Item 4: Advisory Business

Description of our Advisory Business and Services Offered

EGI Financial, Inc. is an Ohio corporation established in 1992 as an investment advisory business. EGI Financial, Inc. is registered with the state of Ohio and regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission as a Registered Investment Advisory Firm. Principal owner(s) of EGI Financial, Inc., (defined as 25% or more ownership) include Jeffrey C. Thomas who is also President and Chief Compliance Officer.

EGI Financial, Inc. is affiliated with American Heritage Securities, Inc., (AHS) a FINRA member broker-dealer as well as JCT Investment Counsel Inc., dba Alpha Asset Management, an affiliated registered investment advisory firm. Affiliation is based upon all three companies being owned by Jeffrey C. Thomas. Additionally, American Heritage Securities shares office space and shares employees and EGI provides investment advisory services to certain clients of AHS under the Private Investment Management (PIM) program provided by AHS custodian Wells Fargo Clearing LLC (WFC). All Investment Advisor Representatives (IAR) of EGI are also licensed as Series 7 Registered Representatives with FINRA under employment by AHS.

In May 2014, EGI Financial, Inc. and American Heritage Securities registered with the State of Ohio to operate under trade name American Heritage Financial. The name American Heritage Financial is for simplifying marketing purposes and all legal documents and agreements used by both firms will continue to reflect their legal names.

EGI Financial Inc. provides investment advisory services, primarily in the form of Money Management Services, to individuals, high-net worth individuals, businesses, retirement plans, trusts, estates, and charitable organizations. Investment programs are developed to meet each client's specific needs. Investment portfolios consist of publicly traded securities; including equities (stocks), government, corporate and municipal debt, certificates of deposit, investment company securities (mutual funds, including exchange traded funds), and options.

EGI Financial Inc. also provides Retirement Plan Services which is, primarily, service to the sponsors of "participant-directed" retirement plans established by the sponsors pursuant to Section 404(c) of ERISA that permits a Plan participant to exercise control over the assets contained in their individual retirement account (normally 401K accounts). EGI provides the Plan sponsors with advice relative to choices of investment alternatives available to Plan participants. These choices may include model portfolios designed and maintained by EGI. In addition, if requested by the sponsor, EGI may provide Plan participants with general impersonal informational seminars and/or materials that describe or explain the various investment options available under the Plan. Seminars may include: participant education, enrollment meetings, risk tolerance assessment, investment option selection, model portfolio creation, and recommending and coordinating with outside service providers such as Record Keepers and Third Party Administrators (TPAs). EGI does not receive, nor accept any compensation from outside service providers.

In 2015, EGI Financial, Inc. began performing Investment Advisory services for clients of AHS through an advisory platform provided by AHS custodian, Wells Fargo Clearing LLC (WFC). The FC program is identified as Private Investment Management (PIM). EGI provides advisory services to PIM clients by establishing and executing Investment Policies for the clients and servicing the client relationship. PIM clients pay a fee for the PIM program based on assets under management. The fee covers the costs of investment advisory services provided by EGI and custodial services, transaction costs, statements, performance reporting and other administrative services provided by FC. Fees are established by FC but are negotiable within limits identified in the FC fee schedule. FC calculates and bills all fees to clients and FC retains a portion of such fees to cover the cost of FC services with the remainder of the fee is paid to AHS. No PIM fees, nor any other compensation, are paid to EGI for the PIM program.

As of January 5, 2024, EGI Financial, Inc. had $175,965,801 in assets under management on its traditional Investment Advisor platforms. These assets are further identified as:

Discretionary	$159,530,000

Discretionary assets are those included in our Money Management Service and such portfolios are individually managed dependent on the client's objective and risk parameters as identified in their Investment Policy Statement. Clients may provide investment input or impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities. Non-discretionary assets are those included in our Retirement Plan Services.

In addition to the traditional Investment Management Assets, EGI had $112,494,177 in assets under discretionary management as of January 5, 2024, the Private Investment Management (PIM) platform held by American Heritage Securities' custodian Wells Fargo Clearing, LLC.

Money Management Services

While many money managers define their investment process as an Investment Strategy, we believe that, as a result of the strong values, beliefs and principals built into our process, our investment strategy is better defined as our Money Management Philosophy.

