Pathways to Capital Raising

Rule 506(b) Private Placements allow companies to raise unlimited capital from investors with whom the company has a relationship and who meet certain wealth thresholds or have certain professional credentials. A company cannot use general solicitation in a 506(b) private placement.

Rule 506(c) General Solicitation Offerings allow companies to raise unlimited capital by broadly soliciting investors who meet certain wealth thresholds or have certain professional credentials.

Rule 504 Limited Offerings allow companies to raise up to $10 million in a 12-month period, in many cases from investors with whom the company has a relationship.
Pathways to Capital Raising

Regulation Crowdfunding Offerings allow eligible companies to raise up to $5 million in investment capital in a 12-month period from investors online via a registered funding portal.

Intrastate Offerings allow companies to raise capital within a single state according to state law. Many states limit the offering to between $1 million to $5 million in a 12-month period.

Regulation A Offerings (sometimes called a “mini-IPO”) allow eligible companies to raise up to $20 million in a 12-month period in a Tier 1 offering and up to $75 million in a 12-month period in a Tier 2 offering through a process similar to, but less extensive than, a registered offering.

Initial public offerings (IPOs) provide an initial pathway for companies to raise unlimited capital from the general public through a registered offering. After its IPO, the company will be a public company with ongoing public reporting requirements.
General Solicitation: What’s the deal?

A solicitation that conditions the market for an offering of securities is generally viewed as a general solicitation that is marketing the securities. Examples:

- Newspaper and magazine advertisements
- Unrestricted public websites
- Television and radio broadcasts
- Seminars (excluding demo days)

Why does this matter?

Depending upon which regulatory pathway a company chooses to raise capital, the company may be limited in how it can connect with potential investors. For example, the most commonly used offering exemption under the federal securities laws — Rule 506(b) of Regulation D — prohibits the use of general solicitation to market the securities.
How can I avoid general solicitation?

Conduct an offering that is limited to investors with whom the company (or its broker dealer or investment adviser) has a pre-existing, substantive relationship.

“Pre-existing”

Formed before the start of the offering or established through a broker-dealer or investment adviser prior to that investment professional’s participation in the offering

“Substantive”

Formed when the entity offering securities (i.e., the company or its broker-dealer or investment adviser) has sufficient information to evaluate and evaluates a potential investor’s status as an accredited investor
What about demo days?

Recent rule changes clarify how companies can pitch to potential investors at qualifying demo day events without being considered a general solicitation.

Key criteria include:

- Sponsor of the event is a college, university, state or local government, nonprofit organization, angel investor group, incubator, or accelerator.
- Sponsor is limited in its role outside of serving as the event host.
- Advertising for the event does not reference any particular securities offering.
- Information about the offering shared during the event is limited to notification of planned or ongoing offering, type and amount of securities being offered, intended use of the proceeds, and unsubscribed amount.

What is the role of accredited investors?

Many of the offering exemptions under the federal securities laws limit participation to accredited investors or contain restrictions on participation by non-accredited investors.

- Rule 506(c) General Solicitation Offerings
- Rule 506(b) Private Placements
- Regulation A Offerings
- Regulation Crowdfunding

- Rule 504 Limited Offerings
- Intrastate Offerings
- Public Offerings
How can individuals qualify as accredited?

Individuals may qualify as accredited investors based on wealth and income thresholds, as well as other measures of financial sophistication.

Financial Criteria:
- Net worth over $1 million, excluding primary residence (individually or with spouse or partner)
- Income over $200,000 (individually) or $300,000 (with spouse or partner) in each of the prior two years, and reasonably expects the same for the current year

Professional Criteria:
- Investment professionals in good standing holding the general securities representative license (Series 7), the investment adviser representative license (Series 65), or the private securities offerings representative license (Series 82)
- Directors, executive officers, or general partners (GP) of the company selling the securities (or of a GP of that company)
- Any “family client” of a “family office” that qualifies as an accredited investor
- For investments in a private fund, “knowledgeable employees” of the fund
How can entities qualify as accredited?

Depending upon the structure of the entity or its assets, entities may qualify as an accredited investor.

- Entities owning investments in excess of $5 million

- The following entities with assets in excess of $5 million: corporations, partnerships, LLCs, trusts, 501(c)(3) organizations, employee benefit plans, “family office” and any “family client” of that office

- Entities where all equity owners are accredited investors

- Investment advisers (SEC- or state-registered or exempt reporting advisers) and SEC-registered broker-dealers

- A bank, savings and loan association, insurance company, registered investment company, business development company, or small business investment company or rural business investment company
