Item 4 - Advisory Business

Oarsman Capital, Inc. (“OCI”) is an investment adviser registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) that makes investment management, investment/financial consulting and recommendation of independent third-party adviser services available to a wide variety of clients. OCI is owned by Robert W. Phelps, Alan L. Purinton, Thomas H. Nackers and Gerald W. Nackers. OCI does not control any other firm, and its only business is providing investment advice. The advisory services of OCI are described in detail below.

Investment Management Services

OCI provides Investment Management Services to individual, trust and institutional clients seeking to implement long-term investment programs. OCI constructs and manages for its clients portfolios that comprise one or more of the following investment asset classes, among others: common stocks, debt securities (U.S. Treasury, government agency, corporate and municipal), mutual funds, exchange-traded funds, stock options, and cash equivalents. OCI emphasizes the use of securities it believes are of fundamental quality and, in the case of common stocks, offer growth potential. Investment programs for taxable individual and trust clients emphasize a long-term perspective, tax-efficient strategies and the control of investment risk. Programs for tax-exempt clients seek to achieve, on an annual basis, risk-adjusted returns that are superior to an appropriate market benchmark. As services are provided, clients are free to contact their OCI Representative at any time.

In identifying potentially attractive common stocks to purchase, OCI seeks well established companies that possess proprietary products and/or services, track records of consistent earnings growth, financial strength, experienced management, and well articulated strategies for future growth. Many though not all such companies are global industry leaders with large market capitalizations. OCI also seeks to invest in stocks with reasonable valuations. In assessing valuation, OCI typically analyzes current and historical data regarding a stock’s price/earnings, price/sales, and/or price/book ratios. Discounted-cash-flow approaches are also utilized where appropriate.

OCI constructs for its clients portfolios whose common stock holdings are broadly diversified among several economic/industry sectors, while at the same time include strategic concentrations intended to benefit from long-term socio-economic trends. For clients seeking exposure to stock investments that fall outside OCI’s core-equity discipline, OCI invests a portion of client assets in equity mutual funds and/or exchange-traded funds whose managers employ an investment approach that differs from that of OCI (e.g., small-company stocks, value-oriented stocks, non-US stocks).

OCI invests client assets in stocks with the intention of holding them for an extended period of time; accordingly, portfolio turnover is expected to be relatively low. A stock is eliminated from a client’s portfolio (sold) if OCI believes the company has lost its fundamental quality or growth potential. A stock position is reduced (trimmed) in a portfolio if OCI believes the stock’s valuation more than adequately reflects the company’s assessed quality and growth potential. Short-term market-timing strategies are avoided. However, a major change in OCI’s market outlook can result in a reallocation of assets among security classes (if permitted by client-established guidelines).

OCI may invest a portion of client assets in U.S. dollar-denominated debt securities primarily to provide a reliable source of portfolio income and to enhance stability of principal. Accordingly, in most cases, only investment-grade notes and bonds are used, and the average maturity of portfolio holdings generally does not exceed 10 years. Tax-exempt (municipal) securities are diversified geographically and corporate debt securities are diversified by industry sector. OCI generally holds debt securities for an extended period and portfolio turnover is expected to be relatively low. A debt security may be sold if OCI believes there has been a major reduction in the credit-worthiness of the issuer, if OCI identifies a security deemed more attractive in terms of yield and/or quality, or if a change in OCI's interest rate and/or economic forecast necessitates an adjustment to the portfolio's asset allocation, average maturity, sector allocation (e.g., government vs. corporate), or industry exposure.

All accounts are supervised on a continuous basis and transactions are made at the discretion of OCI as the firm strives to meet the client's investment objectives. Unless the client designates otherwise, OCI recommends the broker-dealer to process securities transactions.

As of December 31, 2014, OCI had assets of $248,978,292 under discretionary management and $15,187,044 under non-discretionary management.

Independent Third-Party Adviser Services

OCI may also recommend that clients utilize the services of independent third-party investment advisers to manage a portion of, or their entire portfolio. OCI makes recommendations regarding the suitability of a third-party adviser (TPA) or investment style based on, but not limited to, the client's financial needs/situation, long-term goals, and investment objectives. Upon selection of a TPA(s), OCI will monitor the performance of the TPA(s) to ensure their performance and investment style remain aligned with the investment goals and objectives of the client.

