, and, when they invest or position themselves in ways where they take-on an amount of Risk that is unsuitable and/or more than they can tolerate or withstand. Also distinguish and understand as a caution that some investors find suitable taking-on more risk than they can withstand. This magnitude of Risk-Assumption can expose an Investor or Financial Account Owner to the pitfall of complete bankruptcy.

Our homeland (our America) is a great and good financial power because of the Capital Formations furnished by investors who desired to achieve generous gains. But a prospective Investor should never proceed into the Risky Realm of investments until the Investor first:

1. Absolutely understands all relevant Risks (Risks are to be absolutely comprehended, read over and over); and,
2. Determine the suitable and tolerable amount of Risk that can be borne (the amount of downvaluation that you can withstand), to set-in-place an accurate quantitative guard that protects you (the Investor) from financial destruction.

The Risks (financial dangers) within this Item-8 Section are real. They are derived from years of actual experiences and research. Only certain monies and amounts belong in this Risky Realm. But when Investment Risk is "done correctly," an investing individual and a nation (homeland) can attain amazing, wonderful benefits.

FOR EXAMPLE:

Consider a nation's up-and-coming employees who do not have a large amount of savings. One buys a home costing say $200,000 by taking-on a $180,000 mortgage. The money to supply this mortgage, let's suppose, comes from 90 Investors who each determined it is suitable and tolerable for each to invest $2,000 into this mortgage, which was furnished to each investor by the mortgage being transformed into "Mortgage-Backed-Securities." In other words, each Investor acquired $2,000 of MBS. (MBS are usually issued by Investment Banks through or with Market-Maker firms). Mortgage Securitization, when done correctly, safely enables a person having only a small down payment to buy an entire house. This is wonderfully beneficial.

SUITABLE SECURITIZATION PROTECTS EVERYONE FROM FINANCIAL DEVASTATION:

Next, suppose calamities cause this house to fall in value to $110,000 (a 45% "downvaluation"). But, because of a proper Risk-Assumption-Design, each $2,000 Investor can tolerate a $900 (45%) downvaluation. But further, over time forward, this house ("Backing Asset") can rise to say a $300,000 value. A 45% downvaluation is certainly not wanted by anyone. But with the size of this downvaluation confined to a $900 amount, it is tolerable (bearable) without devastation upon each of the 90 Investors, and therefore, this suitable downvaluation size-tolerance actually serves to support the mortgage and real estate markets from collapsing. When a homeowner knows his MBS owners are suitably tolerating and sustaining this downvaluation-risk, the homeowner continues to be dedicated to the long term benefits of owning this home.

In contrast, when suitability is not properly structured, especially when in mass-issued securities such as MBS, not only could an Investor encounter a personal financial catastrophe, but so also could an entire financial institution, or institutions, or an entire jurisdiction or even an entire country via its markets and economy financially collapse.

Securities (Investments or "Issues") usually have some degree of assets that underlie or "back" each issue (with real or certifiable assets). When situations such as mass-issued/distributed investments (such as MBS) are implemented through flawed or failed Suitability designs, the consequences can be massively financially-catastrophic. An average Investor might think that the austerity and powers of its Jurisdiction and financial institutions therein can replenish such financial losses (directly, or indirectly through methods such as insurance). But massive assets must exist to furnish such protection. Property or asset owners might believe they have protection from downvaluation through their funding of (the cumulative quantity of) having paid years of interest to their mortgage-lender and years of taxes to their jurisdiction (one could view paying taxes as an investment in a home and homeland). But massive surpluses would have to exist to furnish such protection. If there are no surpluses, financial rescue attempts can take the form of indebting the future. Placing obligations upon those who did not create the obligation can be a betrayal. Such acts become larcenous. A Jurisdiction (an entire country) can go so far into debt (rather than accumulate surplus) so that even the jurisdiction itself becomes dependent on mass debt-issuance systems; it can become beholden to mass-debt-issuance configurations (it must keep borrowing via mass-debt issuances to pay its bills, its bills are larger than its revenues, and, it has no surplus). The jurisdiction can lose its independent citizens power to financially govern.

The imperative key for every investor to understand is that investments must be suitably implemented. The investor must think-further about the magnitude of devastation that can result from failed suitability implementation. Our example hypothetically demonstrates a $900 tolerable downvaluation size. In massively-distributed MBS, this (example) suitable/tolerable downvaluation design demonstrates the financial power to support an entire jurisdiction (even an entire country, or countries). But when not properly designed, and when in this example of a mass-issued investment, not only could an individual investor (a human being person) be financially devastated (perhaps irrecoverably devastated), but also, via a massively improper suitability design (suppose only 2 rather than 90 small MBS investors ratio to the single mortgage), the entire jurisdiction(s) could financially collapse (a financial contagion) through an improper design applied into thousands of mortgages.

Investors are cautioned to always timely be vigilant to the imperative of suitability, on an ongoing basis, particularly in "platform-based, mass-investment-distribution-based" environments (including Funds, Pools, etc).

This example demonstrates the methodic-style an Investor experiences through the Suitability-Analytic methods of the RT Hickman Companies.

Further understand and distinguish that the major categories of parties to Investments are:

1. Each Investor;
2. Issuers of the Investments (Issuer-Entities, including "Financial Product Makers");
3. Markets/Exchanges/Market-Makers/and economic effects and risks within; &
- 4.Regulations as under Laws/Legislation and Administration thereunder.

Every investor must see that the Investor can only directly control and assure integrity of his/her own implementations. The Investor can't control categories 2, 3, & 4. The Investor can make a best-efforts examination of these categories before Investing and is assisted in doing so by the Investor's study of this Item-8 Continued on next page.

Section. But what also must be understood is that it is impossible for any Investor to identify all potential flaws within the 2, 3, & 4 categories as relative to his/her desired investment or financial account implementation. Therefore, the Investor must consider the worst possible outcome, and then proceed to invest based on the Investor's suitable downvaluation tolerance size under the worst possible outcome scenario.

First say to yourself: "I am considering placing an important amount of money into a financial account. But before I do so, I must realize that I shall only be able to control only one of the four elements which determine the ultimate outcome of my financial account, and, that the three uncontrollable elements have flaws."

This Item-8 Section explains many of the present Risks that exist primarily in these three uncontrollable categories. Accordingly, it is imperative to understand them before investing or opening any kind of financial account.

ARE YOU STUDYING THE INFORMATION YOU NEED TO SEE?

Every investor needs to determine if they are seeing the information they need to see so that they are investing with adequate knowledge. To help you in this regard, study the following:

Questions to ask yourself:

- Is the investment offered through a Prospectus or Disclosure Document that has been filed to a monitoring Regulator? (The format and content of these types of reports are structured according to regulations and standards. But note that these formats don't always provide all of, or specifically, the information investors actually need to properly evaluate an investment).
- OR
- Is the investment offered through an offering document that has NOT been filed to a monitoring Regulator (a Private Offering document)?

Distinguish that regulatory-filed documents are subjected to a degree of inspection which can be heightened in focus when a prospective investor calls the receiving regulator for help.

Private offering documents should be studied with the laws that govern investment legitimacy being read along-side the offering. Similar regulatory-filed offering documents should also be comparatively read. As you should see, this is a complicated analysis. Most private offering reviewers do so at least with the assistance of an attorney. But note that attorneys can miss things and/or make mistakes too.

A part of Disclosure Document (D-Doc) analysis consists of numeric accounting and cost information. Typically, this area of information consists of Financial Statements and Tax Filings (tax returns). These numeric disclosure areas can be incomplete and/or misleading, even though they are prepared by following regulations and/or standards.

One particular significant area (significant example) is the U.S. tax filing for retirement plans and the Investment Trusts of these plans, which is entitled: the "Form 5500 Annual Return/Report Of Employee Benefit Plan" and its multiple "Schedules." Form 5500 assembles information into a Report that is formatted according to regulations and standards, but it may not contain information that an existing or prospective investor specifically needs. Anyone studying Form 5500 in Costs or other numeric areas may not find needed information, which means the investor must continue researching and analyzing other Prospectus, Disclosure, and private (investment-specific) composite data for answers. There are millions of investing retirement plan Participants who are looking at Plan investments, and Form 5500 is an important part of this published information. A practical suggestion for when an investor studies a filed Form 5500 (or any D-Doc) is to simultaneously prepare a list of "what's missing" or "what's additionally needed." With this list, the analyzing investor could be further guided by rewriting a filed Form 5500 (for internal records only) into a more complete draft containing the information needed for an adequate analysis. (In other words, write-up your own Draft Form 5500 to study as a guide). The investor must constantly think ..."What do I need to see? Is this D-Doc providing all that I need to see? If not, where else must I refer to, to get all the answers I need?"

In a study of Form 5500, refer to:

1. www.dol.gov/ebsa/faqs/ (for Form 5500);
2. www.irs.gov (Forms & Publications, Form 5500 & schedules); &
3. <https://www.efast.dol.gov> (Filings: Form 5500 search).

An investor studying a Form 5500 may find the following practical information additionally helpful:

- The Service Providers (of the Retirement Plan) are suppose to be disclosed in Form 5500's Schedule-C areas. The investor should first separately prepare a control list of all discovered Service Providers. Then, from the investor's control list, compare them to those disclosed in the Schedule-C areas to see if any are not disclosed in Schedule-C. (The important objective of this step is to truly identify ALL Service Providers). An investor would have to investigate the Plan directly to find this type of information.
- Prepare an analysis of who would likely have an interest in trying to take-over another Service Provider's work and earnings. Here, the studious investor is "reading between the lines" trying to observe motives to discern why some information may or may not appear in disclosure areas. Sometimes there even are motives within regulatory bureaus (refer to "Conflicts Of Interests Among Regulatory Bureaus" in Item Section 10 of this brochure). Investors (especially Retirement Plan Trustee Investors) must understand that, particularly with investments, there always are persons and places that desire to take-over the current Investment Service Providers work. And, as should be discerned, these motives would likely be of a "self-serving-interest" rather than in respect of the Trustee's established protocol. Understanding these motives brings enlightenment into those who study Form 5500, which can also help in studies of other types of Disclosure Documents.
- Find out who the actual knowledgeable preparer of Form 5500 is. This information does not always appear on Form 5500. Make record of the preparer(s) name, address, and telecom numbers.

UNDERSTANDING WHY THERE ARE OCCASIONAL INFORMATION GAPS WITHIN U.S. REGULATORY PROTOCOLS (the Form 5500 being one example)

The U.S. Treasury Department's publication "Circular 230" calls for integrity-assuring procedures to be followed in preparation of Tax Returns, but Circular 230 contains exemptions in Department Of labor (DOL), Securities & Exchange Commission (SEC), and Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) regulatory areas. DOL, SEC, and FINRA do have various further elevated integrity-assuring protocols. But since exempted under Circular 230, an investor may not see some of the DOL, SEC and FINRA disclosure areas in Form 5500 (in other words, a significant information gap). In addition, a Form 5500 reviewer must also consider the possibility of the Form 5500 having been incorrectly prepared.

Observe that government and/or regulatory rules determine what is and is not to be disclosed in a D-Doc or Report. Accordingly, some areas are disclosed and other areas are omitted.

Many times the D-Doc does not disclose what information areas are omitted. What this means is an Investor must figure out what's omitted and where to go to see the omitted information.

Regulatory bureaus sometimes do not cross-reference into each other's information domains, thus causing structured omissions. We live in a world of thousands of rules and regulatory bureaus. They are not all integrated and coordinated. The risk of significant information gaps is very real and always an issue to watch-out for.

WHAT TO DO

An investor who wishes to use Form 5500 as a document for studying the investments in a retirement plan, bearing-in-mind all of the above, could do the following:

1. Refer to each Investment Issuer's complete set of regulatory-formatted disclosure documents (such as Prospectuses, Annual Reports, etc). Take information from these disclosure documents and write them into the Form 5500 and/or 5500 Schedule data-fields.
2. Next, discern and evaluate the resulting information in comparison to what was filed on Form 5500. Pay close attention to information you found which did not appear on Form 5500 and/or 5500 Schedules. This will give you a deeper understanding into Investment Suitability determinations from the perspective of investing in a Retirement Plan.

Fundamentally, the most important thought-process an investor can apply is to first obtain a comprehensive understanding of what the investment is, and then the investor must list all questions the investor needs answered before determining whether or not to invest. The investor then makes sure to obtain the information that is precisely personally needed whether or not the D-Docs, Reports, etc provide this information. If any significant information is unobtainable, the investor then declines.

Methods Of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Loss Risks

Typical Investment Strategies and Methods Of Analysis Provided

- For Nondiscretionary, Nonproprietary types of Investment arrangements. Typical significant methods:
 - Individual security analyses are delegated to third party Professional Managers and Security Analysts.
- For Discretionary, Proprietary (trading program) types of Investment arrangements. Typical significant methods:
 - Usually, Broad-Based "Securities" Indices (BBSIs) of Unit Investment Securities (such as ETFs), Options thereon, Futures Contracts and/or Options on BBSI Futures Contracts. All instruments being exchange-listed (in actively-priced legitimate marketplace/exchanges). Both Long and Short positioning strategies are deployed throughout a wide range of industry categories. The kinds of Position and trading strategies that are utilized are also wide-ranging. Selection and use of particular traded vehicles is based upon opportunities encountered from emerging and digested data. Singular or multiple positions may be used in strategic events. Sometimes positioning may be in the form of "SPREADS". Accordingly, the Trading Programs are not used as a tightly-defined trading strategy. The strategy of Trading Programs is to have them wide in latitude to afford strategy-variation. Usually, a RTHCA Trading Program is not to function as a parallel to a benchmark.

OUR INTENT OF METHODS & STRATEGIES:

Please be in understanding that it is the intent of the RTH Companies to help you so that you have ways to control and thereby actually have a means to assure perpetual growth of your financial assets.

 * * REGULATORY PRELIMINARY CAUTIONARY STATEMENTS**

- Investing in securities involves RISK OF LOSS that every prospective investor should first be prepared to bear.
- Trading in Security Futures involves RISK and may result in potentially UNLIMITED LOSSES that are greater than the amount you deposited. Also, the risk of loss in trading Commodities can be substantial.

The RTH Companies offer a wide range of financial methods. The Risks disclosed in this Item-Section #8 are more-so relative to Securities and Financial Contracts (Commodities, Futures, Options) Investments, (Instruments, or Vehicles, etc), but some Risk disclosures are also relative to the Broader Financial Markets wherein financial accounts (FAs) exist. Any Financial Account Owner (FAO) that proceeds to execute an implementation through RTHCA, LLC (or any RTH Company) must first prepare a "Customer Suitability Statement" wherein the Risks specifically particular to the FAO are diagnosed and cleared for "Suitability." Within each "Customer's Suitability Statement," Customers/Clients prepare a "balanced" formatted table of each Account or Investment Placement's Anticipated Rewards –vs- Anticipated Risks with Tolerable Loss Magnitude. Therefore, the Risks disclosed in this Item-Section-8 serve as a first-stage, generic diagnostic review which FAOs must accept before proceeding to have an implementation done by RTHCA, LLC (or the RTHCos). These Risks are to be studied carefully and taken very seriously. Some may be controllable or manageable, while others are not. Those of material concern to each particular FAO are to be noted-aside and discussed with RTH prior to proceeding into any financial implementation with any RTH Company. This R. T. Hickman method of Suitability Confirmation also extends into each Client's/FAO's personal "Business Continuity Plan Instruction Letter." (Refer to Part 2B Brochure Supplement-Example Agreements/Forms area).

Each Investor must evaluate all Risks and find them as tolerable but also suitable prior to investing, including the ability to withstand potential "downvaluations" occurring within the Account.

With respect to Investor-Client positions in Cash (meaning Investors "holding" a defensive position in Cash or Cash Equivalents), all self-directing investors (not RT Hickman) determine the allocated magnitude of their defensive positions.

Material Risks Within Investment Arrangements & Strategies

- All "Securities" have Risks; they are inherently risky, including Debt Securities (Bonds, Notes, etc). "Securities" are not "secure." Also, they all have flaws. Do not interpret the investment term "Securities" to mean "a safe place to put your money or savings."
- "Financial Accounts" of all types also have Risks.
- Whenever you move your assets from your personal possession into any Financial Institution (see "Custody" in Item-Section-1S), Financial Account, or Security, you take-on Risk (Risk Of Loss).

At the RTHCos, we consider any and every movement of personal assets into any of these third-party categories as an Asset Owner's decision to take-on Material Risk. Every FAO must first resolve within themselves if the amount of assets they intend to place into the risk-bearing-relams of any of these third-party-categories is acceptable/tolerable. For example: if you (a prospective FAO) transfer $ _____ of your assets into any third party arrangement, but then you find they have locked their doors due to some form of financial difficulty, would you be able to withstand this Risk, this consequence? Would you find such a risk-consequence "suitable"? This fundamental Risk exists in all Investment and Financial Account arrangements. Determining if Third Party Risks are tolerable and acceptable is also a part of the diagnostics that all Clients must undergo in preparation of their own "Customer Suitability Statements" when they proceed in implementations through the RTH Companies.

Risk of Pooled Asset Components:

Commonly, (here explained with generalized conceptual wording), in some form and to varying degrees, FAOs use Investments that are "pooled" in their design. Every FAO is to understand that "pooling" designs and techniques can function in ways which, within the needs and objectives of the FAO, promote prosperity, or otherwise, conflict or distract from the FAO's prosperity mission. All FAOs are to be alert and vigilant in pooled-asset areas because some designs have proven to be very financially-destructive. The FAO is to understand and distinguish that RTHCA,LLC and the RTHCos seek to utilize methods which promote prosperity, and seek to disband from contra-prosperity components. The RTHCos apply this methodology into wherever "pooled" designs are encountered, or where pooled calculations or mathematics are needed or required. Within all implementations, our Charts are sharply focused on how the RTHCos handle and treat pooled elements, and even more-so how any financial third party-pooled areas could stem unsuitable Risk into our Client. It is important to distinguish that the RTHCos are not Maker-Issuers of "Pooled Funds" or "Mutual Funds." These types of Unitized Investments can be placed to you through the RTHCos, but, to date, no RTH Company is a "Fund-Maker." In other words, the RTHCos do not apply pooling-methods into the construction of "Funds" and then offer them as a Unitized Investment Fund Product to the public (see also "Risk of Dark Pool Effects" later in this Item-8 Section).

As of the year 2012, financial regulators have intensified their focus on practically all investments that are structured according to a "Fund" design (including non-publicly traded funds, which commonly are called "Private Equity Funds" or "Private Funds"). It is important for those investing in Fund-designed-investments to understand that having well-intended regulatory monitoring does not reduce or remove Risk. Be observant to see if increased regulation of Funds achieves increased transparency of Funds, or otherwise, increased techniques to seek exemptions from availing transparency. Generally speaking, the more separated parties there are in the structure of a Fund-type of investment, the more problems or risks there can be, and, the more transparency can be blurred. The moment you encounter one party serving in the composition of a Fund while excusing themselves under an "exemption" rather than making a truly good-faith means (necessary transparency) to answer your legitimate vetting &/or suitability-assuring needs, at such moment you should back-away from the investment.

Funds and Pools are further evolving into multi complex structured investment vehicles. Included in this environment are Derivatives and Synthetics, with many Fund or Pool compositions within computer-triggered constructs – markets wide. Complex Funds and Pools are increasingly being distributed to wide categories of Investors through many distribution channels, including Banks. When these complex vehicles work, they can arrange Investments such as Securities into better-enhanced upvaluation and ultimately-profitable assets. But when they do not work, downvaluation and ultimate loss can be far more extreme, even torrential. See also: "When You Have A Margin Account" later in this section. Anyone (directly, or through their Investing Agents of any kind) placing savings into complex Fund or Pooled investment structures are here cautioned to only do so to the degree of their suitable, tolerable, and ability to withstand assumption of potentially extreme Downvaluation and/or Ultimate Loss.

Risk of Well-Intended, but Counter-Productive Financial Regulations, Regulators, and Legislation:

Financial Regulation serves the "Public-Good." It comprises hundreds of bureaus and departments containing thousands of workers. Some of these bureaus have, by Congress, been granted with "legal immunity" (immunity from legal liability). The intent and missions of financial regulations are usually truly good. However, every FAO is to be alert and vigilant with respect to the effects that regulation could have upon each individual FAO. There can be severe unintended consequences, and some areas of regulation can be flawed or even corrupt. Besides "immunity," many (if not most) regulators issue "disclaimers" in their promulgations and undertakings. The risk of the financially destructive effects of Flawed Regulation exists in every financial account. Every FAO is to understand that when any assets are placed into any kind of financial account, the FAO decides and proceeds to "take-on" the risks of the potential destructive ramifications of flawed financial regulations.

Financial Regulations in our USA are constantly changing. They are separately departmentalized, not uniform, and in some critical areas, not coordinated. Some are very poorly managed and controlled. Some are grossly underfunded. They are more-so configured for "Law Enforcement" instead of balanced with "Financial Science" and "Financial Engineering." Sometimes ideas of good intention end up in mandated procedures which can't work in the real world. Fundamentally, "Form" is sometimes enforced rather than the good of the "Actual Experience/Substance." We have found that the best, usually most-experienced regulatory staff-persons are acutely aware of these issues, and the most-vigilant of them look beyond their "Forms" of procedure, to what is actually happening in the real investor-realm. Even if they have never actually worked in the financial marketplaces, the best regulatory staff-people attempt to examine the REAL consequential effects of applied regulation. They are vigilant to try to prevent unintended consequences before such unwanted unjustifiable damage occurs to anyone. Some financial market areas of our States and Federal-based divisions oppose a National Uniform Financial Code. The results of this "Separated Regulatory Protocol" are unintended consequences. America permits its people and entities to preserve a preeminent right to legally protect their own interests. America is not to configure "legal protection" so that it is out-of-reach of its Citizens, nor dangerously flawed. Accordingly, Clients/FAOs who engage the RTHCos are to understand that a very important Risk Management mission of the RTHCos is to perpetually endeavor to protect our Clients from the potential significant damaging effects of flawed regulations/unintended consequences (where visible/possible). We absolutely respect the Common-Good mission, but in ultimatum, the Common-Good of America exists from the wealth of its Citizens.

| Item-Section 8 | Reporting Date of this Item Disclosure Page: 3/2015 (within Brochure Dated: 3/2015) | |

Before any Individual or Entity opens any Financial Account of material size or importance, the prospective FAO is to understand the following:

1. Good financial regulations serve with the effect of validly prospering individuals and entities. Bad or flawed financial regulations present the Risk of unintended financially-damaging consequences — a Risk which FAOs must protect themselves from.
2. Regulations do not always remove Risk. Sometimes they increase Risk to the FAO. Regulations may call-for, but not actually achieve Suitability for the FAO. Serving a Client as a Fiduciary does not always remove Risk, nor assure achievement of Suitability for the FAO. Advanced-filed financial proposal data to Regulators does not remove Risk nor achieve suitability for the FAO. Sometimes regulatory procedures such as mandatory advance-filings of financial proposal data create safe-harbor for "special interests" (rather than for the Investing public) or have other Risk effects in conflict with the needs and objectives of FAOs.
3. Some categories or divisions within America's financial marketplaces have been granted the authority to regulate themselves. For example, Securities Exchanges regulate themselves (they write their own Books of Rules).
4. It is impossible to remove all Risks from any FAO. Having Financial Accounts or proposals requires the FAO to take-on Risk. The imperative is if the FAO determines the Risks taken-on are "Suitable." Taking-on unsuitable Risk is a form of financial self-destruction.

