MATERIAL CHANGES

Since our last Brochure dated October 15, 2014, the following material changes have been made to the Brochure.

Form ADV Part 2A

Investment Strategies

Effective March 10, 2015, the ranges of the number of portfolio holdings for the Large Cap Growth Equity, Small Cap Growth Equity, Small/Mid Cap Growth Equity, and Mid Cap Growth Equity were revised to better reflect each strategy's portfolio characteristics. The revised guidelines can be found for each of these strategies in the Investment Strategies section of this Brochure.

Small Cap Growth Equity Strategy

On January 1, 2015, the Small Cap Growth Equity Strategy was closed to new investors. Existing clients in the strategy can continue to invest additional assets in the strategy. Additional information about this strategy can be found in the Fees and Compensation and Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss sections of this Brochure.

Small/Mid Cap Growth Equity Strategy

On January 1, 2015, the Small/Mid Cap Growth Equity Strategy was opened to select new investors. Additional information about this strategy can be found in the Fees and Compensation and Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss sections of this Brochure.

ESG Growth Equity Strategy

Effective January 1, 2015, the ESG Growth Equity Strategy was renamed Sustainable Growth Equity Strategy. This Strategy will also utilize Institutional Shareholder Services' Sustainability Proxy Voting Guidelines to vote its proxy ballots. Clients in this Strategy may choose to vote in accordance with the Sustainability Policy or select another available policy. Although Westfield does not deem this to be a material change, we wanted to bring this to our clients' attention as they read through this Brochure. Additional information on the Strategy and proxy voting can be found under the Fees and Compensation, Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss, and Voting Client Securities sections of this Brochure.

Our Brochure may be requested by contacting the Compliance Department at 617-428-7100 or wcmcompliance@wcmgmt.com. Our Brochure is also available (free of charge) on our web site (www.westfieldcapital.com).

Additional information about Westfield is also available via the SEC's web site (www.adviserinfo.sec.gov). ADVISORY BUSINESS

Founded in 1989, Westfield Capital Management Company, L.P. (“Westfield”) is an investment advisor dedicated to providing quality, separate account investment management services for institutions and high net worth individuals. Westfield is 100% owned by WMS Management, LLC, which is the sole managing member of WMS General Partner LLC, the general partner for Westfield. WMS Management is wholly-owned by Westfield’s management team. Mr. William A. Muggia (President, CEO, and CIO) is the principal investor of WMS Management.

As of December 31, 2014, Westfield had $17.5 billion assets under management, of which $8 million are non-discretionary assets. Westfield supervises mainly domestic growth equities, with investment strategies – also known as products – focusing on each segment of the capitalization spectrum. Westfield also supervises foreign equities that are traded on U.S. stock exchanges and in U.S. dollars, American Depositary Receipts (ADRs), American Depositary Shares (ADS), and Global Depositary Receipts (GDRs). Foreign equities are typically incidental to the investment process, and not a substantive focus of our investment strategies.

Client accounts are managed in one of two ways: by an individual portfolio manager or by our Investment Committee, which is composed of security analysts, Director of ESG Research, an Economist, the Portfolio Strategist, and the Chief Investment Officer. Regardless of the portfolio management structure, all client accounts are assigned to a particular Westfield product. With the exception of those client accounts managed by a portfolio manager, investment decisions for client accounts are made at the product level by consensus of the Investment Committee. Once the investment has been approved, it will be implemented across each eligible and participating client account within the particular product. Investment decisions for client accounts managed by an individual portfolio manager are made by the portfolio manager assigned to the account.

Investment Guidelines and Restrictions

Westfield accepts client imposed guidelines and restrictions, as long as they are reasonable, in writing, and have been reviewed and accepted by Westfield’s Compliance team. Client restrictions are monitored by the Compliance team via an automated portfolio compliance system. Clients are responsible for providing Westfield with their most recent copy of account restrictions, limitations, and guidelines, as well as for notifying Westfield of any changes to such items in writing. Westfield is not responsible for the accuracy or completeness of any investment guidelines or restrictions provided by the Client. Certain Westfield strategies are offered as a private limited partnership or a mutual fund. Clients who invest in such strategies are typically not permitted to impose any restrictions or limitations that are not already in the offering documents or prospectus and SAI. On occasion, Westfield will accept a side letter agreement from clients invested in a private partnership.

If a client does not have their own set of investment guidelines or restrictions, their account will be managed in accordance with the guidelines for the product in which the account is assigned. Product guidelines include, but are not limited to, sector and issuer weight limits, short selling prohibitions, security type restrictions, foreign security limits, and market capitalization ranges. Specific information on each product’s investment guidelines can be obtained from Westfield’s Marketing and Client Service team. Additional information on our investment strategies can be found under Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss.

Client Contributions and Withdrawals

Clients may make contributions and withdrawals from their accounts in accordance with the terms in their investment management agreements. Clients are responsible for notifying Westfield of any contributions and withdrawals within their accounts to ensure funds are either invested or raised in an appropriate and timely manner. Unless other terms are agreed upon, Westfield will confirm receipt of such notice prior to making any necessary trades in the account. Notifications are not deemed received until they have been confirmed by Westfield. Westfield will accept instructions only from authorized individuals on the account; however, we will not initiate wire transfers on behalf of any client, with the exception of the private limited partnerships.