The TPA will manage the client's account in accordance with the disclosures set forth in the TPA's disclosure documents. Such TPAs may have minimum account size requirements. Disclosure of account size minimums will be made in the TPA's disclosure brochure and account materials.

Clients may be required to sign an investment advisory agreement ("Agreement") directly with the TPA(s) selected in addition to the one that they signed with OCI. The TPA Agreement typically grants the TPA discretionary authority to manage the account and the authority to debit the client's account for fees due the TPA and OCI. The client, OCI or the TPA, in accordance with the provisions of those Agreements, may terminate the advisory relationship.

Investment/Financial Consulting Services

For clients having smaller portfolios or a need for investment advice involving an analysis of their portfolio, overall financial situation, a specific investment or particular financial situation, OCI provides Investment/Financial Consulting Services. These Services usually include an analysis of a client's existing assets, investment objectives, investments, cash flows, accumulation of funds for special goals, and tax situation. The scope of OCI's investment advice is as broad or detailed as a client wishes it to be. For clients having large or highly-diversified securities portfolios, OCI can make asset allocation recommendations which assist a client in arriving at an asset mix designed to achieve the client's investment objectives. For clients with a small amount of cash available to invest or with little investment experience, OCI can make specific investment recommendations, advise clients on possible investments to meet a specific financial need or advise clients on such fundamental investment matters as how to open a brokerage account, buy and sell securities and research and track their investments. To the extent requested by a client, OCI will work with the client's attorney, accountant or other professional adviser while completing the analysis.

OCI provides at least one meeting with the client to determine the client's needs and the scope of the consulting services to be provided and sometimes to provide the requested services. Follow-up meetings, if necessary, are usually completed within a short time after an agreement is signed unless the scope of the consulting services requires additional time. Clients may contact their OCI Representative at any time. Written reports are provided only if agreed to in advance between OCI and the client.

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

Fees paid to OCI are for OCI advisory services only and are negotiable. The fees do not include, for example, the fees charged by third parties such as third-party managers, or accountants or attorneys assisting with providing the client with accounting and legal advice. Transaction costs under wrap-fee programs or commission-based programs, and other account fees, will also be charged by brokerage firms in accordance with each account's brokerage firm's normal commission schedule. See Item 12, Brokerage Practices. Customary commissions on insurance are also not included.

Prospective clients should be aware that in addition to OCI's advisory fees, each mutual fund in which a client's assets are invested also charges its own internal advisory fees and other internal expenses which already have been deducted from the fund's reported performance. Depending on the fund, a client may be able to invest directly in the shares issued by the fund with or without incurring any sales or third-party management fees.

In addition, there are tax effects pertaining to fund share redemptions, and other sales, made by OCI on behalf of clients. Redemptions and sales are taxable events which may accelerate the recognition of capital gains, and losses, and frequent redemptions and sales may result in short-term, rather than long-term, capital gains and losses.

Investment Management Service Fees

The fees for services are calculated based upon the value of investments in a client's account. All asset-based fees are negotiable but are typically subject to the following fee schedule:

Assets Under Management	Annual Rate*	Quarterly
First $500,000	1.0%	0.250%
Next $500,000	0.8%	0.200%
Next $2 million	0.7%	0.175%
Next $2 million	0.6%	0.150%
Over $5 million	0.5%	0.125%

*Subject to a minimum account size of $100,000.

Fees for management services are billed in advance generally on a calendar-quarterly basis and at a rate of one-quarter of the annual fee. Fees are based upon the market value of the managed account as of the last business day of the prior quarter. The fee for any period which is less than a full quarter is pro-rated and no adjustment or refund is made with respect to partial withdrawals by a client during any billing period. Fees are billed directly to, and debited from, the client's account, unless other arrangements for payment are requested by the Client. [OCI may combine, in its sole discretion, the value of related accounts for fee billing purposes.]

As described above, mutual funds pay internal advisory fees to their investment managers which payments reduce the net asset value of the funds' shares. Additionally, OCI bills clients a fee based on the total value of their portfolios, which may be partly composed of mutual fund holdings. Therefore, clients whose portfolios include mutual funds pay two levels of advisory fees, one directly to OCI for its management services, and one indirectly to the managers of the funds.

