Item 4: Advisory Business

Nexthera Capital LP is a Delaware limited partnership (hereinafter “Nexthera Capital” and, together with its investment advisory affiliates, the “Firm” or “we”) founded in May 2015 by Daniel Malek and Ori HersHKovitz, who are the principal owners of the Firm.

Nexthera Capital provides discretionary investment management services to private pooled investment funds: Nexthera Capital Master Fund LP (the “Master Fund”); Nexthera Capital Partners LP (the “Onshore Fund”) and Nexthera Capital Fund Ltd. (the “Offshore Fund” and, together with the Onshore Fund and the Master Fund, the “Funds”). The Onshore Fund and the Offshore Fund are required to invest all of their investible assets in the Master Fund.

Nexthera Capital Advisors LLC is the general partner (the “General Partner”) of the Onshore Fund and the Master Fund. Like the Firm, the General Partner is principally owned by Daniel Malek and Ori HersHKovitz. The General Partner is a “relying adviser” as that term is described in the SEC Staff No-Action Letter, dated January 18, 2012, to the American Bar Association, Business Law Section. Unless and only to the extent that the context otherwise requires, references to Firm herein are deemed to include references to the General Partner. As of November, 2018, the Firm manages a separately managed account client (the “SMA”) on a discretionary basis.

Mr. Malek serves as the Firm’s Chief Executive Officer and Mr HersHKovitz as Chief Investment Officer.

In addition, Nexthera may, and currently does, provide discretionary sub-advisory services to other funds and accounts which are not the Funds (collectively with the Funds, the “Clients”).

Our general investment and trading objective with respect to our Clients is to generate high, risk-adjusted returns for its investors by investing long and short in a diversified global portfolio of healthcare companies. However, we may invest opportunistically in any other sector in our discretion.

We generally do not permit investors in the Funds to impose limitations on the investment activities described in the offering documents for those funds.

We do not currently participate in any Wrap Fee Programs.

Under certain circumstances, we may contract with a Client to adhere to limited risk and/or operating guidelines imposed by the Client. We negotiate such arrangements on a case by case basis.

As of December, 31, 2018, we had regulatory assets under management (RAUM) in the amount of $360,865,753, which we manage on a discretionary basis.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

Our fees and compensation are described in the advisory contracts we enter into with our Clients. The fees and expenses applicable to each Fund are set forth in detail in each of the Fund’s respective offering memorandum.

All of our Clients are “qualified purchasers” (as defined in Section 2(a) (51) of the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended (the “1940 Act”).

Any separately managed accounts that we may manage will be charged fees on a case-by-case basis, which may include management fees and/or performance based fees.

Management Fee

Nexthera Capital or its affiliates will generally receive a management fee from each Client, calculated as a percentage of such Client’s net asset value. At the sole discretion of Nexthera Capital, this management fee may be waived, reduced or calculated differently with respect to the accounts of certain investors in any Fund, without notice to or consent from any other investors.

We generally deduct our management fees from the Funds’ accounts quarterly in advance. We receive performance-based fees or allocations from the Funds’ accounts on an annual basis in arrears and upon redemptions by investors in the Funds. Management fees and performance-based fees or allocations are generally not refundable, including upon the termination of the advisory contract.

For Clients who are separate accounts, the timing of management fees and/or performance fee payments, and whether we should deduct the fees directly, is determined on a case-by-case basis.

Incentive Allocations and Fees

The General Partner will generally also receive an incentive allocation or fee from the Funds, subject to a “high water mark”, based on the net capital appreciation of each capital account of the Master Fund, including unrealized gains and losses.

The General Partner may allocate this incentive allocation or fee to other parties, including to parties that are our affiliates.

Terms of any performance-based fees for separate accounts are determined on a case-by-case basis.

Management fees and incentive allocations or fees are deducted from the applicable Client account through administrator instruction.