Wrap Fee Programs

Westfield participates in wrap fee programs for which we offer portfolio management services. The wrap fee programs are sponsored by broker dealer firms (the “sponsors”) that are not affiliated with Westfield. Each sponsor’s program allows its clients (each, a “client”) to receive, in exchange for a unitary, all-inclusive “wrap” fee, assistance in choosing participating portfolio managers, trade execution and custodial services, periodic performance and other reports, and certain other related services provided by the sponsor and its affiliates, as well as discretionary portfolio management services from portfolio managers participating in the program. Restrictions for client accounts in the wrap programs are monitored by Westfield.

Under each program, the cost of brokerage commissions and other transaction fees associated with client account transactions effected through the sponsor or its affiliates are covered by the all-inclusive wrap fee that each client pays to the sponsor. Periodically, Westfield will effect transactions through a broker dealer firm that is not the sponsor nor affiliated with the sponsor. In such instances, the cost of brokerage commissions and other transaction fees are incurred by the client. These transaction costs and fees are exclusive of and in addition to the wrap fee that each client pays each sponsor. As compensation for our services, we receive directly from each sponsor (and not from any client whose account(s) Westfield manages through the program) a portion of the all-inclusive wrap fee that each client pays each sponsor.

FEES AND COMPENSATION

Westfield has standard investment management fee schedules for each investment strategy. Westfield’s general policy is to charge fees to clients in accordance with the fee schedule in effect at the time the client enters into an investment management relationship with Westfield. Fees are subject to modification and negotiation based on factors (e.g., complexity of service level required, number of accounts for a related group of clients) deemed by Westfield to be relevant.

The specific manner in which fees are charged by Westfield is established in a client’s written agreement with Westfield. Westfield typically bills its fees on a quarterly basis in arrears based on the total market value of the account on the last business day of the quarter. Clients may elect to be billed in advance or arrears each calendar quarter. Clients may also elect to be billed directly or to authorize Westfield to debit fees from client accounts. Unless specifically requested by the client, management fees are not pro-rated for each capital contribution and withdrawal made during the applicable calendar quarter. Accounts initiated or terminated during a calendar quarter will be charged a pro-rated fee.

Unless other terms are agreed upon, the investment management agreement between Westfield and the client may be terminated at any time by either party by delivery of written notice. Client termination notices must be acknowledged by Westfield before any asset transfers or liquidations will be effected. Upon termination of any account, any prepaid, unearned fees will be promptly refunded, and any earned, unpaid fees will be due and payable.

Westfield's fees are exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which shall be incurred by the client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by custodians, brokers, third party investments and other third parties. Such fees may include but are not limited to, fees charged by managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Mutual funds and exchange traded funds also charge internal management fees, which are disclosed in a fund's prospectus. Such charges, fees and commissions are exclusive of and in addition to Westfield's fee, and Westfield does not receive any portion of these commissions, fees, and costs.

The section on Brokerage Practices further describes the factors that Westfield considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions). Outlined below are Westfield's standard fee schedules:

PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

In some cases, Westfield has entered into performance fee arrangements with qualified clients; such fees are subject to individualized negotiation with each such client. Westfield will structure any performance or incentive fee arrangement subject to Section 205(a)(1) of the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 (“The Advisors Act”) in accordance with the available exemptions thereunder, including the exemption set forth in Rule 205-3. In measuring clients' assets for the calculation of performance-based fees, Westfield will include realized and unrealized capital gains and losses. Westfield also previously offered investment advisory services to clients on a flat fee basis. With the exception of one client who receives limited services on a flat fee and continues to be charged in this manner, Westfield no longer offers such a fee arrangement to its clients.

Performance-based fee arrangements may create an incentive for Westfield to recommend investments that may be riskier or more speculative than those which would be recommended under a different fee arrangement. Such fee arrangements also create an incentive to favor higher fee paying accounts over other accounts in the allocation of investment opportunities. Additionally, other conflicts can arise with the simultaneous management of multiple accounts by Westfield’s investment professionals as they must allocate their time and investment ideas across multiple accounts. This may result in the Investment Committee or portfolio manager allocating unequal attention and time to the management of each client account as each has different objectives, benchmarks, investment restrictions and fees. Although the Investment Committee collectively acts as portfolio manager on most client accounts, there are some client accounts that are managed by a portfolio manager who also is a member of the Investment Committee.

Because of Westfield’s affiliation with the General Partners listed under Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations, Westfield has a financial interest in the limited partnerships listed in that section. Our financial interest in the partnerships is disclosed in the confidential offering memorandum sent to each prospective investor. Furthermore, Westfield and its employees have invested their own funds in certain partnerships, strategies, or mutual funds that are advised by Westfield. Allowing such investments can create an incentive for the firm to favor these accounts because our financial interests are more directly tied to the performance of such accounts.

To manage these conflicts, we have the following policies and procedures in place:

- Investment decisions for most client accounts are made by the Investment Committee, and client accounts within a strategy are managed to the strategy’s model portfolio. Our Operations team performs periodic reviews of each strategy's model portfolio versus each client account, where each position size is compared against the model's weight.