Clients who permitted their accounts to be assigned from Nackers & Associates to OCI will continue to pay OCI the fees specified in their Nackers & Associates contract based on the following fee schedule:

Type of Account	Annual Fee	Quarterly Fee
Fixed Income	0.5%	0.125%
Mutual Funds	0.75%	0.1875%
Equities	1.0%	0.250%

Clients enrolled in wrap-fee programs (where one asset-based fee covers both advisory fees and certain transaction commissions) should be aware that depending on the account size and transaction frequency, overall expenses may be higher in such programs when compared with per-transaction commission-based pricing.

OCI may amend its fees upon advance written notice to the client.

The contract for Management Services may be terminated at any time upon 30 days advance written notice from one party to the other.

Independent Third-Party Adviser Service Fees

Under these arrangements, OCI shares in the fee charged by the TPA. Fees may be negotiated, depending upon the TPA selected, the size of the account and the services covered. Fees paid by the client to the TPA are established and payable in accordance with the Form ADV Part 2A or other equivalent disclosure document provided by each TPA to whom the client is referred.

The client, OCI or the TPA, in accordance with the provisions of those Agreements, may terminate the advisory relationship. If the TPA is compensated in advance, the client will typically receive a pro rata refund of any prepaid advisory fees upon termination of an advisory Agreement.

Investment/Financial Consulting Service Fees

OCI's fee for providing Investment Consulting Services is quoted in advance and is calculated based upon the nature and scope of services requested.

The firm's hourly fee ranges from $75 to $150 per hour depending upon the scope and complexity of the services requested. Flat fees can also be negotiated and their range will vary depending on the complexity of the services requested. There is a minimum fee of $200, except where waived by OCI.

One half the quoted fee is due at the time the service agreement is signed, with the balance due promptly after work is completed. In the event of contract termination, which can occur upon either Client's or OCI's written notice, unearned prepaid fees are returned to the client and a client is obligated to pay any earned fee not yet paid based upon the hourly rate used to calculate the estimate.

Other Compensation

OCI Representatives of the Nackers Division may also be licensed to offer securities and insurance products and will receive customary commissions for the sale of such products should a client decide to make purchases through the Representative (however, clients are free to purchase such products other than through the Representative). This compensation creates a conflict of interest; all prospective and existing clients are hereby advised that this conflict exists. An OCI Representative may recommend either no-load or load mutual funds for a client's account. In all cases, recommended investments must be suitable. Advisory fees are not reduced by the amount of sales compensation a Representative receives on securities or insurance sales.

All OCI clients are free to purchase securities and insurance products recommended by the firm's representatives through any provider the client chooses.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management

OCI does not charge any performance-based fees. All fees are disclosed in Item 5 above.

Item 7 - Types of Clients/Minimum Account Size

OCI makes its advisory services available to a wide variety of clients including, but not limited to, individuals, pension and profit sharing plans, trusts, estates, charitable organizations, corporations and other business entities.

OCI may impose a minimum account size of $100,000 for accounts receiving Investment Management Services. However, this minimum may be waived at OCI's discretion.

OCI may also charge a minimum fee to accounts receiving account management or consulting services. The minimum is determined at contract signing.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

OCI's security analysis methods include, but are not limited to, fundamental analysis (evaluating securities based upon their historical and projected financial performance); technical analysis (examining technical moves in the price of an issue based upon peer securities or comparisons to an investment sector or index); cyclical analysis (determining the desirability of an issue based upon the status of an issue within the price cycle the security or similar securities have followed historically); and charting analysis (using charts to track individual security or market movements over time).

OCI's main sources of information include, but are not limited to, financial data services/websites, newspapers and magazines, research materials prepared by others, company financial reports, and corporate rating services.

Also, see Item 4 above for a more detailed explanation of the services provided by the firm.

Neither OCI, nor the third-party managers it may secure, guarantee the results of the advice given. Thus, significant losses can occur by investing in any security, or by following any strategy, including conservative investment strategies recommended or applied by OCI.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

OCI does not have any disciplinary information to report regarding itself or any of its counselors or other related persons.

