Item 4 - Advisory Business

Investment Advisory Services

Our mission statement is to participate during rising markets and to preserve during declining markets. We attempt to achieve our mission by allocating Investor accounts into investments that buy domestic equity, international equity, or bonds positions when the markets and the economy appear favorable to our Investment Committee. During periods that appear unfavorable, our mission is to allocate a portion or all of an Investor account to money market funds or to more defensive positions.

The Client Application signed by the Investor grants the Advisor a limited power of attorney to implement the management strategy on a discretionary basis. This includes the right of the Advisor to affect all trades with the designated custodian, at the discretion of the Advisor, without prior notice to Investor.

The Advisor offers four different risk tolerance/model portfolios to seek to achieve its mission: Conservative, Moderate, Growth and Allocation Plus. Prior to completing the Client Agreement, the Solicitor and Investor select the model that best matches the Investor’s risk tolerance. The chart below illustrates the maximum exposure to each of the asset classes:

Conservative Model		Moderate Model		Growth Model
Domestic Stocks	40%	Domestic Stocks	60%	Domestic Stocks	100%
Global/International Stocks	40%	Global/International Stocks	60%	Global/International Stocks	100%
Bonds	70%	Bonds	80%	Bonds	100%
Money Markets	100%	Money Market	100%	Money Market	100%

Allocation Plus is a more aggressive model and offered only on a platform. Unlike the traditional model, Allocation Plus offers:

- Both minimum (20%) and maximum (60%) allocations for each asset class. Domestic 20-60%, International 20-60%, Bonds 20-60%.
- The money market fund is not an option.
- This product will always be fully invested and as a result have a higher beta (more risk) than the traditional Advisor service offerings.
- A wider array of asset classes will be considered, including short funds, leveraged funds, and specific sectors such as gold.
- With short funds being an option, Allocation Plus has the potential to post positive results during a market decline.
- Investors should be aware that a loss could also result.

Allocation Plus may utilize short or inverse funds which are subject to increased risks and is not suitable for all investors. The fund's use of derivatives such as futures, options, and other instruments will expose clients to additional risk. Theoretically, securities sold short have the risk of unlimited losses and therefore investors may lose 100% of their investment. The more the fund invests in leveraged instruments, the more the leverage will magnify any gains or losses on those investments. The fund is considered non-diversified and changes in the market value of a single security could cause greater fluctuations in the value of fund shares. Securities are not deposits or obligations of any bank, are not guaranteed by any bank, are not insured by the FDIC. As always, investors should always review the prospectus prior to investing.

Solicitors

Typically, the services of the Advisor are distributed through unaffiliated Solicitors and their firms that have established a working relationship with Advisor. Clients are usually introduced to the Advisor through his/her financial professional. Therefore, the Advisor does not promote its services directly to the public. The primary involvement of the Solicitor with the Advisor is introducing the investor to the Advisor. Under this arrangement, the Solicitor provides the Investor with the Solicitor disclosure statement outlining the terms of the arrangement between Advisor and Solicitor. The Advisor will pay the Solicitor a portion of the annual advisory fee. The Advisor's fee is the same whether the Advisor is engaged through a Solicitor or directly by the Investor.

The Solicitor will present the services of the Advisor to the Investor through marketing literature provided by the Advisor. The Solicitor will explain the strategies offered by the Advisor to the Investor. The Solicitor will assist with the account opening paperwork for both the Advisor and custodian. The Solicitor will monitor the Investor's financial needs and goals by meeting with the Investor to evaluate the appropriateness of the strategy and continuation of the Advisor's program for the Investor. The Solicitor has no involvement with the day-to-day management of the accounts or investment decision processes; those responsibilities are borne by the Advisor.

The Advisor does not provide portfolio management services to wrap fee programs.

Ownership and Assets under Management

The Advisor, PTS Asset Management has been a registered investment advisor since October 12, 1990. The primary owner of the Advisory firm is Wadsworth Family, LLC. William F. Wadsworth, Jr. is a member of the Wadsworth Family, LLC.

The Advisor has $209,594,891 of assets under management as of December 31, 2016.