- Westfield will typically allocate investments on a pro-rata basis to all participating and eligible accounts regardless of the accounts' fee structure or assigned manager.
- Trades made for client accounts managed by a portfolio manager are required to be communicated to the Investment Committee. Our Compliance Department performs periodic reviews of such accounts versus the Investment Committee-managed accounts.
- The Compliance Department monitors applicable investment guidelines and restrictions within client accounts.
- Security analysts' compensation is tied to the investment decisions made for the strategies; thus, there is incentive to act in the best interests of all clients regardless of fee structure.
- Personal transactions are regulated by the firm's Code of Ethics, specifically those restrictions and requirements in the personal trading section. See the section on Code of Ethics in this Brochure for more details.

TYPES OF CLIENTS

Westfield provides portfolio management services to high net worth individuals, corporate pension and profit-sharing plans, Taft-Hartley plans, foundations, endowments, wrap fee programs, municipalities, registered mutual funds, private investment funds, trust programs, sovereign funds, foreign funds such as UCITs and SICAVs, limited partnerships, and other U.S. institutions.

Subject to Westfield's (or General Partner's) discretion, minimum account sizes apply, and are dependent on the product. More information on minimum account sizes and fee schedules can be found in Fees and Compensation and Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss.

METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

Investment Strategies

Most of our investment strategies are managed by the Investment Committee, collectively acting as portfolio manager. Once an investment idea has been approved by the Investment Committee for a product (or products), all eligible client accounts within the product(s) will be allocated shares. There are some client accounts that are managed by a portfolio manager. Many of these client accounts have mandates that are no longer offered by Westfield. Investment decisions for these accounts do not require Investment Committee review or approval; however, trade orders for these individually managed client accounts are communicated to the Investment Committee via an email by the Trade Allocation Management team.

Our investment strategies are primarily focused on publicly-traded domestic equity securities that are exchange listed and have market quotations readily available. Typically, positions in de-listed securities will not be initiated, but Westfield will selectively maintain a position that becomes de-listed if Westfield believes the fundamental case for investment remains intact. With the exception of the Micro-Cap

Strategy, our products do not invest, unless otherwise noted, in derivatives, options, or privately held securities, and do not permit short selling. The Micro-Cap Strategy permits the usage of leveraging techniques, short selling, frequent trading, investments in private securities, and investments in derivatives or options. As such, the Micro-Cap Strategy will enter into a short position in a broad market index ETF. Since Westfield is fundamentally a long-only manager, allowing the Micro-Cap Strategy to short the market can create a conflict with those client accounts that are invested in the long-only strategies. Westfield has policies and procedures that place certain restrictions and limits on short selling activity. Additionally, our Compliance team performs periodic reviews of the short positions against other client accounts.

Under normal market conditions, our long-only equity products will typically not use a frequent trading strategy. However, in certain market conditions, especially volatile ones, trading activity within products may increase. When a frequent trading strategy is utilized, there will be increased brokerage and other transactions costs, as well as taxes, associated with executing trades. Increased portfolio costs will affect an account's investment performance.

As previously discussed in the Investment Guidelines and Restrictions section, each of the products has its own set of investment guidelines. Clients also may impose additional restrictions, as long as they are reasonable and in writing, and have been reviewed and accepted by Westfield. Unless otherwise noted, each of the strategies utilizes the following standard guidelines:

Position Limits

- Typically, no equity position will exceed the greater of either 5% of the portfolio or 2% more than the security's benchmark weight, both valued at market. Initial portfolio weightings are set by the Investment Committee or portfolio manager and are typically 1.5% to 2%.
- Equity positions in Dividend Growth Equity will typically not exceed 5% of the portfolio, unless their weighting in the benchmark does so. Initial portfolio weightings are typically 1.5% to 3%.
- Sustainable Growth Equity generally will not exceed, at market, the greater of either 5% of the portfolio or 2% more than the security's benchmark weight. Equity positions outside of the benchmark are generally limited to 5% of the portfolio.

Sector/Industry Limits

- Sectors are generally limited to 20% of the total market value of the portfolio or 2.5 times the benchmark weight, whichever is greater. (This limit does not apply to Dividend Growth Equity and Sustainable Growth Equity.)
- Dividend Growth Equity and Sustainable Growth Equity will generally limit industries to 25% of the portfolio.

Cash and Equivalents

- Portfolios are expected to be fully invested at all times; cash is a residual of the investment process and will generally not exceed 10% of the total market value of the portfolios.

Foreign Investments

- Foreign securities exposure is limited 15% of the portfolio (Dividend Growth Equity and Sustainable Growth Equity may hold up to 35%), and will consist of Depositary Receipts (e.g., ADRs) and non-U.S. incorporated stocks traded on a U.S. exchange and denominated in U.S. dollars. The limits do not apply to U.S. companies that transfer their registration to reduce U.S. tax liability.

Westfield previously offered Balanced, All Cap Select, Fixed Income, and Life Sciences Strategies. Although they are no longer actively offered to clients, Westfield still has client accounts within these strategies. The Life Sciences Strategy was offered through private limited partnerships, which have ceased investment operations and are in the process of liquidation. Westfield does not receive any investment advisory fees for these partnerships.