Other Types of Fees or Expenses

The Funds bear their own costs and expenses, including, but not limited to: investment and trading expenses (such as brokerage commissions and custody charges, interest and commitment fees on loans and debit balances, costs of borrowing securities to be sold short, research and market data expenses, computer hardware and software used for research and execution, and research-related travel expenses); fees and expenses of the Administrator (such as portfolio and investor accounting, middle office, tax reporting and investor servicing costs); valuation costs and the costs of the audit of each Fund’s annual financial statements; costs of any outside appraisers, accountants, auditors, attorneys and other experts or consultants engaged by the Firm, the General Partner and/or the Fund’s directors with respect to the business and affairs of the Funds; bank charges; legal fees and costs (including settlement costs), including legal fees and costs arising in connection with any litigation or regulatory investigation instituted against the Funds, the Firm, the General Partner and/or the Directors in connection with the affairs of the Funds; liability and E&O and D&O insurance for the benefit of the Funds, the General Partner and/or the directors; any withholding or transfer taxes; fees and expenses of the Firm incurred in connection with preparing and filing reports relating to the Funds' investment and trading activities (including under investment advisory laws, such as Form PF); expenses related to the offering of the Funds' securities (including fees and expenses of the Firm incurred in connection with the European Alternative Investment Fund Managers Directive and blue sky fees, but not including Firm's travel and lodging expenses relating to marketing the Funds' securities); and other similar fees and expenses.

Unless waived by the Firm, each of the Funds will also pay or reimburse the Firm for their respective organizational fees and expenses.

The Firm may in its discretion bear some or all of the Fund's initial organizational and offering fees and expenses (including the costs of preparing the offering documents), administration expenses, custodial expenses and certain research-related expenses.

The Firm and its employees do not accept compensation, including sales charges or service fees, from any person for the sale of securities or other investment products.

Investors in the Onshore Fund or in the Offshore Fund will generally be charged early withdrawal charges on withdrawals or redemptions within the applicable "soft" lock-up period.

Expenses borne by Clients other than the Funds are negotiated on a case-by-case basis.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

The General Partner or its affiliates may receive an incentive allocation or fee, subject to a "high water mark", based on the net capital appreciation of each account of each Client, including unrealized gains and losses. When calculating the Funds' incentive allocation or fee, the management fee and all items of income and expense at the Funds level will be taken into consideration.

Our affiliates (including the Firm's principals) may invest in one or more of the Funds. The Funds may pay management fees and/or incentive compensation that are higher than those paid by other Clients. As a result of the Firm's principals' interest in the funds and/or as a result of higher management fees and/or incentive compensation, the Firm may have an incentive to favor the Funds over other Clients.

Additionally, performance-based allocation arrangements may create an incentive for the Firm to recommend investments which may be riskier or more speculative than those which would be recommended under a different arrangement. Such arrangements may also create an incentive to favor higher paying accounts over other accounts in the allocation of investment opportunities.

The advisory agreements with the Funds do not require the General Partner, the Firm, Ori HersHKovitz or Daniel Malek to devote all or any specified portion of its or his time to managing the Funds' affairs but to devote only so much time to such affairs as it or he reasonably believes is necessary in good faith. The General Partner, the Firm, Ori HersHKovitz and Daniel Malek are not prohibited from engaging in any other existing or future business and they are not prohibited from investing on their own behalf or for the accounts of others as long as each of them acts in good faith with respect to the Funds at all times. The Investment Manager, the Firm, Ori HersHKovitz and Daniel Malek may determine, in their discretion, to participate in investments with persons not affiliated with the Funds. The compensation earned by us, the General Partner, Ori HersHKovitz and Daniel Malek, if any, from such other activities may differ from the management fee and the performance allocation received from the Funds.

To mitigate the abovementioned conflicts, Nexthera Capital has designed and implemented procedures to seek the fair treatment of all Clients, and to prevent potential conflicts from influencing the allocation of investment opportunities among Clients. These areas are monitored by the Firm's Chief Compliance Officer ("CCO").

Fund investors are provided with detailed disclosure in the applicable offering documents of such Fund as to how the relevant performance-based compensation is calculated and charged.

Allocation

The Firm recognizes its duty to manage the account of each of its Clients consistent with its fiduciary duty to act in the utmost good faith and in the best interest of its clients. Accordingly, the Firm generally will allocate investments opportunities pursuant to an allocation methodology in pursuit of a distribution of investment opportunities among Clients which the Firm deems fair and equitable under the circumstances existing at such time. By this method, the Firm seeks to ensure that all Clients should receive appropriate and individualized treatment based on the needs of a given Client at a given time. In allocating investment opportunities, the Firm will take into account the factors described in its Investment Allocation and Trade Aggregation Policy.

