Item 4: Advisory Business

Kenmar Preferred Investment Solutions Corp. was established in December 1995 and was converted to Kenmar Preferred Investments, L.P. in July 2012. In March 2014, it was converted to Kenmar Preferred Investments, LLC ("Kenmar Preferred"). Upon such conversion to a limited liability company, Kenmar Preferred became the wholly owned subsidiary of Kenmar Olympia, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company directly owned by C-Gaia, Inc. and Bustan Trust.

On March 20, 2014, Kenmar Olympia, LLC purchased the outstanding limited partnership interests of Kenmar Preferred Investment L.P. from Kenmar Group Inc. and Kenmar Olympia Group, L.P.

Kenmar Preferred provides discretionary investment management services to certain private investment funds or pools (collectively, "Private Funds") that in turn, invest (directly or indirectly) in other private investment funds ("Portfolio Funds") advised and/or managed by alternative investment managers that are related to Kenmar Preferred or unrelated third parties (each, a "Manager").

In addition to its advisory business, Kenmar Preferred also serves as the Managing Member/Owner of several private managed futures commodity pools. See also Item 10 below.

The Portfolio Funds may invest, at the discretion of the applicable Manager, in a wide and substantially unrestricted variety of securities and other financial instruments including:

- (a) any and all securities, whether listed, unlisted, publicly traded or privately-offered, including but not limited to
 - (i) equity securities (such as common stock, preferred stock, and convertible securities),
 - (ii) debt securities (such as corporate bonds, government or government agency debt obligations, debentures and any other evidence of indebtedness such as money market obligations and certificates of deposit),
 - (iii) groups of securities, exchange-traded funds and indices,
 - (iv) warrants, rights, options or privileges on any of the foregoing;
- (b) commodities, futures contracts, forward contracts, foreign exchange commitments, swap contracts, spot (cash) commodities and other items, options on the foregoing, any rights pertaining to the foregoing contracts, instruments or investments throughout the world, and securities approved by the U.S. Commodity and Futures Trading Commission ("CFTC") for investment of customer funds;
- (c) interests of other entities engaged in trading the items enumerated in (a) and (b) above; and
- (d) any other investment or transaction that a Manager deems to be consistent with the objectives of such Manager's trading methods, regardless of whether such interest is traded on an exchange, market or otherwise and regardless of where in the world such interest is traded or located (collectively, "Investment Interests"). The Investment Interests in which each Private Fund may invest (through Portfolio Funds) are found in each Private Fund's offering memorandum and related documents (collectively, "Offering Documents").

Please see Item 8 below for a brief discussion of Kenmar Preferred's current investment strategies (collectively, the "Strategies"). Important information regarding an investment in a Private Fund, including information about the Managers responsible for making the trading and investment decisions for the Portfolio Funds, including the specific investment strategies and policies, fees and expenses, risk factors and other material terms, are set forth in each respective Private Fund's Offering Documents.

As of October 30, 2015, Kenmar Preferred serves as investment manager for three Private Funds with $26,766,155 in discretionary assets under management.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

Kenmar Preferred does not have a standardized fee schedule. Kenmar Preferred generally receives a management fee ranging from 0% to 6% per annum of assets under management for the Private Funds (a) based on beginning of period or end of period assets, (b) generally charged monthly and (c) payable either in advance or in arrears. Advisory fees greater than 2% of assets under management, which are charged to certain clients on a case-by-case basis, may be higher than the fees charged by another investment adviser providing similar discretionary advisory services, and accordingly, such clients may be able to obtain such similar advisory services with another adviser at a lower cost.

Kenmar Preferred does not receive incentive (or performance-based) fees.

Management fees charged in arrears will be prorated, and management fees charged in advance will be refunded for any partial period. Management fees may be negotiable depending upon a variety of factors including, among others, the investment strategy employed by Kenmar Preferred, the amount of the investor's assets under management, or the overall relationship with the investor.

Fees paid to Kenmar Preferred are generally deducted from the Private Fund assets as more fully set forth in the respective Offering Documents. Private Funds also pay certain other fees and expenses such as brokerage, custody, clearing, transaction and give-up fees, withholding taxes, legal, administrative, registration and regulatory costs, operational due diligence costs, regulatory reporting, offering costs, and audit & tax preparation fees. All such fees and expenses and other important information regarding an investment in a Private Fund, such as risk factors, are more fully set forth in each Private Fund's Offering Documents.

