Types of Advisory Services

Shufro, Rose & Co., LLC was founded as a partnership in 1938 and converted to a Limited Liability Company (“LLC”) under the laws of the state of New York in 1997. The firm is among the oldest wealth management firms in the United States specializing in the discretionary management of investment portfolios. We are independent and owned entirely by our working principals, each of whom is a Senior Financial Advisor and Portfolio Manager. The Principals of SRC have worked together for many years; two have been in the investment business for more than forty years. Foremost in our minds is that putting our clients’ interests first and producing good investment results are the most important services we can provide. In numerous instances we now advise the fourth successive generation of a family. Because we are focused on the overall financial health of our clients, we often help clients anticipate and plan for future needs by working closely with their accountants, other advisors, and attorneys. These lasting relationships as well as the growth in our assets under management attest to our diligence on behalf of our clients. SRC provides investment management and advisory services to separately managed accounts of individuals, high-net worth individuals, trusts and estates, retirement accounts, businesses and charitable organizations (each referred to as the “Client”, collectively the “Clients”) on a discretionary and non-discretionary basis. Although all Portfolio Managers share investment ideas, some primary Portfolio Managers are also supported by, and work closely with, one or more other Portfolio Managers in the management of accounts. Each account is assigned to an individual Portfolio Manager—or in some cases a pair of Portfolio Managers. These Portfolio Managers or teams of Portfolio Managers have primary responsibility for formulating investment advice and exercising discretion for their Client’s separately managed accounts. Portfolio Managers meet with Clients to discuss Client’s financial goals and objectives, as well as establishing a risk tolerance. Such information is considered by the Portfolio Manager when initially structuring a Client’s portfolio and for ongoing monitoring and managing portfolios.

The Portfolio Managers primarily invest client assets in stocks, exchange-traded securities, closed-end funds, mutual funds and various types of fixed income securities. Portfolio Managers typically maintain cash equivalent positions (e.g., money market funds) through a “sweep” program as well. Some Portfolio Managers use short-term bond mutual funds or U.S. Treasury bills to generate more interest income than is available from money market funds. Short-term bond funds generally involve a greater interest rate and credit quality risk than money market funds. In addition,

Portfolio Managers can recommend college savings account plans to Clients if appropriate. One Portfolio Manager also routinely utilizes options, primarily with the intention of increasing income and/or reducing downside risk.

The Portfolio Managers can also recommend selected alternative private investment funds (“Funds”) to qualified investors. Prior to investing in Funds, Clients will receive and/or execute a private placement memorandum, subscription documents and/or limited partnership agreements (“Offering Materials”).

SRC may also engage one or more third-party sub-advisors (“Independent Managers”) to manage a portion of client assets if deemed in the best interest of the Clients, subject to the Client’s executed Investment Management Agreement (“IMA”), and if the Independent Manager’s strategy aligns with the Client’s investment objectives and risk tolerance. SRC will generally execute a sub-advisory agreement with the Independent Manager. SRC will ensure a sub-adviser’s Form ADV Part 2A, Part 2B, Form CRS and Privacy Policy are delivered to the relevant Clients. There may be instances whereby SRC may require Client to sign separate written agreements directly with those Independent Managers instead of SRC doing so on a Client’s behalf. The Client agrees to timely execute any such agreements. Clients may be asked to open new custodian accounts with a third-party custodian to separate sub-advised assets from the remaining Client assets advised by SRC. Independent Managers shall have limited power-of-attorney and shall have only trading authority over those assets SRC directs to them for management. Independent Managers shall be authorized to buy, sell and trade (in accordance with applicable law and consistent with the client’s objectives) and to give instructions, related to their authority, to the broker-dealer and custodian. Unless otherwise disclosed to Clients prior to the engagement of an Independent Manager, SRC will be responsible for compensating the Independent Manager for any investment management fees due for advisory services performed on SRC Client accounts by Independent Managers subject to the IMA with SRC. Generally, the Client will not incur additional management fees for the investment advisory services rendered by the Independent Manager. In the event fees to an Independent Manager shall result in increased fees to Clients, Clients shall be notified in writing and such increased fees shall become effective no earlier than 30 days after written notice is sent to the Client, unless a written objection is sent to the Adviser prior to the expiration of that time. The Client may still incur transaction and any custodial fees on assets managed by the Independent Manager. SRC will remain the primary investment advisor on such sub-advised managed accounts. SRC reasonably monitors and reviews performance of all Client account activity managed by Independent Managers and is responsible for all consolidated Client reporting.

SRC, if requested by its Clients, may provide non-discretionary asset management services. Under this relationship, SRC consults with the Client prior to executing trades in the Client's account. In addition, SRC may monitor and manage Client investments and provide consolidated portfolio reporting and portfolio management to the Client.

Individualized Advisory Services

SRC has expanded the options of portfolio management strategies that Portfolio Managers can implement in order to meet a Clients' investment objectives, risk tolerance and potential tax exposure. SRC has engaged the services of outside investment research providers and electronic portfolio management and rebalancer platforms to assist with the development and implementation of such strategies and guidelines. Each strategy offers diversified securities that provide exposure to various sectors and asset classes. Portfolio Managers consider these diversified strategies, if appropriate, when managing a Client's portfolios.