Risk of "Fiduciary Duty or Obligation" MISINTERPRETATIONS:

It is imperative for all FAOs to understand that in any and all places where "Fiduciary Duty or Obligations" exist (regardless of whether in persons or any kinds of entities, including the highest government authorities), Fiduciary protocols are to not be viewed as a means that remove Risks and Flaws. (It is usually impossible for a Fiduciary to remove inherent Risks in Investments). Fiduciary protocols intend to increase integrity, but fiduciary settings can also have the effect of creating new flaws and Risks. Buyer Beware: claims to fiduciary duty can be used as an exploitative device, commonly in "business-competitive" or "conflicts-of-interests" areas. More preeminently, FAOs must strive for their own particular Suitability Assurances. Further distinguish: a "Fiduciary" setting does not guarantee or assure "Suitability." A Fiduciary cannot assure "Suitability" as you, the FAO, would personally actually determine it. This Risk is to be most-deeply understood when any FAO appoints a Power Of Attorney (such appointments usually require a Fiduciary duty).

Risks of "Disclaimers" that are usually mandated for acceptance before any FAO may acquire a Financial Account/Financial Implementation:

Important distinctions:

Some "Disclaimers" are legitimate, some are not, (the RTHCos are not Judges over the laws of State and Country). Regardless, of far more importance is whether or not any relative "Disclaimer" is suitable and acceptable to you.

First, at the Financial Regulatory level:

Regulators use legal enforcement for compliance with their mandatory Books of Rules, while implementing and enforcing their procedures through "Disclaimers," sometimes even under Congressional granted immunity. Although this construct may be of good intention for the Public-Good, every FAO is here alerted: this construct (regulatory design) presents Risk to the FAO.

EXAMPLE:

Some "Disclaimers" of Regulators existing within Books of Rules/Books of Law present wording such as:

..."Compliance with State rules does not constitute compliance with our (the issuing Regulator's) rules"
or

..."Compliance with our rules does not constitute compliance with State rules."

..."Refer to State rules to determine procedures you must follow to be compliant with your State."

What these types of Disclaimers are actually saying is:

1. The relative Regulator requires your compliance with their rules;
2. The State (location of your Financial Account and thus your Rights To Your Property) require you to comply with their (State) rules;
3. If you comply with the Regulator(s) rules relative to your financial Account (or financial business undertakings), it does not mean that you are complying with your State(s) rules. The relative Regulators procedures have not been designed to assure and protect you from the possibility of failing to comply with your State's rule; and therefore the Financial Account you established could be within a faulty legal structure, and without a proper format of legal safeguards. Note that (in situations of flawed regulation) a State may be empowered to freeze, put lien upon, subject to automatic tax-withholding extraction, or to automatically take possession of your Financial Account (your property).

If a FAO (and also the FAO's hired Professional Financial Practitioner) is ever financially-damaged or quality-of-life-damaged by a flaw (or corruption) of financial regulation, the actions and resulting unintended consequences from the Regulator are "Disclaimed." Accordingly, FAOs are to look at the "Disclaimers" posted or promulgated in every Book of Rules that have application to the type of financial account the FAO desires to open, to determine if the potential effects, (this kind of Risk) upon the FAO are suitable and withstandable.

Some areas of regulations (compliance rule requirements) can be significantly detrimental to you. One example being unbecoming "exemptions" permitted by regulation in component areas of your financial account. In these situations, your financial account or investment, because of the regulatory-approved-exemption, could render your account unsuitable according to your personal specifications. This demonstrates a situation where, justifiably, you could consider writing to the relative Regulatory Commissioner informing them that you have decided to elect to undertake your investment situation on an unregulated basis. (This example meaning for proper, necessary, and legitimate reason).

Second, "Disclaimer ' within the Internet Realm, including all Utility and electronic provisional Financial Market configurations (including builders and servicers) therein:

These third parties transmit and/or hold all or components of FAO assets; they all issue "Disclaimers;" and many of them are granted exemption from being registered under a Financial Regulator. Accordingly, FAOs are to look at the "Disclaimers" posted in the User Agreement Terms of every primary and secondary Internet Realm provider facilitating the type of financial account the FAO desires to open, to determine if the potential effects upon the FAO are suitable and withstandable.

Prospective FAOs are to consider that the RTHCos have years of direct experience in developing methods to minimize the Internet Realm risk and the effects of web-based permitted (dangerously permitted) financial activities therein. However, RTH can only apply security-methods within RTH records and computers.

Third, "Disclaimers" within each prospective financial implementation or financial service of interest to FAOs:

Financial product or service providers ("Issuers") are required to (in documentary form) advance disclose their "Disclaimers" to all prospective Clients or Customers. With respect to RTHCA, LLC (and the RTHCos), within this Form ADV Brochure Document, at each disclosure item area or offering, we feature "Disclaimers." Furthermore, within each Client's "Customer Suitability Statement," where relative, RTH Disclaimers are posted. Third party Issuers (for example, Mutual Fund Companies) post their "Disclaimers" within their Disclosure Documents (such as in "Prospectuses"). FAOs must find every relative "Disclaimer" to be suitable and acceptable. Disclaimers that are not legitimate represent an exhibited departure from a "Duty To Care." Legitimate Disclaimers are rightly presented when they continue to preserve "Duty of Care" vigilance. FAOs must carefully discern this difference. Another similar Risk area of potential illegitimate use or construct are "Subordination Clauses." Similar caution and discernment is called-for in these service relationship conditions.

Product or Issuer-Specific Conditions & Limitations:

Similar to "Disclaimers," Investors are permitted to only use a Financial Product, Provisional-Facilitator, Custodian, etc only within in the Issuer's unique limitations or restrictions. These conditions can be so significant (severe) that an Investor may find it impossible to attain suitability (as relative to the Investor's needs). This Risk is especially notorious in "Fund" structured investments, unitized securities products, and insurance (such as Life and Annuity) products – even though these kinds of Issuers advance-file their disclosure documents to regulators. (The regulators review these "Disclaimers," and then permit the Financial Product to be offered and sold to the public even though Investors would find the Disclaimers unsuitable).

Risks of Third Party Issuers and their Offering Disclosure Documents:

Financial regulations require RTH to "vet" all RTH-implemented Financial Product Makers, Clearing Firms, Custodian Firms, (and any investment-component third party firm) prior to offering financial implementations to Client/Customers. Although RTH applies vetting procedures, access to needed information is commonly limited due to inadequate transparency. Also, RTH does not possess authority to mandate information from third parties (RTH does not have "authority-of-access"). Accordingly, the Investor/Client/Customer is hereby strongly cautioned that vetting is only a "best-efforts" undertaking at RTH. It is not a procedure to be relied-on for the removal of all potential flaws and risks.

Financial Regulators usually do have "authority-of-access," however, the Investor is to discern that not all financial firms advance-file their Offerings to financial regulators. Of the ones filed, regulatory Reviewers usually do not verify or place an "approval" onto the Offering/Proposal. In addition, other independent Reviewers that do have "authority-of-access" to the data of financial firms (such as Audit/CPA firms and Rating Agencies) generate information which is inadequate to forestall Risk.

No Client or Investor should ever hesitate to directly call any Investment Maker/Issuer for a copy of their "proof-of-advance-filing-to-Financial Regulator" documentation for any Investment Offering they are considering to acquire. RTH strongly suggests that you carefully conceivably study the maximum potential risk(s) inherent in any investment being considered by you, and to not proceed to invest until you have determined that you can suitably withstand the magnitude of the investment's maximum potential risk outcome (including the possibility of risks that can be unforeseeable and unpredictable).

| SEC Form ADV, Part 2 | Name of Investment Adviser (the IA): | RT Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC |
| | SEC File Number: 801-55905 | CRD Number: 107973 |

RTHCA, LLC and the RT Hickman Companies do not find the process of implementing investments, trading programs, insurances, (i.e.—financial placements) through the use of Disclosure Documents to be adequately protective or entirely reliable. The RTHCos now instead provide implementations according to a method of "Client-Specific Prescription." Each Client in each implementation prescribes (imposes) a "Customer Suitability Statement" and an "Agreement Document" (these documents being Specific-Prescription records between the Client and us). Although this Form ADV does serve as a Disclosure Document, without execution of client-prescribed Suitability and Agreement documents, this sole Form ADV is inadequate for investment or insurance implementations (including Trading Programs). Product-specific Disclosure Documents from Issuers also are not treated (at the RTHCos) as adequately reliable without the added RT Hickman procedures of "Client-Specific Prescription." Clients that opt to solely rely on any Issuer's Disclosure Documents when working with us, do so at their own risk. The RTHCos disclaim responsibility for Clients that base their implementation(s) through sole reliance on disclosure documents (without the method of "Client-Specific Prescription").

One RISK of relying solely on Disclosure Documents in financial implementations is the risk of omitted or distorted Material Diagnostic Factors. It is always possible for a Disclosure Document to omit a Material Diagnostic Factor. Adding to this risk is the challenge of each Client having their own unique suitability needs. It is not possible for a Disclosure Document to address all unique Client suitability needs. Clients in financial undertakings are to also discern that Filing Approval Desks for Disclosure Documents or Financial Vehicle Communications commonly enforce FORM over SUBSTANCE. Disclosure Documents may be legally-proper in FORM, but inadequate or distorted with respect to actual SUBSTANCE. Clients are hereby alerted that this inadequacy certainly does pose a material RISK.

Clients are to distinguish that when doing implementations with the RTHCos, RT Hickman strives for Substance OVER Form. Financial Disclosure Documents or Communications are to be viewed for the purpose of gathering "Identification Information" about each proposal, but with the aforementioned limitations understood. Clients are to further understand that Communication Documents filed to Financial Regulators usually bear a Disclaimer from the Regulator as to the adequacy of the Proposal. Also, Clients are to also understand that some areas of Financial Regulations EXEMPT the use of Disclosure Documents. In view of these various limitations, the RTHFC are dedicated to the utilization of methods of "Client-Specific Prescription."

Prospective Clients/FAOs, prior to placing funds into any new Account are here alerted to extra-carefully study the "DISCLAIMERS" sections within the Disclosure Documents of the Custodian or Clearing Firms that Client/FAO intends to use. Clients/FAOs should directly further request from Custodian or Clearing Firms the "DISCLAIMERS" these firms may have also placed upon the Client's Account Representative(s), Advisors, Consultants, etc. In all these categories, the prospective FAO must look for areas where Custodian or Clearing Firms may be seeking to disavow themselves from their inherent asset-holding and safeguarding duties. All financial firms issue Disclaimers, however some may be just too-risky or too extreme/ unacceptable to the prospective FAO.

FAOs are to also understand that Offering or Statement Disclosure Documents contain pass-through flaws and risks, some of which can be quite material. This is true even when advance-filed and "stamped," "registered," or "cleared" through a Regulator. Every FAO is hereby alerted: Disclosure Documents of any and all types are not flawless. They do not achieve specific Suitability for the unique specifications of each Client/Customer. FAOs are to also understand that in many areas of financial markets, Disclosure Documents are allowed to contain only what Regulation prescribes or permits, this further demonstrating why Disclosure Documents are not for achievement of Client-specific Suitability attainment. Furthermore, sometimes Regulatory-disallowed disclosures result in the unintended consequence of loss or greater loss to the FAO. In other words, sometimes an Issuer wants to include disclosures that would help to safeguard the Investor from loss, but the regulator disallows these disclosures. In situations where a Regulator sets into rule that a Client's acceptance of a Disclosure Document establishes Suitability, Clients are to understand that such pronouncement and procedure is only in service to the "Common-Good," it does not achieve your own personal Suitability attainment.

Beware of Terms or Clauses (in Disclosure or Agreement documents) that distract from your best interests

One example: "Cliffhanger Terms":

IF AN INVESTOR DECIDES TO ACCEPT A "CLIFFHANGER TERM," THE INVESTOR IS HERE CAUTIONED TO FIRST HAVE A STAND-BY PLAN OR STRATEGY THAT WOULD MANAGE AND PROVIDE PROTECTION FROM THE POTENTIAL SIGNIFICANT RISK IN THIS TYPE OF CONDITION.

EXAMPLES:

1. The investment Maker-Provider states in its offering terms..."When you decide to redeem funds from this investment, your redemption shall process through our _____ Redemption or Repurchase department (or division), which is responsible for providing liquidity (a ready market of buyers) for whenever you need to redeem. However, our Redemption or Repurchase department may suspend or elect to not process a presented redemption request."

- The investor is to note that since this Term does not avail a back-up or replacement Repurchase or Redemption venue that would kick-in if the current department suspends or elects to not process, it could leave an investor who needs to redeem "hanging from a cliff" (i.e., subjected to a Cliffhanger Term).

| Item-Section 8 | Reporting Date of this Item Disclosure Page: 3/2015 (within Brochure Dated: 3/2015) | |

2. The investment Maker-Provider leads you to invest through the internet realm, exposing you to web-electronic risks, while not providing a guaranteed and truly effective way to be timely and completely restored from such encountered losses or damages.

- The investor is to note that this type of Term or arrangement can lead the investor into moving funds to a high risk place, but without a means of timely indemnification if the investor's funds disappear. In other words, this arrangement could leave the investor "hanging from a cliff" (i.e., subjected to a Cliffhanger Term).

With respect to the first example, after the 2008 market collapse, regulators implemented Stress-Test requirements throughout America's financial markets. Since a failure to accommodate Redemption requests in an issue covered in Stress-Testing, an investor may look to this area within the investment Maker-Provider to seek possible assurances of redemption capability under Stress-Testing mandates.

BEWARE OF CONFLICTING INTERESTS IN LIQUIDITY PROVISIONS

Meeting Stress-Tests can tie up otherwise useable capital that might be needed to provide liquidity to Sellers. Stress-Test fortify financial firms, but can curtail timely liquidity accommodations to Sellers. Investors must map-out a chain to understand how they would get their Sell Orders timely filled even if their financial firm's redemption capacities dried up. Firms must present a reliable back-up protocol, such as instantaneous repurchase agreements or instantaneous asset conversion chains large enough to assure selling investors can always timely sell. If you do not see these Liquidity Provision Assurances, you could be left "hanging from a cliff."

Understanding these Distinctions, FAOs are hereby cautioned:

- 1. Do not take-on Risk beyond your own personal tolerance to lose money (assets). Instead, pursue ways of suitable perpetual controlled growth towards prosperity.*
- 2. Do not implement an investment or any type of financial account without first assuring yourself that it is suitable for you. If any presenter of a proposal attempts to implement an investment or financial account while trying to disclaim their responsibility (duty) to help you determine suitability, do not proceed into such a proposal.*
- 3. When a person of sound mind attempts to implement an investment or financial account that is unsuitable, a financial examiner (regulator or investigator) would consider such action to be potentially dubious.*

Material Risks of Securities, Contracts and the Financial Accounts in which they are Held

The substance of Securities (the component elements of which Securities consist of) are always changing in value. The depictions of what Securities are worth are imperfect. In the kind of placements &/or services that Clients acquire from RTHCA, LLC (see Item-Section-4), Accounts consist of Securities that are traded (bought and sold) on Exchanges. Values or price changes therein occur through real-time bids, asks, buys, & sells, including those which occur via the Internet Realm (through Electronic Communication Networks). The fundamental material risk to consider is this: you are considering taking a Silver Dollar that is safe within your pocket bringing it to a third-party-place away from yourself, and placing it (transforming it) into a value-volatile instrument called a "Security" or "Securities." Also, the third-party-place that you bring your Silver Dollar to (the Custodian financial institution) is made (capitalized) out of "Securities." Financial Account Owners are Investors who find this type of arrangement "Suitable."

Each kind of Investment features its own composition of Risks.
These relative risks are advance-disclosed in pre-placement types of offering documents
(a "Prospectus" is one common example).

Generally, as relative to RTHCA, LLC's Item-Section-4 offerings, additional Material Risks are outlined here as follows:

SOME GENERAL ELEMENTS OF RISKS IN THE PARAMETERS OF SECURITIES, CONTRACTS, AND CASH (CASH-EQUIVALENT) INVESTMENT PORTFOLIOS/ACCOUNTS

(Review these Risks to understand the marketplace Environment and Vulnerabilities which could pertain to securities investments)

- Business and Industry Risk — uncertainty due to firm or industry related factors.
- Currency Risk — risk that your investment could lose value as a result of a decline in currency value.
- Liquidity Risk — risk that you won't be able to sell an investment at a reasonable price within a reasonable time period.
- Inflation Risk — risk that inflation will reduce the real value of your investment.
- Market Risk — risk that the general market or economic environment will cause an investment to fluctuate.
- Political Risk — risk of a political change affecting the value of an investment (nationalization; new regulations).

When an Investor proceeds to open an account, the following "DIAGRAM OF PARTIES" shall usually facilitate the Account configuration. The Investor is to understand that the Risks of the parties in Category-2 and Category-3 (BELOW) are not controlled or directly managed by RTHCA,LLC:

TYPICAL DIAGRAM OF PARTIES TO CLIENT FINANCIAL ACCOUNTS:

(Bear-in-mind this network of serving Parties as you review the Risks of Investments)

CATEGORY-1 PARTIES

|--|-----|--|
| YOU (the Investment Account Owner) | AND | RTHCA,LLC (your IA/CTA), And/with (when applicable) RTHCCS,LLC (this entity assisting in reporting information to you each month). |
|--|-----|--|

FCMs/Contracts or Securities Merchants/Market Makers & Clearing Firms (with or without their affiliated Holding Firms and Computer Network Interface Provider Firms). Further distinguish here that many Issuers separate their financial-product-making function from their distribution function by operating these functions through separate companies. Distribution companies are commonly called "Wholesale Distributors."

The FCM's network, via persons and computers, are live-time-linked to the Securities and Contracts Exchanges. The FCM and its network are Third Party Firms. RTHCA,LLC and RTHCos are independent of the FCM and its network. RTHCA,LLC and the RTHCos are not employed by these Firms. RTHCA,LLC is permitted to route transactions to the FCM either via a Computer Interface Program by which the FCM permits RTHCA,LLC to download its Trade Entry Screen Configurations into RT Hickman computers (for RTHCA,LLC to enter Buys or Sells), and/or by RTHCA,LLC placing Trade (Order) Entries via telecom venues.

CATEGORY-3 PARTIES

The Commodities and Clearinghouses (via Exchanges), and Financial Custodian Entities (FCEs) qualified to HOLD and SAFEKEEP actual underlying funds or assets to positions of CATEGORY-2 parties for accounts and customers.

A Financial Account Owner is an Investor who finds suitable having this three-party configuration in his or her account. SPECIAL NOTE: There are government bureaus investigating areas of dissimilar (preferential, unfair, or illegal) treatments of investors and FAOs within Category 2 & 3 parties. Accordingly, note that this Risk (which can be substantial) exists, and, that not even government bureaus can stop it.

Counterparty Creditworthiness (Creditworthiness Risk): This risk also exists with respect to the Category-2 and Category-3 Counterparties. Investors are to study the Creditworthiness of the Category-2 and Category-3 Counterparties by reference to their published audited financial statements. Financial statements of Merchants, Custodian, Clearing, and Exchange institutions are disclosed at each of their web site addresses. A practical way to locate Corporate Headquarter contact resources for any financial entity is to go to www.sec.gov/edgar/searchedgar/webusers.htm . Investors are to remember and consider from the great Sub-Prime mortgage dilemma of 2007 that Financial Institution Creditworthiness Risk can elevate market-wide during times of market contagions. Investors are to remember that this Risk is dangerous enough to close-the-doors of financial institutions.

Risks Within "Defensive-Position" Accounts:

Money Market accounts (or similar Cash-Equivalent Funds such as Clearing Firm Cash Position Accounts): Money Market type of funds are designed to (or may intend to) preserve the value of your originally-invested dollars and any added/earned dollars by keeping them perfectly stable in value. But they may NOT be backed by any guarantee to ascertain perfect value stability. If a guarantee exists, there also are Risks within the provider(s) of the guarantee. An investor can look at the historical data of a Money Market in its Prospectus information in order to see how well a Money Market preserved past values over past years (usually, Money Market Accounts feature a $1.00 per share Net Asset Value, which historically has never changed). Past results do not guarantee what future results may be.

In investments and cash portfolios, the particular general Risk/Concern is that your investment can lose PARTIAL Value or can lose ALL of its value without a possibility or Probability of recovery.

Equity Risks:

Fluctuations in the value of equity securities cause the Net Asset Value (value per share) to change erratically. These fluctuations can be drastic from day to day. When an account is in the wrong position in a timeframe of unfavorable fluctuation, this causes a negative (unwanted) impact on your account. The Investor is to expect to encounter negative fluctuation experiences (downvaluations) when investing.

Potential Effects of "POSITION LIMITS" or "PRICE LIMITS":

The Securities and Commodities Commissions (via Exchanges) have trading "Position Limit" and "Price Limit" rules which govern size limits (quantity or price) of trading positions. "Limits" are decided jointly by these Commissions (specifically the SEC and the CFTC). "Position Limit" rules could have a restricting or limiting effect when desired total position sizes are disallowed because they exceed "LIMITS." In addition, "Price Limits" can also constrain the size of profit opportunities. It is to also be understood that the Commissions and Exchanges can change "Limit Rules" at any time. For a generic and academic understanding of what Position Limits are and how and why they are determined, you may refer to www.sec.gov/rules/sro/pcx/34-49451 a5.pdf, and to www.cftc.gov/industryoversight/marketssurveillance/speculativelimits.html. These limits are set first at the Commissions (commonly with participation of FINRA/NASD or other SROs), which are then implemented into and through all U.S. Market Centers/Exchanges. From these foundational Limits, FCMs and Floor Brokers then set their Limits. Please understand and distinguish that Limit Determinations are not a function of RT Hickman Companies.