At EGI Financial we believe the primary value we add to the client relationship is our ability to help clients attain the investment results required to achieve their individual financial objectives. We have extensive investment experience, state of the art analytical tools and professional networks which we use to develop and implement our Money Management Philosophy.

There are three key aspects to our Money Management Philosophy.

- Portfolio Management: The overall process of achieving financial objectives while managing risk.
- Investment Philosophy: The disciplines that guide our investment decisions.
- Investment Selection: The process of selecting and monitoring the specific investments needed to achieve the client's financial and risk objectives.

Following is a discussion of the primary strategies, methods and analysis that are the basis of our Money Management Philosophy.

Portfolio Management:

Portfolio management refers to our overall strategy to achieve objectives and manage risk. The primary objectives we seek to achieve are growth, income and/or stability. Risk management includes efforts to reduce volatility, loss of principal and loss of purchasing power. After identifying a client's risk and reward parameters in their Investment Policy Statement, we use the following tools to manage risk and achieve their objectives.

Suitability: Suitability is the characteristic that determines if an investment is appropriate for a given investor. Investments must have reasonable risk and reward characteristics relative to the objectives of the client.

Diversification: The most effective investment tool to reduce risk and achieve consistent returns is diversification. Portfolios are diversified among asset classes, industries and market capitalization using a proprietary asset allocation model dependent on client objectives and risk parameters as well as market conditions.

Proprietary Asset Allocation Model: Our proprietary asset allocation model provides better defined diversification by identifying investments by "expectations." Traditional allocation models diversify through a mix of characteristics such as industry group, market capitalization, asset class, etc. While such models provide diversification, they do little to identify what the investment might provide to the investor or what the investor might expect from owning the investment. Our proprietary asset allocation model identifies characteristics such as growth, income, stability, speculation, market correlation or non-correlation. While use of this model, along with traditional portfolio diversification strategies, does not guarantee achievement of portfolio risk and reward objectives, our experience shows it improves diversification, reduces risk and helps clients better understand the purpose each investment is expected to provide toward the overall objectives of their investment plan.

Investment Philosophy:

Quality, Growth, Value, Diversification and a Long-Term Outlook are the disciplines that guide our investment decisions or our Investment Philosophy.

Quality is a multi-faceted characteristic. We use fundamental analysis along with a thorough study of a company's business strategy and management to evaluate Quality in investment opportunities. Growth companies can also be value investments. Growth at an attractive price in relation to the rate, stability and reliability of growth equates to value.

While Quality, Growth and Value are critical, we strongly emphasize Diversification and a Long-Term Outlook. By prudently investing among investment styles, we reduce risk and enhance long-term performance. Investments are typically held a minimum of three years.

Investment Selection:

We use fundamental statistics, technical indicators and intangible characteristics to identify investments which will provide attractive Quality, Growth and Value traits. For equities, fundamental statistics used for investment selection include, but are not limited to, price/earnings ratios, book value, debt ratios, market capitalization, discounted cash flows, earnings growth, dividend growth and price to earnings growth ratios. Technical indicators include moving averages, volume, and chart patterns. Intangible characteristics include quality and consistency of management, business strategy, patents, competition, technology issues, barriers to entry and general economic conditions. Fixed income investments are selected primarily based on quality, safety and yield to maturity while also considering maturity dates, duration, call features, current yield, the yield curve and the general interest rate cycle.

Client assets are invested primarily in domestic and international equities (stocks), fixed income (debt instruments or bonds), and money markets (money funds and short-term fixed income instruments). To a lesser extent, assets may be invested in commodities, master limited partnerships (MLP's), Real Estate Investment Trusts (REIT's), or options. Investments in commodities are made only through Exchange Traded Funds (ETF's) or mutual funds. Investments are restricted to publicly traded securities which normally have daily published market values. All investments are subject to risk of loss of principal and fluctuation of market value. We attempt to limit risk through fundamental analysis, diversification and use of our proprietary asset allocation model.

Retirement Plan Advisory Services:

Retirement Plan Standard of Care

Adviser will perform the Fiduciary Services in accordance with the prudent man rule set forth in ERISA section 404(a)(1)(B).
