Item 4 – Advisory Business

Estabrook Capital Management LLC (the “Registrant” “Estabrook”, “us,” or “we”) provides investment advisory and other services. Registrant is primarily owned by Charles Thomas Foley and David Patrick Foley.

We manage investment advisory accounts for individual and institutional clients (“Clients”). We provide advice to Clients regarding equity securities, debt instruments, and other investments and instruments. We generally permit Clients to impose restrictions on their accounts with respect to: (1) the specific types of investments or asset classes that we will or will not purchase for their account; (2) the nature of the issuers of investments that we will or will not purchase for their account (e.g., no “sin” issuers, such as companies primarily doing business related to alcohol or tobacco); or (3) the risk profile of instruments we will or will not purchase for their account, or the risk profile of the account as a whole.

We are also a portfolio manager in various wrap programs sponsored by non-affiliated organizations. The advisory services provided by us to clients in the wrap programs are the same services otherwise provided to our other clients, however, wrap programs may prescribe different terms on matters, including without limitation, reports which, are provided by the sponsoring organization to the client in lieu of reports from us to the client. Also, as a portfolio manager in a wrap program, we will generally utilize the execution services of the wrap program sponsor or one of the sponsor’s affiliates to handle trades for the accounts of clients in the wrap program where consistent with applicable law. However, we may direct trades to other brokers when deemed appropriate, although this will typically result in commission charges payable by the client in addition to the wrap program fee.

Registrant also provides model investment portfolios to one sponsor program on a non-discretionary basis.

As of March 19, 2024, the Registrant had approximately $863.7 million in assets under management to which it provides advice on a discretionary basis. In addition, we have approximately $93.6 million in assets under advisement, to which we provide our model portfolios to one sponsor program.

Throughout this brochure, we disclose a number of conflicts of interest and provide summaries of a number of our policies and procedures designed to detect and address these conflicts and others. We encourage clients and prospective clients to review our policies and procedures and inquire directly with us about our conflicts. Our compliance policies and procedures are available for review in our offices.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

With respect to all types of Clients, we are compensated with a management fee (a percentage of assets under management). We do not charge performance-based fees to any clients.

Individually Managed Accounts

Individually Managed Account Clients generally have fee arrangements that differ depending upon the type of strategy we use in managing the account. Our standard fee schedules are set forth below. These fee schedules may be negotiable, and the minimum account size may be negotiable.

Large Cap Core Equity

Annual Rate	1.00% on the value of the Portfolio
Minimum Account Size	$500,000

SRI/ESG Equity

Annual Rate	1.00% on the value of the Portfolio
Minimum Account Size	$500,000

Balanced Large Cap Core

Annual Rate	1.00% on the value of the Portfolio
Minimum Account Size	$500,000

Fees are normally calculated at the end of each calendar quarter based on total portfolio market value as of the last day of the calendar quarter. Fees are generally billed quarterly in advance. Any unearned portion of the advisory fee over $50 which has been paid to us is refundable to the client on a prorated basis from the date written notification of account termination is received.

Wrap Programs

The wrap fees and other terms, including when a client may terminate an advisory contract, differ for each wrap program and are set forth in the applicable agreement. In these wrap programs, clients pay an annual “wrap fee” that covers advisory, execution, custody and sometimes other services, to the sponsoring organization which then remits to us a portion of the annual wrap fee - generally less than ½ of 1% (0.5%) of assets under management for advisory services provided by us to the clients.

Additional Expenses

Our fees are exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, custodial fees, and other related costs and expenses, all of which are incurred by the Client. Please refer to Item 12 for additional information regarding the factors we consider in selecting broker-dealers for Client transactions and in determining the reasonableness of their compensation.

Related Conflicts:

Fiduciary Status under ERISA. When we provide investment advice to you regarding your retirement plan account or individual retirement account, we are fiduciaries within the meaning of Title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act and/or the Internal Revenue Code, as applicable, which are laws governing retirement accounts. The way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests, so we operate under a special rule that requires us to act in your best interest and not put our interests ahead of yours.

Affiliated and Unaffiliated Mutual Funds. From time to time, clients may have supervised assets that are invested in non-affiliated mutual funds (including money market funds). Compensation (including, without limitation, management and other fees, carried interest, profit participation and reimbursement of operating and other expenses) to mutual funds that are not affiliated with us will be borne by Clients, and we will not offset, or pay such fees from, our management fees.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

As noted in Item 5 above, we do not charge performance-based fees to any Clients. However, we recognize that conflicts related to side-by-side management may exist for other reasons.