Methods of Analysis

Westfield employs experienced analysts who are focused on particular economic sector verticals (healthcare, information technology, consumer staples, etc.). Each analyst capitalizes on many years of experience, an understanding of competitive dynamics, and insight into secular and cyclical trends and relationships with industry professionals to complement rigorous financial analysis. For client accounts managed by the Investment Committee (the “Committee”), the analysts generate investment recommendations that are considered by the entire Committee.

Westfield believes that the best investment decisions are made objectively and in consideration of various points of view. As such, investment decisions for most of our strategies are made by the Committee to harness the collective wisdom of the team. The Investment Committee is comprised of our senior analysts and investment professionals. Recommendations are presented to the Committee by sponsoring analysts and investment decisions are made by the group after discussing the proposal’s merits and risks. Collaboration among analysts is encouraged in advance of formal recommendations.

Westfield employs its investment process in order to ensure that all of the elements of sound investment decisions are considered whether or not recommendations are made by sponsoring analysts. Analysts’ fundamental research efforts result in financial projections for every investment made on behalf of clients. Those projections are monitored relative to “sell side” estimates. Position sizes are monitored relative to that outlook and the expectations for upside potential in the stock. Similarly, stocks that trade off significantly from the price at which we purchased them, or from recent price history, are reviewed by the Committee. If a case cannot be made to add to such a position in order to capitalize on a market mispricing, the Investment Committee may decide to sell the stock.

Risk of capital loss is primarily managed at the position level through a thorough understanding of each security’s fundamental outlook and ongoing review of potential investment risks. The characteristics we seek in each investment underpin our effort to manage risk in that Westfield generally looks for companies with broad market opportunities, quality balance sheets, well-regarded management teams, unique market positions and cash flow sufficient to fund growth. Westfield analysts aim to identify companies that are increasing earnings at an attractive pace, while trading at a discount either to the broader market or to the company’s perceived relative growth prospects. This is an attempt to mitigate the risk of severe valuation compression resulting from a singular fundamental misstep. Frequent interaction with company management helps analysts stay close to the issues that could alter investors’ outlook for the company. Additionally, Westfield attempts to understand portfolio risk of exposure to factors common to many investments. Exposure to any economic sector, for example, is typically limited to the greater of 20% or 2.5 times the sector weight in the benchmark utilized for performance purposes (e.g., Russell 1000 Growth Index). This helps to limit the impact of a single exogenous event on a large number of portfolio holdings.

For client accounts that are not managed by the Investment Committee, the portfolio manager follows a similar fundamental, bottom-up research approach. The portfolio managers are generally supported by the research efforts of Westfield’s investment professionals to assist them with company analysis. The portfolio managers will screen companies from the investible universe for metrics that they believe are relevant (e.g., dividend growth, ESG factors). They also perform reviews of numerous factors that can vary by sector or industry. Examples of such factors include company earnings growth, management team, competitive positioning, cash flow, and the introduction of new products and services. The valuation of investments is reviewed and monitored regularly. Industry and sector concentrations are also monitored and limited as a means to control portfolio risks.

Risk Considerations

With equity securities, the prospect of capital loss is significant as equity holders' economic interests are subordinate to all others in the capital structure. Westfield attempts to mitigate these risks by managing portfolios that are relatively concentrated but sufficiently diversified. Westfield believes that the size of individual investments should be such that the impact of any one position can have a substantive impact on aggregate portfolio returns without having a destabilizing impact on overall results. For example, individual position sizes are typically limited in the products. Total foreign investments also generally will not exceed a 15% weight. This limitation would not apply to any U.S. company that has transferred their registration to reduce their U.S. tax liability (i.e., benefit-driven incorporations, or BDIs).

Long term data suggest that equity returns are competitive with the performance of other asset classes over time, but key risks accompany these attractive returns. Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. In the tables below, we have identified the material risks associated with an investment in Westfield's strategies. An explanation of each risk is located after the tables.

Risk Definitions

Market risk is the risk that security prices decline overall. Markets tend to move in cycles, with periods of rising prices and periods of falling prices. Markets are volatile and can decline significantly in response to adverse issuer, political, regulatory, market or economic developments in the U.S. and in other countries. Market risk may affect a single company, sector of the economy or the market as a whole.

Equity risk is the risk that prices of equity securities rise and fall daily. Price movements may occur due to factors affecting individual companies, such as the issuance of an unfavorable earnings report, or other events affecting particular industries or the equity market as a whole.

Investment style risk means that specific market capitalizations and/or securities (e.g., mid cap growth) could fall out of favor with investors and trail the performance of other types of investments. Because certain investment strategies may concentrate investments in a particular market cap, security type, etc., these strategies may be significantly more volatile than strategies that are more diversified. Although styles tend to fall in and out of favor, Westfield tends to focus on domestic growth equities. If this style falls out of favor, such security prices could fall dramatically.