The adoption of these portfolio allocation strategies is designed to better address SRC's Client investment needs. At account inception and any time thereafter, a Client may impose reasonable restrictions on what assets can be purchased for, or sold from, their accounts.

SRC does not issue lists of 'recommended' securities. Portfolio Managers exercise their individual judgment regarding all purchases, sales and investment advice for the accounts they supervise using those investment techniques and methods which they believe are appropriate. Different Portfolio Managers: (i) employ different investment techniques, (ii) produce different outcomes, and (iii) may have differences in their fee schedules. Further, the highly individualized, hands-on investment management approach means that even accounts with similar investment profiles, which are managed by the same Portfolio Manager, may own different securities from one another and have different results.

In some cases, Portfolio Managers will manage several accounts together as a household or 'family group' of accounts.

ERISA Accounts

SRC is deemed to be a 3(21) fiduciary to advisory Clients that are employee benefit plans or individual retirement accounts (“IRAs”) pursuant to the Employee Retirement Income and Securities Act (“ERISA”), and regulations under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (the “Code”), respectively. As such, SRC is subject to specific duties and obligations under ERISA and the Code that include, among other things, restrictions concerning certain forms of compensation.

In addition, SRC has adopted policies and procedures designed to comply with the ERISA fiduciary standards when advising retirement asset rollovers as set forth in the Department of Labor Fiduciary Rule. When SRC provides investment advice to you regarding your retirement plan account or individual retirement account(s), we are fiduciaries within the meaning of Title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act and/or the Internal Revenue Code, as applicable, which are laws governing retirement accounts. The way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests, so we operate under a special rule that requires us to act in your best interest and not put our interest ahead of yours. Under this special rule’s provisions, we must:

- Meet a professional standard of care when making investment recommendations (give prudent advice);
- Never put our financial interests ahead of yours when making recommendations (give loyal advice);
- Avoid misleading statements about conflicts of interest, fees, and investments;
- Follow policies and procedures designed to ensure that we give advice that is in your best interest;
- Charge no more than is reasonable for our services; and
- Give you basic information about conflicts of interest.

529 Plan Accounts

SRC has partnered with American Funds to offer access to 529 Plan college savings accounts to a select group of clients who have a need for college savings. Accounts will be invested in American Funds opened-ended mutual funds or target date funds.

Financial Planning Services

SRC is available for a fee to provide certain financial planning services as well as financial advice on non-investment related matters such as general financial oversight, balance sheet, cash flow management, mortgage refinancing, estate planning, insurance planning, annuity and pension planning and charitable gift planning. Under this arrangement, any recommendations provided by SRC may be implemented at the Client's sole discretion with the professional consultants of the Client's choosing, and there is no obligation to engage SRC for investment advisory services.

With respect to any financial planning provided by SRC, each Client must acknowledge to us that: (i) such Client is free at all times to accept or reject any of our recommendations, and such Client acknowledges that such Client has the sole authority with regard to the implementation, acceptance, or rejection of any recommendation or advice from us; (ii) our recommendations (i.e., estate planning, retirement planning, insurance, etc.) may be discussed and/or implemented, at such Client's sole discretion, with the corresponding professional adviser(s) (i.e., broker, accountant, attorney, etc.) of such Client's choosing; (iii) in respect to estate planning and tax planning matters, our role shall be that of a facilitator between such Client and his/her corresponding professional adviser(s); (iv) we are not acting in the capacity of an attorney or accountant, and no portion of our services should be interpreted by such Client as legal or tax advice (rather, such Client should defer to such Client's attorney and/or accountant with respect to all legal or tax matters); and (v) such Client will maintain sole responsibility to notify us if there is a change in such Client's financial situation or investment objective(s) for the purpose of reviewing/evaluating/revising our previous recommendations and/or services and/or to address new planning or consulting matters.

Assets under Management (Regulatory Assets under Management)

As of December 31, 2023, our Regulatory Assets Under Management (“RAUM”) were $2,000,848,944 of which $1,940,427,275 are managed on a discretionary basis and $60,421,669 are managed on a non-discretionary basis.

ITEM 5 – FEES AND COMPENSATION

Investment Advisory Fees

SRC charges an investment advisory fee to its Clients. The annual investment advisory fee is paid quarterly in arrears and is calculated using Average Daily-adjusted Assets under Management (“AAUM”) for the quarter—which generally includes all discretionary assets in an account that are invested or held for investment except for those assets that have been expressly excluded under the respective fee agreement or otherwise as determined by the Portfolio Manager. The investment advisory fee is assessed in accordance with the fee schedule the client authorized. SRC has, and may in the future, at its discretion, waive or reduce the fees calculated in accordance with the fee schedule for specific accounts taking into consideration, among other things, account strategy, current portfolio and asset classes, the size of the account and the length of the client relationship. A detailed copy of the calculation is available upon request.

SRC maintains the discretion to vary or modify its fee schedule subject to applicable law and contract.

The investment advisory fee range generally offered by SRC is summarized below:

Annual Fee (based on AAUM)
Ranging from 0.65% to 1.50% assessed quarterly in arrears.
529 Plans are charged a 0.50% per annum management fee.