Each of the Private Funds invests, either directly or indirectly, in a Portfolio Fund and, as such, the Private Funds will bear their prorata share of the Portfolio Fund's fees and expenses, including but not limited to management fees and incentive fees paid to the Manager, brokerage and other transaction fees, legal, audit, administrative, offering and operating fees and expenses.

Preferred generally may terminate the agreement between a Private Fund and Preferred at any time without penalty. Generally, an investor in a Private Fund may redeem some or all of their investment as of the last business day of each month subject to the terms and conditions for withdrawals or redemptions which are more fully disclosed in the respective Offering Documents.

Certain supervised persons of Kenmar Preferred may receive a bonus based in part on the assets managed by Kenmar Preferred and its affiliated advisers (together, "Kenmar"). Such persons are also registered with Kenmar Securities, LLC (formerly Kenmar Securities, L.P.) ("KSEC"), an affiliate of Kenmar Preferred, and a broker-dealer registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") and is a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority ("FINRA"). See Item 10 below for additional information about Kenmar Preferred's affiliates, including KSEC.

This practice may present a conflict of interest as it gives Kenmar Preferred and/or its supervised persons an incentive to recommend the investment advisory services of Kenmar taking into account the fact that compensation may be received based upon an increase in Kenmar's assets. We do not believe this conflict to be material because, among other things, such supervised persons are not incentivized to sell one investment product over another and thus will generally consult with each prospective investor to select the investment product(s) most appropriate for their specific investment objectives and requirements. Further, the relationship between Kenmar Preferred and its affiliates is disclosed to Clients and investors.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Kenmar Preferred does not receive performance-based fees.

Item 7: Types of Clients

Kenmar Preferred provides discretionary investment management services to Private Funds that in turn, invest in Portfolio Funds advised and/or managed by a Manager.

Each Private Fund has a minimum investment requirement for investors as set forth in such Private Fund's respective Offering Documents. Investors also are required to meet certain eligibility standards as set forth in each Private Fund's offering memorandum and related documents.

In its discretion, Kenmar Preferred has entered into (and may in the future enter into) side letter arrangements with certain investors in Private Funds managed by Kenmar Preferred ("Side Letter Investors") whereby Kenmar Preferred and a Side Letter Investor have agreed (or may agree in the future) to vary the Side Letter Investor's investment terms from those made available to other investors in Private Funds, including but not limited to (1) the greater availability to the Side Letter Investor of certain information, disclosures and/or reports (including personnel or other changes to Kenmar Preferred or the Private Fund, or portfolio holdings and other information concerning the Private Fund's investments or the Side Letter Investor's investment), (2) the timing of the delivery to the Side Letter Investor of such information or other Private Fund information, disclosures and/or reports, and (3) certain other investment terms, including but not limited to reduced fees to be charged to a Side Letter Investor (management and/or incentive), shorter notice periods for redemption, more frequent dates for redemptions, timing of redemption payouts, and/or timing for subscriptions. As a result, certain Side Letter Investors may be able to act (i.e., request redemptions) on such additional information that other investors do not receive. Granting more favorable liquidity terms to certain investors may have a material adverse effect on investors not receiving such terms. A Private Fund also may issue additional classes that are subject to such different terms and conditions which are similar or the same as a side letter arrangement.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

A. Methods of Analysis

In evaluating Managers, Preferred (either directly or through its affiliates) performs manager due diligence, applying a “bottom up” approach. Preferred conducts quantitative and qualitative analysis, including an evaluation of the risks assumed by each manager and strategy, in order to fully understand the strengths and weaknesses of the individual investment strategies and performance of each manager. Preferred also performs operational due diligence on each Manager’s infrastructure, middle-office and back-office and review of all relevant documents and confirmation that specific trade and operating procedures are documented and followed in practice. The process is designed to ensure that Preferred has accumulated, and comprehended the relevant information about the manager.

Preferred generally selects Managers that seek to exploit a broad array of investment opportunities worldwide. Preferred seeks Managers that, in the opinion of Preferred, offer the potential for risk-adjusted returns within the context of the current market environment. Preferred may allocate to Managers who are accessed via Clarity Managed Account & Analytics Platform, LLC and affiliate of Preferred.

B. Investment Strategies

The current investment strategies (“Strategies”) employed by the Private Funds is described briefly below:

The Signature Advisors Strategy (“SAS Strategy”) has the objective of attaining superior risk-adjusted returns across a wide range of different market conditions and economic cycles. The SAS Strategy trades in global financial markets throughout the world by employing a multitude of primarily arbitrage strategies including (among others) computerized statistical systems combined with discretion.