Non-diversification risk exists because the portfolio expects to invest in a small number of issuers, which may cause the portfolio to be concentrated in a particular type of security, industry, geographic location or market capitalization. A loss incurred in a position that makes up a significant percentage of the portfolio could have a significant adverse effect on the portfolio's overall performance. This limited diversity can expose the portfolio to greater volatility than in a more diversified portfolio.

Foreign securities risk involves risks associated with investments in non-U.S. based companies. These include the potential of: (i) the security being less liquid than domestic securities, (ii) less information available about the company, (iii) an adverse effect of economic conditions and unstable governments, and (iv) unfavorable foreign currency exchange rates.

MLP/PTP (Master Limited Partnership/Publicly Traded Partnership) risks are associated with owning interests in publicly-traded partnerships that often own several properties or businesses (or own interests) that are related to oil and gas industries or other natural resources, but they also may finance other projects. To the extent that an MLP's or PTP's interest is all in a particular industry, the MLP or PTP will be negatively impacted by economic events adversely impacting that industry. The risks of investing in a MLP or PTP are generally those involved in investing in a partnership as opposed to a corporation. For example, state law governing partnerships is often less restrictive than state law governing corporations. Accordingly, there may be fewer protections afforded to investors in a MLP or PTP than investors in a corporation. Investors in MLPs or PTPs also may have limited voting rights or be liable under certain circumstances for amounts greater than the amount of their investment. In addition, MLPs or PTPs may be subject to state taxation in certain jurisdictions which will have the effect of reducing the amount of income paid by the MLP or PTP to its investors.

Fixed income securities risk is the risk that prices of fixed income securities will be affected by interest rate changes, terms of the security, and changes to the credit quality of the issuer, counterparty or underlying assets.

Dividend paying securities risk involves risk that such securities may fall out of favor with investors and underperform the market. Also, the company may reduce or eliminate its dividend.

Preferred stock risk means that preferred stocks are sensitive to interest rate changes, and are also subject to equity risk. The rights of preferred stocks on the distribution of a company's assets in the event of liquidation are generally subordinate to the rights associated with a company's debt securities.

Options and derivatives risks exist because the value of a derivative instrument is based on a number of factors beyond the price of the underlying asset at a given time. The volatility and direction of the underlying assets' returns, the underlier's payout of coupons or dividends, the time horizon until expiration of the instrument/option contract, and the risk-free/market rates of return are all core to valuing derivatives and options; the presence of these factors can increase the complexity and risk associated in investing in derivatives.

Short selling risk is the risk associated with the sale of a security that may not be held in the portfolio. This investment technique is made in anticipation that the prices of the securities will decrease and the securities can be purchased at the lower price on a later date to generate a profit. It is possible, however, that a position cannot be closed out at a particular time or price. Positions also may be closed out at a loss.

Liquidity risk is associated with securities that may be difficult to accurately price or to transact at times determined to be appropriate by Westfield. For example, private investments could impose a substantial "lock up" period prior to any liquidation opportunity. Also, the prices realized on private investments may be less than what the portfolio paid originally.

Leverage risk involves the use of margin accounts to purchase securities. Margin accounts are generally secured with certain portfolio holdings pledged as collateral. Should the value of such securities decline, the portfolio may be required to deposit additional funds or liquidate pledged securities to compensate for the value decline.

DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of Westfield or the integrity of Westfield's management. Westfield has no information applicable to this item.

OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES AND AFFILIATIONS

Westfield serves as manager to WCM Partners LLC and Westfield Partners LLC, the General Partners of the Westfield Micro-Cap Fund Limited Partnership. Westfield Partners LLC also serves as the General Partner of the Westfield Select Growth Equity LP. Since Westfield provides investment advisory services to the Westfield Micro-Cap Fund and Westfield Select Growth Equity (collectively, the "Funds"), Westfield has a financial interest in each. Each prospective investor receives a confidential private offering memorandum, which discloses Westfield's financial interest in the Funds. Having a financial interest in client accounts can create a conflict between those client accounts in which we have a financial interest and those in which we do not. Westfield has designed and implemented procedures to ensure that all clients are treated fairly and equally, and to prevent this conflict from influencing the allocation of investment opportunities among clients. These controls are discussed under the Performance-Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management section of this Brochure.

CODE OF ETHICS

Westfield has adopted a Code of Ethics (the "Code") for all employees of the firm describing its high standard of business conduct, and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, prohibitions on insider trading and rumor mongering, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. Westfield's employees are required to follow the Code. All Westfield employees must acknowledge the terms of the Code annually, or as amended. Code acknowledgements may take the form of a stand-alone document or as part of Westfield's compliance manual.

The Code is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of employees will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code, certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of Westfield's clients. The Code requires preclearance and reporting of many transactions, generally restricts trading in close proximity to client trading activity, and imposes minimum holding periods for most securities. Nonetheless, because the Code would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients as long as the investment is in compliance with the Code's provisions, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee.

Employees also may invest in the mutual funds or private partnerships (collectively, "the funds") that are managed by Westfield. Allowing employees to trade in such funds can create an incentive for Westfield to favor those funds. Thus, any employees deemed "Access Persons" are subject to the personal securities transactions restrictions, as well as the preclearance and reporting requirements, contained in the Code. On occasion, Westfield's Compliance Department will deem a temporary employee an Access Person.