When the Firm determines that a particular investment opportunity would be desirable for the Master Fund and one or more of the Firm's other Clients, it will seek to allocate such opportunity between the Master Fund and such other Client(s) in a manner that it deems fair and equitable under the circumstances existing at such time. In general, trades will be allocated to the Master Fund and other Clients following a substantially similar investment strategy on a pari passu basis. There are scenarios under which the Firm may deviate from the standard allocation policy, as each investment is unique and may need to be evaluated differently based upon a number of factors, including, but not limited to, the intended objective and strategy of each fund and account and any applicable investment restrictions or guidelines, including leverage constraints; the Firm's perception of the appropriate risk/reward ratio for each fund and account, taking into account, among other things, market exposure, anticipated volatility and diversification with respect to counterparty risk; the overall portfolio composition of each fund and account; the relative amounts of capital in each fund and account available for new investments of the type at issue; the liquidity of each fund and account; whether the allocation of an investment opportunity would be insufficient to make up a meaningful portion of the portfolio of a fund or account; the particular advisory agreement between the Firm and the relevant Client; and the need to rebalance positions held by any fund or account due to capital contributions or withdrawals/redemptions.

The Firm will continuously monitor investment and liquidity limits, and in instances where we are unable to allocate pari passu due to specific restrictions, we will document the rationale of our decision.

Item 7: Types of Clients

Our clients currently are the Funds and a separate account that we sub-advise. We may in the future also provide advisory services to additional pooled investment vehicles and/or separately managed accounts. Any initial and additional investment minimums are disclosed in the offering memorandum for the relevant Funds.

The Fund in their sole discretion may accept capital contributions of lesser amounts, than those described in such Fund's offering memorandum, or establish different minimums or reject any capital contribution, in whole or in part.

Terms of separate accounts, including any minimum investment terms, are determined on a case-by-case basis.

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Investment Objective

The Firm's objective for the Funds is to generate high, risk-adjusted returns for its investors by investing in a diversified global portfolio of healthcare companies, with an emphasis on therapeutics. To do this, the Funds will generally employ a fundamentally driven long/short investment approach to mainly equity and equity-linked securities across global, liquid markets. The Funds will typically have a significant exposure to mega- and large-cap stocks, diversified exposure to mid- and small-cap stocks and the Firm will strive to take a disciplined approach to portfolio construction.

Healthcare Focus

We believe that the healthcare sector has characteristics that provide an attractive opportunity for long/short equity investing. In particular, we believe that the healthcare sector is distinct from other sectors because science and technology drive much of the share price performance. For these reasons, we believe that investing in the healthcare sector may benefit from highly specialized scientific knowledge, which creates a barrier to entry for non-specialists in this area. Experienced healthcare investors with the required scientific expertise may be able to generate alpha due to their analytical edge.

We believe that the healthcare sector generally exhibits a lower cross-company correlation relative to other sectors. Low correlation reflects significant performance dispersion across healthcare companies, which the Firm believes creates a large number of long and short opportunities. We believe that innovation has been increasing rapidly with new technology which leads to novel drugs entering the market. Nexthera Capital believes that the rapid pace of scientific breakthroughs is disruptive and expects this trend to continue for the foreseeable future, and that this creates winners and losers in many areas within the healthcare sector, which results in opportunities for long/short investing.

Investment Process

Our investment approach is to identify investment opportunities (both longs and shorts) across market capitalizations and geographies based on scientific and financial analysis. The investment process generally follows a four-step approach: (i) idea generation, (ii) investment due-diligence, (iii) fundamental analysis and (iv) investment decision-making.

The investment approach generally begins with identifying developments within the healthcare sector by incorporating information from multiple sources. It strives to incorporate top down analysis that may include assessing pricing trends, the political landscape, the regulatory environment and M&A activity. Public information is also generally utilized, including from scientific journals, SEC or relevant regulatory filings, the FDA Portal and earnings announcements. Finally, primary research may also be conducted, by, for example, discussions with key opinion leaders, attending medical and sell-side conferences, sell-side research, and meeting with company management teams.