Certain advisor groups at SRC may require a minimum account size, but reserve the right to reduce or waive this minimum account size.

In certain circumstances, multiple accounts of Clients related by blood or marriage and/or sharing a household may be combined to reach a certain asset under management level in order to qualify for certain fee breakpoints. Several factors—such as the amount of assets invested, and types of investments being made - may influence the amount of the annual fee.

Unless a Client directs otherwise, fees are deducted from the relevant account or from a related account. For example, for some Clients, advisory fees for IRA accounts are deducted from the Clients’ taxable accounts. When fees are deducted, the charge is shown on the monthly statement for the month in which the charge is made. Fees are prorated for accounts that open or close during the billing period. Existing accounts may use fee schedules or payment terms that differ from the fee schedules or payment terms offered to new clients. If an account transfers to a different Portfolio Manager within SRC, the fee schedule in existence immediately prior to the transfer will govern the account unless a new arrangement is agreed upon between SRC and the relevant Client.

Clients do not pay any charges to SRC except as described above in connection with investment advisory services. SRC does not charge commissions to Clients. SRC's management fees may or may not be exclusive of any fees and/or expenses charged by third-parties. Such third-party fees and/or expenses may include, but not be limited to, custodial fees, brokerage commissions, transaction fees, third-party investment management fees, administrative fees, odd lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfer and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Some trades are assessed regulatory fees (e.g., Chicago Board Options Exchange ("CBOE") fees for options, and an SEC fee for all sales). If foreign securities are purchased, additional charges for exchanging currency may be charged by the respective custodian. With respect to investments in mutual funds including Exchange Traded Funds ("ETFs"), management/marketing fees are charged by such funds. These fees are included in the cost of the shares and are disclosed in the prospectuses that are sent by the custodian at the time of purchase. In all cases, a portion of those fees (often called 12b-1 fees) are directed to the custodian. Because SRC is not a broker-dealer, we are not allowed to receive any portion of these fees. Clients should review their custodial statements to review all expenses.

For alternative private investment fund managers, Clients will incur management and incentive fees, in addition to administrative, audit, legal and other such allowable expenses pursuant to the Offering Materials. These fees and expenses will be in addition to the management fees paid to SRC.

If SRC engages an Independent Manager to manage a portion of Client assets, SRC will generally pay the management fees charged by such Independent Manager resulting in no increased fee to the Client. In the event fees to an Independent Manager shall result in increased fees to the Client, the Client shall be notified in writing and such increased fees shall become effective no earlier than 30 days after written notice is sent to the Client, unless a written objection is sent to the Adviser prior to the expiration of that time. Clients may also incur transaction or custodial fees on any sub-advised accounts as Clients would if SRC were managing the assets. The Independent Manager will send an itemized management fee calculation on a quarterly basis to SRC for review and payment.

SRC has retained Broadridge Investor Communication Solutions, Inc. (“Broadridge”) to file securities class actions on behalf of Clients. Broadridge bears the processing costs associated with filing such actions and is entitled to receive fifteen percent (15%) of the gross recovery connected to such claims. SRC receives no portion of such fee or recovered amount.

SRC has retained Globe Tax Services, Inc (“GlobeTax”) to recover over-withheld tax on international investments on behalf of Clients. GlobeTax bears the processing costs associated with its effort and will receive $50 or 20% - 35% whichever is greater but no more than 50% of the amount recovered. GlobeTax is also entitled to an annual maintenance fee of $200 per account after at least $400 is recovered for that account. SRC receives no portion of such fee or recovered amount.

All these fees and expenses that may be incurred by Clients are in addition to the investment advisory fee paid to SRC. SRC does not receive any portion of these potential third-party charges.

SRC believes that assessing its Clients a reasonable annual investment advisory fee based on their AAUM is consistent with its fiduciary duty as an investment adviser and creates an appropriate alignment of interests between the Portfolio Managers and Clients. SRC does not share advisory fee revenue with any custodian. SRC does not have any significant ‘undisclosed’ revenue sources; such as ‘soft’ dollars, referral fees, ‘mark-ups’ or ‘pull-backs’, underwriting fees and concessions, product or cash balance overrides, payment for order flow, directed trades, or other fees.

Investment Advisory Fees in General

Clients should note that similar advisory services may (or may not) be available from other registered (or unregistered) investment advisers for similar, lower, or higher fees.

Financial Planning Fees

For accounts where the minimum account size has been waived or for clients seeking complex financial planning services, SRC may charge a financial planning fee in addition to the investment advisory fee for clients seeking financial planning services. Financial planning services are provided for a minimum fixed fee of $2,500. SRC may, at its discretion, waive or reduce the financial planning fee taking into consideration, among other things, the length of the client relationship and the scope and complexity of the agreed upon services. If SRC seeks to charge a financial planning fee in addition to the investment advisory fee, financial planning services shall be set forth and described in a separate agreement between SRC and such Clients. Financial planning service scope and fixed fees are reviewed annually and charged in arrears.