Item 10 - Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

OCI Representatives with the Nackers Division may also be licensed to offer and sell securities and insurance products through Triad Advisors, Inc. As a result of this relationship, clients serviced by members of the Nackers Division may also have their accounts monitored by compliance personnel at Triad. This is due to Triad's supervisory responsibilities. Triad will also receive a portion of the advisory fee due OCI on these accounts. This does not result in the client paying a higher fee than is available to other OCI clients.

Robert Phelps and Alan Purintun, shareholders of OCI, are also members of Blade Ventures, LLC, a company that makes investment purchases for its members. As members, Messrs. Phelps and Purintun have minority equity interests. Other members are also clients of OCI. This outside business relationship with clients creates a potential conflict of interest for Messrs. Phelps and Purintun, and an incentive to favor these clients over others. When providing advice, it is Messrs. Phelps' and Purintun's practice not to favor any client over another.

Item 11 - Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

OCI, or its officers, directors, portfolio managers and employees may invest in the same securities that are the subject of investment advice to clients. OCI has established a Code of Ethics applicable to all persons at the firm who have access to confidential client records or to recommendations being made for client accounts. Designed to prevent conflicts between the financial interest of clients and the interests of OCI's staff, the Code requires such "access persons" to obtain preapproval of certain securities transactions, to report transactions quarterly and to report all securities positions in which they have a beneficial interest at least annually. These reporting requirements allow supervisors at OCI to determine whether to allow or prohibit certain employee securities trades based on transactions made, or anticipated to be made, in the same securities for Client accounts. The Code is required to be reviewed annually and updated as necessary. A complete copy of the firm's Code is available upon request.

If Triad Advisors, Inc. is selected by a client as the client's broker-dealer, it will receive revenue from each securities transaction it processes for the client's account. Because the advisory representatives of the Nackers Division of OCI who give advice are also licensed brokers for Triad, both OCI and its advisory representatives have conflicts of interest when they (1) recommend Triad's brokerage services, and (2) determine, on a discretionary basis, the number, kind and amount of securities trades to process through Triad since such determinations influence the amount of revenue earned by Triad and its advisory representatives.

Mr. Phelps is an owner of a concrete products company, of which another owner is an OCI client. This relationship may create an incentive for Mr. Phelps to favor that client over others. However, when providing advice, it is Mr. Phelps's practice to treat all clients equally.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

OCI does not exercise discretion to select brokerage firms. In most cases, clients agree to the designation of a securities broker-dealer recommended by OCI before any transactions are placed by OCI for the client.

Representatives of the Nackers Division of OCI may recommend that their clients establish custodial accounts with Triad Advisors, Inc. Other broker-dealers (collectively known as "Service Providers") are recommended to execute transactions for OCI clients because of their execution capability, participation in underwritings, availability to call with timely quotations and pertinent news such as dividend declarations, and because of the value of their research services. Research services include reports on industries and individual companies, economic reports, historical charts giving the price action of stocks and averages, technical analysis reports and bond call and rating reports.

OCI will generally seek to obtain the best execution at the best security price available with respect to each transaction. The best price means the best net price without regard to the specific sales price and specific commission. OCI will seek reasonably competitive commission rates. However, accounts may not necessarily pay the lowest available commission. OCI may "block" similar orders for multiple accounts into one order for the purpose of trying to obtain a better average price for all accounts in the block.

Under certain circumstances, OCI may cause an account to pay a broker-dealer a higher commission than obtainable elsewhere because of the research services supplied by that broker-dealer. Higher commissions will not be paid unless OCI determines that 1) the amount is reasonable in relation to the services in terms of a particular transaction or OCI's overall responsibilities with respect to client accounts; 2) such commission payments are made in compliance with applicable state and federal laws; and 3) total commissions paid by the clients either alone, or in aggregate with other accounts are reasonable in relation to benefits obtained.

Clients should be aware that their accounts may incur transaction costs in addition to any commissions charged by their custodian broker when transactions occur in over-the-counter securities on an agency basis. Also, brokerage firm custody of a client's assets may limit or eliminate OCI's ability to obtain best price and execution.