The portfolio strategies we use for certain Clients could conflict with the transactions and strategies we employ in managing other Clients and may affect the prices and availability of the securities and other financial instruments in which Clients invest.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

As noted in Item 4 above, we advise individually managed accounts for individuals, trusts, corporations, charitable organizations, and pension plans. The minimum dollar value for establishing an advisory account is generally $500,000, although we may accept lesser amounts at our discretion. We are also a portfolio manager in various wrap programs sponsored by non-affiliated organizations. The minimum account size requirement is typically set by the wrap program at $75,000.

Termination provisions for advisory contracts for individually managed accounts are subject to negotiation but generally may be terminated at any time without penalty either by the client or Estabrook, upon written notice to the other party.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

We employ a wide range of investment strategies in managing Client assets, which include, but are not limited to:

- Large Cap Core Equity Strategy
- Balanced Large Cap Core Strategy
- SRI/ESG Strategy

Although the following provides a general view of our firm philosophy, our portfolio managers make investment decisions for Clients based on their own judgment, within this philosophy. Accordingly, accounts pursuing the same strategy will not hold the same exact securities positions unless they are following one of our models and the Clients have not imposed restrictions on the investment of their account assets.

Large Cap Core Equity: Our value-oriented investment philosophy is based on the top-down investment process. Our investment process is a search for attractively valued equities positioned to benefit from the prevailing macroeconomic environment. This has consistently been the process since the firm's inception.

We focus on economic inflections, structural changes, government policy, and secular themes in the belief that such factors bear the greatest influence on long-term fundamental performance and the recognition of value by capital markets.

Our research seeks to determine the expected level of economic activity, its composition, and relative performance of industry sectors. Simultaneously, we look for factors that will drive sustainable changes in long-term profitability and capital returns across a given industry.

On finding attractive areas for investment based on these cyclical and secular views, we determine which companies are best positioned to benefit and whether their valuations represent compelling investment opportunities. Company selection is grounded in traditional fundamental analysis focused on earnings potential, capital returns, cash flow generation, and balance sheet strength in conjunction with qualitative assessments of market position, corporate strategy, and management quality.

We believe our top-down framework provides us with superior insight into how these fundamental factors will evolve over a long-term time horizon, typically three to five years. We apply to these expectations a variety of valuation techniques which may include discounted cash flow analysis and relative multiples, such as price to earnings and EBITDA multiples and cash flow yields.

SRI/ESG Strategy: Estabrook's Socially Responsible Investment ("SRI") strategy combines our value-oriented stock selection process with a review of a company's SRI/Environmental, Social, Governance ("ESG") profile. On finding attractive areas for investment based on the cyclical and secular views mentioned above, we determine which companies are best positioned to benefit and whether their valuations represent compelling investment opportunities. Company selection is grounded in traditional fundamental analysis focused on earnings potential, capital returns, cash flow generation, and balance sheet strength in conjunction with qualitative assessments of market position, corporate strategy, and management quality.

We believe our top-down framework provides us with superior insight into how these fundamental factors will evolve over a long-term time horizon, typically three to five years. We apply to these expectations a variety of valuation techniques which may include discounted cash flow analysis and relative multiples, such as price to earnings and EBITDA multiples and cash flow yields.

We believe that corporate responsibility and societal stewardship are important to investors and managers alike. Our review focuses on the factors listed below and we use in-house due diligence and external research to conduct that review.

ESG factors that we consider are:

- Defense-related issues. We generally do not invest in companies that produce firearms or earn significant revenues from weapons contracting.
- Focus on the Environment. We tend to favor companies that proactively and effectively mitigate their impact on the environment.
- Tobacco/Alcohol/Gambling. We generally avoid ownership of any of the traditional "sin" stocks.
- Corporate Citizenship. We prefer companies with strong social initiatives internally and in the broader communities where they operate.
- Politically Sensitive Countries. We monitor companies' international involvement, avoiding those with large, active ties to sanctioned regimes.