Trade Execution Risks:

There are risks in "executions" of trades. Before you read the rest of this section, for further information about Execution Risks, please refer to: "Trade Execution: What Every Investor Should Know" at www.sec.gov/investor/pubs/tradexec.htm.

Trading Halts or Stoppages: The Exchanges through which your accounts (your Funds) are traded can be Halted or can incur Stoppages. In such circumstances, there could be inability to purchase or sell which could prevent achievement of portfolio goals. Another dimension of this Risk: Trade Halts, Stops, Unwinds, etc. applied by the Financial Regulators may be done with errors, resulting in losses or lost opportunities to you, the Financial Account Owner. In these situations, not only do you lose, but you usually have no Right of Claim for recovery. In these situations, filing of a "Protest" may not even be allowed.

Failure of Utilities Infrastructure: Trade transactions and delivery of timely information through the various networks of electronics, power supply, and telecommunications are vulnerable to occasional failure. Please understand that when a Market (Exchange) encounters a system breakdown, at such moments, entered Trades are (or can be) CANCELLED. Failures at critical moments could impede achievement of the Investor Objectives (systematic risk of No Fill or Fail-To-Fill). Also occasionally possible are times of "unlinked markets" within the resorting and providing FCM's interface system (wherein the risk exists of loss of accessibility to needed market sources for obtaining timely Trade Fills).

Securities Availability/Liquidity Risks: There resides a risk of potential significant disruption in position-fill availability. The investor is to understand that the conditions which comprise securities marketplaces is a constantly-changing environment. This environment makes it impossible to guarantee availability of securities, contracts, (or units), when they are needed. There can be moments in which all needed securities or contracts could be unavailable or inaccessible. RTH is not an Assembler of marketplace available securities or contracts, nor a direct-controller of the "Market Makers" (Market Centers) who are responsible for making securities and contracts available. Also understand that RTH is not a "Clearing Firm." However, in balance, the Investor is to also bear-in-mind that the Exchange Commissions do have in place MARKET CENTER EXECUTION QUALITY STANDARDS which these Firms are required to comply with.

Short Sales Risk: Short Sales are transactions in which your Investment Account sells Securities/Contracts that it does not own. To complete the transaction, your Investment Account must provide the securities to make delivery to the Buyer. Your account is then obligated to replace the securities by purchasing them at the market price at the time of replacement. The price at such time may be higher or lower than the price at which the securities were sold by your Investment Account. If the underlying securities go down in price between the time your investment Account sells them and buys them back, your Account will realize a gain on the transaction. Conversely, if the underlying securities go up in price during the Short Sale period, your Account will realize a loss on the Transaction. The Risk of such price increases is the principal Risk of engaging in Short Sales.

Common FCM (Clearing Firm) Limitations of Prices Provided for Trades Ordered: Clearing Firms do not warrant or guarantee that every Customer order will be executed at the best posted price. Some reasons: Inability to access every market to fill a Trade Order; other Orders may trade ahead of Customer's Order and exhaust available volume at a posted price; exchanges or market makers may fail to honor their posted prices; exchanges may re-route customer orders out of automated execution systems for manual handling (in which case execution or representation of Customer's Order may be substantially delayed); or exchange rules, policies, procedures or decisions or system delays or failures may prevent Customer's order from being executed, may cause a delay in the execution of Customer's order, or may cause Customer's order not to be executed at the best price.

Risk of "No-Locatable" Securities/Contracts to Cover a Short Sale: This kind of Risk-scenario could be as follows: Prior to effecting a Short Sale, the Clearing Firm must have reasonable assurance that it will be able to borrow such Securities/Contracts on Customer's behalf to effect delivery of them to the Purchaser. But if Clearing Firm is unable to borrow them, or unable to re-borrow them to satisfy a re-call notice from the Securities or Contacts Lender, then Clearing Firm may be required to buy-in pursuant to regulatory or clearing house rules. In event of inability to borrow, or re-borrow needed securities/contracts, the Clearing Firm, without Notice to Customer, proceeds to cover Customer's Short Position by purchasing the needed securities/contracts on the open market at the then-current market price and Customer is liable for any resulting losses and all associated costs by the Clearing Firm in making this Cover of the Short Sale.

Risks of Improper Valuations of Assets Owned within your Portfolio(s):

In owning a Financial Account, there exists an ongoing Risk that presented/reported values to the kinds of assets therein are inaccurate. The highest moment of concern about this Risk is when the Financial Account Owner Buys or Sells each asset. FAOs face a Risk of buys or Sells occurring at incorrect prices. Another dimension of Valuations Risk exists as Values are ongoingly reported and used as bases for important calculations such as attained profit or loss (performance), and, when costs are charged to a Financial Account based on Valued Positions. Every FAO is to understand that Valuations Risks exist in every Financial Account.

Accounts that contain illiquid, restricted, thinly traded, or private (non-publicly-traded) assets consist of a relatively higher degree of Valuations Risk than Accounts that hold "readily-marketable" assets.

RTHCA,LLC (and the RTHCos) have specific procedures in place which serve to remove Valuation Inaccuracies. Subject to the Risks and limitations explained in previous sections of this Item-Section-8, FAOs are to understand that all RTHCos apply "Best Execution" procedures, and, with respect to moments of Valuation-settings, the RTHCos photo-capture independent (third party) marketplace reported prices for use as a basis to corroborate Valuations in Client accounts. Exception reports and responding Protests are made into record if/when encountered. However, FAOs must decide if they shall tolerate the risk of possible inherently flawed, passed-through Valuations Pricing which can exist in any kind of Marketplace. One major flaw all FAOs must consider before owing any Financial Account is the risk of omitted, excluded, or flawed participation in the constructs of Markets and their published prices therein. Some Markets can miss inclusion of transacted market participant data. Some are allowed to be blocked-out or omitted. Some include flawed pricings and/or flawed volumes. The RTHCos do not own, operate or make rules for Financial Exchanges, Marketplaces, or Price-Postings. Only "authorized access persons" are permitted within construction-of-pricing-chambers, most of which operate through electronic (computer) configurations. FAOs are to look at each Price/Value Reporter or Providers disclosures of Assurances or Disclaimers with respect to the integrity of provided Valuations, and then gauge whether or not these portraits of Valuation Risks are tolerable, suitable, and acceptable. The RTHCos strive to work with assets that are readily-marketable and price-provable.

Risk of dangerous posted "Bid" or "Ask" prices or values:

Bad prices can be posted into collective data feeders, financial reporting systems, and marketplaces, generating the torrential risks of value distortions, falsely reported valuation levels, perpetuation of false volume participations, even stemming into systematic contagion. Market Trading Halts may not adequately protect the FAO from this Risk area.

Risks of procedural orders-of-trade-fills flaws and conflicts:

There can be procedural timing-of-processing (Order Fill) flaws; coordination failures, and conflicts through transmission venues such as Order Reception Desks and Cash Desks (such as Bank Wire Desks or Wire Venues). These components or venues are independent third parties (financial institutions). They are not within the RTHCos domain; the RTHCos do not control them. These flaws or conflicts can cause delays of Order Fills, which presents the Risk of unintended trade results. Generally speaking, FAOs are to be observant that this Risk is usually encountered in third party pooled environments.

Risks caused by "automatic corridors":

Regulations, regulators, and compartment networks (such as within Exchanges) can have "automatic corridors" which can have concerning effects on pricing and investor/trader psychology. These effects can cause risks which can diminish or defeat legitimate investment positioning methods and profit opportunities.

ADDRESSING THE POTENTIAL INHERENT SIGNIFICANT RISKS OF NOT GETTING ORDERS PROPERLY FILLED IN THE "BUYS" AND "SELLS" OF INVESTMENTS

Before any Investor funds any kind of traded investment vehicle, the Investor must first understand the Risk of FAILURE OF GETTING FILLS FOR NEEDED TRADE ORDERS. RTHCA (and the RTHCos) hereby emphasize that no Investor should proceed to Invest without first understanding this RISK, and further understand that when the Investor proceeds to do any kind of Investing via the RTHCos, the Investor does so in full assumption of this inherent market RISK.

Making or transacting investment positions requires use of available marketplace trading systems and methods (the Exchanges). These venues for executing transactions can fail or be flawed, thus causing unintended results to you, the Participant-Investor. When you proceed to open an Investment account of any kind via RTHCA or any RTH Company, you do so agreeing to accept ALL of the inherent and disclosed Risks and Cautionary Statements of the proposed Investment, the Custodian, Clearing Facilities, FCMs, Exchanges, and relative Financial Regulators. The Investor also agrees to accepting the "Risk Of Failure(s) of Order-Fills for Needed Trades."

All traded Investments feature the "Risk of failure of getting Fills for needed Trade Orders." One prominent example is understood in the two different types of Trading Program Order Submitters that exist in the industry: (A) the Natural Person Investor-Trader, and, (B) the Unnatural (inhuman, computer-automatic) Trader. When Exchanges and Clearing Parties permit Order Fills by type-(B) Traders, before first executing all type-(A) submitted Trades, type-(A) Traders encounter and bear the Risk of "Fails-To-Fill" (Fails to receive needed Fills). One way this failure occurs is when type-(B) traders consume the needed Investment Vehicle, which would otherwise be available (as observed in Real Time) for the type-(A) Trader. This type of failure can occur relative to Quantity (Volume) and/or Price. The Investor is to understand that when RTHCA is the provider of a Trading Program or Method, RTHCA functions according to a type-(A) Trading Program. The magnitude of an RTHCA-provided Investor-account encountering this Risk is relative to the effectiveness (or otherwise permissiveness) of Legislation, Regulatory Compliance Enforcement, and, effectiveness of Clearing and Custodian Party controls. RTH does not have any control over this Risk. However, (in contrast), those who pursue investing in type-(B) trades or trading programs bear an enormously greater Risk Type-(B) trades and trading programs can be invalid, and possibly illegal (regardless of how popular or widely-used). Type-(B) investors are to understand that Unnatural Trade Orders can operate in ways similar to an electronic horse race, rather than as a legal Exchange in full respect of property rights issues and similar elements. As type-(B) trades are Filled in ways which trump Exchange and Financial Market legal principles, participating Investor-accounts experience a history of invalid trades, possibly with most being margined and leveraged. As this occurs, type-(B) historical investor statements may not depict actual account status and condition. The type-(B) investor bears a potential Risk Of Loss that extends potentially far beyond the Nominal (nominated) account size/investment amount. For example, if a type-(B) investor had nominated an account size of $1,000,000., but then if at a later point in time a retroactive re-count of all historical trade fills becomes required to correct wrongly processed fills, with leverage effects (as example), the type-(B) investor could be called to contribute an additional $9,000,000., ending up with a resulting downvaluation or closing account loss of $10,000,000.

Another Risk similar to these "Type-A vs Type-B" example is the Risk that exists when "Out-Of-Publicly-Disclosed" (Dark Pool) trades occur in the same Public-Exchange-Traded investments being used by or for Clients. In this situation, the Investment Vehicle's Price and available Volume is affected (manipulated) by non-viewable "Dark Pool" trades. These situations present Risk to the Investor similar to that of the "Type-B" example. And, the Investor is to carefully consider that this Risk can come from Direct as well as Indirect correlative manipulations.

The prospective Non-Dark-Pool Investor is to understand: Only in engagements of when a Client hires RTHCA to specifically provide a trading method or a trading program (meaning, done solely by RTH) can RTHCA promise provision of the type-(A) "Natural" Trading Program method. RTHCA (and the RTH Cos) are NOT providers of type-(B) "Unnatural" or "Dark Pool" Trading Programs or methods. Accordingly, RT Hickman trading programs or methods are provided with the Risk of failure of getting Fills for needed Trade. Orders.

Investors are to distinguish that any investment a Client makes into any non-RT Hickman trading program or method may feature the aforementioned "Type-B" or "Dark Pool" risks.

Investors are to further be alerted that any disclosed information, rule or regulation regarding the integrity or quality of Trade Order Fills and Execution which does not address both "Price" AND "Assurance-Of-Adequacy/Legitimacy-Of-Volume and Availability," is potentially flawed. Assuring the integrity of only one of these two imperatives is inadequate. Such flaws can be enormously risky, and extend potentially beyond the amount of funds that the Investor intended (nominated) to actually have at Risk.

Risk of Dark-Pool Effects:

"Dark-Pools" are areas of financial marketplace assets where real time Value and Price validation data is blocked or omitted from the public or necessary market-participant-users. Financial Regulators may permit Dark Pool configurations throughout various kinds of financial marketplace assets, including Securities. These configurations call for FAOs to decide if they shall accept Dark Pools in a "blind trust" manner on the basis that the financial regulators can protect them from all material flaws. In such areas, the FAO must look for those who offer Guarantees of integrity -vs-those who offer Disclaimers and/or hold postures of immunity. The great Valuations Risk in Dark Pools is that without the entire participating price and volume components included in Real Time market data, Financial Accounts and Commerce proceeds according to inaccurate portraits (impossibility of entire validation). Since financial pools exist throughout the financial marketplaces, including under Regulator constructs or permissions, the FAO that proceeds to work with the RTHCos must find this Risk tolerable, suitable, and acceptable before proceeding with implementations. FAOs are to also discern that financial activities permitted under Regulation does not mean that the Regulator has actually and assuredly Removed Risk. Dark Pools may permit a degree of accessibility. Although transacted orders usually should be published data, some Dark Pools may gate-keep and/or require payment for access to data as it flows through Collective Data Feeder Systems. This presents the Risk of unfair timing of data-release-dissemination (an inherent systemic flaw). Although publication of price and volume data is an inherent fiduciary obligation of any price and volume reporter (which must be done in real time, at the same time, to the entire public), this fiduciary obligation does not remove the existing Risk of flawed data-release-dissemination.

Administrative or Accounting Dark Pool Records:

Similar to how transaction executions of trade-order-fills may reside within Dark Pools, administrative or accounting records which compose trades may also reside in Recordkeeping Dark Pools.

Some financial regulatory bureaus have rules which require accessibility or transparently disclosed methods or procedures into pool areas. However, where instead necessary information is concealed or not availed, high risk exists to the investor. In areas of inadequate or improper transparency, the investor must focus on those who have authority-of-access into areas that are in the dark, since these persons or places must be relied-on to assure integrity and provide true protection. Investors who look for assistance in this area from authorities such as regulators may run into the problem of needing the cooperation of multiple different regulatory bureaus which may not be coordinated; without the cohesion actually needed to help the investor. When this type of limitation is encountered, investor-protective regulatory assistance may not be possible.

The investor is to also be observant that improper forms of "selective disclosure" is a characteristic that is to be distinguished in the concealment of questionable Dark Pool functions or purposes.

When You Have a Margin Account:

(Introductory information points to Clients, Customers, and Investors who are interested in utilizing a Margin Account)

➤ Clearing Firms may use the Securities you own in your Margin Account to lend them to other Investors. Generally speaking, Securities Lending Arrangements are configured by provisional financial market institutions to enable real-time transactional liquidity and perpetual fluidness in financial markets.

OBSERVATION: If you own Securities via a "Fund" within a Cash (non-margin) Account, the "Fund" itself can structure the underlying Securities within a Margin Account (even if you would not have personally wanted to do this).

➤ If the Clearing Firm compensates you for the lending of your Securities, the Clearing Firm discloses this compensation directly to you in its Disclosure Documents (which may be provided via online (internet-reported) disclosures and/or via tangible documentary disclosures). However, the Margin Account Owner is to distinguish that Margin Account Owners are not themselves operating in business as a Securities Lender.

➤ Loaned Margin Account Securities, generally speaking, function through Contracts existing between the Clearing Firm(s) with counterparty Custodian and Clearing-Financing Banks.

➤ Your rights, and the promises or guarantees the Clearing Firm pledges to you regarding your Margin Account Securities are explained in the Clearing Firm's disclosure documents which are provided by the Clearing Firm directly to you (the Margin Account Owner). With respect to public exchange-traded and public market-traded financial assets, financial regulators and independent audit firms, via their authorities-of-access to this information, are the examiners of Securities Loan Agreements.

➤ Clients of RTH who possess Margin Accounts are to understand that no RT Hickman Company is a Clearing, Custodian, or Depository financial firm or institution. RTH is not a "Maker of Margin Account Contracts." RTH does pursue, and does monitor for Best Execution and Suitability; but RTH is not a Maker or a party to Margin Accounts and Securities Lending Agreements or Arrangements.

➤ If a RTH Customer/Client opens a Margin Account through a RTH-offered Trading Program (or Asset Management Program or System), both RTH and the applicable Clearing Firm (or Futures Commission Merchant Firm) shall provide detailed Margin Account Disclosure and Educational/Informational documentation. Furthermore, affiliated documentation (such as "Margin Calls" and "The Risks of Using Financial Account Leverage") is also provided.

➤ As with any and all investment strategies or methods, Investors are hereby distinctively cautioned to study the Risk Disclosures of Margin Accounts BEFORE using them.

Margin Accounts are usually opened in accordance with a "Margin Loan Agreement." Usually, this agreement requires you to pledge your assets as collateral. Accordingly, YOU MUST DETERMINE THAT YOU ARE FINANCIALLY ABLE TO AFFORD HAVING YOUR FINANCIAL ASSETS IN YOUR MARGIN ACCOUNTS SUBJECTED TO THIS LIEN (PLEGGED COLLATERAL) CONDITION according to the amount that you have decided to place into your Account. Furthermore, an Exchange's or Brokerage Firm's (FCM's) Margin Requirements are not to be interpreted as an adequate degree of safety constructed into your Account. Only you, the Account Owner/Investor are to determine what is adequate Risk. If you do not understand "Margin," "Exchange Margin Requirement Rules," "Brokerage Firm (FCM) Margin Requirement Rules," and "Leverage," DO NOT INVEST via a Margin Account. Before you use any type of Margin Account, be absolutely sure that you understand the magnitude and velocity of risk to you of Automatic Shortfall Covers computations that shall specifically apply to you. For example, if you have an invested position which was acquired in a margin account (which usually is purchased through borrowed or leveraged arrangements), and say you are obligated to BUY a security to be able to close and stop this position which is price-changing in an accumulated loss against you, (refer to "Short Sales Risk," and, "No-Locatable Securities to cover a Short Sale" in this Item Section 8) this type of loss-generating price-change experience would trigger Automatic Shortfall Cover demands. Assets (equity) in your Margin Account could be wiped-out (to Cover the accumulating loss position), but then also, further Margin Call Charges would be assessed against you. The magnitude of this Risk is that your entire Net Worth could be wiped-out, and in financial marketplaces which execute automatically, you could be wiped-out in seconds. Suppose this security position started at a $5.00 per share price. Further suppose that within a day, within seconds, its price rises to $100.00 per share. If you started with 10,000 shares (a $50,000 obligation), your obligation (within seconds) has changed to $1,000,000. And also understand from this example, if your entire Net Worth was $600,000, and you opened this Margin Account with $100,000, within seconds, your $100,000 margin account would be wiped-out, and a $900,000 Call To Cover (such as a lien) could be demanded from you. Your Net Worth would be inadequate to cover the $900,000 Call To Cover. In other words, because you misjudged the magnitude and velocity of Risk you took-on before acquiring this Margin-Structured Account and Position, in this example you would have entirely bankrupted yourself. Further understand and distinguish that if you established this position with a Cash Account, the highest your loss might have been is $100,000.

Margin Requirement Trade Execution Delay: A Transaction Order could be delayed while a Clearing Firm Arrangement (to the Trade) formulates the correct Margin requirement status. Such an action could distract from the intended gain attempted in making the Trade. There can be deficient or non-encompassing Integrity-assuring Probes of Trade-Fill Realms, including all simultaneous links therein. There also resides the risk of applied subversive probe technology applications, such as "Front-runnings" of Trade-Fills. Non-transparent (dark pool) trades are (obviously) a likely place for subversive probe application exploitations. Remember, not all trade-fill realms are 100% transparent and reportable for good (integrity- assuring) probe police-work. Accordingly, investors proceed to place their assets/funds into flawed or false price & volume market protocols.

Risk of Unregulated (Bureaucratically unmonitored) Core Component Parties: Categories of Core Component parties within Financial Marketplace constructs and configurations can operate within data-confidential and integrity-requiring (monetary) functions with exemption, exclusion, or omission from Regulatory oversight. This presents pockets-of-risk exposure to Financial Account Owners. (Some Examples: Utility Companies, Data Storage Companies, Facilitators of Delivery Transmissions, Technology Companies, Financial Data Provisional Companies, etc). The risks of these components may be impossible to predict or measure.

SELF-STUDY

A Financial Account Owner who wishes to comprehensively study Regulated Margin Requirements may do so by referring to www.finra.org, within FINRA Manual sections 4210 and 4220.

Material Risks Within Discretionary (Proprietary Trading Program) Types of Investment Arrangements:

In addition to the previous disclosure section of potential Risks within Nondiscretionary Investment Account types, for an initial orientation and consideration, the prospective FAO/Investor is to carefully read the publication-library document entitled:

"Risk Disclosure Statement For Security Futures Contracts"

by resorting to:

<http://www.nfa.futures.org/NFA-compliance/publication-library/security-futures-disdosure.pdf>

This document points-out various important primary Risk Characteristics which Investors seeking to have a Discretionary (managed by third-party) Account should first be knowledgeable of.

The Investor is to understand that the Futures and Commodities industry publishes various informative documents about Risk Characteristics. Prospective discretionary FAOs, before proceeding to implement a new account, are to additionally study by reference to: <http://ecfr.gpoaccess.gov>, within Title 17:

1. Chapter-1 (Part-1), Section 1.55
"Risk Disclosure Statement" and,

2. Chapter-1 (Part-4), Section 4.31
"Disclosure Document Delivery Rule;" and,

3. Chapter-1 (Part-33), Section 33.7
"Options Disclosure Statement" and,

4. Chapter-1 (Part-31), Section 31.11
"Disclosure RE: Leverage Transactions.

If for any reason the prospective FAO/Investor is unable to retrieve and read the above references, the FAO/Investor is to send a request-memo to R. T. Hickman at the facsimile# disclosed at the ITEM-1 Cover Page of this brochure. R. T. Hickman shall then generate these references and provide them.

Risk of Counterfeit, Malevolent, and/or Malfunctioning Structural Operations

FAOs are to always be alert to the Risk that providers of Financial Accounts could have components which function through "non-financially-registered/regulated" and/or even "counterfeit" operations. (Some operative areas could be devoid of integrity inspections). For Investors without knowledge (sophistication) of the complexities of investments and markets, this Risk exposes the FAO to monetary and/or economic losses, potential ID and data theft damages, etc. Furthermore, within these realms, there can exist unregistered/unregulated data-accessory, or data-reporters. Generally speaking, before FAOs place their monies or assets into any third-party-entity (examples: financial trusts, retirement plans, any "Funds" of pooled-participant-investors), the FAO must first carefully examine the receiver for possible "non-financially-registered/regulated" operations.