ERISA Accounts

SRC is deemed to be a 3(21) fiduciary to advisory Clients that are employee benefit plans or individual retirement accounts (“IRAs”) pursuant to the Employee Retirement Income and Securities Act (“ERISA”), and regulations under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (the “Code”), respectively. As such, SRC is subject to specific duties and obligations under ERISA and the Code that include, among other things, restrictions concerning certain forms of compensation. To avoid engaging in prohibited transactions, SRC charges advisory fees for investment advice on products for which SRC and/or our related persons do not receive any commissions or trailing fees such as 12b-1 fees.

In addition, SRC has adopted policies and procedures designed to comply with the ERISA fiduciary standards when advising retirement asset rollovers as set forth in the Department of Labor Fiduciary Rule that went into effect on January 31, 2022.

Termination of the Advisory Relationship

As noted above, fees are prorated for accounts that close during the billing period. The advisory fee will be prorated based on the AAUM, for the period, on the termination date or date of death of Client.

ITEM 6 – PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

SRC does not charge any performance-based fees.

Alternative private investment fund managers typically charge performance-based fees pursuant to the governing documents of each alternative investment fund. SRC will not receive any portion of those fees.

ITEM 7 – TYPES OF CLIENTS

SRC's Clients are primarily individuals, high net-worth individuals, or trusts, including IRAs and retirement accounts. The remaining accounts consist of charitable, educational, endowment and corporate accounts as well as family limited partnerships or investment clubs.

ITEM 8 – METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that Clients should be prepared to bear.

SRC manages portfolios for Clients based upon their personal objectives, goals and risk tolerances. Portfolio Managers consider Client's anticipated future spending requirements, age, and financial circumstances. The desire for income and safety of principal are balanced with the need for inflation protection and willingness or ability to assume risk in order to facilitate future growth. Depending on the investment objectives and risk tolerance of Client, a portfolio may include stocks, bonds, U.S. Treasury bills, cash equivalents, preferred stocks, open-end funds and closed-end funds or ETFs representing a basket of equities or fixed income securities. In isolated cases and only with separate signed approval by the Client, a Portfolio Manager may also use alternative private fund investments, exchange listed options or margin as part of an investment strategy.

Certain advisors at SRC have engaged the services of outside investment research providers to assist with the development of investment strategies. Advisors utilize electronic portfolio management and rebalancer platforms to implement these strategies. Portfolios are reviewed periodically for consistency with the intended investment approach. The respective Portfolio Management team will monitor the securities and weightings, and adjust the holdings as deemed necessary.

SRC tends to maintain Clients' investment positions for an extended time, resulting in a minimization of trading costs and taxes. However, if a security achieves what the Portfolio Manager considers its full value, or if circumstances warrant selling sooner than originally expected, the Portfolio Manager may hold investment positions for a shorter period resulting in an increase in trading costs and potentially higher tax liability.

SRC attempts to mitigate the risks posed by individual securities by holding a selection of securities in different asset classes, such as stocks, bonds and cash equivalents. SRC typically seeks to diversify holdings across industry classes within each portfolio or family group. Due to special circumstances (such as large, very low-cost basis legacy positions), some accounts have larger than average positions. Portfolio Managers use their discretion to determine the composition of each portfolio or family group.

The Portfolio Managers' assessment of any security's likely future performance is inherently a prediction and it is subject to uncertainty and risk that the outlook might prove wrong. Within a given asset class, Portfolio Managers employ a variety of valuation techniques designed to signal when a security is potentially advantageously priced and offers potential for price appreciation. Such indicators include, but are not limited to: price to earnings comparisons, price to sales comparisons, expected growth rates, historical valuations, leverage ratios, price to book values and cash flow analyses, as well as considerations regarding company management and style. SRC's investment horizon is normally long term, so its perspective in assessing a potential investment usually incorporates a multi-year assessment of the security's likely performance relative to peers and to the general market. An outcome contrary to what the Portfolio Manager envisions may arise from a number of factors, such as: an erroneous assessment of the value offered by the security, either by wrongly anticipating earnings or misperceiving what a "standard" valuation should be for the type of security in question; a change in the fundamental business and industry dynamics that the Portfolio Manager fails to anticipate; an allocation of capital by the company that changes value and renders the forecasts invalid, or a mistaken reading of the future economic environment. If any of these risks materialize, the resulting loss, if any, would negatively contribute to the performance of a Client's portfolio.

In addition to these risks, fixed income securities and preferred stocks are subject to risks on account of or due to changes in interest rates, credit quality and prepayments.

For assets allocated to 529 Plan college savings accounts at American Funds, investment allocations will be limited to those American Funds opened ended mutual funds or target date funds American Funds has available.

For all alternative private fund investments recommended to Clients, SRC performs initial and ongoing investment and operational due diligence. SRC employs a multi-phase approach to researching and selecting managers suitable for Clients.

SRC may identify and review Independent Managers from time to time and may invest a portion of Client assets with such sub-advisers subject to the Client's investment objectives and risk tolerance. In selecting Independent Managers, SRC will perform reasonable due diligence to determine that the Independent Managers are registered investment advisers and that they have appropriate compliance policies and procedures in place that are comparable to SRC, especially in the areas of allocation and best execution. SRC is not responsible for any loss that Client may suffer by reason of any decision made or other action taken by any Independent Manager. Liabilities are limited as set forth in the IMA.