Managed Futures Strategy: through allocations to Managers engaged in the speculative trading of a diversified portfolio of futures, forward (including interbank foreign currencies) and options contracts and other derivative instruments and may, from time to time, engage in cash and spot transactions; and has an investment objective of increasing the value over the long term (capital appreciation), while controlling risk and volatility.

C. Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves the risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

An investment in the Strategies involves a high degree of risk and may not be suitable for all investors. They are speculative and investors may lose all or a substantial portion of their investment. Investors must have the financial ability, sophistication/experience and willingness to bear the risks of such an investment. An investment in the Strategies should be discretionary capital set aside strictly for speculative purposes.

Private Funds and Portfolio Funds are unregistered private investment funds or pools that may invest and trade in many different markets, strategies and Investment Interests (including securities, commodity interests and derivatives) and are NOT subject to the same regulatory requirements as mutual funds, including mutual fund requirements to provide certain periodic and standardized pricing and valuation information to investors. They are not guaranteed by the FDIC or by any bank and they may lose value.

Private Funds and Portfolio Funds are illiquid investments and may be subject to significant restrictions regarding transfers. There is no secondary market for an investment in a Private Fund and/or Portfolio Fund and none is expected to develop.

Offering Documents are not reviewed or approved by federal or state regulators.

Private Funds and Portfolio Funds may have substantial fees and expenses, which may offset the trading profits of the Private Funds and/or Portfolio Funds.

Private Funds and/or Portfolio Funds may use leverage, execute a substantial portion of trades on foreign exchanges and trade commodity interests. The risk of loss from such activities is substantial and may increase the volatility of performance.

There is no guarantee that any of the Strategies will achieve its goals, objectives, or targeted returns.

Kenmar Preferred and its principals, officers and supervised persons will devote such time as they deem necessary for the management of Private Fund assets. However, Kenmar Preferred and its principals, officers and supervised persons will be involved, from time to time, with other related investment management activities and consequently will not devote all of their time specifically to any one Private Fund. However, this may be mitigated by the fact that Kenmar Preferred employs investment and administrative professionals who will devote time and attention to the business and affairs of Kenmar Preferred and its Private Funds as they, in their discretion, deem reasonably necessary.

A Strategy may at certain times hold a few, relatively large positions (in relation to their assets), with the result that a loss in any position could have a material adverse impact on the Private Fund's assets.

The Managers, through Portfolio Funds, have the overall responsibility for making investment and trading decisions for Private Fund assets. Therefore, Private Funds will be relying almost exclusively on the judgment and ability of the Managers. No assurance can be given that the advice of a Manager will result in profitable trades for its Strategy or that the applicable Strategy will not incur substantial losses.

To achieve a Strategy's investment objective, its Manager will trade Investment Interests. Investment Interests are speculative and may involve substantial risk of loss. The prices of Investment Interests are highly volatile and market movements are difficult to predict. Supply and demand for Investment Interests change rapidly and are affected by a variety of factors, including interest rates, rates of inflation and general trends in the overall economy or particular industrial or other economic sectors. Government actions, especially those of the Federal Reserve Board and other Central Banks, have a profound effect on interest rates that, in turn, affect the price of Investment Interests. In addition, a variety of other factors that are inherently difficult to predict, such as domestic and international political developments, governmental trade and fiscal policies, monetary and exchange control programs, currency devaluations and revaluations, emotions of the marketplace, patterns of trade and war or other military conflict. None of these factors can be controlled by a Manager.

The Managers may also manage other accounts (including other funds, related and unrelated, as well as accounts in which the Managers may have an interest) which may employ different or similar trading strategies, and which together with accounts already being managed could increase the level of competition for the same trades, including the priorities of order entry. These factors could make it costly or impossible to take or liquidate a position in a particular Investment Interest of the Portfolio Fund.

Trading decisions made by each Manager may be based on the judgment of one or a limited number of key individuals (each, a "Key-Man"). If any Key-Man were to die or become incapacitated or otherwise terminate his relationship with a Manager, such event could have a material adverse effect on the applicable Private Fund and its performance.