Balanced Large Cap Core Strategy: Estabrook's balanced strategy is generally managed to 70% equity and 30% fixed income. Combined with our US Large Cap Core service, the 30% Fixed Income allocation aims to manage both credit and interest rate risk. We analyze the issuer's fundamentals, including the overall health of the balance sheet and financial performance. We invest in different parts of the yield curve depending on the macro-economic environment and generally invest in bonds with intermediate maturities. However, we may extend or reduce the average maturity and duration of portfolios depending on economic circumstances. This gives us greater flexibility in responding to changes in the economic cycle and reacting to violent moves in capital markets where we will aim to preserve capital.

Generally, the investment programs we employ for Clients give us the discretion to allocate capital to a wide variety of investment instrument types. We make efforts to keep our Clients informed of any investments that constitute a material portion of their portfolio as soon as reasonably practicable.

Since Client portfolios will reflect a higher concentration in some sectors where we have the greatest degree of conviction in our strategy themes, and a relative underweight in others, Client returns may, at times, vary from the benchmark returns, resulting in, at times, an above average tracking error.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that Clients should be prepared to bear.

Risk as a Result of Natural and Human Disruptions:

The value of Client portfolios could be adversely affected in the event of a natural disaster, severe weather events, climate change, earthquakes, fires, war, terrorism, health pandemics and other public health crises.

Other Related Procedures and Conflict

Valuation of Holdings: In the absence of a particular agreed-upon method for valuing securities, we will generally value exchange traded securities at the last exchange traded price as reported on the exchange where the issuer's securities are primarily traded in the U.S. This is done automatically by our portfolio management system on an overnight basis. If no sales for those securities are reported on a particular day, the securities will be valued based upon their composite bid prices for securities held long as reported by the exchange. Securities traded primarily on NASDAQ will be valued at the NASDAQ Official Closing Price.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

Form ADV Part 2 requires investment advisers such as Estabrook to disclose legal or disciplinary events involving the firm or our partners, officers, or principals that are material to your evaluation of our advisory business or the integrity of our management. At this time, we have no information to report that is applicable to this item.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

The Registrant is only registered as an investment adviser.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics and Personal Trading

We strive to adhere to the highest industry standards of conduct based on principles of professionalism, integrity, honesty and trust, and we have adopted a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) to help us meet these standards. The Code incorporates the following principles:

- Registrant’s employees have a fiduciary duty to place the interests of clients first;
- Registrant’s employees should not take inappropriate advantage of their positions. Employees should avoid any situation that may compromise, or call into question, the exercise of their fully independent judgment in the interests of clients;
- All personal securities transactions should avoid any actual, potential or apparent conflicts of interest; and
- Independence in the investment making decision is paramount.

The Code places restrictions on personal trades by employees. Employees are required to submit to the Chief Compliance Officer quarterly brokerage statements indicating their security holdings and transactions. The Code requires pre-approval of all personal securities transactions in New Issues or Private Placements. The Code also covers issues such as prohibited transactions and insider trading. Any breaches of the Code will be viewed as very serious and may result in disciplinary action up to and including dismissal. Clients and prospective clients may review a copy of the Code by contacting us at the address or telephone number listed on the first page of this document.

Personal Trading

Subject to the Code, as described above, we and our partners, principals, and employees may engage in investment activities for our own account or for family members. These activities may involve the purchase and sale of securities that are the same as, but in different concentrations or effected at different times and prices than, those purchased or sold for Client accounts. These activities may also involve the purchase and sale of securities that are different from those purchased for Client accounts.

Other Related Conflicts and Practices

Gifts and Entertainment. Brokers, counterparties, service providers and other third parties with whom we do business occasionally provide gifts and entertainment to our principals and employees. We may enter into business transactions and relationships on behalf of a Client with the donors of such gifts and entertainment. Such gifts and entertainment create a conflict of interest in our selection and retention of these donors as service providers for Clients. To address this conflict, we have adopted policies and procedures to: 1) monitor gifts and entertainment given and received by our principals and employees; and 2) limit the value of gifts and entertainment given and received.

Pay to Play. We also have policies and procedures in place to help us monitor, and limit, the political contributions that our principals and employees make to public officials and candidates for elected office in accordance with the requirements of Rule 206(4)-5 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940.

Disclosure of Portfolio and Other Information. We sometimes provide portfolio holdings information to entities that have been retained by clients to evaluate portfolio risk. We provide this information in our sole discretion and reserve the right to cease providing information at any time. We make reasonable efforts to preserve the confidentiality of the information we provide, but we cannot ensure that the entities we provide information to will fulfill their confidentiality obligations.