Summary of Material Risks

There can be no assurance that the investment objective of our Clients will be achieved, and that Clients will not incur losses. The risks described below are not meant to be a comprehensive collection of all risks with which Clients will be confronted. Each Client is also encouraged to consult with SRC to review the specific risk parameters of, and assets that comprise of, the Client's account at any given time and from time to time.

Equity Securities

Common stocks and other equity securities generally increase or decrease in value based on the earnings of a company and on general industry and market conditions. The value of a company's share price could decline as a result of poor decisions made by management, lower demand for the company's services or products or if the company's revenues fall short of expectations. There are also risks associated with the stock market overall; in particular, the stock market may experience periods of turbulence and instability.

Options

Options can be highly volatile investments and involve special risks. Successful investment strategies using options require the ability to predict future movements in securities prices, interest rates and other economic factors. SRC's, or an investment manager's efforts to use options (even for hedging purposes) may not be successful. SRC or an investment manager can invest in options based on any type of security, index or currency, including options traded on foreign exchanges and options not traded on exchanges. If the Firm or an investment manager applies a hedge at an inappropriate time or judges market conditions incorrectly, options strategies will reduce a Client's return. A Client will also experience losses if the prices of option positions were to be poorly correlated with its other investments, or if it could not close its positions because of an illiquid secondary market.

Fixed Income Securities

Fixed income or debt securities have varying levels of sensitivity to changes in interest rates. In general, the price of a debt security can fall when interest rates rise and can rise when interest rates fall. Securities with longer maturities and mortgage-backed securities can be more sensitive to interest rate changes. In addition, short-term securities tend to react to changes in short-term interest rates, and long-term securities tend to react to changes in long-term interest rates. Many types of fixed income securities are also subject to prepayment risk. Securities subject to prepayment can offer less potential for gains during a declining interest rate environment and similar or greater potential for loss in a rising interest rate environment. Below-investment grade fixed income securities are generally subject to greater credit risk than investment-grade securities and will be issued by companies whose financial condition is troubled or uncertain and that may be involved in bankruptcy proceedings, reorganizations, or financial restructurings. Many below-investment grade fixed income securities are also less liquid than investment-grade securities and could be subject to greater volatility.

Exchange Traded Funds

Exchange Traded Funds (“ETFs”) are designed to represent a fixed portfolio of securities that is intended to track a particular market index. The risks associated with investing in ETFs generally reflect the risks of owning the underlying securities in which they are designed to track, although lack of liquidity in an ETF could result in an ETF being more volatile than the particular market index it intends to track. ETFs also have separate management fees and expenses, which a Client will bear through its investment in the underlying ETF.

Open-End Mutual Funds

Open-end mutual funds allow investors to purchase or sell shares daily. The share price is based on the fund's net asset value (NAV), which is calculated by dividing the total value of the assets minus liabilities by the number of outstanding shares. Generally, open-end mutual funds can only be bought or sold once per trading day, which can limit an investor’s ability to trade at a desired time or price. The risks associated with open-end mutual funds include market fluctuations which may cause investors to lose money if they sell during a downturn or if the fund performs poorly. Open-end mutual funds also tend to charge expenses for active management that reduce their returns. Lastly, if open-end mutual funds experience mass withdrawals, it may force the manager to sell securities at reduced prices, leading to lower NAV and returns.

Private Funds

A Client may be invested in pooled invested vehicles sponsored by third-party managers. SRC will not have an active role in the management of the assets of the underlying funds, including the valuation by the underlying funds of their investments. A Client's ability to withdraw from or transfer interests in such funds is limited and could include risk of significant loss. Furthermore, the performance and success of each underlying fund will depend on the management of the underlying manager.

Alternative Investment Manager Risks

SRC could recommend that Client assets be invested with alternative investment managers, including Independent Managers, who make their trading decisions independently. It is possible that one or more investment managers may take investment positions that are opposite of positions taken by other investment managers. Some investment managers may have overlapping strategies or portfolios and thus could accumulate large positions in the same or related instruments at the same time. SRC may not have access to information regarding the underlying investments made by the investment managers or investment funds and thus may not be able to mitigate the associated risks of concentration or exposure to specific markets or strategies. Because each investment manager will trade independently of the others, the trading losses of some investment managers could offset trading profits achieved by other investment managers. In addition, investment managers may compete for similar positions at the same time.

Economic Conditions

Changes in economic conditions, including, for example, interest rates, inflation rates, currency and exchange rates, industry conditions, competition, technological developments, trade relationships, political and diplomatic events and trends, tax laws and innumerable other factors, can affect substantially and adversely the investment performance of a Client's account. Economic, political and financial conditions (including military conflicts and financial sanctions), or industry or economic trends and developments, may, from time to time, and for varying periods of time, cause volatility, illiquidity or other potentially adverse effects in the financial markets. Economic or political turmoil, a deterioration of diplomatic relations or a natural or man-made disaster in a region or country where SRC's client assets are invested may result in adverse consequences to such clients' portfolios. As of the beginning of 2023, there is an especially high degree of economic uncertainty given elevated inflation, a rapid increase in interest rates by Central Banks, and a high level of geopolitical uncertainty in Europe and Asia. The likelihood of a recession, and the magnitude of any such recession, is highly uncertain and would have significant implications across asset classes. None of these conditions is or will be within the control of SRC, and no assurances can be given that SRC will anticipate these developments.