OCI may receive economic benefits through the custody and operating relationships it has with Service Providers that are not typically available to the Service Providers' retail investors. These benefits do not in any way affect the decisions made for client accounts managed by OCI. These benefits include the following products and services, provided to OCI without cost or at a discount: duplicate client statements and confirmations, research related products and tools, consulting services, access to a trading desk serving Representatives, access to block trading (which provides the ability to aggregate securities transactions for execution and then allocate the appropriate shares directly to or from client accounts), the ability to have advisory fees deducted directly from client accounts, access to an electronic communications network for client order entry and account information, access to mutual funds with no transaction fees, and discounts or no fees on compliance, marketing, research, technology, and practice-management products and services provided by third-party vendors. The Service Providers may also pay for business consulting, professional services, and research received by OCI affiliated persons and may also pay or reimburse expenses (travel, lodging, meals, and entertainment expenses) for OCI personnel to attend conferences or meetings relating to their service platforms or to their advisor custody and brokerage services generally. Some of these products and services made available by the service providers may benefit OCI, but may not benefit its clients. Such other services made available by Service Providers are intended to help OCI manage and further develop its business enterprise, and such services may or may not depend on the amount of brokerage transactions directed to them.

The receipt of economic benefits by OCI described above, per se, creates a potential conflict of interest and may directly or indirectly influence OCI recommendation of those Service Providers for custody and brokerage service.

Other than the services described above, OCI and its Representatives do not direct transactions and the commissions they generate (soft dollars) to brokerage firms or other parties to receive research or other benefits.

While OCI does not require its clients to use a particular Service Provider, it generally recommends the use of one of several Service Providers with which it has established relationships that facilitate the efficient delivery of investment advisory services. Clients should be aware that when they use the transaction services of recommended Service Providers they may not always realize the most favorable execution of transactions. However, OCI believes potentially higher client costs are offset by the more efficient service delivery attained by using recommended Service Providers.

OCI does not process transactions through recommended Service Providers in return for those Service Providers referring new clients to OCI.

Item 13 - Review of Accounts and Reports

Managed accounts are reviewed regularly (generally at least monthly) by OCI's portfolio managers. Factors triggering more frequent reviews may be current market changes, general economic conditions, favorable or unfavorable public news about a security or issuer, or requests by a client for a special review. There are no fixed limits on the number of accounts assigned to any portfolio manager.

Client accounts receiving Investment Consulting Services are usually not subject to review after services are completed.

OCI generally provides written reports on a quarterly basis to accounts under OCI's discretionary investment management, although certain accounts may only receive custodial reports. OCI's written reports generally include cost and market value of the assets in the client's portfolio, as well as total return and current yield information. These reports are retained by OCI and used during meetings with clients, which are not generally regularly scheduled but may be arranged by OCI and the client from time to time.

Accounts receiving Investment Consulting Services generally will not receive written reports except to the extent mutually agreed upon by the client and OCI Representative.

Item 14 - Client Referrals and Other Compensation

From time to time, OCI may pay solicitation fees for client referrals in accordance with Rule 206(4)-3 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended. These fees will be paid from OCI's client fee revenues. However, client fees will not be increased as a result. Disclosure of these referred fee arrangements will be made in advance of a client signing a services contract.

Item 15 - Custody

OCI does not take custody of client funds or securities. These safekeeping services are typically provided to managed accounts only by the brokerage firm processing securities transactions ordered by OCI.

To the extent a client receives any account or other investment ownership statement from OCI, OCI recommends the client carefully compare the report to the information provided on the custodian's statements received by the client.

Item 16 - Investment Discretion

When providing Investment Management Services, OCI and its Representatives may exercise discretion when granted authority by clients and most clients grant discretionary authority to OCI. When using discretionary authority, the client allows OCI and its Representatives to select the securities to buy and sell, the amount to buy and sell, when to buy and sell, and the commission rate paid without obtaining specific consent from the client for each trade. Clients should be aware that Representatives may make different recommendations and effect different trades with respect to the same securities (and insurance) to different advisory clients. Commissions and execution of securities transactions implemented through the custodian/broker dealer recommended by OCI may not be better than the commissions or execution available if the client used another brokerage firm. However OCI believes the overall level of services and support provided to the client by custodians and broker dealers OCI recommends justifies the potentially higher costs.

Depending on the service agreement, third-party managers used to manage client accounts or portions of client accounts may be hired or terminated by OCI using discretionary authority granted to OCI by a client. Such third-party managers also have authority granted by the client to purchase and sell securities at their discretion.