Risk of Diminishment, Distortion, or Eradication of the Component-Pillars of financial marketplace integrity

(beware of eruptions, increases, or unintended consequences of these Systemic types of Risks):

POSSIBLE EXAMPLES:

A nation can intensify financial regulations (a good change if done right, a dangerous/risky change if done wrong). One bad consequence can be an eradication of realms of financial industry participants (large or small) who actually were the backbone of integrity in the financial industry. When Participants of highest integrity are diminished, a financial industry of increased flaws and corruption evolves. FAOs here are sharply warned: initial signs of such evolutions are to be viewed as an Alarm Bell wherein the FAO is to consider withdrawing from such Markets. Regulatory-published disclosures to be wary of (in areas of material relevance to the FAO) might appear as follows:

"as we move to implement this new Regulation,
our estimates of its effects are imprecise"...
(and/or)..."but we believe the benefits will justify the cost of the resulting detrimental effects."

Further possible degrees of financial marketplace or financial government evolutions of diminishment of integrity:

There can be factions within these areas which are flawed, corrupt, or in misapplication-of-authorities; even though existing through a "legal" posture, but possibly under authorized "immunity" from liability of wrongdoing and/or cause of damage. When encountered, FAOs should here also consider a precautious withdrawal strategy.

"RED FLAG" EXAMPLES:

(NOTE: There are hundreds of possible examples, and, hundreds of types of authorities, bureaucracies, etc.)

- Registered or Licensed Professionals being badly damaged through atrocious acts of "wrongful detentions;" the effect being the removal of irreplaceable timeframes from the human career lives of good Professionals, without restitution or remedy.
- Wrongful Discredit: Years of human-career-life studies personally invested (in trust of the relative credential-authorities), thereafter being deemed "unacceptable" by an Authority (with the authority doing-so under granted immunity). Such cases have actually evolved, without restitution or remedy for the resulting loss of human career life and damages to those so atrociously afflicted.

FAOs are to understand: these types of occurrences portray very serious cautionary signs. THERE IS A REAL RISK OF LOSS OF YOUR ASSETS IF YOU PLACE OR LEAVE THEM IN ANY AREA OR TERRITORY DEMONSTRATING THESE KINDS OF SIGNS. If observed to be in a contained uncorrected state, FAOs should consider financially withdrawing from such realms (such territories). All investments in general should also be withdrawn (not only Financial Account Assets, but also Real Estate, Business Enterprises, etc.). These kinds of signs signal a potentially seriously dysfunctional territory or authority, particularly wherein Property Rights and Human Rights are placed at Risk. One should not place their assets into such untrustworthy realms. Such places can cause irrecoverable losses and damages upon investors.

FAOs should further distinguish: People or places acting under granted immunity are suppose to be acting under a Fiduciary Duty. (See "Risk of Fiduciary Duty or Obligations MISINTERPRETATIONS" in preceding section).

FAOs should further be aware: Acts of atrocities have constructively occurred in authorities empowered under immunity. FAOs should exercise high caution before placing their financial assets into realms where these kinds of wrongful signs appear. There is a Risk of becoming ensnared; therein, risk of irrecoverable loss.

Additional "RED FLAG" signs:

There can be places, conditions, or situations where a Legislator, Regulator, etc. is trapped into placing the interests of Entities ahead of Human Beings.

Emerging appearances of Risk when laws or regulations are implemented too slowly or too quickly. Also, when they are not prospectively beta-tested. Also, appearances of "legal maneuvers."

When implemented corrective legislations or Regulation fails to actually fix "the problem."

Where structured public-protectors can't see destructive or unintended effects.

Emerging realms of "Eminent Domain" types of actions. For example: if a country or bureau determines that its banking "Reserve System" has preemption over the assets of your financial account, your legitimate assets become at risk of possible suspension, or even degrees of confiscation. Note that these procedures do arise in bankruptcies. These risks can exists even within "Customer Segregated Accounts." FAOs must be vigilant to stay ahead of these ensnarements.

Lists Of Problems the RTHFC Observe in Financial Market Structural Legislative & Regulatory Bureaus

1. Flawed integration designs.

2. Delegations of functions to 3rd parties; Regulators requiring Delegators to still be responsible, but no actual effective Control (nor construct of means for actual Control) over what 3rd parties do (this "fast ball" seeming to always blow-by the Regulators). Also, Regulators possibly understaffed &/or incapable of fixing these types of flaws.

3. Regulators not disseminating nor effectively making available (ability or authority of access to) rules which must be complied-with. Some Regulations seeming to avail critical information only to Education Providers (or Continuing Education Providers). Result: systemic nationwide flaws and financial/economic damage to a nation's citizens.

4. Legislation & Regulatory bureaus placing their interests (their "turf") ahead of a nation's citizens rights and interests. And, use of a nation's laws/legislative system to construct "safe harbors" for these frameworks.

These weaknesses cause distrust in a nation that is empowered by Capitalism. Citizens distrust of Capitalism = diminishment in a nation's power (power for goodness).

Considering The Risks In Areas Where A Country's Public Welfare Resources
(Treasury, Sovereign Credit Venues, etc.)
Are Used To Influence Markets or Specific Securities Therein

Suppose a country decides that it shall curtail downvaluation or induce upvaluation of Securities or Market categories by using the power of its Treasury (the power of the country's pocketbook resources) to cause these intended effects. As a basic, simple example, suppose a country decides to purchase out of the publicly-traded markets a Security in a large enough quantity to influence the Security's price. The influence being that as enough shares are removed out of the total shares availed to the marketplaces, the value (stock price) then rises. (When demand becomes greater than supply, the price of the security rises).

As massive amounts of a country's public welfare resources are used in such influential ways, the owners of the subjected securities or marketplace-categories usually (generally speaking) can believe that they hold these investments with less risk than otherwise (assuming the subjected assets or strategies are not unknowingly defective, etc.). In this framework, there can be a degree of curtailed Risk with the benefit of an enforced upvaluation opportunity. However, investors taking opportunity in these trends must also evaluate the possibilities of how such support-methods could fail. Emerging signals can lead-to or ignite downvaluation, perhaps of great magnitude. In such cases, the investor must have calculated his/her ability to withstand such downvaluation. In these arrangements, generally speaking, the investor continually must monitor the credibility and effects of the country's public welfare resource (the country itself must be able to financially withstand its strategy, as in this example, its massive acquisition of securities). Country public welfare resources are not limitless. And also, the securities investor must monitor evaluations of legitimacy (legality arguments), and, the jurisdictional-strategic-change movements of domicile locations of such securities entities (and/or market categories). A country can change its rules or policies to combat the movements-of-domicile strategies that may emerge from business entities. One legal argument could cause a massive distraction from the country's intended results. One public welfare credibility disturbance could cause a sudden massive distraction. Slower moving distractions could also evolve such as a country's cost of debt-level rising to an unaffordable size. And, there are various other effects that can cause sudden massive distractions. Bear-in-mind that positions made from Public Welfare Resources are usually fraught with serious Conflicts Of Interests. Also bear-in-mind that the intended results of utilized Public Welfare Resources is to benefit the composed Public, not a specific entity or a marketplace's list of shareholders. Differing laws continue to evolve in the International network of laws. Furthermore, investors must realize that when it comes to the matters of the government, there are times when it will place its interests ahead of investors. Financial Account Owners (FAOs) and Securities Investors must understand that if they gauge the Risk they are taking-on in these market realms as absolutely-diminished (by relying upon the influence of the uses of a country's Public Welfare Resources), they could be posturing their Risk assumption, tolerance, and ability to withstand potential downvaluation upon a false sense of safe-passage. Investors are here cautioned to constantly monitor such positions and to have-in-place methods and strategies that would help them withstand the potential downvaluation effects that could impact FAOs and Investors from unintended consequences that can arise in these scenarios.

Note: Information regarding the above credentials and membership mission statements (including those which require qualifications to possess the credential), is most-properly understood by reference to the authentic web-site to each. Specific web-site references relevant to Investment Advisory Services are disclosed within this brochure within each relevant Item Section (cross-reference via Table Of Contents at Item Section#3).

SUMMARY DISCLOSURE RE: CONFLICTS OF INTERESTS POLICY OF THE RTH Cos:

The RTHCos apply procedures to control areas of Conflicts into configurations where the Conflicts are in the accepted or first interest of the FAO/Client — acknowledged by the FAO, and therein, functioning in ways to enhance or improve the interests of the FAO. The RTHCos Conflicts of Interests methods, policy, and "Known or experienced areas checklists" are located at end of this Item-Section. FAO/Clients are to review these areas of disclosure carefully, particularly those of specific relevance to the types of services FAO/Client intends to engage RTHCA,LLC (or any RTH Company) into.

ARRANGEMENTS/AFFILIATIONS IN OPERATIVE PRACTICES:

Robert T. Hickman is a Registered Representative and the Firm Principal of R. T. HICKMAN SECURITIES, LLC (RTHS), a separate company. RTHS is the Brokerage firm through which R. T. Hickman executes brokerage-based investment implementation transactions on behalf of clients. Should clients elect to use RTHS to execute buy and sell transactions, Robert T. Hickman will receive a portion of commissions on such transactions. Currently, accounts placed through RTHS are usually "Unitized Investment Securities" (UIS) types of accounts, and as such, are accounts of assets held directly within the Prospectus-referenced Clearing and Custodian firms as relative to each kind of UIS product. (Please note: this comprises multiple lists of various entities, each of which have been advance-filed to each respective financial regulator by each Product Maker-Issuer).

RTHCA, LLC does suggest RT Hickman Securities, LLC to clients:

Since Robert T. Hickman is a registered Firm Principal and representative of R. T. Hickman Securities, LLC (RTHS), RTHS will be suggested to the client for brokerage investment decisions and implementations due to this firm's brokerage experience, quality of service, and support capabilities which the client could work well with. RTHS is not a Clearing or Custodian Firm. RTHS is an App-S-Way Firm (a B/D Firm authorized to receive and process investment applications, which in all cases are then forwarded to Issuer, Clearing, and Custodian Firms). Commissions are structured according to Product-Maker/Issuer Prospectus disclosures. Pricing for placements made by RTHS is standardized according to financial regulations (since these placements are retail products, such as in Unitized Investment Securities, Annuities, etc). Products of standardized pricing do not consist of price Conflicts of Interest. The pricing structure of these types of products are advance-filed (by the Product-Maker/Issuers) to financial regulators, with pricings designed according to regulatory standardized pricing frameworks. Clients evaluate pricing relative to all services provided, and ultimately select Robert T. Hickman and RTHS on this basis. In all investment placements, RTH seeks relative Best Execution. Any price discounts by purchase aggregations are defined and instructed in each Prospectus. RTH procedurally does analyze Prospectus-defined Sales Charge Reduction and Waiver opportunities with Customer/Clients, with each analysis documented with Customer/Client pursuant to RTH Customer Suitability procedures. Applications-Way financial products in-and-of-themselves (meaning at the internal Portfolio/Fund Manager level) attend to Best Execution Aggregation Discounts (discounted transaction costs by bunching securities purchases), and accordingly, this Best Execution pursuit is not applicable at the retail level, and thus not under the control of RTHS/RTH.

For securities which are required to be specifically positioned by RTH within institutional Clearing and Custodianship, R. T. Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC implements the Institutions as prescribed by each Client/Customer/FAO, which are determined as suitable by each FAO within each Customer Suitability Statement document-set. FAOs are to distinguish that Unitized Securities Investments (such as Mutual Funds) configure Custody designs within themselves. FAOs are here cautioned to beware of financial institutions which in particular or even all configuration areas attempt to form Custody policies or arrangements which distract-from or disrespect the account-control-settings of you, the Owner of the assets in your account. Remember that the SEC has published its declaration stating that "the interests of the investor (FAO) are paramount." Sometimes Custodian firms attempt to install configuration policies or control settings which serve the interests of or within the Custodian (Custodian's shareholders, employees, etc.), ahead-of or in disrespect of the legitimate needs or requirements of the FAO. RTH's policy is to respect the FAO's legitimate rights to rule over their property. Please further distinguish that RTH will work with any qualified and vetted Custodian or Clearing firm that a Client may specifically want, if and when a sufficient amount of assets are proposed by Client to make such a configuration plausible, as relative to each Client proposed legitimate situation and needs.

When and How RTHCA, LLC, a Related Person (under common control) as a Broker/Agent, effects securities transactions for compensation for clients:

RTHS, LLC effects securities transactions for compensation for RTHCA, LLC clients. It is not mandatory for clients to use RTHS, LLC. Clients decide (elect) whether or not to use RTHS, LLC. Pricing is standardized for all FINRA/NASD Member Firms via Prospectus disclosure and offering rules in placements of Unit Investment Securities types of products. Currently, RTHS,LLC is not authorized to provide Clearing and/or Custodian services. When RTHCA,LLC serves Clients, services are provided for a Fee which is first negotiated and formally agreed with Client. These arrangements are formed in conjunction with the Client's executed "Customer Suitability Statement," wherein fee-suitability is confirmed. Refer also to RTH Cos "Ethical Policy and Procedure for avoiding Double-Charges to a Customer or Client" as disclosed later in this Item-Section 10.

Factors considered for selection of Broker-Dealer types of firms (Custodian and Clearing Firms) for Clients/FAOs are disclosed in Item-Section 12.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ABOUT ARRANGEMENTS/AFFILIATIONS:

Mutual Funds, Variable Annuities, and Variable Life Insurance (Unit Investment Securities): These investment vehicles, when distributed through broker-dealer firms, typically feature and pay a .15 - .75 basis point (bp) compensation trail. The investor should note that these trail payment amounts are usually disclosed in the Issuer's Prospectus-type of information, which means these disclosures and structured-payment sizes were advance-filed for Regulatory clearance. If/when a client implements these investment vehicles through RTHS, RTHS accepts and utilizes the provided compensation trail for maintaining and holding these accounts according to regulations within and as a Brokerage Firm Account. For purposes of these requirements, "maintenance" and "holding" consists of preserving file data according to numerous financial regulations such as securities regulations, privacy regulations, anti money laundering (financial crimes monitoring), etc., and, monitoring for continued suitability (Additional procedures are explained in the next section entitled: "How Financial Regulatory Frameworks And Rules Apply to the RTH Companies). It is to be noted and understood that Maintenance and Holding does not comprise Investment Advice and/or Investment Management. Investment Advice and/or Investment Management activities for all R. T. Hickman clientele is provided via R. T. Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC. For further information, refer to this Form ADV, Part 2A section entitled "Wrap Fee Disclosure Brochure." For further information about "basis point compensation" that is structured according to SEC Rule 12-bl, refer to: www.sec.gov/rules/proposed . In this area, specifically refer to File Number: S7-15-10.

When R. T. Hickman enters into an Investment Advisory Fee Arrangement with a client, compensation for services is then based on mutual agreements with client(s). For a thorough understanding of this arrangement, please refer to the R. T. HICKMAN CAPITAL ADVISORS, LLC, INVESTMENT ADVISORY SERVICES SCHEDULE OF INVESTMENT ADVISORY FEES document. Through R. T. Hickman Capital Protectors, LLC (a separate company), Robert T. Hickman maintains Broker/Agent relationships with various life and/or health insurance companies that are specialists in specific non-variable insurance product-types. RTHCP,LLC implements insurance transactions through Insurance Companies on behalf of RTH clients. In these engagements, RTHCP,LLC may receive an insurance sales commission from insurers whenever a client purchases insurance through the Agent or Broker arrangements of RTHCP, LLC.

Through R. T. Hickman Capital Consultation Services, LLC (a separate company) financial consulting services for Businesses, Individuals, Trusts, Estates, and Employee Benefit Plans are provided. These services are usually accomplished on a Project-By-Project basis, with fee compensation mutually-agreed with clients. These engagements usually commence from financial-consultative needs discovered from new client profiles, and typically become additionally necessary when profile data significantly changes over time. RTHCCS,LLC also provides accounting type of reports for RTHCA,LLC investor-clients.

Policies / procedures which ethically control "Conflicts Of Interests" are disclosed later in this Section.

Besides Confirmations and Statements which are provided to each investor and to RTHCA,LLC from third-party providers, RTHCA clients may engage R. T. Hickman Capital Consultation Services, LLC (RTHCCS) to provide accountings (accounting type of reports) to the Investor/Account Owner. These accountings are not "audits" of reported investment data and as such, they do not verify Valuations. These accountings are usually ordered (requested) by the Investor in order to enhance understanding of the investor's holdings through further report clarity, descriptive presentation, and analyses of results. These accounting reports do not serve to "advise" the investor, nor to "manage" the client's holdings, buys or sells; nor do they provide recommendations. Each client decides when and at what frequency RTHCCS accountings are to be provided. These accountings depict the data of "Portfolio Makers" and/or Custodians. These Third Parties are the originators of reported amounts and financial data. Should a Client ever request Valuation Services from RTH, Client would specifically engage RTHCCS,LLC (refer to the RTH document entitled: "The RTHCCS Financial & Estate Consulting Services and Financial Vehicle/Product Implementation Services Engagement Agreement," at Section D — Subsidiary Engagement Agreements). Please note that if RTH provides independent "Valuation Services," RTH may then not be a party-of-access (a Discretionary Trader) to the valuated assets since doing both would result in RTH not being independent (it is extremely important for every Investor to understand what this sentence means). An independent valuator validates the prices of trades filled, as well as assets held at each Custodian, to the Account Owner. This method of independent valuation provides integrity-assurance-protection concerning provided asset values to the Account Owner. Refer to the Risks described in Item Section-8).

With respect to verification of Account Values, all RTH Clients are provided with two "Self-Review and Preparation Forms," which Clients are requested to prepare and follow to guard their Assets, their asset-values, and to monitor for continued suitability. The titles of these RTH Forms are:

1. "How To Discern If The Account Values Reported To You On Your Investor Statements Appear To Be Correct or Incorrect;" and/with

2. "Client's Self-Checking Diagnostic Analysis of Account(s) Form."

RT Hickman does not send Account Statements to Clients in lieu of those from any Custodian.

How Financial Regulatory Frameworks (the rules of Financial Regulations) Apply to the RTH Companies and

How the RTH Cos Operate According to Financial Regulations

Client/Customer is to understand and distinguish that the separate companies within the Group of R.T. Hickman Companies are each subjected to specific Regulations and Rules. Client/Customer is to also understand and distinguish that RTH Companies have always conducted business on a Registered basis within financial regulations and regulated (subjected to on-site examination) by financial regulators. In other words, RTH Companies have not conducted financial business in an unregistered/unregulated manner. This is enormously important to understand and distinguish because financial businesses that have conducted practices in an unregulated manner have or have participated in the causes of the Year-2008 revealed results of catastrophic financial devastation. In references to specifically-implemented Securities/Investments placements, business undertakings (generally speaking) relative to the securities-related RTH Companies, are to comply with Nationalized Regulatory requirements such as those promulgated by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA); the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC); and the National Futures Association (NFA). In reference to specifically-implemented Insurance placements, (meaning, Insurance placements that are not defined as Securities) generally speaking, as relative to the non-securities-related RTH Companies; the RTHCOs are to comply with State-by-State Regulatory requirements, such as those promulgated by each State's Insurance Commissioner (each State's Department of Insurance). In reference to services performed by RTH Companies as a Certified Public Accountant, relative RTH Companies are to comply with Nationalized Standards (which are called Generally Accepted Accounting Principles) such as those promulgated by the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB). However, caution is called-for here because some non-national accounting Boards may posture themselves as a preemptive authority over nationalized standards. There can be high risk in some sub-national-sized territories which may be seriously deficient in intellectual, technological, etc. capacities as needed to properly and safely handle these imperative complex matters. (Placing assets into such areas can be a high risk). In reference to services performed by RTH Companies as a Certified Financial Planner, relative RTH Companies are to comply with Nationalized Standards (which are Promulgated by the Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc.).

Based on this framework of Rules and Regulations, and based on how those of National Government Authority have applied their respective Regulations into each relative R. T. Hickman Company, the Client/Customer is to clearly understand that when a RTH Company provides Communication Data to the Client/Customer about SPECIFIC (specifically identified) Investments or Insurances, RTH is required to follow public-protection regulatory procedures (according to each Investment or Insurance prescribed regulatory procedures) such as (and not limited to):

- Obtaining proving documents from issuers of Advance Filing Communicational Documents (proof of advance filing) from the relative Regulatory department as processed prior to such materials being available for provision to Client/Customer (the public); and

- Placements of subjected Communicational documents (including all specific letters to all specific Clients/Customer) into Logs for Regulatory Examiner Inspections.

The Client/Customer is to understand that these strict compliance procedures which are relative to SPECIFIC (actual) Investments or Insurances serve multiple public-protection functions, including endeavors to stop what could be counterfeit communications and counterfeit communicators. It is to be understood that counterfeit communications is, deservingly, one of the high areas of focus in the world of financial Regulations and financial public safety.

However, even though these regulatory procedures are in place, Client/Customers are to proceed with caution because RTHCA,LLC and the RT Hickman Companies (the RTHCos) do not find the process of implementing investments, trading programs, insurances, (i.e. — financial placements) through the use of Disclosure Documents to be adequate or entirely reliable. The RTHCos now instead provide implementations according to a method of "Client-Specific Prescription." Each Client in each implementation prescribes (imposes) a "Customer Suitability Statement" and an "Agreement Document" (these documents being Specific-Prescription records between the Client and us). Product-specific Disclosure Documents from Issuers also are not treated (at the RTHCos) as adequately reliable without the added RT Hickman procedures of "Client-Specific Prescription." Clients that opt to solely rely on any Issuer's Disclosure Documents when working with us, do so at their own risk. The RTHCos disclaim responsibility for Clients that base their implementation(s) through sole reliance on disclosure documents (without the method of "Client-Specific Prescription").

Before any FAO proceeds to implement with RT Hickman wherein Disclosure Documentation is required, the FAO is here alerted to do so with these warnings:

- All disclosure documents have flaws within them, and some may even consist of corruption. Some of these flaws are visible, others are not.
- Various types of disclosure documents or offering documents contain information that is based on what a Regulator permits to be disclosed, as well as what a Regulator does not allow to be disclosed. But yet, after this screening and gate-keeping, the Regulators disclaim responsibility. REASON: The Regulators know that all Disclosure Documents are imperfect and that these documents are released with flaws. This presents another reason of why prospective and existing FAOs are to not think that Disclosure Documents attain suitability.

