Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Form ADV Part 2A, Item 8

L. A. Burton & Associates, Inc. uses a combination of client input, investment research and asset allocation disciplines to formulate investment advice or to manage client assets.

The initial step in the overall investment process is to analyze the client's financial condition, cash flow needs, taxes, investment goals, investment horizons, risk tolerance and knowledge of investments. With this information, an Investment Policy Statement is drafted. This written document establishes guidelines and parameters for all investment activities. These activities include expected returns, risks to be assumed and investment instruments to be used. The Policy Statement also establishes minimum and maximum amounts that can be invested in different types of securities such as stocks, bonds, and cash equivalents. The Policy Statement provides limits for investments in any individual security. The client accepts this Investment Policy Statement before any specific advice is given or changes are made to the portfolio.

An investment strategy is formulated for each client based upon the Investment Policy Statement and current market conditions. Asset allocation principles are used to create the overall structure of the portfolio, to control risk and to provide for return. Over time, as market conditions change, the amount of investments in the different asset classes may be changed. This allows for increase or decrease in risk and/or return. This process is called tactical asset allocation.

Tactical asset allocation decisions are based on one to three year time frames. The decisions use fundamental market analyses such as business cycle signals and valuation signals. Valuation signals could be corporate earnings, dividends, inflation, interest rates, etc. Tactical allocations strategies may increase overall portfolio risk because of the potential for over concentrations, added volatility, errors in timing, or use of faulty time signals. L. A. Burton & Associates, Inc. does not employ any trading strategies that can increase risk or increase brokerage or other transaction costs and taxes.

Individual stocks and bonds, no-load mutual funds and exchange traded funds are recommended and used in client portfolios. Derivative securities such as future contracts and options are not used or recommended. All securities selected for client portfolios are screened and analyzed for credit quality, relative valuation, historical performance and risk. Portfolio positions are diversified primarily across the three primary asset classes of stocks, bonds and cash equivalents. On occasion, assets classes such as real estate and commodities may be recommended.

All client portfolios are monitored continually. Advice and recommendations are provided as appropriate. The advisor will reach the client orally or in writing. Each client receives a quarterly investment report. This report includes current investment holdings by account and consolidated, market valuations, purchase and sales, income and expenses, unrealized gains and losses, and periodic investment return. Advisors and clients hold meetings as needed. Quarterly meetings are recommended when possible.

L. A. Burton & Associates, Inc. invests primarily in no-load mutual funds, exchange-traded funds and individual stocks and bonds. All recommended securities trade on national exchanges or in the over-the-counter markets. These types of securities do not involve any significant or unusual risks to clients.

Brokerage Practices

Form ADV Part 2A, Item 12

L.A. Burton & Associates, Inc seeks to recommend a custodian/broker who will hold client assets and execute transactions on terms that are, overall, most advantageous when compared to other available providers and their services. We consider a wide range of factors including:

- Combination of transaction execution and asset custody services
- Capability to execute, clear and settle trades
- Capability to facilitate transfers and payments to and from accounts
- Breadth of available investment products
- Availability of investment research and tools that assist us in making investment decisions
- Competitiveness of the price of services such as commissions and other fees
- Reputation, financial strength and stability

Our firm receives proprietary research and other services without cost due to our willingness to use our recommended custodial/brokerage firm for client brokerage and custodial services. These same services are made available to other investment advisory firms like ours. Services which we receive without cost that benefit both our clients and our firm include:

- Access to client account data
- Systems that facilitate trade execution and allocate aggregated trade orders for multiple clients.
- Systems that provide securities prices and other market data
- Systems that facilitate payment of our fees from client accounts
- Systems that assist back-office functions, recordkeeping and client reporting

Services we receive which generally only benefit our firm include:

- Educational conferences and events
- Consulting on technology, compliance, legal and business needs
- Publications and conferences on practice management and business succession
- Access to employee-benefit providers, human capital consultants, and insurance providers.

The availability of these services from our recommended custodian/brokerage firm benefits us because we do not have to produce or purchase them. We don't have to pay for these services so long as our clients collectively keep at least $10million of client assets in account at our recommended broker-dealer. The $10 million minimum may give us an incentive to recommend that clients maintain their account(s) at our recommended custodial/brokerage firm. This is a potential conflict of interest. We believe, however, that our selections of this recommended broker-dealer is in the best interest of our clients. Our recommendation is primarily supported by the scope, quality and price of our recommended broker-dealer's services.

The commissions or price mark-ups or mark-downs paid by our clients at our recommended broker-dealer may be higher than those charged by other broker-dealers in order for us to receive the benefits listed above. The benefits that we receive from recommending a specific broker-dealer are used to service all of our client accounts. We do not attempt to allocate these benefits proportionately to any specific account based upon the actual benefit the account generates.

Our firm, during the initial phases of opening a new client relationship, recommends the use of a specific broker-dealer. We provide pertinent information on the recommended broker-dealer and disclosure of the benefits to be received by both the client and our firm by using our recommended broker-dealer.

Our firm does not participate in any client referral programs offered by our recommended broker-dealer.

Our firm does not request or require clients to direct us to execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer. However, clients are allowed to direct us to execute transactions through a broker-dealer of their selection. For any client who directs us to execute transactions through a broker-dealer of their choice we advise them that they may pay higher brokerage commissions, that we cannot aggregate orders, and that they may receive less favorable prices.

When we buy or sell the same security, at the same time, for multiple clients, we may aggregate these orders into one transaction. Order aggregation may reduced commission costs and/or result in more favorable pricing.

Review of Accounts

Form ADV Part 2A, Item 13

All client accounts are reviewed at least quarterly and more frequently based upon abrupt changes in market conditions, changes in our current investment strategy, or material changes in a client's financial condition. Long-term financial plans are reviewed at least annually. The account review process entails the comparison of actual account holdings to the client's Investment Policy and to our current investment strategy. Variances are analyzed and recommendations for appropriate changes are communicated to the client either orally and/or written form.

Our clients are provided a comprehensive written report on their accounts on a quarterly basis. These reports include all account holdings with current market values, cost basis, unrealized gains and losses, purchase and sales, income and expenses and periodic investment returns. The report also includes our analysis of the markets and any recommended changes to their accounts.

Form ADV Part 2A, Item 14

L. A. Burton & Associates, Inc. does not compensate any person who is not a supervised person within the firm, for client referrals. The IPS may also place limits on the amount of gains and losses to be taken and certain securities that may not be sold.