The second stage strives to conduct rigorous and in-depth due-diligence to validate a new healthcare development, assess its consequences and identify probable winners and losers. This may involve examining scientific and clinical reviews, pricing and the commercial potential, the manufacturing process, reimbursement considerations, intellectual property issues and the overall competitive landscape. The investment process then generally moves onto fundamental company analysis for every investment opportunity that is identified. Our fundamental analysis may incorporate industry analysis, an assessment of the management team and its track record, conducting channel checks with customers, suppliers and competitors, an assessment of the current product mix and pipeline and an analysis of a company's M&A strategy. The Firm's financial and valuation analysis generally involves building detailed financial models and projections for each company, comparing assumptions to market consensus, examining and analyzing company financial statements and accounting methodologies, and conducting company comparable analysis.

The final stage of the investment process is generally to review each investment case to determine specific catalysts (positive or negative), review the risk/reward profile, determine the portfolio fit and if the idea in question fits within the top-down view of the healthcare sector and conduct market timing (current sentiment, short interest, volatility, liquidity) and technical analysis. We then generally determine the position size, price objective, time horizon and initiates a position. The Firm will seek to monitor each position and to frequently review the investment case, price action and sizing.

Ori Hershkovitz and Rael Mazansky (Co-Portfolio Manager) are primarily responsible for risk management oversight of the Funds and the Firm.

Separately managed accounts will typically follow the same strategy and processes as the Funds but may be subject to different investment, risk and other guidelines than the Funds, which guidelines are negotiated on a case-by-case basis.

We will strive to conduct a thorough risk management process in order to understand the various risks of each position within each portfolio. The objective of the process will generally be to protect performance, minimize portfolio volatility, identify the portfolio's key risk factors, ensure that any exposure and position limits are followed and manage portfolio liquidity. Risk monitoring may include volatility, liquidity and correlation metrics, stress testing, scenario analysis and VaR analysis and the use of top losses. We may also use proprietary and third-party analytical tools to monitor and report on the potential risks in the Funds.

Risk of Loss Factors

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that investors should be prepared to bear. Investors should consider the following factors and the factors listed in the offering memorandum of each Fund before investing in such Fund. The following list of risk factors does not purport to be a complete enumeration or explanation of the risks involved in an investment in the Funds. Prospective investors are urged to consult their professional advisers and are directed to the legal documents for each particular Fund, including the “Risk Factors” section in each Fund’s private placement memorandum, before deciding to make an investment in a Fund.

Investment and Trading Risks. All securities investments risk the loss of capital. No guarantee or representation is made that our investment program will be successful or that the Funds will not incur substantial losses. In certain transactions, the Funds may not be “hedged” against market fluctuations. We will attempt to assess these risks, and others, in determining the extent of the position the Funds will take in the relevant securities and the price it is willing to pay for such securities. However, such risks cannot be eliminated.

Concentration of Positions. The Funds will generally hold a relatively large concentration in the healthcare sector. In addition, the Funds is not restricted in the amount of its capital that it may commit to any single security or geographical region. Losses incurred in connection with those positions could have a material adverse effect on the Funds’ overall financial condition. This is because the value of the Funds’ portfolio will be more susceptible to any single occurrence affecting the healthcare sector or one or more of those issuers or geographical regions than would be the case with a more diversified portfolio.

Risk of Investing in the Healthcare Sector. Investing in securities and other instruments of healthcare companies involves substantial risks, including, but not limited to: certain companies in the portfolio of the Funds may have limited operating histories; scarcity of management and marketing personnel with appropriate scientific or medical training may slow or impede companies’ growth; the possibility of lawsuits related to patents or products; obsolescence of products; change in government policies; changing investor sentiments and preferences with regard to healthcare sector investments (some of which are generally perceived as risky) may have an adverse effect on the price of underlying securities; volatility in the U.S. stock markets affecting the prices of healthcare company securities may cause the performance of the Funds to experience substantial volatility; and many companies in the healthcare sector are subject to extensive government regulation. The healthcare industry is heavily regulated by U.S. federal, state and local governmental bodies, and is directly affected by federal conditions of participation, state licensing requirements, facility inspections, state and federal reimbursement policies, regulations concerning capital and other expenditures, certification requirements and other such laws, regulations and rules. In addition, obtaining approval for new products from governmental agencies can be lengthy, expensive and uncertain. Finally, drug development is inherently risky and a substantial number of new products fail in clinical trials.