In the course of conducting due diligence, Clients periodically request information pertaining to their investments, and pertaining to us. We may respond to these requests and may provide information that is not generally made available to other Clients. When we provide this information, we do so without an obligation to update any such information provided. However, we endeavor to provide the information requested in the most current form available.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

General Brokerage Practices

In instances where we have the discretion to select brokers, we allocate portfolio transactions for Client accounts to broker-dealers on the basis of best execution available—i.e., execution in a manner that the Client’s total cost or proceeds in each transaction is most favorable under the circumstances. We consider a variety of factors regarding broker-dealers in seeking best execution, including:

- Average commission charged
- Executed prices of trades
- Type and size of transaction
- Services provided by the broker (other than execution, such as research, custodial and other services)
- Difficulty of transactions
- Operational facilities of the broker

Clients should expect that their securities transactions can generate a substantial amount of brokerage commissions and other costs, all of which is borne by the Client, and not us. Except in cases where a dual contract or individually managed account Client has directed us to use a specific broker-dealer, we have complete discretion to decide what broker-dealers or other counterparties will be used in executing transactions for Clients, and we negotiate the rates of compensation that Clients will pay.

In addition to using brokers as “agents” and paying resulting commissions, we sometimes cause Client accounts to buy or sell securities directly from or to dealers acting as principals at prices that include mark-ups or mark-downs, and may also cause Client accounts to buy securities from underwriters or dealers in public offerings at prices that include compensation to the underwriters and dealers.

Although we may select brokers for execution of trades in Client accounts for a limited number of accounts, most of our Clients select the broker or brokers for their account or often direct that trades in their account be handled pursuant to their pre-existing brokerage and custodian arrangements.

Research and Other Soft Dollar Benefits

General Information. Clients may pay for research and execution services with soft or commission dollars. While Clients benefit from many of the services obtained with soft dollars generated by Client trades, each Client will not benefit exclusively.

In addition, we may also derive direct or indirect benefits from soft dollar services—this is particularly true to the extent that we use soft or commission dollars to pay for expenses that we would otherwise be required to pay for out of pocket. Therefore, we may have an incentive to select broker-dealers based on our interest in receiving the research or other products or services at reduced cost to us, rather than based on the Clients' interest in receiving most favorable execution.

We did not generate any soft dollars during the previous year. We do continue to pay hard dollars for research from brokers that we trade with, including information on economies, industries, groups of securities and individual companies, statistical information, market data, political developments.

Section 28(e) Safe Harbor. Section 28(e) of the Exchange Act provides a safe harbor to investment advisers who use commission dollars of their advised accounts to obtain certain research and brokerage services. Conduct outside of the safe harbor afforded by Section 28(e) is subject to the traditional standards of fiduciary duty under state and federal law. We intend that all soft dollar payments will fall within the safe harbor of Section 28(e). Section 28(e) permits an investment adviser, under certain circumstances, to cause an account to pay a broker a commission for effecting a transaction in excess of the amount of commission another broker would have charged for effecting the transaction in recognition of the value of the brokerage and research services provided by the broker. Below we have described examples of research and brokerage services that fall within the safe harbor of Section 28(e). We may use commissions that Clients generate for any of these eligible research and brokerage services as well as any others that fall within the safe harbor of Section 28(e).

Examples of Research and Brokerage allowed within Section 28(e)

- Traditional Research Reports
- Pre-trade and Post trade analytics
- Advice from broker/dealers on order execution
- Discussions with Research Analysts
- Proxy services that transmit reports and analyses on issuers, securities and the advisability of investing in securities
- Consultants' services that provide advice regarding portfolio strategy

Directed Brokerage

We permit individually managed account Clients to select their own counterparties and direct us to execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer or broker-dealers. However, when acting under these instructions we may be unable to achieve most favorable execution, which can result in additional costs and expenses for the Client. For example, Clients may pay higher brokerage commissions and may receive a less favorable price when buying or selling if they cannot participate in an aggregated trade along with other Client orders executed through broker-dealers that we selected. However, Clients may wish to take into account certain off-setting considerations such as the receipt of additional or special services from their broker of choice, including custodial services. Certain such services might not be available, or might involve additional costs to the Clients, if trades were executed with non-directed brokers.