Employee trading is regularly monitored by our compliance team to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Westfield and its clients. Personal transactions records, as well as the Code, are retained for the required time periods under applicable rules. A copy of Westfield's Code of Ethics is available to clients and prospective clients upon request. Clients and prospective clients can contact the Compliance Department either by email (wcmcompliance@wcmgmt.com) or by phone (617-428-7100) for a copy.

Cross Transactions

Because Westfield services different types of clients, Westfield has placed a general prohibition on cross transactions between any Westfield client accounts. Similarly, Westfield will not buy or sell a security from its own account, or affiliated limited partnerships, to any advisory client.

BROKERAGE PRACTICES

In placing each transaction for a client's account, Westfield seeks best execution of that transaction except in cases where Westfield does not have the authority to select the broker or dealer, as stipulated by the client. Westfield does not routinely recommend, request or require clients to direct Westfield to execute transactions through a specific broker-dealer. Westfield does accommodate client direction with regard to broker selection. In such circumstances, Westfield may be unable to achieve most favorable execution of client transactions. The inability of a client to participate in a particular block trade, for example, may cost the client in commissions and market impact. The client also may receive less favorable prices.

Westfield believes that brokerage commissions are the property of the client and our firm has a duty to seek best execution, minimize transactions costs and utilize client commissions to benefit client accounts. Commission levels are reviewed regularly to ensure that any commissions above an "execution-only" rate are reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and research services. In addition to the research services provided, a variety of issues are also considered when selecting a broker-dealer, to include (but not limited to):

- Promptness of execution
- Past history of execution
- Reputation and integrity
- Security trading characteristics
- Size of the order
- Liquidity of the security
- Ability to source "natural" flow
- Unique trading expertise (specialized firm)
- Broker responsiveness
- Sophistication of trading facilities
- Information containment
- Ease of settlement
- Flexibility resolving issues with custodians

Research Services ("Soft Dollar Benefits")

At Westfield, we value Wall Street, regional brokerage, and third party research. The information that these firms generate and the access that they provide are complementary to our investment process. We believe that utilizing client commissions to pay for these products and services – also called soft dollar benefits – is prudent as they aid in our pursuit of superior investment performance. Certain third party research services will be used to support both our investment-decision making and our non-research processes. With such "mixed-use" items, we make an assessment of the portion that is attributable to the investment process and pay for that part of the service through client commissions. The remaining portion is paid from our own resources. While the clients are the ultimate beneficiary of research services provided by a third party, Westfield receives a benefit as well. Although Westfield does not pay for the third party research services, leveraging the research efforts of others by utilizing client commissions allows Westfield to focus our efforts on what we regard to be our most productive activities. We believe these services make our analysts generally more informed.

Within our last fiscal year, some of the soft dollar benefits included fundamental stock research, equity market strategy, economic forecasting, risk analytics, forensic accounting, technical research, regulatory and policy-related research and access to networks of industry experts. Their relevance to our investment process is the key evaluation criteria and serves to mitigate the risk of conflicts of interest.

Because of our interest in receiving third party research services, there may be an incentive for Westfield to select a broker or dealer based on such interest rather than the clients' interest in receiving most favorable execution. To mitigate the conflict that Westfield may have an incentive beyond best execution to utilize a particular broker, a research vote is conducted and reviewed on a quarterly basis. This vote provides the opportunity to recognize the unique research efforts of a wide variety of firms. The vote is compared to commission data to ensure that there is correlation between the vote and the aggregate commission levels with our service providers. Conducting this vote on a quarterly basis results in data that is fresh and reflective of our Investment Committee's sense for which firms are providing valuable services. The aggregation of the results helps to highlight the breadth of research penetration of a particular research provider into our investment decision-making process.

The vote identifies those research providers that are positively impacting our overall research efforts. It is not possible for that benefit to be specifically tied to any one client. Even clients with directed brokerage arrangements receive soft dollar benefits. As such, the ultimate benefit is shared by all clients regardless of the magnitude of their commission spend. Soft dollar benefits are received by all clients, not just those "paying" for the benefit. Similarly, there is no attempt to allocate the benefit proportionately to those generating the majority of the commissions. In return for soft dollar benefits, clients may pay commissions higher than those charged by other brokers or dealers.

Westfield also uses commission dollars for research services not subject to the vote. These services typically provide more general benefits to the entire Investment Committee. While these services are not subject to our quarterly vote, they are assessed annually (in part through third party sources) to confirm that their primary usage is for our investment decision-making.

Trade Allocation

Absent client restrictions, trades for client accounts in a particular strategy are aggregated whenever possible. This allows our trading professionals to efficiently pursue an optimal trading strategy to best source liquidity without the encumbrance of multiple, account-specific orders. Traders can therefore be more focused on trading strategy than account logistics. In certain cases where the aggregate order may be executed in a series of transactions at various prices on a given day, the transactions are allocated as to amount and price in a manner considered equitable so that each participating and eligible account receives, to the extent practicable, the weighted average share price for all such transactions in the series and each shares pro-rata in transactions costs based upon participation in the series of transactions. Although sharing in large transactions may sometimes affect price or volume of shares acquired or sold, overall it is believed that there may be advantages in execution.