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

Method of payment for the Advisor's fee is selected by the Investor and is collected by various means including: deducting the fee from the Investor assets being managed; deducting the fee from a non-managed account; completing the Advisor ACH form and debiting the fee from the institution designated by the Investor; or by direct bill. Investor selecting the direct bill option will be mailed an invoice by Advisor for prompt payment. In some cases, deducting the Advisor fee from an Investor account may result in additional fees due to hold periods imposed by the underlying mutual fund or custodian. Furthermore, if the Investor directs Advisor to deduct the fee from an IRA, variable annuity or other qualified account, additional fees or penalties may result. Under certain situations, account minimums, the fee percentage, and the billing cycle may be negotiated. Some Investors may pay more than others and the Advisor sets the fee. In the event that an Investor cancels the agreement prior to the end of the billing period, a pro-rata refund is paid. Compensation of approximately 50% of the fee will be paid to authorized Solicitors who refer Investors to the Advisor. The Investor is required to pay a management fee to the Advisor as well as a management fee to the selected underlying investment company. For personal accounts of Solicitors, the finders/referral portion of the fee may be reduced or waived, decreasing the annual Advisor fee.

Non-Platform Account

The Advisor fee structure for Investor accounts managed or custodied at a mutual fund, variable annuity, savings plan, or other non-platform investment company employs a stepped scale, charging a percentage of the assets under management as illustrated below.

Non-Platform Fee Schedule	Annual Fee
$50,000 to $250,000	2.25%
$250,001 to $500,000	2.00% of amount over $250,000
$500,001 to $1,000,000	1.75% of amount over $500,000
$1,000,001 and over	Negotiable

Typically the fee for amounts invested during a billing cycle will be prorated for the remaining portion of the period in which the investment is made. Fees for the additional amounts invested are payable when the additional amounts are deposited. The fees for subsequent cycles are based on the ending market value as of 12/31 and 6/30 of each year.

Platform Accounts

The Advisor's fee structure for Investor accounts managed on an investment platform such as Millennium Trust Company, Folio Institutional or Trust Company of America follows the schedule below. The fees are calculated on the market value at the end of each quarter based on a calendar year. (12/31, 3/31, 6/30, 9/30) Under certain situations, account minimums, the fee percentage and billing cycle may be negotiated. Some Investors may pay more than others and the Advisor sets the fee. Some mutual funds distribute 12(b)-1 and/or other administrative fees which may be selected by Advisor for Investor accounts held on the platforms. The process of selecting funds for the Investor accounts is not solely based on any one criterion including the payment of such fees. Advisor may receive an economic benefit resulting from the payment of said fees. This arrangement does not have an impact on the advisory fee charged to the Investor. These fees are not directly received by the Advisor rather they are typically used to offset some of the Advisor's costs associated with the custodian and provider of the investment platform. If requested, Investor accounts managed on the platform will receive statements directly from platform. Investor accounts managed off platform will be billed using the traditional Advisor's fee structure described above.

Platform Fee Schedule	Annual Fee
$50,000 to $250,000	2.00%
$250,001 to $500,000	1.75% of amount over $250,000
$500,001 to $1,000,000	1.50% of amount over $500,000
$1,000,001 and over	Negotiable

For non-platform accounts and platform accounts, Investor should know that all fees paid to the Advisor for investment advisory services are separate and distinct from the fees associated with the mutual funds, variable annuities or underlying custodian. Each of these entities generally has additional fees and or commissions. Please carefully review the mutual fund or variable annuity prospectus for the details of related cost.

The Advisor will not accept or maintain custody of an Investor's funds. The Investor is responsible for all custodial and securities execution fees charged by the custodian. The Advisor's fee is separate and distinct from the custodian and execution fees.

In addition to acting as a Solicitor for the Advisor, a registered representative may also act in the capacity of a broker or agent and effect securities transactions for typical and customary compensation. Also, investment advisor representatives of the Advisor may also be registered representatives and effect securities transactions for compensation. Investors are not obligated to use investment advisory representatives of the Advisor to execute such securities transactions. This practice may present a conflict of interest by creating an incentive to recommend investment products based on the compensation received, rather than on an Investor's needs. The Investor will be informed of these fees in advance of the execution of the transaction.

An Investor may be able to invest in products recommended by the Advisor directly, without the services of the Advisor. In that case, the Investor would not receive the services provided by the Advisor which are designed, among other things, to assist the Investor in determining which products or services are most appropriate to each Investor's financial condition and objectives.

Item 6 - Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Advisor fees are not based on performance.