According to these Regulations and special protective procedures, the RTH Client/Customer is to understand and distinguish that if a Client wishes to engage RTH to prepare work (provide services for Client) with RTH serving as a Financial Planner, such planning work provided by RTH shall NOT include SPECIFIC (specifically identified) information about the Client's actually-owned or actually-planned Investments or Insurances. RTH's procedures for implementations of Investments or Insurances are only provided according to the aforementioned placements framework. In addition to this important clarification and distinction, the RTH Client/Customer is to also refer to this Disclosure Document's section entitled:

- Procedural List for Defining the Certified Financial Planning Relationship (Engagement) with the Prospective Client or Client which is located within the RTHCos Disclosure Document entitled:

- FINANCIAL & ESTATE CONSULTING SERVICES and FINANCIAL VEHICLE/PRODUCT IMPLEMENTATION SERVICES ENGAGEMENT AGREEMENT.

Important distinctions (required to be understood and when applicable — accepted by Client) between Securities types of services —vs- CFP (or CPA) types of services:

1. CFP Fiduciary Duty pertains to CFP practice work, which is a separate engagement from financial product implementations at RTHCos.

2. Investment Adviser work is subjected to its own Fiduciary Standard, which is separate from the CFP Fiduciary Standard. (Refer also to Item-Section 8, at "Risk of Fiduciary Duty or Obligation Misinterpretations").

3. When RT Hickman does CFP work, it is planning work (meaning conceptual work), thus separate from and not inclusive, of Financial Product implementations, trading, portfolio management, etc, work. RTHCos Financial Planning work is done from Client's provided data assumptions and criteria; this work not being based on specified assets, liability, or capital as within the context of Investment Industry services.

Client/Customer is to further understand that the framework of Regulations that are applicable (and how they are applied by Regulators) to R. T. Hickman Companies may not be the same as for other financial firms. Each financial firm must follow their own Regulatory-Required framework as uniquely applicable to the kinds of financial undertakings conducted at each financial firm.

Cautionary Reminder:

Although services are provided according to Fiduciary Standards, Clients/FAOs are to understand that Risks still are present (refer to Item-Section 8). Serving a Client as a Fiduciary does not necessarily mean that Risks have been removed, nor assures achievement of Suitability for the Client/FAO.

Buyer beware: Unlicensed, or unregistered/unregulated financial advisors and financial administrators could be viewed by Law and Regulatory authorities as a form of counterfeit financial business undertakings. And please be further alerted: we now exist in a financial world that is "Internet Connected." Accordingly, financial Regulators are very serious about stopping financial counterfeiting of any kind or form. When no authentic verifiable financial industry credentials are presented to you, to safeguard yourself - switch to an authentic credentialed financial professional. Most financial regulatory (Public-protection) web-sites have a section which informs the Public about authentic credentialed financial professionals. Please discern that these authentic credential lists are not only to inform the Public about what these credentials mean, but perhaps far more importantly, to alert the Public to stay-away from the Unregistered, Unregulated, Non-Credentialed persons or entities that attempt to involve themselves in financial undertakings with the Public. This matter is so serious that Financial Regulators have been empowered to apply Anti-Fraud law enforcement provisions to anyone (meaning, not just to credentialed financial participants). But also distinguish further here that a Financial Regulator will give a degree of credence to credentialed financial participants that subject themselves to the rigors and qualifiers of financial regulations; but to participants that do not, Anti-Fraud law enforcement provisions could have severe application.

R.T. Hickman Companies (RTHCos)
Practice Policy Disclosure on CONFLICTS OF INTEREST
(A call for Integrity and Acts in Good Principle)

DEFINITION FOR FOCUS & UNDERSTANDING:

Conflict of Interest — opposing interests between the private interests (needs) and the official responsibilities of a person in a position of Trust. Private Interests can include personal relationships (close friends and family) as well as the objective to pursue financial gain (to seek optimized profits).

IS IT POSSIBLE FOR A CLIENT TO ENTER INTO A COMMERCIAL TRANSACTION &/OR A SERVICE
ENGAGEMENT AGREEMENT RELATIONSHIP WITHOUT THERE BEING A CONFLICT (OR CONFLICTS) OF INTEREST?

Answer: Probably not. It is not likely that there is or ever shall be a Commercial Transaction &/or Commercial Relationship in which there would be no Conflict (or Conflicts) of Interest.

EXAMPLE OF CONFLICT OF INTEREST, WITH REASON OF WHY SUCH CONFLICT IS INHERENT IN COMMERCIAL UNDERTAKINGS

When a Client seeks to engage a financial Professional for any type of Commercial Undertaking, the Client rationally seeks to obtain optimum suitable advice at a price that is perceived as an appropriate value to the purchasing Client. On the other hand, the Financial Professional, rationally, seeks to accommodate and accomplish the Client's mission, however, in such a way as to achieve optimum profitability to the Financial Professional (the Financial Professional's entity); in exchange for the work, services, talent, risk participations, advanced costs, etc... provided to the Client. It is not only rational, but of absolute necessity for the Financial Professional to work in effort for optimum profitability. And it certainly is rational for the Client to seek to obtain optimum suitable advice at a price of perceived appropriate value to the purchasing Client.

Accordingly, this example demonstrates that there exists a mutual quest for attainment of optimum value within Commercial Undertakings by both parties (the Client and the Financial Professional). This mutual quest is symbiotic, but consists of opposing interests. In other words, although there is a Conflict of Interest, it is not a bad thing. It is, necessarily, mutually accepted and mutually understood. We thus see that Conflicts of Interests inherently exist in business relationships, and are a factor to be attended-to (managed) through timely and fair negotiation. In the undertakings of financial consultations and implementations, Conflicts of Interests can sometimes arise untimely, and can sometimes exist without being known. Since managing Conflicts of Interest can be an imperfect process, the parties (in RTHCos opinion) should pledge a "Best-Efforts" promise to each other in attending to Conflicts of Interest. This pledge is necessary in service relationships with a financial consultant since financial matters mandate a duty of Trust. RTHCos engagements strive for Mutual Fairness and Mutual Trust. We declare this philosophy in our Master Services Engagement Agreement Document.

Clients should also be aware that Conflicts of Interest sometimes can be a bad thing. When Conflicts arise in such a way that they compromise the needs of either of the agreed parties, there then could be disadvantages. When becoming known, they should be promptly discussed; negotiated and resolved.

IN SUMMARY

1. RTHCos Clients acknowledge with RTHCos that it is synergistic to be in a working relationship engagement with the Financial Consulting Professional based on the PRINCIPLES OF MUTUAL FAIRNESS AND MUTUAL TRUST. (ref: RTHCos Master Agreement Disclosure Document). It is acknowledged that such a working relationship engagement is intended to be mutually beneficial to both the RTHCos Client and the RTHCos Consulting Professional. Furthermore, it is also acknowledged that undertaking without these Principles could defeat a well-intended service relationship, in trust, with a Financial Consulting Professional. (Financial matters mandate an established Trust. Mutual Fairness creates Mutual Trust);

2. From these acting Principles, RTHCos Clients acknowledge with RTHCos that the opposing and potentially emerging opposing issues ("Conflicts of Interest") are managed in a best-efforts process through timely disclosure and negotiation.

REMINDER:

The most important point to detect is whether or not the issue of opposing interests will cause a detriment to the parties In their Agreement.

If YES: Discuss and negotiate.

Accordingly, every day any and all Trade Corrections to stop improper effects are done as a part of calculations which compose each and every Trade. These protective procedures are applied on the day of trade for all trades. Also refer to accompanying Disclosure Document entitled: "RTH Procedures and Ethics Policy for Resolving Incorrect Personal or Proprietary Account Securities Transactions, and/or Theft or Misplacements Which Cause Diminishment to Client Accounts." 4. Where Personal/Proprietary securities or contracts are included, in every trade their effects on each and all Clients are diagnosed for any material improper diminishing effects. If detected, the Personal/Proprietary securities or contracts are removed (or unwound) so that Clients are unaffected or replenished. In other words, the improper diminishing effect is dismantled to stop impact upon each and all Clients. 5. The potential effects of material improper conflicts &/or diminishment upon Marketplace Participants in general are also diagnosed (such as if/when a large trade could cause an improper price-effect throughout relative Markets). - Contracts (including Futures on Intangibles and Options on Securities, Commodities, etc.);
- Insurances;
- Cash, Margin, or Apps-Way Only POSITIONINGS Accounts;
- Long Term, Short Term., Trading, Short Sales, Controlled-Leverage Contracts (covered, naked, spreads, etc).

8. Differing compensation sizes (Fees earned by R. T. Hickman) as applied to Clients do not cause improper Conflict of Interests effects because the RTHCos select Client engagements that integrate into RTHCos operations in ways which prevent the types of Conflicts Of Interests that typically (characteristically) would arise from differing Compensation sizes. For example, RTH employs a TYPES OF FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS conditional requirement in Client/FAO engagements entitled the "Minimum Amount Of Compensation Rule." This Rule enforces earnings-value-parity throughout all RTHCos engagements, in effort to diminish the conflict of "favoritism." "Favoritism" effects are controlled even in Performance-Based Fee Accounts. The RTHCos maintain constant vigilance in view of the fact that regardless of size or arrangement, FAO assets are of imperative importance to every FAO. Accordingly, every FAO is required to receive vigilant service-efforts. If RTHCos cannot provide vigilance, RTH will respectfully not accept or conclude engagement. However, Clients/FAOs are to distinguish that within financial Regulations, there are procedural areas of Order or Priority which the RTHCos must comply with. Since RTHCos procedures are financial-regulatory-based, RTHCos operations are controlled through the mandates of Regulations, but with techniques of professional ethics. This combination balances regulatory procedural mandates in an applied way of fairness to control the potential conflict of favoring one Client over another. The RTHCos do not improperly allocate investment opportunities among Clients/FAOs. Allocation procedures are designed based on relevant financial regulations. Also, refer to the accompanying Disclosure Document entitled: "RTHCos Ethical Policy and Procedure for Avoiding "Double Charges" to a Customer or Client when Financial Implementations are done."

Financial Industry Systemic/Structural Conflicts Of Interests:
(Beware of placing your Property, your Assets, into financial realms of high risk)

1. The insufficient coordination between government bodies, bureaus, territories, and self-regulating organizations is a serious Risk and an area that is concentrated with financially dangerous Conflicts Of Interests.

2. Beware of financial entities conducting operations as though they are territories, sovereignties, or financial realms that are separate from America's Constitution (or the imperative good principles of America's Constitution). This conflict and serious risk exists even within our own USA.

3. Areas where financial governing bodies or regulators do not truly clarify and make transparent their own Books Of Rules.

4. Areas of financial governing bodies or regulators where inadequately trained staff are handling very important financial regulatory matters.

5. Areas where Homeland Financial Security is flawed when Bureaus within this area evolve into procedures which put the interests of industry-segments above the interests of the Homeland itself.

Consolidated "Custodial/Capital-Reserve-Requirement-Intensive" types of financial firms commonly can have material structural Conflicting Interests compared to the interests of Investors/FAOs. There can be lack of effective and genuine separations between opposing interests, which can be a betrayal to the Investor/FAO. Before an Investor places any material amount of Investment Capital (Assets) into these kinds of firms, the Investor should first receive full transparency reporting of all directly-opposing configurations, and have assurance that all opposing configurations are reviewed for possible acceptability. If there are any information gaps, lack of transparency or cooperation, the Investor/FAO should avoid the Risk by not placing assets into such dark/murky financial areas. Clients/FAOs are hereby advised that where there is insufficient transparency, do not proceed unless you are willing to accept and be able to withstand the potential Risk Of Loss. Clients/FAOs are to also bear-in-mind that some imperative information areas may be withheld or non-existent for public or prospective-investor/FAO knowledge.

Summary of Conflict Of Interests among Financial Industry Regulators and Financial Industry Legislation

- In areas such as Homeland Security (which includes financial security), regulations serve the interests of our nation ahead of the interests of human being citizens/individuals;
- Sometimes regulations and regulators serve financial industry interests (financial markets and/or particular industry participants) ahead of the interests of human being citizens;
- Sometimes regulators serve their own interests (their own jobs, turf, agendas, etc) ahead of the interests of human being citizens; and,
- Sometimes regulators serve the interests of human being citizens ahead of all other parties.

And in the big picture, from time-to-time we see legislation ending up serving political, structural, careers, agendas, etc ahead of human being citizens.

Where interests exist ahead of the human being investor or financial account owner, there can be consequential disadvantages. These risks come with owning investments, and our nation has seen considerable loss to many from detrimental conflicts of interests. Investors are to understand that when they invest, they adopt this realm of conflicts.

Conflicts of interests are pervasive. The investor must spot them, control them, and make sure where they exist they that they are suitable and acceptable for the investor's objectives and needs. Investors must take action to make sure Conflicts Of Interests do not cause detriments to them.

RTH Procedures And Ethics Policy for Resolving
Incorrect Personal or Proprietary Account Securities Transactions (PSTs), and for
Theft or Misplacements which cause Diminishment to Client Accounts

RTH's procedure and ethics policy for attending-to and enacting correction to any RTH inputted Trade for reasons of potentially incorrect Personal or Proprietary Account included Securities Transactions, and detected potential electronic and/or false-documented theft or misplacements, is to enact proper and required resolution steps to repair the circumstance within 24 hours (or otherwise, by "Settlement Date" as required under the regulations that apply to the particular situation).

RE: Potentially incorrect Personal or Proprietary Account(s) included Securities Transactions (Personal Securities Transactions, a/k/a "PSTs"):

STEP-1: Within 24 hours (or otherwise by Settlement Date), RTH diagnostic procedures (which occur through RTH transaction-effectuating Blotters) first determine whether or not included PSTs did in fact cause any material diminishment or degrading effect to Client-Investors. It is to be understood that included PSTs can, also have the effect of providing benefit to Client-Investors. Also understand that an improper PST that nets a Gain, would likely call-for the Gain to be returned and reallocated to the includable Client-Investors. However, an improper PST that nets a Loss may not likely have benefitted the includable Client-Investors, and in such case, RTH would not act to reallocate a net Loss to includable Client-Investors (meaning, when doing so would place a diminishing effect into Client Accounts).

STEP-2: Next, if it is found that a material diminishment to Client-Investors occurred (which based on STEP-1 should not ever happen), RTH shall prepare a Diagnostic Document which calculates the total diminishment effect. RTH shall then, on a recorded line, call the applicable Office of Financial Regulator (NFA, SEC, FINRA, etc.) to fax the Diagnostic Document to the Regulator to obtain assistance of how RTH is to properly reverse (unwind) the diminishment effect (the diminishment amount such as the Gain Amount) such as by reversal or liquidation from the included PSTs, to then place this amount as a corrective replenishment into the accounts of the includable Client-Investors.

STEP-3: Contrarily, when no diminishment or degrading effect to Client-Investors occurred, or, when a benefit or enhancement effect to Client-Investors occurred, RTH shall then NOT execute STEP-2 (above).

| Item-Section 10 | Reporting Date of this Item Disclosure Page: 3/2015 (within Brochure Dated: 3/2015) | |

STEP-4: After an above STEP-2 type of correction is made, all Client Accounts and Personal or Proprietary Accounts are re-reconciled to ascertain that Investor-Clients were remedied (replenished), and the improper element in Personal or Proprietary Accounts was unwound to also ascertain these accounts being in a correct status. (STEP-1 accomplishes this same effect, but before Trades/Transactions are allocated or settled). Procedurally, RTH acts to complete this STEP-4 within 24 hours from the inception of the executed Trade event (or otherwise, by Settlement Date as required under the Regulations that apply to the particular situation).

STEP-5: RTH places record of improper PST matters into a PST violations Log. If reprimand is called for from the circumstance, RTH then enacts appropriate reprimand procedures.

RE: Detected potential electronic and/or false-documented theft, or misplacements:

STEP-1: RTH shall prepare a Diagnostic Document which calculates the total diminishment effect and which makes evidence of the event. When the event represents a theft, RTH shall then first, on a recorded line, call the U.S. Department Of The Treasury Financial Crimes Enforcement Network Bureau (FinCEN) to report and fax the Diagnostic Document to FinCEN to inform FinCEN of the event before any other party (as necessary under The Patriot Act, etc.), and to obtain instruction of how RTH is to proceed to (A) protect clients and the public, (B) to obtain FinCEN's advance approval and clearance to, on a recorded line, call the applicable Office of Financial Regulator (NFA, SEC, FINRA, etc.) to provide information about the event, and to obtain instruction of how to process this matter to Custodian Firm (wherefrom the assets would have been extracted): After (A) and (B) are completed, RTH would then cooperate with Custodian Firm and Client to assist in achieving Client's satisfaction of Claim for reparation from the Theft or Misplacement. Note that NO documents of evidence may be released without FinCEN's advance-approval. RTH procedures are designed to commence these remedial actions within 24 hours from the inception of the detected event but also within 24 hours from the inception of the Executed Trade event (when situation involved an Executed Trade).

STEP-2: If any corrective amounts result to Investor-Client accounts from STEP-1 procedures, RTH then re-reconciles all Client Accounts and Personal or Proprietary Accounts to ascertain that all accounts are in a correct status (supporting documents for these types of events would likely have to be routed to RTH from the Custodian Firm).

STEP-3: RTH places record of Theft (and possibly Misplacement) matters into special FinCEN Logs and records If reprimand is called for from the circumstance, RTH then enacts appropriate reprimand procedures.

End of Steps.

R. T. Hickman Companies (RTHCos/RTH)
Ethical Policy and Procedure for avoiding "Double-Charges" to a Customer or Client
when Financial Implementations Are Done

(NOTE: This disclosure document addresses the cost-charging policies of RTHCos. It does not address the cost-charging policies of other (non-RTH) firms. Non-RTH firms are responsible for disclosing their cost charging policies in their own Disclosure Documents).

1. RTH Client Relationship Disclosure Documents advance-disclose to Customer/Client, in writing, how RTH charges fees (costs), how RTH is paid, and how RTH informs Customer/Clients, in writing, of fee or commission charges that are paid to RTH. Before reading the rest of the disclosure-points in this document, Customer/Client is directed to refer to the Fee Disclosure sections of RTH Client Relationship Disclosure Documents, including Regulatory work and Procedures that RTH is required under Federal and State laws to apply to every Client/Customer account (work procedures for which RTH must also be compensated).

2. When a Client/Customer decides to acquire an Investment or Insurance product through any RTH Company, by Client's reference to any applicable advance disclosure Prospectus Document (which is a document made and provided by the Product Maker Company), Client/Customer is informed of the Costs that the Product Maker (Offering) Company will charge to Client/Customer (or subject Client/Customer's account to). When a Client/Customer's financial product acquisitions are "Load" products (meaning the Product Maker's charged costs are "loaded" into the product acquisition), the Product Maker companies usually pay a portion of their cost charges (or cost-subjections) to RTH. (Please distinguish that loaded securities-based products, per financial Regulations, are provided to Customer/Clients through RTHS,LLC). These payouts to RTH commonly are designed by the Product Maker in two ways:

- First, when RTH provides services to. Client/Customer to make the placement for the Client/Customer into the Product-Maker's financial company, the Product-Maker may pay RTH a one-time Commission (which in Securities-based accounts, commonly may range from as high as 6% (of funds invested) to as low as 1%; and which, in Life Insurance-based accounts, commonly range from as high as 100% (of first year policy Premium), to as low as 60%). What you should further understand when working with RTH is that since when you engage RTH to do work for you, you promise to pay RTH for the work you employ RTH into. When doing so, you agree to follow RTH's "Minimum Compensation Rule." Accordingly, when you send RTH into the work-project of implementing an Investment or Insurance product for your needs, and if after doing so, you decide to not make the purchase, you continue to be subjected to RTH's "Minimum Compensation Rule." Alternatively, if you do make the product purchase, and RTH is paid a Commission by the Product Maker, usually the amount of paid Commission will adequately compensate RTH for providing this implementation service to you; but if for some extraordinary reason RTH is not adequately paid, the RTH "Minimum Compensation Rule" would be applied. It is to be understand that in this situation, the application of the RTH "Minimum Compensation Rule" charge to you would not be a "double charge," because RTH, as a multi licensed and credentialed person and entities, must have a provable calculated basis for charging you in an implementation engagement any amount above the paid Commission amount to RTH. For example if as a part of an implementation, the Client/Customer requests RTH to provide extraordinary financial consulting services to the Customer/Client in conjunction with the implementation, RTH would document the Client/Customer's request and RTH services performed, and then report these undertakings to the Customer/Client with a Fee Bill. Please understand that in these situations, it would be the Client/Customer creating the Work-Order and Cost-Charges. Accordingly, these situations are not "double-charges." Please further Understand that due to the structure of financial Regulations, when Commissions from Securities are earned by RTH, this income is earned into RTHS,LLC. When non-Securities Commissions (typically for Insurance placements) are earned by RTH, this income is usually earned into. RTHCP,LLC. When Investment Management /Securities Management, Derivatives Management, or a RTH-applied Trading Program) is acquired by Client/Customer, Investment Management Fees are earned into RTHCA,LLC. The Customer/Client is to understand that these cost-charging policies and methods of RTH are always disclosed to the Customer/Client in writing. Accordingly, it is imperative that if potential cost charges ever start to look like a budget-difficulty for you (the Customer/Client), you are to effectively inform RTH in writing the moment you know that you have encountered a budget difficulty. Please also remember that with financial products that are "No. Load," the Product Maker does not pay any compensation to RTH at all. In "No Loads," RTH earns Fees that are charged by Fee-Billings to Customer/Client.

3. After an implementation is done for Customer/Client, and you (the Customer/Client) now have a new Securities or Insurance account (financial account) opened, the Product Makers may pay what is called "Trail Compensation" to RTH each year forward during the time period that your account remains with (at) the Product Maker's firm.

"Trail Compensation" for a Securities-based Account is usually paid to RTH in "basis points," which usually is calculated based on tenths of one percent. For example, if you (the Client/Customer had RTH implement a $1,000,000 account, if the basis points payment to RTH (as decided and formulated by the Product Maker) is .20 (two tenths of one percent), the annual compensation paid to RTH would be $($1,000,000 \times .002) = $2,000$.

"Trail Compensation" for a Life Insurance-based Account is usually paid to RTH based on an annual percentage that is applied to subsequent (year-2 and forward) Premiums paid to the Product-Maker, with this Percentage commonly ranging from as high as 3%, to as low as 2%. For example, if your Annual Life Insurance Premium payment in year #2 was $10,000., and if the percentage payment to RTH is 3%, the compensation paid to RTH would be $($10,000 \times .03) = \300 .