Risks of Biotechnology and Pharmaceutical Investments. The value of investments in development stage biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies will be affected by problems related to product development, testing, regulatory compliance, manufacturing, sales and marketing capabilities and competition. Biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies are affected by general trends related to the demand for health-related products and services as well as the uncertainty of the results of clinical trials and approval of their products by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (“FDA”) or a foreign equivalent.

Biotechnology and pharmaceutical product development is heavily regulated by the FDA and other agencies and a very small percentage of the pharmaceutical products developed are approved for sale by the FDA or a foreign equivalent. Even if approved, there can be no assurance that the products will be commercially successful. The success of the biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies will depend, inter alia, on their ability, and the ability of any licensors, to obtain and maintain patent protection for their products and technologies and to preserve trade secrets. There can be no assurance that patents licensed to the companies will be valid or will afford the companies protection against competitors with similar technologies. The enforcement of patent rights and the determination of the scope of validity of other parties' proprietary rights may require costly litigation or participation in Patent and Trademark Office Proceedings.

Many biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies may operate for years before becoming profitable and thus depend on continued access to capital markets and successive rounds of capital raising. There is no assurance, for any given company, that timely access to capital will always be available. Moreover, the terms under which successive financing rounds are concluded may favor the new shareholders over existing shareholders. Companies that have insufficient funds to continue operations and are unable to raise additional cash may be sold, merged, or wound down in a manner that is detrimental to the share price of those companies.

Also, many companies depend on research agreements, technology/product license agreements and/or manufacturing agreements with third parties. There can be no assurance that such third parties will be able to meet the companies' needs with respect to timing, quantity, quality and cost-effectiveness or will be able to meet the FDA's standards for manufacturers. In addition, some companies may not have sufficient experience in the sales, marketing or distribution of pharmaceutical products and may have to depend on third parties to provide such expertise. The outsourcing of sales and marketing or distribution can be expensive and it can be difficult for many companies to control such costs. The Funds' investment in biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies will be subject to these risks, as well as some of the general trends relating to demand for health-related products and services and the regulatory, economic and political environment related to the biotechnology sector.

Item 9: Disciplinary Information

The Firm has not been subject to any disciplinary action, whether criminal, civil or administrative (including regulatory) in any jurisdiction. Likewise, no persons involved in the management of the Firm have been subject to such action.

Item 10: Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Ori Hershkovitz and Daniel Malek, the principals of Nexthera Capital, are also the principals of the General Partner. Daniel Malek also serves as a director of the Offshore Fund.

Item 11: Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics and Personal Trading

Nexthera Capital has adopted a Code of Ethics that establishes various procedures with respect to investment transactions in accounts in which Nexthera Capital employees or related persons have a beneficial interest or accounts over which an employee has investment discretion.

The foundation of the Code of Ethics is based upon the following underlying fiduciary principles:

- Employees must at all times place the interests of the Clients first;
- Employees must make sure that all personal securities transactions are conducted consistent with the Code of Ethics; and
- Employees should not take inappropriate advantage of their position at Nextthera Capital.

All Nextthera Capital employees are deemed to be “Access Persons” and are required to adhere to the Code of Ethics, which covers the duty of confidentiality as well as personal trading. All employees are required to certify their adherence to the terms set forth in the Code of Ethics upon commencement of employment and quarterly thereafter.

Nextthera Capital employees must direct duplicate copies of their brokers statements for their personal discretionary brokerage accounts to be sent to the CCO. These records are used to monitor compliance with Nextthera Capital’s employee personal trading policies.

Employees must also obtain pre-approval from the CCO before engaging in any outside business activities or private investments, or receiving an allocation of an Initial Public Offering (“IPO”).