When aggregating account orders, Westfield will utilize "step-out" trades to satisfy directed brokerage arrangements and/or commission recapture targets. In situations where an account restricts Westfield from utilizing step-out trades, orders for such accounts will be executed last.

We endeavor to allocate in 10 share minimum lots for our client accounts. That is, the total number of shares of the same security from a particular broker allocated to an account on the same trading day should be at least 10 shares; provided, however, that our efforts to allocate pro-rata and in 10 share minimum lots for client accounts will be limited by the client account size, client brokerage arrangements, client custodial arrangements, client investment restrictions, or other factors (or combination of factors) that may prevent us from allocating shares in such a manner. In these instances, a client account may receive more or less than the 10 share minimum. It also is possible that a client account is allocated zero shares on a particular day (and on subsequent days) in a trade order that is taking multiple days to complete. Additionally, with respect to partial fills of sales, allocations may first be made to accounts that requested such sale because the accounts may have been in an overdraft position and cash was needed, for example.

On occasion, a trade error will occur in a client account. When an error has been identified, Westfield seeks to correct the error as soon as reasonably possible, with the goal of putting the client account into the same position that would have resulted if the error had not occurred. If the error was caused by Westfield, our policy is to ensure the client account is made whole on any losses caused by the error. In the event that a trade error has not impacted any client accounts, Westfield will typically move the trade to an error account where Westfield will bear any losses incurred from the error and retain any gains to offset future error amounts.

Allocation of Initial Public and Other Limited Offerings

When Westfield participates in transactions such as initial public offerings (“IPOs”), where the number of shares available for purchase is insufficient to meet all desired orders, Westfield strives to allocate such investments across client accounts in a manner that is consistent with our basic investment philosophy and process.

The allocation of IPOs is a function of the market capitalization of the issuer and the market capitalization range of the product (described under Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss). Each product also has the flexibility to participate in an offering if the market capitalization of the security falls within the range of the product’s relevant benchmark at the time of initial purchase. For client accounts that are not managed by Investment Committee, the portfolio manager provides an initial indication order before the allocation is distributed to other client accounts. Westfield allocates the shares to each eligible and participating client account on a pro-rata basis (irrespective of whether an offering is allocated only to accounts assigned to a single product or allocated across accounts from multiple products), based on the total market value of the participating account. Our efforts will be limited by similar restrictions and limitations described in Trade Allocation directly above.

Some limited offerings such as private placements are only purchased in the Micro-Cap Strategy. The portfolio manager has sole discretion on target weights for the strategy. Shares are allocated pro-rata to each eligible and participating investor’s account.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, a client account may be deemed ineligible for participation in an offering for one or more of the following reasons:

- an investment strategy that is inconsistent with the account's participation;
- an account investment or brokerage restriction prohibiting participation;
- an inability to margin the account; or
- insufficient cash in the account.

From time to time, Westfield will deviate from the allocation methods described in this section. In such instances, the reasons are documented and communicated, usually via email, to the Investment Committee and Compliance.

REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS

Every client account is assigned to a product. Products are categorized by the Westfield investment strategies described in Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss. Consolidated holdings in our Small Cap Growth, Small/Mid Cap Growth, Mid Cap Growth, All Cap Growth, Dividend Growth, Sustainable Equity Growth and Large Cap Growth Equity Strategies are reviewed at least weekly by the Investment Committee. The Investment Committee monitors product holdings to ensure weightings are within product investment guidelines, as well as analyst instruction. To manage dispersion, our Operations team reviews client accounts against their product's model portfolio typically once within a four week period. Client accounts managed by an individual portfolio manager are reviewed on an ongoing basis by the assigned manager.

Client investment guidelines are monitored, via an automated portfolio compliance system, by Westfield's compliance team. Client guidelines are monitored on a pre- and post-trade basis. Westfield utilizes third party data, which feeds directly into the portfolio compliance system, to help monitor certain investment guidelines. When an exception is generated by the system, Compliance will review and validate the event. Client guideline breaches are resolved and reported per internal policy and procedures. Client investment restrictions for wrap-fee accounts are monitored by Westfield's SMA team. Account cash levels are monitored daily by Operations.

On at least a monthly basis, Westfield's reconciliation team reconciles portfolio accounting records for each client account against the custodian bank's or prime broker's statements.

Separately Managed Accounts

Unless other reporting terms are agreed upon, clients receive quarterly reports prepared by Westfield. The reports will typically include holdings at the end of the reportable period, transactions, market value changes, account performance versus benchmark performance, performance attribution, realized and unrealized gains and income/expense transactions. On a quarterly basis, written Westfield product and market commentaries are included with the reporting package.

Westfield Micro-Cap Fund, L.P. and Westfield Select Growth Equity LP

Clients receive no less than quarterly reports, consisting of an investment commentary with performance, as well as an account statement. Clients also receive audited financial statements within 120 days after the partnership's fiscal year ends.