RTH'S ETHICAL POLICY and PROCEDURE
FOR AVOIDING "DOUBLE-CHARGES" TO A CUSTOMER-CLIENT WITH RESPECT TO "TRAIL COMPENSATIONS":

If a Client/Customer establishes an Engagement Agreement in which RTH is annually paid a Fee for specified RTH services (for example: "RTH is to be paid 1% annually based-on the specified $1,000,000 Account Value, which would periodically (say annually) be different in actual value (as the account rises or falls in value overtime), the annual compensation paid to RTH would be $($1,000,000 \times .01) = $10,000$. However, if a Product Maker was already paying RTH "Trail Compensation" Basis Points of say .20 (meaning on the same/identical assets), since RTH is already being partially paid $2,000 per year by the Product Maker, RTH would remove this $2,000 amount from the Client/Customer agreed amount of $10,000, resulting in RTH charging a net amount to Client/Customer of $8,000. Accordingly, the RTH Client/Customer is to clearly understand that based on this billing procedure, RTH avoids (removes) the potential scenario of "Double-Charging." Please remember: the overriding applied Ethical Principle and Ethical Policy of RTH charges to Client/Customers is that the Client/Customer, in advance agreement via written documentation, negotiates with RTH and determines with RTH the amount of cost-designs that the Client/Customer finds acceptable and agrees to paying RTH. In other words, it is the Client/Customer who decides the amount of compensation to RTH (which, properly so, is subjected to RTH's acceptance or declination). After this Client/Customer-decided compensation amount is set, thereafter, RTH deducts Product-Maker payments received by RTH (meaning on the same/identical assets) from the Client/Customer decided compensation amount to avoid (remove) the potential scenario of "Double Charges."

Respectfully, Client/Customer is to understand that cost charges of financial Product Makers usually must be structured according to Regulatory guideline sizes, then specifically set into advance disclosure documents (such as a Prospectus). Due to this structure, the financial Product Maker's published charges usually are not (or, may not be) negotiable (they are mass-published, menu-style pricings, and as such, it may not be possible for their Cost Charges to be negotiated). The purposes of Regulated structured pricing is to protect the public in these mass-distributed offerings. In contrast, when a Client/Customer engages RTH, it represents an undertaking occurring only between two parties (RTH and the Client/Customer). Accordingly, the right of compensation negotiation is offered to you (the Client/Customer) so that you agree in advance the amount paid to RTH according to RTH described methodologies.

Clients/Financial Account Owners should be in understanding that there can be improper ("Red Flag") reasons for underpaying as well as for overpaying compensation amounts to RTHCos/RTH (or any authorized financial professional).

Known and Probable Conflicts Of Interests That You Shall Encounter As You Work With RTHCos
(NOTE: This is not a list of all possible circumstances. Such a list is impossible to create)

- The RTH Companies try to conduct business according to a policy of not having Client's financial information transmitting or residing in the realm of the Internet UNLESS Client first directs (authorizes) RTH to do so (in writing, with Client's signature and date). However, RTH from time-to-time observes Financial Institutions (such as Custodian Financial Institutions) placing Client's financial information into the realm of the Internet without Client (Account Owner's) permission. Also, sometimes Financial Institutions do this in an indirect way by placing a RTH-copy of Clients paper financial documentation into the Internet (without Client or RTH authorization). Also, Financial Institutions may provide Client's financial information to a Third Party, with the Third Party then placing Clients financial information into the Internet (here again, without Client or RTH authorization). Client is to understand: RTH cannot control how Financial Institutions handle your data. This is a Conflict of Interests which can exist at any time Client places financial assets or financial information with a Financial Institution. If or when circumstances arise in which a Financial Institution starts to only issue and receive Client information through the Internet, RTH will continue to try to work with Client according to Client's directives in this matter within the laws of our Country.

- RE: Investments: Circumstances where Mr. Robert T. Hickman or Mr. Hickman's immediate family invest in the same investments that Clients invest in. RTHCos have the following procedures and pledges in place to assure you that Mr. Hickman's (or Firm employees) positions and activities that are in the same investments that you invest in are NOT in a Conflict with investments in ways that could result in a detriment to you:

Personal (and Firm Employee) securities transactions are diagnosed before and during each Trade Execution, ongoingly, in order to ascertain that no elements of these Trades occur ahead of, or in any other way more-advantageously or exploitatively, relative to (in comparison to) Client/Customer transactions. Any incidents discovered are documented and posted into an Exceptions Blotter. If a Trade Correction or a Trade Protest is called-for, it is formally resolved as fast as the speed of available information for correction is generated. The investor is to understand that although RTH enters Trade Orders, RTH cannot see inside of, nor control the operations that occur within Market Provision & Execution Operation Centers. RTH is not a participant in these execution areas of the financial marketplace. Independent Qualified Custodian Institutions hold all account assets. Each and every Account is separate to each and every Investor. RTHCos, to date, do not conduct Agency Cross Transactions (executing Client transactions, Buys or Sells, to and with another Client on the other side of the transaction).

Regulatory Rules, as they increase, make our annual cost and risk of carrying your account with us more and more expensive. It should be obvious that a Professional Firm must only carry sufficiently-profitable accounts. Businesses that carry non-profitable accounts are on a road to self-destruction. The regulatory burden is in direct conflict with the Cost size element of your account. It should also be obvious to you that very large companies that choose to carry non profitable accounts choose only to do so because they are gaining profit in some other indirectly-connected way (with your finances).

When regulatory rules are properly executed, they do serve to protect the investing public and to ascertain ethical and proper professional conduct and procedure. However, the amount, complexity, and all forms of cost charges and assessments by all types of regulatory entities, are in direct conflict with the Cost size element of your account. The cost of regulation, in whatever form or formula, is passed on to the buying Consumer. It is also important to note that when regulation work is done properly and in an optimum fashion, it usually is LESS COSTLY than when it is done incorrectly. Evaluation of this Cost Factor is not only measured in dollars paid, but also in application of procedure to accomplish Compliance (which results in being either efficiently effective, or inefficient and wasteful).

Compensation as a Cost element of your account: Financial Professionals work for their Clients not only according to the Rules of Ethical Conduct, but also according to a "Fiduciary Standard." This means that the work a Financial Professional does for a Client must be in the best interest of the Client (which, as a Client, is what you should want). The lifeblood which enables provision of this standard of the highest level of Financial Professional Services is Compensation. Compensation is the fuel that makes these services go on. Therefore, Compensation provisions serve the best interest of Clients. Disruptions or extractions of Compensation that are not ordered by a Client (such as payment held-backs by issuer financial firms, etc.) are in direct conflict with the provisional design of services which were constructed by the Client. Accordingly, as a Client of RTHCOs, we alert you of this conflict. Should any compensation disruption, reduction, or extraction occur which was not pursuant to your Order or Request, a conflict occurs against your best interest. And if this conflict involves monies in an account that you own, your Rights are paramount to any other person or entity. You are the ultimate "boss" of your account. No one is to conflict with your Orders, as relative to your assets, and your rights to decide how you operate your financial asset matters.

An example comprehensive-disclosure-design Prospectus Receipt Form is attached to this SEC Form ADV, Part-2. If you are an Investment Client of R.T. Hickman, you are to study all of SEC Form ADV-2. Within the Prospectus Receipt Form, in the areas of Costs and Compensation, you will learn about how the Compensation design(s) and amount(s) that you Order to structure for payment to RTH, could come into conflict with Regulator(s) if they attempt to change(lessen) your chosen and designed Compensation amount, and thus cause a Conflict that could be counter to our agreed Compensation Arrangement. Please understand here: The SEC has formally published, as a Rule Declaration, the "the interest of the Investor is paramount to any other Interest."

Another dimension to Conflicts of Interests in application of Regulations and Ethical Conduct is in how a financial services person provides services to you. R.T. Hickman serves Clientele as a Professional Practitioner (a Professional in Public Practice). R.T. Hickman does not serve as a Salesperson or Product Distributor. Regulatory conflicts arise when regulatory rules are formed to control the behavior and methods of product sellers and distributors, but in which these rules or regulations are not adapted to operate to accommodate the relationship between the Client-Investor and the client's Financial Professional. As previously explained, a Client usually has an extremely important working relationship

Agreement with his/her Financial Professional, with a very important part of that Agreement being provision of Compensation to the Financial Professional. If investment or insurance regulatory rules come into Conflict with a Client's compensation provision to their Financial Professional, the Client is to understand that the SEC's position is that "the interest of the Investor is paramount to any other Interest."

- Information Created and/or Conducted From Computer Systems of Third Party (non-RTHCos) entities:

It must be understood that when any third party computer system functions for you (your account, or for any of your assets) in any way, including any and all Internet functions, these functions are not activities of RTHCos. The RTHCos do not have direct control over third party computer systems. If you believe that we can call an Entity and direct the functions of their computers, it is simply not true. In fact, we have found that highest level corporate Officers have not been able to manage inappropriate computer functions (in the company they run). Accordingly, RTHCos disclaim any and all responsibility to all third party computer system functions.

This potential dilemma faces us all. It further emphasizes why we (the RTHCos) require our Clients to acknowledge their responsibility in our working relationship that every Client must timely read all report and any literature data that is issued to them. Computers can malfunction, which demonstrates another significant reason of why all RTHCos Clients must timely, ongoingly, read their information. For further information on this subject, please refer to RTHCos master Services Engagement Agreement.

-Special "High Concern" Conflicts Of Interest Pertaining To Investments;
 -Financial Industry Areas Calling for Your Cautious Watch and Heightened Guard;
 and
 -How R.T. Hickman Provides Ethical Conduct and Management In These "High Concern"
 Conflicting Circumstances

1. Personal Trading and Personal Business Undertakings by RTHCos Investment Advisory Personnel:

A) Personal SECURITIES transactions and categories of ownership of RTHCos personnel, and the direct family of Robert T. Hickman;

B) Personal business undertakings of Robert T. Hickman which have or could have relevance to RTHCA,LLC investment advisory or management services provided to investing Clientele.

These activities are monitored daily. All transactions are required to be performed according to a procedure of "Best Execution." Also, RTHCos follow a credo of watching-out for any unfair value dilution effects or methods upon Client holdings and accounts. All methods, procedures, and activities proceed according to a vigilant mindset of valid purpose for investors, our Clients, the marketplace, and proper Firm undertakings.

2. RTHCos prohibit using nonpublic, private business information which could be encountered in Client data, some of which could even be "INSIDE INFORMATION," within the context of Securities Investing and/or Trading. RTHCos view such efforts as a distortion of fair market pricing, which causes negative dilutive effects to all securities holders. RTHCos monitor activities to prevent such abuses.

Regulators monitor and have monitored personal financial information of Robert T. Hickman:

Although Personal Securities data of Robert T. Hickman and/or Hickman family is of a necessary protected confidential nature, prohibited from disclosure to the Public, such data is permitted for viewing by secured, monitored, special government/regulator appointed and authorized persons who are also responsible to conduct their work according to a Fiduciary Standard. The Fiduciary Standard serves to protect integrity to all of us. It is to be particularly noted that a part of the role of a Fiduciary is to ascertain Data Privacy Protection.

3. Circumventions of the Financial "Fiduciary Process:"

Your Investment Adviser serves you according to a Fiduciary Standard. As a Professional Financial Practitioner, a Fiduciary Process directs the way in which Client work is done. This process can be circumvented (knocked-off-track) when Clients communicate with others about their finances without including R.T. Hickman in these strategic sessions. The rule at RTHCos is that before you discuss your RTH-engaged financial matters with anyone or any place else, you are to provide this information to RTHCos on RTHCos's List of Other "Trusted Persons" Form (refer to your RTHCos "Services Engagement Agreement"). These people or places become a part of the basis of your decisions. If anyone or any place (Accountant, Attorney, Banker, Broker, Insurance Agent, or any other person who you trust enough to ask) refuses (disagrees with you) to disclosure entry onto your RTHCos List of Other "Trusted Persons" Form, and if you work with them (which you have the Right to do), this results in a circumvention of the Fiduciary Process. This is a Conflict of Interests. If a Client does this, they are then acting outside of the Terms of our (the RTHCos) Services Agreement. And it is to be understood that the person or place you are "trusting" is conducting services in a way which circumvents the Fiduciary Process.

One simple, but very important Rule to remember regarding Investment Portfolio Accounts is:

Two different parties should not be positioning a portfolio account at the same time. Conflicting positioning decisions will destroy a Portfolio.

4. Distinguishing responsibility and potential Conflicts of Interest relative to:

- Who the actual Creator, Maker, Operator, and Provider (CMOP) of the Financial Product is; and
- If the CMOP makes available its financial product through a separate division or entity, which are commonly called "Distributors" and/or "Wholesalers": DO THESE SEPARATE DIVISIONS EXIST TO IMPROVE OR BETTER-COMPLY WITH FIDUCIARY PROCESS (Fiduciary Methodology), or, DO THESE SEPARATE DIVISIONS EXIST TO MOVE-AWAY FROM, AVOID, OR CIRCUMVENT FIDUCIARY PROCESS? and
- If the CMOP makes available its financial product through a separate division or entity, does this arrangement serve to improve the CMOP's attendance to responsibilities to the Investor and the Investor's Consultants, or, does the separate division arrangement function to erode or obviate (distract) attendance to fulfillment of responsibilities which pertain to these precious accounts?

The actual day-to-day functions of these provisional facilities must be fulfilling and not deflective. Deflections of responsibilities which are duties and provisions of the financial product Creator-Maker cause improper Conflicts Of Interest.

It is to be understood by the reader that if a CMOP, Distributor, or Wholesaler avoids Fiduciary Methodologies of attendance to their functions and provisions relative to your account (your account includes the needs of your engaged assisting Financial Consultant), there exists a Conflict Of Interests. CMOPs may posture themselves by stating that their Primary duty is to their Shareholders. If Shareholder Boards do not enforce responsible attendance to their customers which are financial asset accounts, the reader is to understand there then exists a Conflict Of Interests.

Attendance to execution of Client Transactions is another area where operations are divided into separate company entities in such ways where Conflicts Of Interest exist. For example, Introducing and Clearing Firms in which Client required Transactions (Trades) are executed, which are done through Computer Trading Platforms, commonly separate the Computer Providing Platform entity from the Introducing and Clearing Securities Firms. In addition, the Investor is required to hold all of these separated firms Harmless. This is a prevalent Conflict Of Interests. The Investor seeks responsible handling of these core and necessary functions, however the Trading Provisional firms stipulate separations of responsible parties of a common or affiliated group, and being held harmless. Without practical alternatives, these Conflicts Of Interests are inevitably encountered. The investor is to also bear in mind that the operation of filling Transaction Orders, as within these order filling entities, is not suppose to be a place of operation in which the Investor is granted insurance protection or guarantees. When Trades are filled, there is not a guaranteed outcome. However, trades should be processed and filled in accordance with a Fiduciary Duty protocol within all parties and components executing the trade-fills.

The reader is to also understand that it is difficult and sometimes impossible to discern these types of Conflicts Of Interest. They are not always disclosed in writing. They are encountered as functions of entities are experienced by Investors and their Financial Consultants. And adding to this opaqueness is the fact that protocols and missions of Provisional Entities do change over time, including Mergers, Acquisitions, Spinoffs, etc. The reader is to understand that these types of Conflicts Of Interests can unknowingly evolve during your financial account experience.

The reader is to also understand that this area of Conflicts Of Interests has important application to Self-Regulating-Organizations (SROs), and also to Sponsors and Trustees of Retirement Plan Investments who may function in-concert with Financial Product Maker-Providers.

The Client is to be informed that the SECs position is that "the interests of the Investor is paramount to any other interest." Restated for the employee:

"The interests of the Employee-Investor is paramount to any other Interest."

When RTH attempts to help you with your financial account, if the CMOP only makes available staff without authority to attend to your needs or resolve your issues, without allowing you or RTH to have access to people with actual authority over your account at the CMOP, this can create a situation of being "stuck" without a solution. This is another Conflict Of Interests scenario. Truly accommodating financial product makers (CMOPs) will make every proper effort to resolve issues, doing so with respect of RTH's mediating position, and having persons of authority availing themselves to you and RTH. Client is to understand that RTH does not have "special powers" to direct what CMOPs do or don't do. CMOPs can even decide to shut-down provisions or services to RTH. Also bear in mind that CMOPs many times reorganize, merge, spin-off, etc. Corporate policies, departments, and service then changes for better or worse. Client is to be aware that these unforeseeable evolutions come with having a financial account at a financial institution.

As of 2004, it became encouraging to see certain regulatory bodies attempting to clarify, by mandate, disclosure of some of these types of information items. The RTHCOs believe that a national standardized presentation format is necessary, which provides all financial account owners and their Consultants a clear picture of who is responsible to enforce proper attendance in these matters (who, where, what, and how).

The Financial Account Owner is to clearly understand: Regardless of who is showing a financial product to you, what a financial product does and how it functions is an invention of the person or place that made the product, and of those who actually operate the product. If you purchase a product directly (without anyone else showing it to you), if the product does not do what it was made to do, nor what it discloses it shall or should do, it is the Maker and/or Operator who bears responsibility. This is another reason why Congress requires every Investor-Buyer to read the Prospectus. The Prospectus is the Product Maker(s) and Operator(s) DISCLOSURE DOCUMENT to you. In other words, the Prospectus is the designated document in which the Product Maker is speaking directly to you, the Buyer-Consumer.

Further Cautious Watch and Heightened Guard:

Some financial implementations require that you first have prepared (by a qualified relevantly-specialized Attorney) formal legal documents which clearly structure (according to the applicable requirements of law) Matters such as Property Ownership Rights and Property Functional Rights and Purposes. For example, a Retirement Plan, or, financial assets owned and operated within a Trust, are types of accounts that commonly require formative Legal Documents to first be drafted BEFORE financial implementations for these types of Accounts can be done. Here is where a Client/Customer and the Client/Customer's attorney may ask the Financial Product-Maker Company for legal help. But if the Financial Product-Maker Company (directly or indirectly) provides the methods for your attorney to draft your Legal Documents, a Conflict Of Interests arises because your legal documents become an implementation formed for you from the Financial Product-Making Company where you wish to purchase your financial product from. Your concern here is that you must watch out for a loss of legal objectivity and legal independence in the work you receive from your Attorney. To avoid this Conflict Of Interests, your Attorney should instead help you to locate the exact type of specialized legal expertise that your financial matters call-for, from legal sources that do not have any dealings with the Financial Product-Maker Company that you are analyzing to purchase a financial product from. In doing so, the Client/Customer assures an objective approach and evaluation to these kinds of financial implementations which require first-established legal documents and legal-formalized-settings.

Client/Customer needs to also be "On Guard" for this type of Conflict Of Interests concern with respect to Trustees acting for the Client/Customer, as well as for any Professional that Client Customer engages.

5. Potential "FREEZE" of Client's assets in Client's account or "FREEZE" of entire Client account by Third Parties (which are not RTH companies); and potential Data System Access "Shut-Offs" by such Third Parties:

Client is to understand that any Third Party Firm, at any time, has the ability to "FREEZE" or "Shut-Or RTH from working access to and with your account at any time, and, Third Party Firms have the ability to "FREEZE" or "Shut-Off" you (the account owner) from access as well, also at any time. Financial Firms must have valid cause to do this, and may only do this if they are so empowered by federal or state law/regulation. If you ever encounter this type of extraordinary situation, please understand that RTH does not have power or authority to release you. In case you ever need to resort to them, please be informed of the two highest categories of Investment or Insurance Bureaus in our USA:

For COMMODITIES: The Commodity Futures Trading Commission.
- STATE-BY-STATE: Office of your Attorney General,. Division for Investments/Securities, and for Insurance, also your State Insurance Commissioner.

Risk of Financial Account Distractions or Malfunctions caused from Flawed or Misapplied Computer "User Account Settings/Configurations"

Besides the risks of Disclaimers, Hold-Harmless Clauses, and "Loopholes" in financial account relationship documents, there are two other areas in US financial markets where there also seems to be an incredible lack of regulatory monitoring for safeguarding the public This risk exists in the departments and persons within financial firms and institutions who decide and implement "User Account Settings" and "User Configurations" in Computer Workstations that operate throughout financial firms. The designs of "User Account Settings" (Data Access, Data Enablement, and Data Denied settings) have a mass effect on financial commerce. Some of the user policies occurring within these computer environments are indeed financially destructive, Even further, various cases could be viewed as conduct of "illegal-configurative-activity." One way in which financial regulators have attempted to protect the financial public from this pitfall has been to ask financial firms to caution financial account system users to have a second (different) financial firm's Account System on stand-by, to be alternatively used if the current Account System fails to handle matters as the Account Owner, wants or needs. However, what U.S. financial Account Owners actually want is for our financial regulators to ascertain that the systems of financial firms function without failure and without relationship document "Loophole" risks. U.S. financial Account Owners do not want the troubles and difficulties of switching financial firms. However, short of these issues being firmly brought under control, RTH hereby alerts financial Account Owners to become familiar with the FINRA/NASD's Uniform Practice Code "SAMPLE CUSTOMER ACCOUNT TRANSFER FORM Set" so that, at least if you (the Customer) must change financial firms, you will be equipped with the formative "know-how" to effectively do so.

6. Based on RTHFC actual encounters and experience, we find financial Custodian and Clearing Firms, which by law and regulation are firms empowered and responsible with the duties of securities sustenance via the rules of margin and liens, account protection, and technological security, attempting to hold themselves harmless from these responsibilities through formal document terms designed to have the Investor or the Investor-with-Advisor assuming these responsibilities, in ways purposing to protect the Custodian and Clearing Firms. These formal terms can be abusive and exploitative, even though applied through entities having government-granted empowerments under laws such as those for Qualified Custodians; meaning, they can cause conflict with the purposes or financial needs of the Investor or Investor-with-Advisor. These documentary relationship terms can create risks upon the Investor, or Investor-with-Advisor, which lawmakers intended only Qualified Institutions to handle. If Custodian or Clearing Firms do not properly assume their duties (or be strictly controlled within these enormously important roles), it could raise the need for the Citizens of the United States, with the Government(s) of the United States, to take possession of the Financial Market Exchanges and Market Maker facilities (Eminent Domain). In the year 2008, the consequences of this Institutional "High Concern" became substantiated with Washington's "Rescue Plan." This brings-to-light the warning that when you see financial firms such as Custodian Firms, Clearing Firms, Institutional Trusts, etc disclosing "Hold Harmless" or "Disclaimer-Of-Responsibility" clauses in duties that these Firms are inherently responsible for, the Investor (Financial Account Owner) should not entirely trust such financial entities. Also understand that it makes financial sense for a financial entity to disclaim responsibility for activities that it cannot or should not be responsible for. These types of proper disclaimers help a financial Account Owner to see issues of risk, which helps the financial Account Owner to then manage risk.

