Advisory Business

The Newton Follis Partnership Limited (Newton Follis) advises third party capital providers on participation in syndicates at Lloyd's of London. It works with members' agencies to provide additional advice on syndicate selection and underwriting strategies. It has 56 clients writing approximately £80mn of premium capacity.

The directors consider the firm's key attributes to be:

- We are an independent Lloyd's advisory firm.
- We specialise in objective research and underwriting strategy.
- Our interests and the clients' are aligned through our fee structure.
- We have a long history of successful syndicate and market analysis.
- Our highly experienced board of directors is very well connected in the market.
- Our performance record speaks for itself.

The Newton Follis Partnership Limited is regulated by the Financial Services Authority in the UK and is also registered as an investment adviser with the Securities and Exchange Commission in the United States of America. Such registration does not imply a certain level of skill or training.

The advice offered to clients is limited as stated above.

History

The business originated in 1989 with the establishment by David Newton, an experienced Lloyd's agent, of a consultancy aimed at giving Lloyd's names an independent 'second opinion' on their syndicate portfolios and advisors. In 1998, David teamed up with Alison Follis, another experienced members' agent, to form Newton Follis to continue the business.

Thanks to its cautious advice over the difficult years of 1998-2001 and then urging aggressive expansion for 2002/03, its client portfolios have performed well. In 2001, Newton Follis established a link with the Anton members' agency (now Argenta Private Capital), through which the majority of its names now participate.

Recent developments

In September 2012, Alison Follis stepped down as CEO and Dr Tony Harris joined the firm and assumed this role. David and Tony plan to continue to give high quality advice to Lloyd's names in the current uncertain times and, as opportunities present themselves over the next few years, to help them try to maximise returns.

Fees and compensation

Fee Structures effective from 1 January 2009.

Basis of fee scales:

The calculation of charges is based on a rolling seven years average participation under advice, or shorter period for newer clients. The fee is made up of a base charge plus a scale fee where the rolling average allocation is above £500,000. Fees may be negotiable in certain circumstances. There is an annual fee only option and a lower annual fee plus profit commission option. Clients may choose either model but may not switch between the two.

Annual Fee only:

A base annual fee of £5,000 applicable to clients with a seven year rolling average allocation of up to £500,000 (minimum charge).

Seven year rolling average allocations above £500,000: the base fee of £5,000 plus a fee calculated on the seven-year rolling average allocation above £500,000 on the scale below:

		Band fee
Base fee up to £500,000		£5,000
Next £500,000 (Over £500,000 - £1M)	0.50%	£2,500

Fees payable by residents of countries in the European Union are subject to VAT at the prevailing rate.

The Newton Follis Partnership Limited has a fee sharing agreement with Argenta Private Capital Limited [revised in 2015] whereby we receive 35% of the equivalent Unlimited Members' Agency charge and 40% of the Profit Commission for clients who are mutual clients of Newton Follis to Argenta. When we calculate the fee for mutual clients, we give credit for 40% of the equivalent Unlimited Members' Agency charge, even though we receive only 35%.

Clients are not required to choose Argenta as their members' agent. Newton Follis has clients with other agents and they receive the same level of service.

Performance based fees

See the section on 'Fees and compensation' above.

Types of clients

Newton Follis provide services for trusts, corporations or business entities that are or wish to become underwriting members of Lloyd's of London.

Methods of analysis, investment strategies and risk of loss

Underwriting at Lloyd's can be rewarding but it is a volatile business. The reward arises from the ability to invest in underwriting businesses staffed by experts in their field who can manage their top line to match opportunities. The volatility arises from Mother Nature and unpredictable events; and the pricing cycle which characterises property-casualty insurance.

Our approach is to try to maximise reward and minimise risk. This has three components:

- Cycle management. Manage client underwriting to maximise exposure when pricing is good and minimise it when pricing is weak.
- Business analysis. Select syndicates managed by people we trust to use their expertise wisely.
- Diversification. Select portfolios where exposure to volatile classes is sufficiently diversified to limit the overall impact of unexpected events.

We work with all the Lloyd's members' agencies to help construct such portfolios, tailored to the risk appetite of the individual.

Cycle management

Our starting point for giving advice about Lloyd's is an awareness of what is happening in the property/casualty insurance business, particularly in the United Kingdom and the United States, the two markets which are most important to Lloyd's. In more recent years Lloyd's has developed initiatives to increase its premium income from the Continent of Europe, the Far East and Australia, South Africa and South America and has now a licence to operate in China. Trends here are monitored too.

Property/casualty insurance exhibits one of the highest magnitude business cycles of any industry. It is an old adage that we can recognise every manifestation of a business cycle except the present one. There are always plausible reasons why 'it is different this time'. Newton Follis' directors are seasoned analysts who aim to differentiate between the true upturn and all the false ones. The key to making money in a cyclical business is to increase underwriting exposures when prices are high and reduce them when prices are low. Fortunately, Lloyd's flexible capital and cost structure helps to discourage businesses carrying on underwriting unwisely in downturns to protect expense ratios. Most Lloyd's underwriters manage the cycle well and we aim to support these; helping our clients by retrenching their exposures significantly when pricing is weak.

Business analysis

Much more than is true for larger insurers, Lloyd's syndicates write highly specialised, hazardous classes for which statistics are not available and, thus, the technical skill and judgement of the underwriting staff is paramount. Newton Follis looks closely at the track record of the syndicate and its individual underwriters and the competitive and economic background to the classes it writes. Considerable weight is placed on assessments of the character and judgement of the individuals involved.

Diversification/Risk Appetite

As Lloyd's syndicates accept hazardous risks they are vulnerable to unpredictable events, including hurricanes, earthquakes, terrorism, piracy and shifts in court judgements.

The secret of a sound Lloyd's portfolio is a rigorous monitoring of the risks which each syndicate accepts and ensuring that our clients' exposure to each of these is suitably diversified.

We also work carefully with the aim of tailoring portfolios to the risk appetite of the individual client.

SBW became part of Amlin plc and was sold to CBS in 2000, when Tony left.