Item 7 - Account Minimum and Typical Investor Profiles

Our account size minimum is negotiable, but we encourage accounts of $50,000 or more. We manage for just about all types of Investors including corporations, non-profits, families, retirement account trustees, etc. We state in our literature, "We strongly suggest you do not use this service if you have a short term time horizon." Hence, the one type of Investor we discourage from using our services are speculative investors seeking to make a lot of money over a short period of time.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

The Investment Committee of the Advisor may use both fundamental and technical analysis. Further explanation is provided below. All investments can lose their entire value, and Investors must be prepared for material risks, in the four asset classes that can be allocated to 1) domestic stock funds, 2) international securities, 3) bonds, and to a lesser extent, 4) money market funds.

Our fundamental analysis involves analyzing the macro financial data of the economy. Fundamental analysis is performed on current data and can be compared to its related historical benchmarks. This data may include but is not limited to interest rates, commodity prices, labor market, and Gross National Product (GNP). There are several possible objectives to this process with the primary being to measure the temperature of the economy and to determine the current location of the economic cycle as it compares to the current market cycle.

Our technical analysis is a method of evaluating current macro market data. The data may include but is not limited to market volume, trend, momentum, new highs vs. new lows and price/earnings (P/E) or price to earnings ratios. The objectives of our technical analysis may include determining the overall strength or weakness of the markets and measuring the current valuation of the markets.

The ultimate goal of combining both fundamental and technical analysis is to determine the overall current risks associated with investing versus the current opportunity. No single method of analysis or piece of data on its own will provide significant guidance. However when combined, arranged and evaluated, a more solid perspective commonly materializes providing insight into investment risks and opportunities. When it appears risk exceeds opportunity the mission is to dollar cost average out of invested positions to more defensive positions such as money market funds. Conversely, when it seems opportunity outweighs risks the mission is to allocate to offensive positions such as domestic, international and bond positions.

To receive the complete value of the advisor, it may require a complete market which involves an up market (bull market) cycle and down (bear market) cycle. Historically a complete market cycle takes place over a several year period. Therefore, we strongly suggest you do not use this service if you have a short term time horizon.

The Advisor primarily allocates Investor accounts to positions in mutual funds and the material risks of this type of investment are:

Every type of investment, including mutual funds, involves risk. Risk refers to the possibility that you will lose money (both principal and any earnings) or fail to make money on an investment. A fund's investment objective and its holdings are influential factors in determining how risky a fund is. Reading the prospectus will help you to understand the risk associated with that particular fund. Generally speaking, risk and potential return are related. This is the risk/return trade-off. Higher risks are usually taken with the expectation of higher returns at the cost of increased volatility. While a fund with higher risk has the potential for higher return, it also has the greater potential for losses or negative returns. Generally when investing in mutual funds a longer-term time horizon is required. Below is a list of some of the risks to consider when investing.

- Call Risk. The possibility that falling interest rates will cause a bond issuer to redeem—or call—its high-yielding bond before the bond's maturity date.
- Country Risk. The possibility that political events (a war, national elections), financial problems (rising inflation, government default), or natural disasters (an earthquake, a poor harvest) will weaken a country's economy and cause investments in that country to decline.
- Credit Risk. The possibility that a bond issuer will fail to repay interest and principal in a timely manner. Also called default risk.
- Currency Risk. The possibility that returns could be reduced for Americans investing in foreign securities because of a rise in the value of the U.S. dollar against foreign currencies. Also called exchange-rate risk.
- Income Risk. The possibility that a fixed-income fund's dividends will decline as a result of falling overall interest rates.
- Industry Risk. The possibility that a group of stocks in a single industry will decline in price due to developments in that industry.
- Inflation Risk. The possibility that increases in the cost of living will reduce or eliminate a fund's real inflation-adjusted returns.
- Interest Rate Risk. The possibility that a bond fund will decline in value because of an increase in interest rates.
- Manager Risk. The possibility that an actively managed mutual fund's investment adviser will fail to execute the fund's investment strategy effectively resulting in the failure of stated objectives.
- Market Risk. The possibility that stock fund or bond fund prices overall will decline over short or even extended periods. Stock and bond markets tend to move in cycles, with periods when prices rise and other periods when prices fall.