- When RTH resorts to third party financial institutions, firms, or companies to obtain financial vehicles, instruments, and solutions that are used for the RTH services and solutions that are provided to Clients, RTH looks for third parties that have superior and distinctive abilities to accomplish the needed and intended functions. However, before working with RTH, the Client is to clearly understand that Conflict Of Interests in Account and Agreement conditions normally and most-commonly exists in these three-party arrangements. Third party financial institutions, firms, and companies usually require you (the Customer-Client) to hold the third party financial institution harmless from liability (with respect to your Account) for any losses that you (the Customer-Client) might incur—but also with this hold-harmless also being applied to RTH (who works for you as your financial advisor). What this means is that if you should ever decide to pursue legal remedy from third party financial institutions, firms, or companies, RTH cannot help you and these companies would also then attempt to take action against RTH because of you taking action against them.

(Note that these kinds of conditions basically "knock-out" your ability to have your own independent and truly-objective Financial Advisor). Because of these common third-party-mandated legal protections (which seem to exist at every third-party financial entity), two strategic responsive thoughts arise:

A. Don't use such third parties, (but understand in this decision you may then not find any third party who will agree to do business with you); or,

B. If the third parties have worthwhile financial vehicles, instruments, and solutions for your needs or desires, use them with extra caution, meaning, if financial matters start to evolve into undesirable results, promptly conclude utilizing the third party entity(ies) — which, remember, you would do so after analyzing the potential effects of any Back-End charges that might apply.

With these unfair relationship document "Disclaimers," "Hold-Harmless-Clauses," and "Loopholes" being so prevalent, do not conduct your financial matters with an expectation or assumption that our US regulatory framework will put a stop to them. Since RTH can only provide financial solutions based on only what availing and credible third parties exist in the financial marketplace, and based on the kinds of desired financial vehicles, instruments, and solutions that exist in the financial marketplace, it is common for RTH to deliver solutions to you following Decision-B (above). But in doing so (Decision-B) please understand that this is a Conflict Of Your (the Client's) Interests in which you must hereby understand in-advance, and proceed (if you choose to do so) with the above-described extra (heightened) caution of this added risk that you take-on. Also realize that many Sales or Service people at financial firms do not know or follow their own firm's relationship agreement terms.

For a deeper understanding of Three-Party arrangements, Client may specifically request and refer to RTH informational document entitled:

"Customers advance study (Advance DISCLOSURE) of the following Three-Party (triangular) method that R. T. Hickman applies to Customer's Account for the formation and maintenance of a SUITABLE Customer/Client account"

(See Also "Typical Diagram Of Parties To Client Financial Accounts" in Item-Section 8)

Client is to-further understand that, commonly, the third party financial firms which actually HOLD your monies (your funds) and/or CLEAR (actually execute transactions of/movements of) your monies, also have in their Agreements with you Hold-Harmless Conditions (as previously described). In addition, please remember that no R. T. Hickman Company is a Custodian or Clearing firm. What this means is that if you bring your monies to custodial places for safekeeping, even though you do so for the purpose of having your monies safely-kept and safely transacted/cleared, if your monies or asset values are lost, you (and RTH as your Advisor) are commonly asked to hold these financial entities harmless (according to your Agreement with them). Usually you must read the fine-print of your Account Application Agreement terms with these third party financial entities to see these conditions. The RTHCos hereby distinctly bring these conditions of concern to your attention. The RTHCos hereby alert you to look for these terms in any and every financial account you have at any and every financial entity where your monies are located.

PLEASE CLEARLY UNDERSTAND AND DISTINGUISH: There are "Disclaimers" which are proper and valid, and thus logically acceptable; and there are "Disclaimers" which are NOT proper, not valid, and thus should not be accepted. When you see any "Disclaimer," ask yourself: ...Is this "Disclaimer" fair and proper, or, is this "Disclaimer" unacceptable? If you determine that the "Disclaimer" is unacceptable (for your needs), you should ask the Agreement-Offeror to remove the "Disclaimer" or to change it. The Agreement-Offeror would then either accommodate your request, or decline your business.

ADDITIONAL ALERT  SPECIAL CAUTION:

Investors and Account Owners (including your Attorneys and other Consultants) are CAUTIONED that if any Third Party (relative to the financial work that you are doing with RTH) ever attempts to imply or enact Investment or Financial Account Discretionary Authority onto RTH without you and RTH having first agreed and executed a Formal Power Of Attorney, please clearly understand that such activity could have the effect of placing your financial account into a status of highly illegal conduct, This is one reason why you must be vigilant over your financial accounts with respect to those in which you have appointed a P.O.A., vs those in which you have not.

Since you would expediently want to move your monies out of any third party financial entity that starts to demonstrate any significant undesirable business practices, please be informed that financial regulators have established Uniform (Standardized) Practice Code FORMS that a Customer is to use to immediately transfer their monies (kinds of accounts and funds) DIRECTLY to another financial firm (the new financial firm would be a place where you (and your Advisor) would be re-establishing confidence). As one EXAMPLE, attached is a copy of FINRA's (NASD's) "SAMPLE TRANSFER INSTRUCTION FORMS." In the financial industry, this form is also known as an "ACAT" form. Please study this form so that you are knowledgeable of what an "ACAT" form is, so that if you ever decide to urgently DIRECTLY transfer your monies to another financial institution, you would know how to expediently and instructively do so from your reference to this SAMPLE form. (Please note that over time, this SAMPLE form is subject to change).

This disclosure area demonstrates an important reason of why you (the Investor) should NOT linger in a Financial Account where significant issues start to emerge which you find concerning or unacceptable.

ADDITIONAL IMPORTANT REMINDERS:

Before you switch any financial account, always first inquire about what costs that may be charged to you by the entity you are moving out of, and what costs that may be charged by the entity you are moving into. This analysis must also include any tax costs that may apply.

Please also be Alerted to what you should do with an existing Custodian or Clearing Firm in which you have a Financial Advisor acting on your behalf (especially if the Advisor is providing Discretionary Trading Services to you), wherein you wish to conclude the Advisor's services but continue to use the same Custodian or Clearing firm so that you would then personally be managing your own Account. Here's what you are strongly advised and instructed to do:

Before (or no later than at the moment of when) you conclude your Advisor, ORDER, in writing, the Custodian or Clearing Firm to move all of your Funds into a new Account and Account Number that you set-up with the Custodian or Clearing Firm.

Most Clearing and Custodian Firms, as a matter of Security Policy, require you to do this. Whether they do or not, insist on setting-up a new Account and Account Number.
Here's why this is so important:

When your previous Discretionary Advisor was managing your Account, the Custodian or Clearing Firm computer systems relative to your account were likely grouped with other Client Accounts, with all of them commonly linked to the Advisor. But now you, not your Advisor, shall operate your Account. It is not uncommon that some functions of your Account shall occur in the "Internet Realm." If INTRUSIONS, MISFUNCTIONS, OR ERRORS ever occur through your Account in such a way that it causes losses or damages to any other commonly linked accounts (of other Customers who you do not even know), YOU PERSONALLY would be investigated for your Account's role or participation in damages caused to any and all commonly linked effected Customer accounts. As you should see, this would be a horrible situation that you want to make sure you never encounter.

The way to remove yourself from this risk is to, as explained above, timely ORDER, in writing, movement of all of your Funds into a new Account and Account Number that you set-up with the Custodian or Clearing Firm. By doing this, you create assurance that your account is no longer in a realm of commonly-linked Accounts.

Note that Advisors are suppose to have in place Security Procedures which safeguard commonly linked accounts, although you must realize that it is the computer systems of the Custodian and Clearing Firms that actually HOLD your money. Obviously, the Custodian and Clearing Firms (as the actual Holding of your money) are suppose to have optimum Security and Safeguarding procedures in place to protect your account in any configuration design. But unfortunately, just about every Custodian and Clearing Firm (in their Agreement documents) disclaim any and all liability, and even further, they usually require you to Hold them Harmless from losses that potentially occur in your Account. When you see these Terms, be on guard because these Terms mean you cannot wholly trust these Firms. But what you can do is give them written ORDERS that remove risks and heighten the safeguarded ways your Account is configured with them. In addition, if you do any of your account activity on-line, you must view and prove-accuracy of your account EVERYDAY, seven days per week. If you will not daily monitor your Account, then absolutely do not operate your account on-line (via the Internet).

V) RTH Code of Ethical Procedure RE: Investment Advice and Safeguarding Against Potential Conflicts Of Interest As Possibly Caused By Personal Trading Activities Of Investment Advisers (internal Code of Procedure). Also, refer to Item Section-10, and to Wrap Fee Brochures within accompanying Part 2A Appendix areas.

RTHCA,LLC (and the RTHCos,LLCs) do not:

- As Principal, buy or sell securities from/to RTH Clients;
- Act as General Partner in a Partnership in which RTH solicits Client investments; nor,
- Act as Investment Adviser to an Investment Company that any of the RTHCos recommend to Clients.

The method of communication and provision of RTHFC Codes or Policies of Ethics is to provide Ethics disclosures before starting work with a Client:

1. On a modular basis (which means that Ethics disclosures will be provided in sections, according to the type of financial work that Client chooses to do with RTHCos. If work engagements are broad in nature (based on what client requests), ALL RTHCos Ethical disclosures may then be provided;

2. To provide them in writing; and

3. To provide Disclosure to Client(s) via a proof-of-delivery method, which serves as Confirmation that:

A) The Client has reviewed the Terms of the applicable RTHCos-required ethical procedure and pledges to work with RTHCos according to these procedures;

B) Proof-Of-Delivery DISCLOSURE creates a mutual record, and a mutual understanding of how RTHCos and the Client pledge to work with each other, which is necessary due to the complexities, importance, and necessary ongoing positive good-faith synergy, to ascertain we shall work in a best-effort to avoid misunderstandings and potentially misleading scenarios, to avoid circumstances where what is wanted or needed is beyond rational possibility, to work together in a way where ongoing monitoring is truly achieved, but with the Client knowing that if the Client chooses to neglect monitoring, the Client does so at their own risk.

NOTES: RTH does not utilize "Lock-Up Periods." Client may conclude engagement at any time. Clients/FAOs are to also refer to Item Section-10, within the Conflicts Of Interests area for information about ethical procedures applied into these areas.

PROVISION OF COPY:

Various subject-focused areas of RTH's Form ADV Part-2 and RTH Advance Disclosure Brochure data contain descriptions of RTH ethical procedures. RTH also maintains an expansive "Comprehensive Code of Ethics" for Investment and Insurance activities. ARRANGEMENTS AND/OR AFFILIATIONS RTHCA HAS WITH RELATED ENTITIES AND/OR PERSONS THAT ARE MATERIAL TO THE ADVISORY BUSINESS OF RTHCA WITH ITS CLIENTS, AND, FACTORS CONSIDERED IN SELECTION OF BROKER-DEALER TYPES OF FIRMS (CUSTODIAN AND CLEARING FIRMS) FOR CLIENTS/FAOs:

ARRANGEMENTS/AFFILIATIONS:

Refer to Item Section #10.

FACTORS CONSIDERED FOR SELECTION:

Some of the material factors that RTH considers in selecting or recommending Broker-Dealers other than RTHS (i.e.-Clearing Firms, as well as Product-Maker/Issuer Firms), or Custodian Entities for Client needs are:

1. Solvency, security, and continuity capacity;
2. Willingness of Transparency (meaning proper, non-exploitative Transparency);
- 3.. Best qualitative executions or provisions as relative to the type of required investment;
4. Functional suitability and reliability: the Entity's ability to properly accommodate Client(s) needs;
5. Technological methods and technological suitability. Consider this: some "platform-provisional-firms" present themselves as Registered Investment Adviser firms, but based on actual operations, they are nothing more than a technological electronic networked platform business.
6. The preferences and desires of Client(s), in balance with Entity's quality of response and receptivity to RTH's (and Client's) vetting attempts (the Entity's willingness to be cooperative with RTH and Client proper requests, and how issues are handled, including the Entity's staff conduct encountered). Departures from properly-applied rationality are viewed by RTH as a Red Flag;
7. A demonstrated respect-for and committed vigilance-to Fiduciary Principles;
8. Fairness of dealings, and competitiveness of Price. (Please note: RTH examines to see if size of price would be materially detrimental to the relative Investment);
9. Conflicts of Interests and Disciplinary/Legal histories (standing with regulators, responsible attendance thereto, and devotion to effective/proper resolution);
- 10.. Vigilance and devotion in maintenance of Investor's Rights;
11. Whether or not the different departments of an Entity act concertedly in the best interest of the Investor, or otherwise, if Conflicts of Interests are detected.

BENEFITS THAT RTH RECEIVES FROM THIRD PARTY UNRELATED AND NONAFFILIATED BROKER-DEALER FIRMS, OR ANY OTHER THIRD-PARTY FIRMS:

-NONE. Stated more specifically:

RTH does not receive, nor seek to receive research or any other products or services from third parties.

RTH does not accept, nor seek to arrange higher (than market norms) Commissions (or Markups or Markdowns) in return for benefits (a/k/a "soft dollar benefits").

12. The RTHCos do not engage-in or undertake "Soft Dollar" relationships or agreements. Distinction: since relevant Continuing Professional Education (CPE) is in the best interest of Clients/FAOs, the RTHCos will accept free CPE which may include a sustenance at seminar" meal; with Cients/FAOs here being in understanding that these provisions from third-party-providers not being "vacation getaways," etc.— ie — not representing "Soft Dollar Arrangements" and not being a conflict of interests.

RTH does not receive referrals from any third party broker-dealers or third party firms. RTH does not enter into these incentive arrangements.

RTH does not receive, nor seek to receive prizes or awards.

RTH does not pay others for Clients referred to RTH.

De Minimis exception: Generally speaking, financial regulations permit gifts (such as during holidays) of up to $50 per year. RTH shall accept a De Minimis gift since the values are small enough to not effect any Conflicts of Interests. Also, if RTH is invited to an educational seminar (not meaning a vacation getaway), RTH may attend. Education is a necessary part of service to Clients (not a Conflict of Interests).

Review of Accounts:

REVIEWS:

Clients are structured in professionally managed investment funds and/or accounts. Clients receive monthly or quarterly custodian and/or portfolio statements for their review (see also Item-Section 15 "Custody of Client Funds or Securities"). Investments are periodically reviewed with client to determine if positions held are consistent with the investment objectives of the client, and the outlook in relative markets. We are constantly available to our clients. Each client decides when and at what frequency a monitoring, update, and evaluation conference shall be conducted. Clients work with RTH according to terms of RTH Agreement and Disclosure documents (which are the protocol of relationships between RTH and Clients).

IMPORTANT DISTINCTION:

A Client/Customer's decision to "HOLD" (to continue to keep having the same investment or financial account strategy) is the Client/Customer's decision. It is not RTH's decision or responsibility. If a Client, Customer, or Financial Account Owner (FAO) wishes to assign this responsibility and decision to RTH, special Agreement and/or Power Of Attorney mutually-acceptable terms and documents would have to be first executed with RTH. Before assignment of this responsibility is enacted, a particular Customer Suitability Statement would first also have to be prepared and executed. (See also "General Standards to RTH Power Of Attorney" in Item-Section 16). Clients/Customers are to understand that factors effecting your Holdings change in real-time. Generally speaking, it is not possible for RTH to timely know when an emerging moment in the life of the FAO would change the FAO's decision to continue to hold. This is one important reason why the decision to Hold is inherently the FAO's responsibility.

REVIEWERS:

All accounts are reviewed by Robert T. Hickman. Robert T. Hickman is the Firm Principal of RTHCA, LLC.

Describe below the nature and frequency of regular reports to clients on their accounts.

The client receives a confirmation of each transaction from the Custodian and/or Clearing facility serving the "Portfolio Maker" (meaning, the one who built, and when required, executed changes to the Portfolio). Clients are also provided with monthly or quarterly custodian and/or portfolio statements from these third party service providers. Statements contain the name and amount of each security; current market value of each security, and detail of transactions for month or for quarter. Please understand that third party "Portfolio Makers," with their Valuators and Auditors, determine the reporting-accuracy of Asset Values on Investor Statements. "Unitized Investment Securities Providers" report underlying composite valuations in their "Schedules (Lists) of Investments Reports" (which usually are periodically independently audited).

When the Portfolio Maker is not RT Hickman, values that appear on Transaction Confirmation Statements and Periodic Portfolio Statements are not verified by RT Hickman. A Client could request (hire) RTHCCS,LLC to verify valuations (such as when done through audit procedures to report on the integrity of reported values), but the conditions and conflicts described in the next paragraph would first have to be settled with Client. An example of when RTH is not the "Portfolio Maker is when Unit Investment Securities (such as Mutual Funds) are used in a Client's portfolio. In these designs, Client refers to the Issuers Prospectus-type of disclosures to be informed of how values are verified.

When RTH is engaged as the "Portfolio Maker," RTH verifies values to every Transaction and Closing Reporting Period. Values are based on "Current Market/Readily Available (liquid) Prices" procedurally supported by real-time captured screen-shots derived from multiple independent price-feeder composites (according to market availability). Closing Prices are also utilized for reconciliation-controls of valuations, which are also documentary-supported. If/when RTH encounters a material variance, RTH timely enacts price (or volume) procedures to enforce integrity.

Clients/FAOs are to distinguish that the RTHCos are not Auditors or Integrity-Verifiers of Exchanges, ECNs, (price-posting facilities). To understand how these entities ensure integrity, FAOs must refer to the independent audited reports of these entities. The RTHCos are not authorized "parties-of-access" into these entities for proving their integrity. Usually, Independent Auditors are engaged by these entities in which the Auditors are granted "authority-of-access" to test the credibility and integrity of these entities.

Clients/FAOs are to also discern that a common practice of Issuers (Investment or Insurance Product-Makers) is for them to configure the making, storage, and provisions/deliveries of Client's Account Statements (meaning your Account Statements) from a place (a Firm or Facility) that is not where the Issuer resides. This "third-party-handler" configuration may also be commonly applied when Client Transactional Transmittances and/or Profile Status matters (your matters) are executed. Financial regulators require Issuers/Investment Product Makers who configure these arrangements to apply vetting methods to assure integrity in these third-party-handlings. Clients/FAOs are to distinguish that the RTHCos are not companies that build these types of configurations. Issuers/Product Makers are to publish (in "Prospectus"-types of disclosures) their Third-Party Configurations so that Clients are properly informed about these arrangements. Clients are to further understand that third-party handlers may be in place, even if only the Issuer/Product-Maker's name appears on Client's Account Statements. Furthermore, Clients are to understand that Issuers/Product-Makers may not have primary or preeminent controls over these functions and responsibilities. Accordingly, integrity-assurance within these functions resides within each "third-party-handler," and in these configurations, each Issuer/Product-Maker is responsible for applying perpetual vetting procedures, including advance-determinations that all utilized third parties are each registered with all applicable regulatory bureaus and organizations. Where third party service providers are not subjected to Regulatory inspection, the Client therein can have matters in a "risky-realm." If Client becomes concerned in these areas, Client should consider sending a letter to the office of the relative Financial Commissioner, and/or, to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, P.O. Box 4503, Iowa City, Iowa 52244.

Besides Confirmations and Statements which are provided to each investor and to RTHCA, LLC from third-party providers, RTHCA clients may engage R. T. Hickman Capital Consultation Services, LLC

(RTHCCS) to provide accountings (accounting type of reports) to the Investor/Account Owner. These accountings are not "audits" of reported investment data and as such, they do not verify Valuations. These accountings are usually ordered (requested) by the Investor in order to enhance understanding of the investor's holdings through further report-clarity, descriptive presentation, and analyses of results. These accounting reports do not serve to "advise" the investor, nor to "manage" the client's holdings, buys or sells; nor do they provide recommendations. Each client decides when and at what frequency RTHCCS accountings are to be provided. These accountings depict the data of "Portfolio Makers" and/or Custodians.* These Third Parties are the originators of reported amounts and financial data. Should a Client ever request Valuation Services from RTH, Client would engage RTHCCS, LLC (refer to the RTH document entitled: "The RTHCos Financial & Estate Consulting Services and Financial Vehicle/Product Implementation Services Engagement Agreement," at Section D — Subsidiary Engagement Agreements). Please note that if RTH provides independent "Valuation Services," RTH may then usually not be a party-of-access (a Discretionary Trader) to the valuated assets since doing both would result in RTH not being independent (it is extremely important for every Investor to understand what this sentence means). However, if the core source of valuation determination is not RTH, and if RTH and Client determine the core source of valuation-determination to be reliable, vetted, and of genuine integrity, RTH may then provide Valuation Services even if with Discretion in these cases. Independent and surprise audit-tests usually must be done through Valuation Services arrangements.

With respect to verification of Account Values, all RTH Clients are provided with two "Self-Review and Preparation Forms," which Clients are requested to prepare and follow to guard their Assets, their asset values, and to monitor for continued suitability. The titles of these RTH Forms are:

"How To Discern If The Account Values Reported To You On Your Investor Statements Appear To Be Correct or Incorrect;" and/with

"Client's Self-Checking Diagnostic Analysis of Account(s) Form."

*RT Hickman does not send Account Statements to Clients in lieu of those from any Custodian.

In addition, all RT Hickman Clients are required to follow the quarterly-review procedures explained at Item-Section #15. "Custody of Client Funds or Securities."

Custody of Client Funds or Securities

In all RT Hickman business, Client assets (funds, securities, etc.) are held within financial firms (institutions) that qualify (under laws and regulations) to serve the highly important function of Custody. These entities are called "Custodian Firms" (under financial regulatory authorities, these entities are also called "Qualified Custodian Firms"). Usually, Investment Product Issuer Firms and/or Clearing Broker-Dealer (BD) or Futures Commission Merchant (FCM) firms evaluate, select, and appoint "Custodian Firms." In other words, BDs, FCMs and Issuers usually "configure" Custody design, selection, construct, and functions. For example, a BD or FCM might configure its mass-holdings of Customer funds for protective safekeeping within a network of Banks. Through the custodian-configuration, these firms directly send periodic Account Statements to RT Hickman clients. IN ALL CASES, RTH REQUIRES CLIENTS (more specifically, the Account Owners) TO RECEIVE DELIVERY OF THESE REPORTING ACCOUNT STATEMENTS. CLIENTS ARE REQUIRED BY RTH TO CAREFULLY AND TIMELY REVIEW ALL STATEMENTS RECEIVED. CLIENTS ARE TO FREQUENTLY/ROUTINELY (never longer than at-least-quarterly) REVIEW EVERY ACCOUNT STATEMENT FOR ACCURACY AND INTEGRITY OF: (1) Each Account's Registered Identification and Profile data; (2) Numeric and Account Values data; & (3) the Custodian's Privacy, Security, and Identity Theft Prevention Policies data. IF CLIENT FAILS TO RECEIVE (or properly receive) THESE ELEMENTS, and/or, IF CUENT FINDS DISCREPANCIES, CLIENT IS TO EFFECTIVELY TIMELY INFORM RTH IN WRITING. For convenience and control-of-processing, Client is to follow the "Additional Important ADV Disclosures" in the Part 2B Supplement section (RTH's kit of Client Communication/Service-Request Forms). In addition, Clients that also receive Account-Report Statements prepared by RT Hickman, are to always timely compare Custodian-prepared elements (1) and (2) to RTH-prepared Reports. If any material discrepancies are identified, Client is to immediately effectively inform RT Hickman in writing (by using RTH's kit of Client Communication/Service-Request Forms).