CLIENT REFERRALS AND OTHER COMPENSATION

From time to time, we will suggest to existing and prospective clients who do not meet our investment minimum criteria to consider a mutual fund that we sub-advise or advise. Westfield is not the distributor of such funds, but we will provide either the advisor's website or phone number so these clients may obtain the appropriate documents prior to making any investment with such funds. Westfield does not receive any compensation, outside of the agreed upon investment advisory fee, for these types of recommendations.

CUSTODY

Since all client funds and securities are maintained at qualified custodians, Westfield does not take physical possession of any client assets. Under the SEC's Custody Rule however, Westfield is presumed to have custody because of our affiliation with the General Partner listed in Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations. Our affiliation with the General Partner gives us legal access to the funds of the private limited partnerships, even though we do not take physical custody of any such assets. The partnerships undergo an annual financial statement audit by an independent public accountant registered with, and subject to regular inspection by, the PCAOB. Investors in the limited partnerships receive copies of these audited financial statements.

With the exception of the investors in the limited partnerships, clients should receive at least quarterly statements from their broker dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains the client's investment assets. Westfield urges each client to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that we provide to clients. Our statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

INVESTMENT DISCRETION

Westfield usually receives discretionary authority from the client at the outset of an advisory relationship to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment strategy for the particular client account. Prior to assuming discretionary authority, Westfield must receive, in writing, an executed investment management agreement or similar document stating such authority from the client; provided, however, that a written agreement or document will not be necessary for Westfield's proprietary accounts.

When selecting securities and determining amounts, Westfield observes applicable investment policies, limitations and restrictions of the clients for which it advises. Many of our clients will place limits on position sizes and sector weights, as well as brokerage direction. For registered investment companies, Westfield's authority to trade securities may also be limited by certain federal securities and tax laws that require diversification of investments and favor the holding of investments once made.

Client investment guidelines and restrictions must be reviewed and approved by Westfield. They also must be provided in writing. See the section entitled Advisory Business for additional information on client restrictions and guidelines.

VOTING CLIENT SECURITIES

Westfield offers to vote proxies for all accounts and many of Westfield's clients have delegated this authority to Westfield. Clients also may elect to vote their own proxy ballots. Westfield believes that the voting of proxies can be an important tool for investors to promote best practices in corporate governance and Westfield will vote all proxies in the best interests of its clients as investors.

Westfield utilizes the proxy voting guidelines set forth by our third party service provider, Institutional Shareholder Services, Inc. ("ISS"). Clients have an option of selecting one of four sets of written voting guidelines: Standard, Taft-Hartley, Sustainability or Socially Responsible Investing ("SRI"). Once a client has chosen their voting policy, their account will be automatically set to vote in accordance with the written guidelines. Clients who do not make a policy selection will be assigned the Standard policy, unless the client is invested in the Sustainable Growth Equity Strategy. For those clients who do not make a policy selection and are investors in the Sustainable Growth Equity Strategy, they will be assigned to the Sustainability proxy voting guidelines. With some exceptions, votes against guidelines are generally permitted upon request by the security analyst or portfolio manager. Clients may change their voting policy selection at any time by sending a written request to Westfield's Compliance team. Clients may also contact Westfield to inquire how a particular proposal will be voted for their account(s).

ISS votes the proxies and maintains voting records on behalf of Westfield. Westfield's compliance team monitors the vendor's activities by conducting periodic due diligence calls and audits of proxy ballot votes. Westfield will vote only proxy ballots received, and ISS will utilize its best efforts in obtaining missing ballots on behalf of Westfield. Since there can be many factors affecting proxy ballot retrieval, it is possible that Westfield will not receive a ballot in time to place a vote. Clients who participate in securities lending programs should be aware that Westfield will not call back any shares on loan for proxy voting purposes.

Our compliance team is responsible for identifying the actual or potential conflicts of interest that may arise when voting proxy ballots on behalf of our clients. Since Westfield is solely focused on providing investment advisory services, it is unlikely that a material conflict will arise in connection with proxy voting. However, Westfield has put in place certain reviews that will help ensure proxy ballots are voted solely on the investment merits of the proposal. In identifying potential conflicts, Compliance will review many factors, including existing relationships with Westfield or an employee. If an actual conflict of interest is identified, it is reviewed by the Compliance team, who may consult with the firm's Operating & Risk Management Committee. If it has been determined that the conflict is material in nature, the analyst or portfolio manager may not override the vendor's recommendation. Overrides are also not allowed in the Taft-Hartley and SRI policies.

Westfield's proxy voting policy and procedures are available on its website (www.westfieldcapital.com). Clients may obtain a copy of the proxy voting policy and procedures by contacting Westfield's Compliance Department either by email (wcmcompliance@wcmgmt.com) or by phone (617-428-7100). Clients may also obtain information from Westfield about how we voted any proxies on behalf of their account(s) by contacting us at the phone number or email provided directly above.

Class Action Claims and Other Legal Proceedings on Behalf of Clients

While Westfield may be authorized to vote proxy ballots on behalf of clients, Westfield will neither advise nor take any action on behalf of clients, or former clients, in any class action claims or other legal proceedings involving securities held in or formerly held in client's account(s) or involving the issuers of those securities.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required in this item to provide clients with certain financial information or disclosures about Westfield's financial condition. Westfield has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