If a client directs OCI to effect transactions through a particular broker/dealer, OCI will do so. However, such an instruction may have implications to the client which may include incurring transaction costs and commissions that may be higher or lower than if the instruction had not been given. Also, restricting OCI to particular broker/dealers may limit OCI's ability to include a client account order within block orders to obtain the best price or execution. In addition, if OCI is effecting transactions in a security for clients by means of a block order, as well as an order in the same security for a client who has directed OCI to use a particular broker/dealer, OCI will effect the block order immediately prior to effecting the directed brokerage trade. Thus, clients directing OCI to use a particular broker/dealer may not receive the same average price for securities bought or sold that would be received if the order was part of a block order.

In the event of an order error, it is OCI's policy to take action to make the client's account whole.

Item 17 - Voting Client Securities Proxies

OCI and its Representatives may vote proxies on behalf of clients. The following information summarizes OCI's Policies and Procedures regarding how it votes proxies when providing Investment Management Services to clients.

Proxy Voting and Legal Action Policies

Guiding Principles. OCI's Policies and Procedures relating to voting proxies are designed to ensure that proxies are voted in the best interests of clients. The Policies and Procedures do not apply to those situations where the client has retained voting discretion. In those situations, OCI will assist the client with questions about the proxy or voting procedure. When exercising voting authority, OCI will abide by specific voting guidelines on certain policy issues as requested by the client on a case-by-case basis.

Primary Objective. In general, proxies will be voted in a manner designed to maximize the value of client investments. In evaluating a particular proxy proposal, OCI will take into consideration, among other things, the period of time over which the voting shares of the company are expected to be held, the size of the position, the costs involved in the proxy proposal and the existing governance documents of the affected company, as well as its management and operations. Proxy proposals that change the existing status of a company will be reviewed to evaluate the desirability of the change, and to determine the benefits to the company and its shareholders, but OCI's primary objective is always to protect and enhance the economic interests of its clients.

Generally, it is OCI's policy to vote in accordance with management's recommendations on most issues since the capability of management is one of the criteria used by OCI in selecting stocks.

Exceptions. When OCI believes management is acting on its own behalf, instead of on behalf of the well-being of the company and its shareholders, or when OCI believes that management is acting in a manner that is adverse to the rights of the company's shareholders, OCI will take steps to represent the interests of its clients and, as a result, may elect to vote against management's recommendations.

In situations where OCI is extremely displeased with management's performance, it may withhold votes or vote against management's slate of directors and other management proposals as a means of communicating its dissatisfaction. This occasion most often develops when OCI believes that management has displayed a consistent inability or lack of interest in moving the company toward achieving its potential and that a message needs to be sent that the company's shareholders are not satisfied with the status quo.

Other Factors OCI Considers. OCI recognizes that the activity or inactivity of a company with respect to matters of social, political or environmental concern may have an effect upon the economic success of the company and the value of its securities. However, OCI does not consider it appropriate, or in the interests of its clients, to impose its own moral standards on others. Therefore, it normally supports management's position on matters of social, political or environmental concern, except where it believes that a different position would be in the economic interests of company shareholders.

Conflicts. In evaluating a proxy proposal, the President, or the President's designee, is responsible for considering whether there are any circumstances that may give rise to a conflict of interest on the part of OCI in connection with voting client proxies either because of a business relationship between OCI and the company or otherwise.

Voting Procedures. All proxy proposals are voted on an individual basis. In general, when a conflict exists, the President, based on the advice of legal or other competent counsel, determines whether the proxy may be voted by OCI or whether it should be referred to the client (or another fiduciary of the client) for voting purposes. Alternatively, OCI may consult directly with a client to obtain the client's consent before voting the proxies. OCI will not refrain from voting proxies just because a conflict exists because OCI has a fiduciary duty to take action on all proxies.

Legal Actions. OCI has contracted with Chicago Clearing Corporation (CCC) to provide certain services related to class-action litigation brought by shareholders against the issuers of securities owned by OCI clients. In this capacity, CCC compiles and organizes the documentation required to participate in such litigation, submits such documentation to relevant entities, and collects and administers such monetary awards to which OCI clients are entitled. In return for these services, CCC retains 20% of all monetary awards collected on behalf of OCI clients, with the remaining 80% going to the client. OCI clients who wish to assume responsibility for their participation in legal actions may opt out of the CCC service.