Exposure to Material, Non-Public Information

From time to time, SRC employees receive material, non-public information with respect to an issuer of publicly traded securities resulting from professional and/or personal channels. In such circumstances, Clients may be prohibited, by law, and policies and procedures for a period of time from (i) unwinding a position in such issuer, (ii) establishing an initial position or taking any greater position in such issuer, and (iii) pursuing other investment opportunities related to such issuer.

Custody risk.

The Firm is required to maintain certain client assets with a qualified custodian. Clients may incur a loss on securities and cash held in custody in the event of a custodian's or sub-custodian's insolvency, negligence, fraud, poor administration or inadequate recordkeeping.

Counterparty Risk

The Firm and its Clients may be subject to credit and liquidity risk with respect to the counterparties. Exposure to credit and liquidity risk from counterparties can occur through a wide range of activities when dealing with, including but not limited to, service providers, banks, brokers, insurance providers, trading counterparties, or other entities. Should a counterparty become bankrupt or otherwise fail to perform its obligations under a contract due to financial difficulties, there may be significant delays in obtaining any or limited recovery under a contract in a bankruptcy court or other reorganization proceeding.

Operational Risk

Operational risk is the potential for loss caused by a deficiency in information, communication, transaction processing and settlement and accounting systems. SRC will maintain controls that include systems and procedures to record and reconcile transactions and positions, and to obtain necessary documentation for trading activities.

Business Continuity Risks

SRC's business operations may be vulnerable to disruption in the case of catastrophic events such as fires, natural disasters, terrorist attacks or other circumstances resulting in property damage, network interruption and/or prolonged power outages. Although SRC has implemented measures to manage risks relating to these types of events, there can be no assurances that all contingencies can be planned for. These risks of loss can be substantial and could have a material adverse effect on SRC and investments therein.

Pandemic Risk

An epidemic outbreak and reactions to such an outbreak could cause uncertainty in markets and businesses, including SRC's business, and may adversely affect the performance of the global economy, including causing market volatility, market and business uncertainty and closures, supply chain and travel interruptions, the need for employees and vendors to work at external locations, and extensive medical absences. SRC has policies and procedures to address known situations, but because a large epidemic may create significant market and business uncertainties and disruptions, not all events that could affect SRC's business and/or the markets can be determined and addressed in advance. During the recent COVID-19 outbreak, SRC's Business Continuity Plan allowed SRC's personnel to work remotely without interruption to SRC's investment management or client service. This incident response may not be representative of future incident conditions.

Regulatory/Legislative Developments Risk

Regulators and/or legislators may promulgate rules or pass legislation that places restrictions on, adds procedural hurdles to, affects the liquidity of, and/or alters the risks associated with certain investment transactions or the securities underlying such investment transactions. Such rules/legislation could adversely affect the value associated with such investment transactions or underlying securities.

Future legal, tax and regulatory changes could occur that may adversely affect business and require additional reporting for registered investment advisors. The SEC, other regulators and self-regulatory organizations and exchanges have taken various extraordinary actions in connection with market events and may take additional actions. Registered investment advisors may also be adversely affected by changes in the enforcement or interpretation of existing laws, rules and regulations, including tax laws, by federal, state and non-U.S. agencies, courts, authorities or regulators.

Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that Clients should be prepared to bear. All investments in securities and other financial investments involve substantial risk of volatility arising from numerous factors that are beyond the control of SRC and alternative investment managers or strategies utilized by SRC, including market conditions, changing domestic or international economic or political conditions, changes in tax laws and government regulation and other factors.

For certain securities purchased for accounts, such as mutual funds and newly issued municipal bonds, Clients receive prospectuses and official statements which identify the risk factors associated with those securities and issuers. Clients are encouraged to review such disclosure documents.

THIS LIST OF RISK FACTORS DOES NOT PURPORT TO BE A COMPLETE ENUMERATION OR EXPLANATION OF THE RISKS INVOLVED IN CONNECTION WITH THE ADVISER'S INVESTMENT OR THE MANAGEMENT OF CLIENTS ACCOUNTS. IN ADDITION, PROSPECTIVE CLIENTS SHOULD BE AWARE THAT, AS THE MARKET DEVELOPS AND CHANGES OVER TIME, INVESTMENTS OF BEHALF OF CLIENTS MAY BE SUBJECT TO ADDITIONAL AND DIFFERENT RISKS.

ITEM 9 – DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

SRC and our management have no disciplinary events within the prior ten years to disclose.

ITEM 10 - OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES OR AFFILIATIONS

SRC is only registered as an investment adviser with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

ITEM 11 – CODE OF ETHICS, PARTICIPATION OR INTEREST IN CLIENT TRANSACTIONS AND PERSONAL TRADING

SRC has implemented measures to ensure that it adheres to its responsibility to treat Clients with a high level of fiduciary attention.

