Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Method of Analysis

St. Louis Financial Planners Asset Management, LLC utilizes primarily technical analysis as its method of research and investment model management. Technical Analysis is the study of the market action itself as measured by market price. Market charts are used to identify the dominant trends, support and resistance levels in the major market indices, ETFs, and individual securities. The investment vehicles used are exchange traded funds (ETFs), individual equities, and no-load index mutual funds.

Investment Strategies

Dynamic Asset Allocation and Dynamic Equity Models

Dynamic Asset Allocation Models seek growth of capital with an emphasis on controlling risk through the use of proprietary technical systems that can seek money market or cash when the support, resistance, and trend following models dictate. Utilizes traditional equity indexed ETFs, mutual funds, and individual equities. The Dynamic Asset Allocation Models will incorporate multiple asset classes and utilize strategies of long, intermediate, and short-term active portfolio management programs based upon large, mid, and small company indices, ETFs, sectors, fixed income, gold, commodities, and individual equities.

Tactical Rotation and Equity Rotation

These Models seek an objective of growth of capital by owning the leading indexed asset class, sector mutual funds/ETFs, and individual equities through the use of proprietary technical indicators. These models employ a relative strength ranking system that actively rotates in and out of ETFs, mutual funds, and individual equities. Through the utilization of long and intermediate term strategies, we monitor the securities daily and rotate into the investments style exhibiting relative strength over various time frames. Unlike the Dynamic Asset Allocation model, these models will not seek money market or cash, but rather remain fully invested at all times.

Equity Momentum, Sector Momentum, Momentum, and Dividend Equity

These Models seek an objective of growth of capital by owning the leading individual equities and ETFs through the use of proprietary ranking methodology. The Dividend model seeks both growth and income. These models employ a Momentum ranking system that actively rotates in and out of individual equities and ETFs. Through the utilization of long and intermediate term strategies, we monitor the securities monthly/quarterly and rotate into the investments exhibiting relative strength over various time frames. Unlike the Dynamic Asset Allocation model, these models will not seek money market or cash, but rather remain fully invested at all times.

Strategic and Global Asset Allocation Models

A fully diversified buy and hold strategy. In order to reduce the correlation of the client's holdings to the U.S. stock markets, these models may have exposure to international, emerging markets, fixed income, and commodity ETFs. The Client must recognize that the objectives of this model cannot be achieved without incurring a certain amount of principal volatility. In order to remain consistent with the asset allocation and portfolio holdings, each model will be reviewed and monitored on a quarterly basis. Deviations or tolerance bands will be utilized in order to keep the portfolio allocations within the objective guidelines. Rebalancing of the portfolio will typically occur on an annual basis or no more frequent than deemed necessary.

The client, after consultation with the STLFPAM representative, may participate in more than one model at a time all within the same account.

Dynamic Leveraged

Purchases leveraged equity indexed mutual funds and ETFs that seek to provide investment returns, before fees and expenses, up to 200% of the daily indexed benchmark's return. This strategy will exhibit higher levels of risk and volatility than seen in traditional portfolio construction. The Dynamic Leverage Models incorporate multiple strategies of long and intermediate term active portfolio management programs based upon large, mid and small company indices. The model employs proprietary tactical strategies that can seek the safety of money market when the support, resistance, and trend following systems issue sell signals. Due to the daily reset of the leverage, there is an increased risk of accelerated losses in excess of twice the market when the ETF declines.

Risk of Loss

Because our strategies invest in equity securities, fixed income, and commodity ETFs, there naturally exists a risk of loss to capital. In an attempt to reduce the risk of loss, our Dynamic Asset Allocation strategies will utilize propriety signals to seek Money Market or cash on sell signal. These defensive measures seek to minimize the risk and volatility associated with investing in the stock market.