Refer also to Item-Section 10 at: "RTHCA,LLC does suggest RT Hickman Securities,LLC to Clients."

RTH DOES NOT ALLOW CLIENTS TO OPT-OUT OF RECEIVING ACCOUNT STATEMENTS. Respectfully, Clients are to understand that when they do not receive and timely review their Account Statements, they add significant RISK to their Accounts.

RT Hickman does not send Account Statements to Clients in lieu of those from any Custodian.

Investment Discretion:

RTHCA,LLC can manage Investments on a Discretionary or Nondiscretionary basis, and, RTH is capable of providing many different kinds of Investment Account Management Services. Currently, the only Discretionary services provided by RTHCA,LLC are to Clients that qualify-for and have decided to invest in the RTHCA-Active Positioning System ("APS"). "APS" is an investment method that is enhanced through Futures and Options-On-Futures broad-based indices contracts techniques. "APS" applies only to client/customers who qualify (meaning investors such as "Qualified Eligible Participants" as defined in CFTC regulations (sometimes also referred to as "Contracts-Eligible Participants"), and, "Sophisticated Investors" as defined in SEC regulations).

Currently, all other RTH Client/Customer accounts are Nondiscretionary.

General standards to RTH Power-of-Attorney:

RTH Discretionary Authority Power-of-Attorney (POA) documents, generally speaking, grant authority for RTH to manage investment assets in each client's account according to the quantity of funds that the Client/Account Owner decides to place into the account. RTH does not obtain, nor seek to obtain, Power to redeem or to add funds into these accounts. The client/Account Owner decides additions and redemptions. All redemptions are routed only to the Client/Account Owner. RTH is granted the authority to automatically withdraw RTH fees, which does not commence until the client first reviews RTH's Fee Description & Schedule, via a signed acknowledgment. Client/Account Owners may redeem at any time that a Trading Position Is not in progress. RTH does not employ or require "Lock-Up Periods; the client may revoke or terminate at any time. Client-signed documentation is required for all Client-instructed account changes. Also, in RTH POA documents, RTH does not "custodian-hold" client assets (assets are "custodian-held" within independent qualified Custodian Firms). All Trades and Transactions are processed through Independent qualified Clearing Firms. Generally speaking, financial regulators require, and have issued documentary guidance, stating that before any financial firm utilizes a Custodian or Clearing firm, those firms must be placed through a vetting diagnostic process. What investors need to discern is that in various types of financial products, the responsibility for vetting Custodian and Clearing firms resides-within third-party asset/portfolio managing firms (and/or other similar firms of necessary functional duties). In addition, in RTH's opinion, a Client's desired marketplace category of interest in-and-of-itself must be vetted, with this vetting function occurring through a Client's Suitability Statement. Furthermore, every Investor and Client must understand that In the course of these kinds of vetting diagnostic procedures, various (sometimes many) areas of needed information is insufficient in transparency in order to reach a sufficient-enough conclusion. Investors must consider this lack-of-clarity Risk before investing, and evaluate to what degree such risk may be acceptable.

When RTH is directly responsible for the selection of (also meaning the utilization of) Clearing or Custodian firms, RTH does formally apply a vetting diagnostic process. RTH does so in-effort to follow the documentary guidance issued by financial regulators. It is to be further distinguished that under US Laws, in conjunction-with and in Integration-with financial regulations, the highly Important duties of Clearing and Custodianship usually may only be done by qualified financial entities. The investor is to further understand that financial entity "qualification" may be different in each State of our United States, and, also occasionally different within the diverse categories of US financial regulators. RTH has observed that these differences can present a highly-concerning RISK to Investors. To guard Investors, and to attend to this type of RISK, RTH addresses these issues in each Customer Suitability Statement. Albeit, the Investor is to understand that the effectiveness of these careful procedures is limited due to constraints such as insufficient transparency.

The operational specifics of RTH POA documents are contained within each document as prepared specifically for each Client/Customer/Financial Account Owner. RTH POA document details follow design necessities relative to the specific kind and type of Investment Account being placed. Generally speaking, POA accounts usually do feature minimum size requirements, and, addition or redemption size requirements. Also, Clients usually must meet qualifications.

- RTH does not have any bankruptcy history.

Financial Condition

Financial Conditions that are reasonably likely to impair the ability of RTHCA,LLC to meet contractual commitments of Clients:

- RTHCA,LLC only provides Services to Clients, usually, on a month-to-month basis. RTHCA and the RTHCos do not provide Custodian, Trade Clearing, Margin, Collateralization or Lien Arrangements, or any other service that calls-for a Reserve-Requirement. RTHCA Agreements with respect to Fees are usually Monthly, without Lock-up conditions, without Front or Back (load) charges, with all Fees advance-disclosed. Monthly Fee Charges are usually whole-month assessments. Based on these limited offered services, Reserve-Requirement or Financial Condition types of disclosures do not apply.

- RTHS,LLC, as under formal agreement with FINRA, is only an "Applications-Way" Broker-Dealer (B/D). RTHS does not provide Custodian, Trade Clearing, Margin, Collateralization or Lien Arrangements, or any other service that calls-for a Reserve-Requirement FINRA has required RTHS to maintain a $5,000 minimum Net Capital; however, in view of RTHS being only an "Apps-Way" B/D, this Net Capital requirement should not be interpreted as the kind of Reserve-Requirement of financial firms and institutions that actually Hold or have Collateralized Lien Arrangements with Client or Customer funds. RTHS,LLC is required to be a Member of the Securities Investor Protection Corporation, however, Clients are to distinguish SIPC's coverage being for replacement of missing Stocks or Other Securities. SIPC publishes its booklet "How SIPC Protects You" at www.sipc.org. A copy of RTHS's "For Public Inspection" financial statement is enclosed.

- RTHCA,LLC and RTHS,LLC maintain Fidelity Bond coverage.

DEFINITIONS FOR INVESTOR UNDERSTANDING:

WRAP FEE PROGRAM (as defined by the United States Securities & Exchange Commission) is: any program under which a specified fee or fees not based directly upon transactions in a client's account is charged for investment advisory services (which may include portfolio management or advice concerning the selection of other advisers) and execution of client transactions.

SPONSOR: means R. T. Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC (RTHCA,LLC) acting as the designer and proposer in agreement arrangements with clients that are categorized within the aforementioned WRAP FEE PROGRAM definition.

SPONSOR'S DUTY: to disclose all material facts about its wrap fee programs.

The NAME of this RTHCA,LLC wrap fee program is: RTHCA-AAM (#1) "FEE COSTS. INDIVIDUALLY TAILORED TO EACH CLIENT'S NEEDS." The R. T. Hickman Capital Advisors, LLC Wrap Fee Investment Account with Fee Cost Designed Based On a Mutually-Agreed Percentage Formula Of The Market Value of the Net Assets of Client's Account.

DISCLOSURE PREFACE

The standard elements of client investment service arrangements may be studied in the RTHCA,LLC INVESTMENT ADVISORY SERVICES ENGAGEMENT AGREEMENT DOCUMENT which accompanies the SEC Form ADV, Part-2. This serves as our core document for development of each client relationship which includes mutually-agreed fee costs.

Each reader of this brochure is to also refer to RTHCA,LLCs SEC Form ADV, Part-2 as an integrated part of this brochure's disclosures. (See also Disclosure Item 9, "ADDITIONAL INFORMATION").

SERVICES

TYPE (S):

- Management of investment Advisory Accounts without supervisory duties (such as when Third Party Managers are used — Mutual Funds for example);

DESCRIPTION (General/typical example — as follows):

A) Identifying advisory client's Investment Objectives/Investment Policy.

B) Studies of advisory client's Investment Objectives/Investment Policy.

C) Assisting client in establishment and maintenance of Investment Asset Allocations (including assisting advisory client in management of investment liquidity needs). Also, assisting client in understanding how to delegate and appoint Third Party Investment Asset Managers to the function of Active Discretionary Investment Asset Management in accord with advisory client's Investment Objectives/Investment Policy.

D) Obtaining client's tolerance level of potential downvaluations in Investment Assets, and, coordinating same with client's Investment Policy.

E) Assist client in understanding and evaluating A-D.

F) Availing ongoing communication and service with advisory client in order to assist client in keeping Investment Assets performing in accord with client's current Investment Objectives/Investment Policy.

G) RTHCA, LLC will NOT supervise and/or direct investment of Client's Investment Assets without prior consultation with Advisory Client. Client will exercise discretion and/or delegate discretion as per 2C, make ultimate choices of whether to buy or sell and when, and, client will order execution of such decisions. Client may only assign such investment management discretion on an ongoing basis to RTHCA, LLC via a Power of Attorney.

H) RTHCA, LLC will not create Investment Policy for Advisory Client. Client will create Investment Policy. R. T. Hickman will assist client in setting Investment Objectives/Investment Policy.

FEES AND COMPENSATION: AMOUNT OF WRAP FEE CHARGE

Percentage Element Accounts:

As of the release date of this brochure, the typical range of fee percentage formulae charged upon the Market Value of the Net Investment Assets of Client Accounts was from a low percentage of .35% for larger-sized (multi-millions cumulative) accounts to a high of 1.00% for smaller-sized (tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars) accounts. No standard tier or table of percentages relative to volume of assets is utilized. Fees are individually tailored by mutual agreement.

Additional Element (over and above percentage element) Accounts:

Pursuant to the RTHCA,LLC INVESTMENT ADVISORY SERVICES ENGAGEMENT AGREEMENT DOCUMENT, some accounts (typically smaller-sized accounts) are additionally charged when a percentage fee design does not generate a sufficient amount of fee compensation for RTHCA,LLC adviser services. If these fees are also calculated as a percentage of the Market Value of Net Investment Assets, the resulting percentage can be significantly higher than the aforementioned typical range of Percentage Element Accounts.

For Example: if a $10,000 college savings account is introduced to our office, and if first year costs of services rendered in investment advisory services for this investment purpose amount to $1,000, this would result in a 10% fee charge if or when formulated as a % of assets.

In all accounts, charges are mutually-agreed, in advance. All fees are negotiable.

All of the aforementioned fee charges are paid exclusively to RTHCA,LLC for purchase or sale of specific securities, (implementations services) and/or ongoing portfolio management. Specific details of these services are described in the RTHCA,LLC INVESTMENT ADVISORY SERVICES ENGAGEMENT AGREEMENT DOCUMENT.

FEES AND COMPENSATION: COST COMPARISON TO IF AN INVESTOR SEPARATELY PURCHASED EACH INVESTMENT SERVICE RATHER THAN IN A WRAP FEE DESIGN

RTHCA,LLC's Wrap Fee Program is not a "bundle of services from an exclusive group of providers for one price program." RTHCA,LLC arrangements with fee costs pertain only to the services provided by RTHCA,LLC. These services are detailed in the RTHCA,LLC INVESTMENT ADVISORY SERVICES ENGAGEMENT AGREEMENT document.

In a RTHCA,LLC arrangement, third party advisers or transaction executioners are separately negotiated in order to assemble efficient, rational, and reasonable cost components to our clients. For example, third party financial institutions that provide individual securities trading are requested to offer their best/lowest price offer for RTHCA,LLC clientele, without any markup compensated to RTHCA,LLC. The same is done with third party advisers. If any of these separate providers offer only a standard or fixed fee, our clients ultimately decide whether or not each third party's cost proposals are acceptable. None of these providers are exclusive, and clients may change at any time.

In view of the price design elements described herein the RTHCA,LLC Wrap Fee Program may cost a client more or less than purchasing such services separately (on their own).

FEES AND COMPENSATION:
NO SEPARATE BUT ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION IS RECEIVED BY RTHCA,LLC IN THIS PROGRAM

When RTHCA,LLC recommends the RTHCA,LLC Wrap Fee Program, all costing elements are independent and autonomous of each other so that there are no separate but additional compensation elements received by RTHCA,LLC from any of the third party providers in a RTHCA,LLC Wrap Fee Program.

The only fees earned by RTHCA,LLC are the fee amounts mutually-agreed with each client.

FEES AND COMPENSATION:
POTENTIAL ADDITIONAL FEES (or costs) BESIDES THE FEES DISCLOSED IN THIS PROGRAM

The RTHCA,LLC Wrap Fee Program is purposely designed in order to avoid potential additional fees (or costs) besides the fees disclosed in this program. However, there is one exception. When clients request a securities product that is available to them through brokerage, (mutual funds, variable annuities, or variable life) a separate commission-load cost is then incurred. In these cases, RTHCA,LLC will ask the client, in advance, if R. T. HICKMAN SECURITIES, LLC (a separate but affiliated entity) may execute such placements and earn the commission. Clients are free to use any brokerage firm of their choice. When RTHS,LLC earns brokerage commissions, none of these commissions are paid to RTHCA,LLC. Brokerage-distributed products are offered with standardized (fixed) commission costs. Accordingly, the brokerage cost to clients is the same whether such products (mutual funds, variable annuities, and/or variable life) are purchased from RTHS,LLC or from any other brokerage firm. Clients decide if brokerage-distributed products shall be utilized, and when.

TYPES OF CLIENTS and ACCOUNT REQUIREMENTS

TYPES OF CLIENTS

- Corporations, Business Institutions ;
- Pension Plans, Profit Sharing Plans, etc. (including Union Plans);
- Trusts, Estates, Foundations/Charitable Organizations;
- Individuals (usually High Net Worth &/or Complex Cases).

ACCOUNT REQUIREMENTS

MINIMUM AMOUNT OF COMPENSATION RULE

RTHCA,LLC endeavors to be of service to clients of any size. In every engagement, RTHCA,LLC must ascertain that sufficient profit is yielded out of each engagement so that engagements are not performed at a loss. An averaged hourly rate is usually used as gauge for determining sufficient profitability.

Differing compensation sizes as applied to Clients do not cause improper Conflict of Interests effects because the RTHCos select Client engagements that integrate into RTHCos operations in ways which prevent the types of Conflicts Of Interests that typically (characteristically) would arise from differing Compensation sizes. For example, RTH employs a conditional requirement in Client/FAO engagements entitled the "Minimum Amount of Compensation Rule." This Rule enforces earnings-value-parity throughout all RTHCos engagements, in effort to diminish the conflict of "favoritism." "Favoritism" effects are controlled even in Performance-Based Fee Accounts. The RTHCos maintain constant vigilance that regardless of size or arrangement, FAO assets are of imperative importance to every FAO. Accordingly, every FAO is required to receive vigilant service-efforts. If RTHCos cannot provide vigilance, RTH will respectfully not accept or conclude engagement. However, Clients/FAOs are to distinguish that within financial Regulations, there are procedural areas of Order or Priority which the RTHCos must comply with. Since RTHCos procedures are financially-regulatory-based, RTHCos operations are controlled through the mandates of Regulations, but with techniques of professional ethics. This combination balances Regulatory procedural mandates in any applied way of fairness to control the potential Conflict of favoring one Client over another. The RTHCos do not improperly allocate investment opportunities among Clients/FAOs. Allocation procedures are designed based on relevant financial regulations. Also, refer to the accompanying Disclosure Document entitled: "RTHCos Ethical Policy and Procedure for Avoiding "Double Charges" to a Customer or Client when Financial Implementations are done."

PORTFOLIO MANAGER SELECTION AND EVALUATION

Third party managers are selected pursuant to each client's criteria and objectives for their investments. Accordingly, clients approve or reject each manager, and enact RTHCA,LLC to add, change, or conclude each manager as their objectives change. Portfolio managers are implemented based on whether or not they are a match for each client's criteria and objectives.

All components of client investment assets are managed with each client by RTHCA,LLC according to the RTHCA,LLC INVESTMENT ADVISORY SERVICES AGREEMENT DOCUMENT.

SUITABILITY AND COMPARISONS TO STANDARDS

Portfolios are reviewed quarterly in order to monitor performance, suitability, and accuracy. Larger sized accounts may be reviewed monthly. Presently, all reviews are conducted by Robert T. Hickman. Professional credentials information for Robert T. Hickman is disclosed in SEC Form ADV Part-2B (Advisor Biographical Information).

Suitability and client objectives information is utilized in application of third party managers upon account inception. Quarterly reviews at RTHCA,LLC sustain assurance of suitability ongoing. However, of additional significant importance, RTHCA,LLC serves in an on-call/ongoing manner to all clients in order to proactively service client needs as and when they change. When client objectives change which require communication to third party advisers or managers, RTHCA,LLC immediately relays this information and follows-through in order to confirm execution of any adjustments or changes.

Investment performance and behavior is reviewed in order to accommodate each client's objectives which we consider to be each account's primary standard or benchmark. In addition, for those Clients who have requested (or require) comparative diagnostics; ranking, style-group, industry and index data may then be compared in order to determine if performance is changing into a status that is lower than "above-average."

Specific procedures are applied to stop Conflicts Of Interests that would otherwise potentially cause diminishment to Client Accounts. These procedures are thoroughly explained in Item-Section #10 of RTHCA,LLCs Form ADV, Part 2.

CLIENT INFORMATION PROVIDED TO PORTFOLIO MANAGERS

Each Portfolio Manager supplies their own required "Account Forms," which usually require us to provide Client ID, Registration, and Owner-Profile types of information before each account is opened. Thereafter, informational updates or changes are provided to Portfolio Managers whenever we receive (or become knowledgeable of) such information.

CLIENT CONTACT WITH PORTFOLIO MANAGERS (RESTRICTIONS ON THE ABILITY OF CLIENTS TO CONTACT AND CONSULT WITH PORTFOLIO MANAGERS)

There are no such restriction stipulations required by RTHCA, LLC. Occasionally, third party advisers or managers may have restrictions. Our policy is to service our clients first, while respecting the client-accepted conditions of third party advisers and/or managers. However, in situations of great importance, it is common practice for us to conduct three-way teleconferences with Robert T. Hickman, client, and the third party adviser or manager.

Part 2b Brochure Supplement for Adviser Biographical Information

ROBERT T. HICKMAN's EMPLOYMENT EXPERIENCE SUMMARY:

A schedule of Mr. Hickman's Professional Credentials and Designations is provided in RTHCA, LLC's Form ADV Part 2 (at Item Section-10). Mr. Hickman formerly owned a CPA Firm over the years 1982-1989, which was a concentrated practice in financial consulting and estate consulting engagements. The name of this firm was RT Hickman, Certified Public Accountant, which conducted business in the entity form of a Proprietorship. This Firm was sold at the close of 1989. In 1990, Mr. Hickman started a new company (R. T. Hickman Financial & Estate Consultants) which over the years has grown into the R. T. Hickman group of financial Companies, with each separately-regulated operational division formed into distinct Limited Liability Company (LLC) entities on 7/1/1999 (as above). Mr. Hickman has been the CEO of these companies continuously. He received his Bachelors Degree in Accounting from The William Paterson University of N.J., and, accomplished schooling for Certified Financial Planning through Fairleigh Dickinson University and the Denver College of Financial Planning. Each Financial License and Professional Designation requires Mr. Hickman to earn a minimum number of Continuing Professional Education Credits. Accordingly, over the years Mr. Hickman has been a continuous student in diverse but focused financial studies.

Other Business Activities:

With understanding of Robert T. Hickman's role and positions (as outlined above in Disclosure Item #2), Robert T. Hickman's Other Business Activities, Material Conflicts of Interests, and RTH control procedures for addressing Conflicts Of Interests in ways which remove the diminishing effects Conflicts could have upon Clients, is thoroughly explained in the accompanying Form ADV, Part-2, at Item-Section #10.

With respect to receipt of compensation based on the sale of products, with these compensation methods potentially being an incentive to recommend products based on compensation received rather than on Client's needs, RTH "Suitability-Assurance-Procedures" (including those specifically explained in Part-2, Item-Section #10, including at "Control of Conflicts Of Interests that are directly-relative to Investment Operations"), materially diminish and effectively remove what could be improper Conflict effects. In balance with the integral methods for controlling the potential effects of improper Conflicts, based on RTH/RTHCos experience, RTH also applies scrutiny to situations where Clients or FAOs may attempt to negotiate compensation-reductions (or Claims) wherein the attempter is actually trying to devise a way to "skirt" application of required regulatory procedures. Since RTH and the RTHCos are entities under regulatory compliance, RTH nor the RTHCos shall yield to such attempts. Clients/FAOs are hereby cautioned to respect compliance with financial regulations.

Additional Compensation:

- As explained in the accompanying Form ADV, Part-2, at Item-Section2 #10, 11, & 12, RTH does not participate in receiving economic benefits from any arrangements from others who are not Clients.

RTH does not receive, nor seek to receive research or any other products or services from third parties.

RTH does not accept, nor seek to arrange higher (than market norms) Commissions (or Markups or Markdowns) in return for benefits (a/k/a "soft dollar benefits").

The RTHCos (including RTH) do not engage-in or undertake "Soft Dollar" relationships or agreements. Distinction: since relevant Continuing Professional Education (CPE) is in the best interest of Clients/FAOs, the RTHCos will accept free CPE which may include a sustenance at seminar" meal; with Clients/FAOs here being in understanding that these provisions from third-party-providers not being "vacation getaways," etc. — i.e. — not representing "Soft Dollar Arrangements" and not being a conflict of interests.

RTH does not receive referrals from any third party broker-dealers or third party firms. RTH does not enter into these incentive arrangements.

RTH does not receive, nor seek to receive prizes or awards.

RTH does not pay others for Clients referred to RTH.

De Minimis exception: Generally speaking, financial regulations permit gifts (such as during holidays) of up to $50 per year. RTH shall accept a De Minimis gift since the values are small enough to not effect any Conflicts of Interests. Also, if RTH is invited to an educational seminar (not meaning a vacation getaway), RTH may attend. Education is a necessary part of service to Clients (not a Conflict of Interests).