Code of Ethics

SRC has adopted a Code of Ethics detailing the standards of conduct expected of its associated persons. The Code of Ethics and other written procedures of SRC contain policies reasonably designed to prevent violations of the federal securities laws. The Code of Ethics and procedures therein also require SRC's personnel to report certain of their personal securities holdings and transactions and obtain pre-approval for specific types of investments such as initial public offerings and private placements. SRC maintains a “restricted list” which identifies all securities in which SRC, or any SRC employee has material non-public information or other situations that may be presented to restrict a security for a period of time. SRC employees are prohibited from trading in securities on the restricted list. SRC employees, including the Portfolio Managers, are permitted to invest in the same securities as Clients within a block trade and obtain the same price as Clients, consistent with SRC's fiduciary duty to Clients. Portfolio Managers are prohibited from day-trading any securities which are held in Client accounts. Portfolio Managers also must obtain pre-clearance from the CCO or CCO designee for any individual (non-block) trades and document their reasoning if they trade for their own accounts in an opposite way from the way they trade for Clients' accounts (e.g., if a Portfolio Manager sells a particular stock in his own account while buying or holding it for Clients' accounts). SRC will provide clients and prospective clients a copy of its Code of Ethics upon request.

Potential Conflicts of Interests

Personal Trading and Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

The Portfolio Managers routinely buy and own for themselves the same securities that they recommend to Clients. SRC believes this demonstrates the Portfolio Managers' faith in the securities they purchase for Clients. SRC recognizes, however, that this overlap can create potential conflicts of interest, particularly because SRC's business model encourages Portfolio Managers to use subjective allocations to satisfy individual Client needs. Although the Portfolio Managers believe they do not engage in personal trading to Clients' detriment and that all Clients are treated fairly and equitably over time, some disparities in allocation and price across accounts may result. SRC has developed procedures to mitigate some of the effects of such conflicts. Portfolio Managers may not buy or sell a security that is being purchased, sold or considered for Client accounts they manage until they have reviewed all Client accounts the particular Portfolio Manager or Portfolio Managers manage and determined that the trades they are entering for themselves (or for their related accounts) have already been entered for the advisory Clients for whom they intend to trade at that time. Further, when Portfolio Managers trade in their own accounts on the same day as Client accounts over which they exercise primary management responsibility, they are not permitted to receive better executions than their advisory Client trades executed on the same day.

Notwithstanding these procedures, changes in market conditions, fluctuations in cash balances (due to, among other things, new deposits, accumulation of dividends and interest, sales of other securities, maturity dates of bonds) and other idiosyncratic factors may drive the Portfolio Managers' allocation decisions. Not all Clients of a Portfolio Manager who buys (or sells) a security will do so on the same day, and some may buy or sell after the Portfolio Manager has bought (or sold) for himself and for his family accounts. Depending on the availability of the security, subsequent price movements, the frequency with which the security trades, and other subjective factors considered by the Portfolio Manager, Clients may not all receive allocations at or about the same time as other clients, or as the Portfolio Managers themselves.

As part of the daily review, the Compliance Department will review SRC Portfolio Managers' trades.

Firm Trading

SRC does not maintain principal or proprietary accounts. On occasion, the firm may purchase U.S. Treasury bills on its own behalf.

ITEM 12 – BROKERAGE PRACTICES

SRC is not registered nor does the firm act as a broker-dealer. Most of the trades made by SRC are directed through a qualified custodian.

Best Execution

As an investment adviser, SRC has a duty to use reasonable diligence to obtain “best execution” for the transactions being affected for Clients. Essentially this means that SRC’s trading process must seek to maximize value such that the total costs and proceeds are the most valuable to Clients under the circumstances. In selecting a broker, SRC considers the full range of the broker’s services, not just the cost, including, but not limited to:

- Quality of execution—i.e., the accuracy and timeliness of executions, clearance and error/dispute resolution;
- Reputation, financial strength, and stability of the broker;
- Desired timing of transactions and size of trades; and
- Overall cost of trades.

In selecting a broker, SRC does not consider any gifts or entertainment; the broker’s willingness to cover trade errors caused by SRC; or client referrals or capital introduction.

For almost all of its trades, SRC acts as discretionary investment adviser. Most of the securities traded by SRC are highly liquid. SRC directs the overwhelming majority of these orders through an order routing system provided by the custodians, which is designed to automatically seek out the best bid or offer as well as the largest source of liquidity. The custodians charge service fees, which are fully disclosed to Clients in their IMAs.

The Best Execution Committee is responsible for overseeing the trading process in relation to SRC’s stated policies and procedures. The Committee reviews trade and broker best execution reports for quality of execution to ensure the Firm meets its best execution obligations. In determining whether we have used “reasonable diligence” regarding best execution, the following factors are considered:

- character of the market for the security (e.g., price, volatility, relative liquidity, and pressure on available communications);
- size and type of transaction;

- number of markets checked;
- accessibility of the quotation; and
- terms and conditions of the order which result in the transaction, as communicated to the member and persons associated with the member.

The Best Execution Committee schedules meetings no less than semi-annually and shall summarize in minutes the findings, discussions and action taken as a result of the meetings, which are retained along with copies of the reports reviewed at such meetings.