Nextthera Capital’s Code of Ethics is available to investors upon request.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

Employees, affiliates of the employees, and relatives of the employees may make investments in the Funds.

Nextthera Capital maintains an employee personal trading policy which is restrictive and aimed at mitigating any potential conflict of interest between the Funds’ investments and those of Nextthera Capital employees. In general, employees are limited in the extent to which they are permitted to engage in personal trading and may generally not invest for their own account in the same securities that we recommend to Clients or in derivatives of such securities. The CCO monitors personal trading requests.

Additionally, the Firm’s principals and employees do not engage in any principal transaction with the Clients.

Insider Trading Policies and Procedures

Nextthera Capital maintains insider trading policies and procedures that are designed to prevent the misuse of material, non-public information. Among other things, such policies seek to control and monitor the flow of inside information to and within the Firm, as well as prevent trading based on inside information. On a periodic basis, Nextthera Capital employees are required to attest to their compliance with the insider trading policies which are set forth in the Compliance Manual and Code of Ethics.

Item 12: Brokerage Practices

General

The Firm has the authority to select and appoint custodians of the assets of the Clients. The Firm's authority is limited by its own internal policies and procedures and the investment guidelines of each Client whose assets are under the Firm's custody.

In selecting brokers to effect portfolio transactions for the Funds, the Firm will consider such factors as price, the ability of the brokers to effect the transactions, the brokers' facilities, reliability and financial responsibility and the provision or payment (or the rebate to the Funds for payment) of the costs of property or services (e.g., short-term custodial services, research services and publications). Accordingly, if the Firm determines in good faith that the amount of commissions charged by a broker is reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and products or services provided by such broker, the Funds may pay commissions to such broker in an amount greater than the amount another broker might charge.

The Firm currently maintains for the Funds prime brokerage accounts, through which Nexthera Capital may execute trades, borrow securities and maintain custody of securities for the Funds. The Firm may change prime brokers or add additional prime brokers for the Funds at any time in its discretion. The Funds may replace the custodian and/or add additional custodians from time to time in the discretion of the Firm or its affiliates.

The prime brokers for the Funds provide the Firm with front and back office services, including trading, securities lending, clearing, reporting, and settlement for fixed income, swaps, foreign currency and options, among others. Such prime brokers may also provide the Firm with capital introduction, talent recruitment services and the use of office space. The Funds will pay fees to the prime brokers in accordance with the fee schedules negotiated with such prime brokers.

Brokers sometimes suggest a level of business they would like to receive in return for the various services they provide. Actual brokerage business received by any broker may be less than the suggested allocations, but can (and often does) exceed the suggestions, because total brokerage is allocated on the basis of all the considerations described above. A broker is not excluded from receiving business because it has not been identified as providing research services. The information and brokerage services received from various brokers may be used by the Firm in servicing all its accounts and not all such information may be used by the Firm in connection with every Fund. Nonetheless, the Firm believes that such information and brokerage services provide the Funds with benefits by supplementing the research and services otherwise available to the Firm.

The Firm's investment approach emphasizes active management of the Funds' portfolios. Consequently, a Fund's portfolio turnover and brokerage commission expenses may from time to time be greater than for other types of investment vehicles.

Soft Dollars

The Firm enters into soft dollar arrangements with the Funds' brokers. Soft dollar arrangements arise when an investment adviser obtains products and services, other than securities execution, from a broker in return for directing client securities transactions to the broker. Soft dollar arrangements pose a conflict of interest for us in that such arrangements allow us to pay expenses with client commissions that would otherwise be borne by us. We will also only use soft dollars in a manner that is consistent with our duty to seek best execution.

When we use client brokerage commissions (or markups or markdowns) to obtain research or other products or services, we receive a benefit because we do not have to produce or pay for the research, products or services. We may have an incentive to select a broker for the Funds based on our interest in receiving the research or other products or services offered by such broker, rather than the Funds' interest in receiving most favorable execution.