- Principal Risk. The possibility that an investment will go down in value, or "lose money," from the original or invested amount.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

From 1990 to 2010, the Advisor never paid a fine to any regulatory agency. As of September 19, 2011 the Advisor, William F. Wadsworth, Jr. and the Connecticut Department of Banking, Securities and Business Investment Division reached an agreement whereby William F. Wadsworth, Jr. and the Advisor paid an administrative fine. Further details of this event can be found at www.ct.gov/dob. We believe this agreement will not have a material negative impact on our finances or operations.

Item 10 - Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

The Advisor, through common ownership has several affiliates including W & W Properties, LLC, Deca One, LLC, Wadsworth Financial Group, Inc, and Wadsworth Family Foundation, a 501(c)(3) charitable entity. Investors of the Advisor are not solicited for any of the activities of these other entities. Therefore, no conflict of interest exists.

As of December 2016, William F. Wadsworth, Jr. is a Registered Representative with Integrated Financial Planning Services (IFPS), CRD #17935, SEC #35120, a FINRA registered broker-dealer. IFPS is not affiliated with the Advisor. Some clients of the Advisor are solicited to utilize the services of Mr. Wadsworth as a Registered Representative. However, to the extent a client of the Advisor does utilize the services of Mr. Wadsworth as a Registered Representative, all fees associated with the services provided will be disclosed to the client in advance to mitigate any conflicts of interest.

Item 11 - Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Investor Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

The Advisor places great importance on its standing in the financial services industry particularly as it relates to the Code of Ethics and our fiduciary responsibilities to the Investor. In part, the Advisor has adopted a Code of Ethics for any personnel associated with the firm. Standards of conduct and character expected include honesty, integrity, competency, and willingness to work together in providing the best possible service to our Investors. New personnel at the Advisor must sign a document indicating they have read and understood the Advisor's Code of Ethics.

The Advisor will provide a copy of its Code of Ethics to any Investor or prospective Investor by request.

Personal Trading

This section covers employees of the Advisor relating to personal trading and potential conflicts of interest. This section does not purport to embrace all situations in which conflicts arise. It is incumbent upon each employee to exercise judgment to determine whether or not a conflict exists, and whether it would justify remedial action. In a doubtful situation, this matter should be first fully disclosed and discussed with the Chief Compliance Officer.

Employees of Advisor are prohibited from acting on investment advice to move (buy or sell) or reallocate their personal account(s) in advance of the conversion or reallocation of the accounts of Investors of Advisor.

- Employees must not accept offers, which come to them because of their position, to buy a security at terms more favorable than those available to the general public.
- No employee shall engage in transactions when there is a conflict with their duty to protect the Firm's interest that may lead to any personal gain or benefit.

- Employees must avoid any conflict of interest involving loans, investments, gifts, or other activity, which may interfere with the independent and objective exercise of judgment for the firm.
- Employees must report personal securities holdings annually and transactions in those holdings on a quarterly basis involving reportable securities only.
- All securities are reportable with the following exceptions: Shares of money market funds; shares of mutual funds; direct obligations of the U.S. government; money market instruments such as bankers' acceptances, bank CDs, commercial paper, repurchase agreements and other high quality short-term debt instruments; and units of a unit investment trust if the trust is invested exclusively in unaffiliated mutual funds.
- Annual holdings reports must be current as of a date not more than 45 days prior to the date of submission or from the date of becoming an access person of the firm.
- Quarterly transaction reports must be submitted within 30 days after calendar quarter end.
- Employees must obtain Advisor approval before investing in IPOs, limited offerings, or engaging in private placement.
- Employees must safeguard material nonpublic information and not disclose it to unauthorized sources.
- Employees must report any violation of the above policies to the Chief Compliance Officer on a timely basis.

The following policies will help you to avoid potential conflict of interest situations:

Federal law prohibits the use of inside information for financial gain. If you have access to sensitive information prior to its disclosure to the public, you are responsible for protecting the confidentiality of that information. Violation of this policy may lead to termination of employment and/or legal remedies.

As a general rule, substantial gifts (over $50.00 in value) should not be given or accepted. Any gifts with a value of more than $50.00 should be reported to your immediate supervisor.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

Our business model is to provide asset allocation models for package products including mutual funds and variable annuities. However, our specialty is not managing individual securities such as stocks and bonds. Unlike stock and bonds which can trade throughout the day at different prices, mutual funds are priced only once per day, after the market close. Once the price per share is determined in a particular fund, the same price applies to all buys and sells on any given day. Hence, we have no need for brokerage practices at this time. Should the business model of the Advisor change, the Brokerage Practices would be evaluated and adapted to the revised model.