Research and Soft Dollars

SRC has no active soft dollar arrangements.

SRC does not believe that these arrangements are material to its selection of brokers and has implemented the aforementioned policies and procedures to ensure best execution. These practices are in compliance with Securities and Exchange Commission Rule 28(e), a safe harbor provision which provides that there is no breach of the fiduciary duty to clients when participating in soft dollar arrangements if the manager determines in good faith that the amount of the commission is reasonable in relation to the value of these services.

Aggregation of Client Orders

Absent special circumstances (such as client deposits occurring mid-day), all discretionary Client trades in advisory accounts executed on a single day, on the same side of the market, by the same Portfolio Manager (or Primary Portfolio Manager Team), are averaged together. This practice is designed to treat all Clients fairly on average but means that any particular Client's trade may receive a better or worse price than it would have had the trade not been aggregated with other Clients. Same day/same side trades by other Portfolio Managers at SRC, even ones who support or work closely with each other, may not be averaged with each other, meaning that Clients of different Portfolio Managers may receive different prices on any given day.

Trade Errors

As a fiduciary, SRC will have the responsibility to effect orders correctly, promptly and in the best interests of the Client. In the event any error occurs in the handling of any transactions due to SRC's actions, or inaction, or the actions of others, SRC's policy is to assess each trade error on a case-by-case basis and assure that the Client is made whole. SRC will defer to the trade error policies of the custodians if applicable.

ITEM 13 - REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS

The Portfolio Managers review the advisory accounts they are responsible for at least quarterly, however in practice accounts are monitored on a continuous basis. When reviewing accounts, the Portfolio Managers look for percentage allocation in specific investments and/or industry class, among other factors, as they relate to Client's individual circumstances. Client accounts are also monitored frequently by the Chief Compliance Officer.

Clients are encouraged to notify their Portfolio Managers whenever they have changes to their financial circumstances, investment objectives and/or risk tolerances. Such communications trigger additional account reviews to assess the new information.

Early each year the Portfolio Managers provide reports to Clients that report, among other things, the account's performance over the preceding calendar year, as well as all investment advisory fees deducted from that account during the prior year. This is in addition to the transaction confirmations and periodic account statements sent by the custodian. We urge Clients to carefully review these reports and compare the statements that they receive from their custodian to the reports that we provide. The information in our reports may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

ITEM 14 – CLIENT REFERRALS AND OTHER COMPENSATION

As noted throughout this Investment Advisory Brochure, SRC's significant revenue sources are transparent to its Clients. Advisory fees are SRC's primary source of revenue.

As of this date, the Firm does not compensate any third-parties to assist with client referrals. The Firm may in the future, enter into solicitation agreements pursuant to which it compensates one or more third-parties for client referrals that will result in the provision of investment advisory services by the Firm. SRC has adopted Rule 206(4)-1 of the Advisers Act, ("Marketing Rule") and any future client solicitation activities will comply with the Marketing Rule.

ITEM 15 - CUSTODY

Pursuant to Rule 206(4)-2, we are deemed to have custody of Client account's funds and securities because (i) we may debit fees directly from the accounts of such Clients and/or (ii) certain Clients have executed a letter or instruction or similar asset transfer authorization arrangement with a qualified custodian whereby we are authorized to withdraw Client funds or securities maintained with a qualified custodian upon our instruction to the qualified custodian (each, an "SLOA"). The terms of each such SLOA are consistent with the terms described in the February 21, 2017 letter of the Chief Counsel's Office of the Securities and Exchange Commission clarifying custody with respect to a standing letter of instruction or other similar asset transfer authorization arrangement established by a client with a qualified custodian. As a result, with respect to transfers of funds and securities between Client accounts and to third-parties, Client accounts will not be subject to independent verification (i.e., a surprise exam).

Where it is determined that we or a member of our firm has custody of client funds other than for the reasons described above, those accounts will be subject to independent verification in the form of a surprise exam by an independent auditing firm.

Clients have access to their portfolio holdings and activity on a continuous basis by logging into their qualified custodial accounts via secure login and password. In addition, the qualified custodian of each Client account sends, unless the Client opts out, or makes available, on a quarterly basis or more frequently, account statements directly to each Client. We urge Clients to carefully review these account statements from their qualified custodians and compare the information therein with any financial statements or information received or made available to Clients through us or any other outside vendor.

ITEM 16 – INVESTMENT DISCRETION

As noted in Item 4, SRC's primary business model involves providing discretionary asset management to its Clients. At the commencement of the relationship and for each new account, each Client executes an investment advisory agreement which grants SRC authority to execute trades in the account. SRC cannot execute trades on margin or in options without further written Client approval. In addition, under certain conditions, SRC, if requested by its Clients, will provide non-discretionary asset management services. Under this relationship, the Client initiates and SRC executes trades in the account.

ITEM 17 – VOTING CLIENT SECURITIES

SRC, nor any Independent Manager, has or will accept authority to vote a Client's securities. Clients will receive proxies or other solicitations directly from their respective custodian.

ITEM 18 – FINANCIAL INFORMATION

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide clients with certain financial information or disclosures about their financial condition. SRC has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