General economic and business conditions may affect a Manager's activities. Unexpected volatility or illiquidity in the markets in which a Portfolio Fund, directly or indirectly, holds positions could impair the Portfolio Fund's ability to carry out its business or cause it to incur losses. Moreover, although there can be no assurance that they will, certain Managers trade profitably during periods when major price movements occur. Such movements generally occur in any given market only infrequently, and during periods of static or "whipsaw" markets it is unlikely that those Managers will achieve profits for Portfolio Funds.

Managers may employ various risk reduction strategies designed to minimize the risk of their trading positions. A substantial risk remains, nonetheless, that such strategies will not always be possible to implement and even when possible will not always be effective in limiting losses. If a Manager analyzes market conditions incorrectly, or employs a risk reduction strategy that does not correlate well with a Manager's investments, such risk reduction techniques could result in a loss, regardless of whether the intent was to reduce risk or increase return. These risk reduction techniques may also increase the volatility of a Portfolio Fund and/or result in a loss if the counterparty to the transaction does not perform as promised.

Substantially all trading in commodities and futures has as its basis a contract to purchase or sell a specified quantity of a particular asset for delivery at a specified time, although certain Investment Interests, such as market index futures contracts, may be settled only in cash based on the value of the underlying composite index. Futures trading involves trading in contracts for future delivery of standardized, rather than specific, lots of particular assets.

Futures prices are highly volatile. Price movements for the futures contracts that the Managers may trade are influenced by, among other things, changing supply and demand relationships, government, trade, fiscal, and economic events, and changes in interest rates. Governments from time to time intervene, directly and by regulation, in certain markets, often with the intent to influence prices directly.

The CFTC has jurisdiction to establish, or cause exchanges to establish, position limits with respect to all commodities traded on exchanges located in the U.S. and may do so, and any exchange may impose limits on positions on that exchange. No such limits presently exist in the forward contract market or on certain non-U.S. exchanges. Insofar as such limits do exist, all commodity accounts owned, held, controlled or managed by a Manager and its principals and affiliates may be combined (that is, aggregated) for position limit purposes.

U.S. commodity exchanges may limit fluctuations in futures contracts prices during a single day by regulations referred to as "daily price fluctuation limits" or "daily limits." In addition, even if futures prices have not moved the daily limit, a Manager may not be able to execute futures trades at favorable prices if little trading in such contracts is taking place (a "thin" market).

Futures are typically traded on "margin." The "margin" is the amount of escrow or performance bond deposit that a Portfolio Fund will have to make and maintain with its futures commission merchants (futures brokers) to secure its future obligation to close out open positions. The initial margin requirements may be satisfied by the deposit of cash (or, in some U.S. markets, certain U.S. Government obligations). The open positions must be "marked to market" daily, requiring additional margin deposits if the position reflects a loss that reduces a Portfolio Fund's equity below the level required to be maintained and permitting release of a portion of the deposit if the position reflects a gain that results in excess margin equity. The level of margin that must be maintained for a given position is sometimes subject to increase, requiring additional cash outlays. In the futures markets, margin deposits are typically low relative to the value of the futures contracts purchased or sold. Such low margin deposits are indicative of the fact that any futures contract trading typically is accompanied by a high degree of leverage. Because margin requirements normally range upward from as little as 2% or less of the total value of the contract, a comparatively small commitment of cash or its equivalent may permit trading in futures contracts of substantially great value. As a result, price fluctuations may result in a contract profit or loss that is disproportionate to the amount of funds deposited as margin. Such a profit or loss may materialize suddenly, since the prices of futures frequently fluctuate rapidly and over wide ranges, reflecting both supply and demand changes and changes in market sentiment.

Depending upon the amount of assets managed overall by a Manager, it may be difficult or impossible for the Manager to take or liquidate a position in a particular commodity, method or strategy.

Important information regarding an investment in a Private Fund and the Portfolio Fund in which each Private Fund invests, including the specific investment strategies and techniques employed to achieve the Strategies and risks associated with such Strategies, as well as other material terms, are more fully set forth in each Private Fund's respective Offering Documents..

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading Kenmar Preferred strives to adhere to the highest industry standards of conduct based on principles of professionalism, integrity, honesty and trust. As such, Kenmar Preferred has adopted a Code of Professional Conduct ("Code") which describes Kenmar Preferred's high standard of business conduct, and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Professional Conduct includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, restrictions on the acceptance of significant gifts and the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. All employees must acknowledge the terms of the Code annually, or as amended.

Kenmar Preferred's principals, officers, supervised persons and related accounts ("Employees") are permitted to maintain personal trading accounts provided that such accounts are disclosed to Kenmar Preferred and are held at designated brokerage firms.