How To Obtain More Information. For additional information regarding OCI's proxy-voting and legal-action policies and procedures, to learn how a specific proxy was voted, or to obtain details regarding a specific legal action, please contact us in writing at 759 N. Milwaukee Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53202, or by calling (414) 221-0081.

Item 18 - Financial Information

OCI does not receive fees of more than $1,200 six months or more in advance; thus, no financial statement for OCI is attached. OCI does not have any financial condition that is reasonably likely to impair its ability to meet its contractual commitment to any client.

CFA Charter Qualifications

The Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) charter is a globally respected, graduate-level investment credential established in 1962 and awarded by CFA Institute — the largest global association of investment professionals.

To earn the CFA charter, candidates must: 1) pass three sequential, six-hour examinations; 2) have at least four years of qualified professional investment experience; 3) join CFA Institute as members; and 4) commit to abide by, and annually reaffirm, their adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.

High Ethical Standards

The CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct, enforced through an active professional conduct program, require CFA charterholders to:

- Place their clients' interests ahead of their own
- Maintain independence and objectivity
- Act with integrity
- Maintain and improve their professional competence
- Disclose conflicts of interest and legal matters

Global Recognition

Passing the three CFA exams is a difficult feat that requires extensive study (successful candidates report spending an average of 300 hours of study per level). Earning the CFA charter demonstrates mastery of many of the advanced skills needed for investment analysis and decision-making in today's quickly evolving global financial industry. As a result, employers and clients are increasingly seeking CFA charterholders — often making the charter a prerequisite for employment. Additionally, regulatory bodies in 19 countries recognize the CFA charter as a proxy for meeting certain licensing requirements, and more than 125 colleges and universities around the world have incorporated a majority of the CFA Program curriculum into their own finance courses.

Comprehensive and Current Knowledge

The CFA Program curriculum provides a comprehensive framework of knowledge for investment decision making and is firmly grounded in the knowledge and skills used every day in the investment profession. The three levels of the CFA Program test a proficiency with a wide range of fundamental and advanced investment topics, including ethical and professional standards, fixed-income and equity analysis, alternative and derivative investments, economics, financial reporting standards, portfolio management, and wealth planning.

The CFA Program curriculum is updated every year by experts from around the world to ensure that candidates learn the most relevant and practical new tools, ideas, and investment and wealth management skills to reflect the dynamic and complex nature of the profession.

CFA Charter Qualifications

The Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) charter is a globally respected, graduate-level investment credential established in 1962 and awarded by CFA Institute — the largest global association of investment professionals.

To earn the CFA charter, candidates must: 1) pass three sequential, six-hour examinations; 2) have at least four years of qualified professional investment experience; 3) join CFA Institute as members; and 4) commit to abide by, and annually reaffirm, their adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.

High Ethical Standards

The CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct, enforced through an active professional conduct program, require CFA charterholders to:

- Place their clients' interests ahead of their own
- Maintain independence and objectivity
- Act with integrity
- Maintain and improve their professional competence
- Disclose conflicts of interest and legal matters

Global Recognition

Passing the three CFA exams is a difficult feat that requires extensive study (successful candidates report spending an average of 300 hours of study per level). Earning the CFA charter demonstrates mastery of many of the advanced skills needed for investment analysis and decision-making in today's quickly evolving global financial industry. As a result, employers and clients are increasingly seeking CFA charterholders — often making the charter a prerequisite for employment. Additionally, regulatory bodies in 19 countries recognize the CFA charter as a proxy for meeting certain licensing requirements, and more than 125 colleges and universities around the world have incorporated a majority of the CFA Program curriculum into their own finance courses.

Comprehensive and Current Knowledge

The CFA Program curriculum provides a comprehensive framework of knowledge for investment decision making and is firmly grounded in the knowledge and skills used every day in the investment profession. The three levels of the CFA Program test a proficiency with a wide range of fundamental and advanced investment topics, including ethical and professional standards, fixed-income and equity analysis, alternative and derivative investments, economics, financial reporting standards, portfolio management, and wealth planning.

The CFA Program curriculum is updated every year by experts from around the world to ensure that candidates learn the most relevant and practical new tools, ideas, and investment and wealth management skills to reflect the dynamic and complex nature of the profession.