Item 13 - Review of Accounts

As previously described, the Advisor does not provide customized management or comprehensive financial planning services. In other words, our portfolio management is not based on the specialized needs of any one individual client. Rather, the Advisor offers four model portfolio strategies. The Advisor does not conduct periodic reviews of individual client accounts for investment supervisory purposes. It's commonplace that the Investor account being managed by the Advisor represent only a portion of the overall assets. The Advisor does not have knowledge of, request or maintain information regarding the other investments owned by the client. The Solicitor and Investor select a risk tolerance/model portfolio offered by the Advisor that is best suited for the Investor. The Solicitor that brings the Investor to the Advisor will be responsible for the Investor account reviews and ensuring the Investor is positioned in the appropriate risk tolerance/model portfolio.

It is the understanding of the Advisor that the Investor will receive written statements no less than quarterly from the custodian. In addition, the Investor may receive other supporting reports from mutual funds, asset managers, trust companies or other custodians, insurance companies, broker-dealers and others who are involved with Investors accounts.

For Advisor initiated trades, the Advisor conducts a review of the Investor accounts verifying that the trade instructions were properly implemented. The objective is to ensure that the accounts for the traded model are in the proper funds and correctly allocated. Over time, account variances may occur from activities such as account withdrawals, additions, or simply from market volatility. When identified and if needed, account holdings may be reallocated to realign with the model portfolio selected by the client.

Item 14 - Investor Referrals and Other Compensation

As previously mentioned the Advisor's services are marketed through unaffiliated Solicitors who have no advisory capacity with the Advisor. Under this arrangement, the Advisor will pay a referral fee for the solicitation. That fee is typically 50% of the gross advisory fee received by the Advisor. In few instances, the Advisor sponsors educational seminars for Solicitors about our products. The Advisor does not receive any compensation for the seminar.

Certain outside firms, including Centaurus Financial, Inc., Integrated Financial Planning Services and Next Financial Group, Inc receive additional compensation from the Advisor through a revenue sharing arrangement initiated by the outside firms. These firms may also have similar revenue sharing arrangements with other investment advisory firms in addition to the Advisor. The revenue sharing arrangement includes quarterly payments to the firms based on the total assets under management placed by the Solicitors of each of the respective firms.

Item 15 – Custody

The Advisor does not have physical custody of the funds or securities we manage for our clients. All Investor assets managed by the Advisor are held by qualified custodians responsible for the safekeeping of the securities. The custodian normally provides the Investor with a monthly or quarterly statement which indicates securities held and their values, the transactions in the account for the past period, as well as dividends or capital gains. The custodian may also provide transaction statements to the Investor which are generated when the Advisor provides instructions to the custodian to buy or sell a position. Investors should carefully review the statements they receive from their custodians and promptly report any discrepancy to them.

Item 16 - Investment Discretion

The Investor provides the Advisor a limited power of attorney to implement the elected management strategy on a discretionary basis. The Investor provides authorization to the Advisor to effect transactions with the designated custodian named in the Client Application. This includes the right of the Advisor to affect transactions, at the discretion of the Advisor, without prior notice to the Investor. Additional fees may be charged for transactions by the underlying custodian. The discretion is limited to the designated custodian and therefore Advisor cannot transfer the Investors account from the designated custodian.

Discretionary authority will only be provided upon full disclosure to the Investor. The granting of such authority will be evidenced by the Investor's execution of a Client Agreement containing all applicable limitations to such authority. The Investor working with the Solicitor determines the model that best suits the Investor needs and establishes an account at a custodian or platform provider of their choice.

Item 17 - Voting Investor Securities

The Advisor does not have authority, nor will it accept authority, to proxy vote for its Investors.

Item 18 - Financial Information

The Advisor has discretionary authority over Investor accounts and is not aware of any financial condition that will likely impair its ability to meet contractual commitments to Investors. If the Advisor does become aware of any such financial condition, this brochure will be updated and Investors will be notified. In some instances, the Advisor collects its management fee of $1,200 or more six months in advance therefore, the following is the Advisor's 2016 audited Balance Sheet;