Any personal trading by Employees must be consistent with applicable law and with the Code. Subject to compliance with applicable laws, rules and regulations and the Code, Employees may buy, sell or hold for their own personal trading accounts securities, including Portfolio Funds that Kenmar Preferred also may buy, sell or hold for its clients. Employee investments in Portfolio Funds are permissible subject to compliance with the Code, pre-approval, and a determination that no conflict of interest exists.

The Code contains policies and procedures that, among other things:

- prohibit Employees from taking personal advantage of opportunities belonging to clients;
- prohibit trading on the basis of material nonpublic information;
- require pre-clearance of any private placements (including investments in hedge funds, fund-of-funds, private equity funds, venture capital funds and other unregistered pooled investment vehicles) and "new issues";
- require initial and annual reports of securities holdings by Employees, as well as copies of monthly and/or quarterly account statements and trade confirmations; and
- prohibit trading by employees of securities of any issuers on Kenmar Preferred's restricted issuer list.

Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, Employees of Kenmar Preferred and its affiliates may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for Kenmar Preferred's clients. The Code is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the Employees of Kenmar Preferred will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of Kenmar Preferred's clients. Employee trading and identified brokerage accounts are continually monitored under the Code via Compliance¹¹, an internet-based compliance monitoring application, and to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Kenmar Preferred and its clients.

Kenmar Preferred's Code also addresses misappropriation of material nonpublic or proprietary information (e.g., insider trading) and outside business activities. Kenmar Preferred's insider trading prohibitions (i) apply to all Employees, (ii) extend to activities within and outside their duties as Employees of Kenmar Preferred, and (iii) apply to Investment Interest-related information that is internal to Kenmar Preferred. Employees are permitted to engage in limited outside business activities provided these activities do not create an actual or potential conflict of interest due to the amount of time spent on such activities and the investment-related nature of certain activities. Investors or prospective investors of a Private Fund may request a copy of the Code by contacting Kenmar Preferred's Investor Services at (212) 596-3480.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

As more fully described above, Kenmar Preferred provides discretionary investment management services to Private Funds that in turn, invest in Portfolio Funds advised and/or managed by a Manager. As such, Kenmar Preferred does not select clearing or executing brokers. Limitations on Kenmar Preferred's authority are guided by, among other things, (i) its responsibility to act as a fiduciary when handling clients' accounts, (ii) the investment strategies and objectives of its clients, and (iii) with respect to a Private Fund, the Private Fund's Offering Documents.

The clearing brokers and executing brokers (together, "Brokers") for the Portfolio Funds managed by Managers are selected by the Managers themselves. In selecting Brokers, the Managers need not solicit competitive bids and do not have an obligation to seek the lowest available commission cost. Also, they are not obligated to (and may not) negotiate "execution only" commission rates. As such, Portfolio Funds may be deemed to be paying for other products and services provided by the Broker which are included in the commission rate. In selecting Brokers, it is expected that Managers may take into account the Broker's reliability, reputation, financial strength and responsibility, stability, ability to execute trades, block trading and block positioning capabilities, nature and frequency of sales coverage, net price, depth of available services, co-location services, operations, market making, the availability of stocks to borrow for short trades, willingness to execute related or unrelated difficult transactions in the future, order of call, back office, processing and special execution capabilities, efficiency of execution, error resolution and execution or commission rate.

In selecting securities Brokers, the Managers also take into account the value of certain products and/or services (whether or not for research purposes, in whole or in part), either provided by a Broker, or paid for by a Broker (either by direct or reimbursement payments (in whatever form) or by commissions, mark-ups or credits or by any other means) to be provided by others (collectively, "Products and Services"). Products or Services may be in any form (e.g., written, oral or on-line) and may include research products or services and other products and services. A Manager's use of Products and Services may or may not meet the "safe harbor" of Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended.

Research may include, among other things, proprietary research from Brokers, which may be written or oral. Research Products and Services may include, among other things, research concerning market, economic and financial data, a particular aspect of economics or on the economy in general, statistical information, data on pricing and availability of securities, non-mass-marketed financial publications, electronic market quotations, performance measurement services, analyses concerning market, economic and financial data, a particular aspect of economics or on the economy in general, statistical information, data on pricing and availability of securities, analyses concerning specific securities, companies, industries or sectors and market, economic and financial studies and forecasts.

