Fees and Compensation

Fee Calculation

Applicant intends to charge for its investment services on the basis of a percentage of assets under management in each portfolio in accordance with the following schedule: 1) For common stocks, convertible bonds, convertible preferred shares and all other assets in an account which are not cash, cash equivalents, long or short term fixed income securities the annual rate shall be 1% of the first $5,000,000 and ½ of 1% for market value in excess of $5,000,000. 2) For cash, cash equivalents, long and short term fixed income securities without convertibility the rate shall be ½ of 1%. For purposes of the above “short or long term fixed income securities” means fixed income securities without convertibility or any other equity feature and with maturities longer than one year at the time of acquisition.

Fees are subject to negotiation.

From time to time Cobey, Jacobson & Gordon, Inc. may waive or reduce fees for an individual or several accounts permanently or temporarily with or without prior notice. Cobey, Jacobson & Gordon, Inc. may make such a decision based on a variety of criteria including, dollar amounts of assets to be managed, related accounts, account composition, account performance, client cash flow considerations, client liquidity needs.

From time to time Cobey, Jacobson & Gordon, Inc. may also in certain instances, with agreement of the client as specified in an investment management contract, charge a fee based on the market performance of a client portfolio. Such fee arrangements are based on a number of factors including the size and the investment objectives of the portfolio, but are typically 20-25% of gains billed on a bi-yearly or yearly basis, after achieving a “high water mark” threshold. Such accounts may also have a management fee, typically 1% of assets in addition to the fees based on the market value performance.

Fee Billing

Investment management fees are billed quarterly, in arrears, meaning that clients are billed for services rendered four times a year after the end of_ each calendar quarter. Fees will be calculated on the last business day of each calendar quarter based on the market value of the cash and securities held in the account on those dates. Fees will be equitably pro-rated if the advisory agreement period begins or ends other than on the first or last day of the business calendar quarter. Ordinarily, and as specified in the advisory agreement, fees are debited by the custodian for each portfolio. Clients may request that the advisory agreement specify or may otherwise instruct the Applicant to provide an invoice to them directly to which they can respond by direct and full payment to Cobey, Jacobson & Gordon, Inc._

Other Fees

Applicant has arranged for one custodian to perform the full range of custodial duties at no charge to clients of the Applicant. Many of the Applicant's clients domicile their assets at this custodian. However, clients may designate custodians of their choice and some clients have chosen other custodians who may charge custody fees for services performed. Cash management mutual funds, exchange traded funds or similar entities may charge fees for transactions or other services. These transaction charges are ordinarily modest and incidental to the purchase or sale of a security. Applicant receives no fee or other compensation from any custodian.

Past Due Accounts and Termination of Agreement

Applicant reserves the right to discontinue management of any account that is more than 30 days overdue. In addition, Applicant reserves the right to terminate any financial planning engagement where a client has willfully concealed or has refused to provide pertinent information about financial situations when necessary and appropriate, in Applicant's judgment, to providing proper financial advice

Types of Clients

Description

Cobey, Jacobson & Gordon, Inc. generally provides investment advice to very high net worth individuals, pension and profit sharing plans, trusts, estates, charitable organizations, smaller corporations or business entities.

Client relationships vary in scope and length of service.

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

Security analysis methods may include charting, fundamental analysis, technical analysis, macro-economic analysis, sector analysis, political and social and cyclical analysis.

The main sources of information include financial newspapers and magazines, analysis, inspections of corporate activities, research materials prepared by others, corporate rating services, annual reports, prospectuses, filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and press releases, interviews, meetings and conference calls.

Investment Strategies

The investment strategy for a specific client is based upon the objectives stated by the client during consultations. The client may change these objectives at any time.

Other strategies may include long-term purchases, short-term purchases, trading, short sales, margin transactions, and option writing (including covered options, uncovered options or spreading strategies).

Particular attention to the issue of loss prevention is not just important for clients whose goal is retention of capital. We believe that superior performance is gained by above-average attention to the issue of risk, especially because the mathematics of loss are compelling when computing performance over a longer term. Example: a fifty percent loss requires a gain of 100% to recover starting capital.

Risk of Loss

All investment programs have certain risks that are borne by the investor. Our investment approach constantly keeps the risk of loss in mind. Among risks attendant to security of investment are the following:

Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.

Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying circumstances. For example, political, economic and social conditions may trigger market events.

Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.

Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.

Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e. interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.

Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry.

Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product.

Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a business' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value.