When engaging in soft dollar transactions, we intend to comply with the safe harbor requirements of Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended. Under this provision, in exercising our discretionary authority to select or arrange for the selection of brokers for execution of transactions for our clients, and, subject to our duty to obtain best execution, we may consider the value of research and brokerage products and services (collectively, "Research") provided by such brokers. Research may include, among other things, proprietary research from brokers, which may be written or oral. Research products may include, among other things, databases, reports, surveys regarding companies and industries and quotation services. Research services may include, among other things, research concerning market, economic and financial data, a particular aspect of economics or on the economy in general, statistical information, pricing data and availability of securities, financial publications, electronic market quotations, performance measurement services, analyses concerning specific securities, companies, industries or sectors, market, economic and financial studies and forecasts, appraisal services, algorithmic trading software, and invitations to attend conferences or meetings with management or industry consultants. We may in the future acquire other products and services with client brokerage commissions in accordance with our policies and procedures. Accordingly, if we determine in good faith that the amount of commissions charged by a broker is reasonable in relation to the value of the brokerage and products or services provided by such broker, our clients may pay commissions to such broker in an amount greater than the amount another broker might charge.

Research provided by such brokers may be used to service all of our Clients and not exclusively in connection with the management of such Clients that generated the particular soft dollar credits.

Where a product or service obtained with Clients' commission dollars provides both research and non-research assistance to us, we will make a reasonable allocation of the cost which may be paid for with clients' commission dollars.

The Firm executes securities transactions on behalf of the Funds with broker-dealers that provide the Firm with access to proprietary research reports (such as standard investment research reports). To the best of our knowledge, these services are generally made available to all institutional investors doing business with such broker-dealers. These bundled services are made available to us on an unsolicited basis and without regard to the rates of commissions charged or paid by client accounts or the volume of business that the Firm directs to such broker-dealers.

The Firm may participate in "client commission arrangements" pursuant to which the Firm may execute transactions through a broker-dealer and request that the broker-dealer allocate a portion of the commissions or commission credits to another firm that provides research and other products to the Firm. The Firm excludes from use under these arrangements those products and services that are not eligible under Section 28(e) and applicable regulatory interpretations.

During the fiscal year ended December 31, 2017, the Firm did not obtain any products or services with soft dollar credits through commission sharing agreements.

Aggregation

The Firm will generally aggregate trades, subject to best execution, and to the advisory agreement with each client. Aggregation, or “bunching,” describes a procedure whereby an investment adviser combines the orders of two or more clients into a single order for the purpose of obtaining better prices and lower execution costs. Aggregation opportunities for the Firm generally arise when more than one client is capable of purchasing or selling a particular security based on investment objectives, available cash and other factors. In such event, securities purchased or sold will generally be allocated among client accounts on an average price basis. When an aggregated order is only partially filled, the Firm will allocate the investment opportunity based on the criteria set forth under “Allocation” above.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

Review of Accounts

The Firm’s portfolio managers and investment professionals continuously monitor and analyze the transactions, positions, and investment levels of the Clients to ensure that they conform with the investment objectives and guidelines that are stated in the Clients’ investment advisory agreements and/or offering documents. In these reviews, the Firm pays particular attention to any changes in the investment’s fundamentals, overall risk management and changes in the markets that may affect price levels.

Nexthera Capital engages in active management for the Clients and the Firm review transactions, positions and cash balances on a daily basis.

Reporting

The Firm will distribute annual audited financial statements to the investors in the Funds within 120 days of the Firm’s fiscal year-end. In addition, the Firm distributes reports to investors in the Funds, which include monthly investor statements from the Fund administrator, monthly performance and risk reports, and annual K-1s.

The Firm may enter into agreements (“side letters”) with certain investors that will result in different terms of an investment in a Fund than the terms applicable to other investors. As a result of such side letters, certain investors may receive additional rights that other investors will not necessarily receive.

Pursuant to side letter or other agreements, we may provide particular investors with access to more frequent and/or more detailed information regarding the relevant Fund’s securities positions, performance, finances, and management and/or other information about such Fund or the Firm (including, notification of certain senior employee departures, as well as the commencement of certain disciplinary actions, legal proceedings, investigations or similar matters against our clients, us, our affiliates and/or our respective personnel, or of redemptions from the Funds by us, our affiliates and/or our respective personnel), possibly enabling such investors to better assess the prospects and performance of the Funds.