In some instances, a Manager seeking to rely on the safe harbor of Section 28(e) may receive a research product or service that may be used for both research and non-research purposes. In such instances, it is expected that the Manager will make a good faith effort to determine the relative proportion of the research used to assist the Manager in carrying out its investment decision-making responsibilities and the relative proportion used for administrative or other non-research purposes. The proportion of the research attributable to assisting the Manager in carrying out its investment decision-making responsibilities is expected to be paid through brokerage commissions generated by client transactions; the proportion attributable to administrative or other non-research purposes is expected to be paid for by the Manager from its own resources. The receipt of "mixed-use" research products and services and the determination of the appropriate allocation creates a potential conflict of interest between the Manager and its clients, including the Portfolio Funds and Managed Accounts, regarding the Brokers it selects.

Generally, Managers will not adhere to any rigid formulas in making their selection of Brokers, but will weigh a combination of the criteria set forth above. In recognition of the value of overall brokerage services provided by a Broker, Managers may select a Broker that charges brokerage commissions in excess of that which another Broker might have charged for effecting the same transaction. In connection therewith, Managers will make a good faith determination that the amount of commission is reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage services received, viewed in terms of either the specific transaction or Portfolio Fund transactions overall. In exchange for the direction of commission dollars to certain Brokers, credits may be generated which may be used by the Managers to pay for the Products and Services provided by, or paid by, such Brokers.

Each respective Private Fund's Offering Documents detail more fully the applicable brokerage placement practices.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

Kenmar Preferred's Investment Committee ("IC") meets periodically. The IC's responsibilities include: (1) preparing (either directly or through its affiliated companies) all due diligence on its prospective managers and approving the Managers; (2) reviewing (either directly or through its affiliated companies) each Private Fund, Portfolio Fund and Manager on an ongoing basis with respect to policies, guidelines, strategies and operations; (3) performing (either directly or through its affiliated companies) ongoing due diligence of the Managers; and, (4) where appropriate, terminating a Manager.

Investors in certain Private Funds are provided with monthly statements prepared by such Private Funds' independent fund administrator. For certain other Private Funds, Kenmar Preferred (in the capacity of an SEC registered, registrar and transfer agent) prepares the monthly statements and delivers it to the investors in such Private Funds. Audited fiscal year-end financial statements are prepared by the Private Funds' independent accounting firm and also provided to Investors. In addition, Investors in a Private Fund may also receive other periodic reports concerning such investment as Kenmar Preferred determines to be appropriate.

Item 14: Client Referrals and Other Compensation

The Private Funds may compensate third parties for referring investors, at no additional cost to the Private Funds. Referral fees are generally a percentage of the management fees earned by Kenmar Preferred. Third parties referring investors will generally determine the share class of the Private Fund that will be offered to the investor. Each share class generally charges a different management fee. See above Item 5. If interests are acquired through a placement agent retained by Preferred, you should not view such recommendation of such placement agent as being disinterested, as the placement agent will generally be paid out of the fees Preferred receives from the respective Preferred Fund in which you become an investor.

As applicable, such referral arrangements will conform to Rule 206(4)-3 under the Advisers Act.

Item 15: Custody

Kenmar Preferred may be deemed to have custody of client's assets. Applicant complies with Rule 206(4)-2 by providing audited financial statements, which are furnished annually to all investors in the Preferred Funds.

Item 16: Investment Discretion

Preferred has the authority to determine, without obtaining specific client consent, the securities to be bought or sold; the amount of securities to be bought or sold; the broker or dealer to be used; and the commission rates paid. Such authority is generally established through the Offering Documents and through investment management and other agreements. Nonetheless, Preferred generally delegates the aforementioned authorities to the selected Managers. Limitations on Preferred's authority are guided by, among other things, (i) its responsibility to act as a fiduciary when handling clients' accounts, (ii) the investment strategies and objectives of the Preferred Funds, and (iii) with respect to the Preferred Funds, the Offering Documents.

Kenmar Preferred (i) selects the Managers in which to invest and (ii) makes the determination as to when to remove Managers. As previously stated, investments in the Managers are made through Portfolio Funds. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular Private Fund. See also Item 12 above.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities

Kenmar Preferred has adopted Proxy Voting Policies and Procedures whereby it exercises discretion to vote proxies for client securities, including investments in Portfolio Funds, addresses situations where conflicts of interest are identified.

Each proxy proposal is reviewed on a case-by-case basis by Kenmar Preferred's IC.