Trade Aggregation

When buying and selling investments for Clients, we may aggregate multiple transactions into one order so that as many eligible Clients may participate equally over time on a fair and equitable basis, in terms of best available cost, efficiency and terms. Although certain Clients may be excluded from a given aggregated order, no Client is favored over any other on an overall, long-term basis. Each Client that participates in an aggregated order participates at the average price for all the Adviser's transactions in that security on a given business day and transaction costs will be shared pro rata based on each client's participation in the transaction.

In assembling an aggregated order in specific securities (including privately offered investments and securities for which market quotations are not readily available), we consider the appropriateness of the investment for each Client based on their risk tolerances and objectives, as well as other factors such as when Clients have accounts held in custody at the same brokerage firm.

Allocation of Aggregated Orders and Other Investment Opportunities

We consider a number of factors when allocating aggregated orders and other investment opportunities to individual Client accounts. Because of the difference in client investment objectives and strategies, risk tolerances, tax status and other criteria, there may, however, be differences among clients in invested positions and securities held. The following factors may be taken into account by us in allocating securities among investment advisory clients:

- client's investment objective and strategies;
- client's risk profile;
- client's tax status;
- any restrictions placed on a client's portfolio by the client or by virtue of federal or state law (such as the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended ("ERISA"));
- size of client account;
- total portfolio invested position;
- nature of the security to be allocated;
- size of available position;
- timing of cash flows and account liquidity;

We strive to provide all Clients with meaningful investment allocations over time, although each and every Client will not receive an allocation of each and every profitable investment.

We will provide additional detail about our order aggregation and allocation policy upon request. Although the above discussion provides a summary of our policy, our actual practices are governed by the policy we currently have in place, and not by this summary. We may revise or amend our policy at any time, without notice to Clients.

Other Brokerage Practices, Issues, and Conflicts

Allocation of Our Time and Resources. Generally, we are not subject to specific obligations or requirements concerning the allocation of our time, efforts, resources, or investment opportunities to any particular Client. We are not obligated to devote any specific amount of time to the affairs of any Client and are generally not required to accord exclusivity or priority to any Client in the event of limited investment opportunities arising from the application of speculative position limits or other factors. Our personnel devote time to the affairs of our Clients as they, in their discretion, determine to be necessary for the conduct of our business.

Cross Trades. We may sometimes effect cross transactions between Client accounts, if permitted by applicable law. In a cross transaction, one Client account will purchase securities held by another Client account. We will only effect these transactions if we have written authority to do so from the Client.

We do not receive any compensation in connection with cross transactions. Inadvertent cross transactions may also occur when trades cross in the market. For example, when we periodically rebalance Client accounts, certain accounts may sell securities into the market at the same time that other accounts are purchasing the same securities in the market, resulting in an inadvertent or “deemed” market cross.

Re-Allocations. Occasionally, with respect to a particular aggregated order, an allocation to a Client account would result in violation of a Client investment restriction or guideline, or may otherwise be impermissible (e.g., it would result in an overdraw on the account). In these situations, we have policies and procedures in place designed to help us detect these impermissible transactions before settlement (typically two days after the trade date for publicly traded equity securities, but often longer for other types of investments). If detected before settlement, in accordance with our policies and procedures, we may determine to re-allocate the aggregated order among the other participating Client accounts, to the extent that we believe it to be suitable and appropriate for the other participating Client accounts. If an impermissible allocation is not detected before settlement, it may result in a trade error subject to our policies and procedures regarding the handling of trading errors in Client accounts, discussed below.

Trade Errors. We have established policies and procedures regarding the handling of trading errors in Client accounts (e.g., the purchase or sale of a security in the wrong amount, or contrary to Client investment guidelines). In accordance with these policies and procedures, we try to correct errors as soon as practicable after discovery to ensure that Clients do not incur a loss. Where trading errors result in gains for the Client account, the account is credited with such gains. On the other hand, if a trading error result in a loss, we make Clients whole by reversing out the trade at our own expense.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

All individually managed Client accounts are reconciled either daily or monthly to the custodian/broker records. This review is carried out by our Operations Team. The individual portfolio manager is primarily responsible for review of his or her Client accounts and portfolios on an ongoing basis. Ultimate oversight of the Client accounts lies with the COO or another member of senior management designated by the COO.

We provide our individually managed account Clients with a quarterly written report regarding their account(s) covering a detailed statement of the assets in their account showing holdings, book cost and market values. In addition, the report details performance achieved in the period. Clients who participate in wrap programs in which we are a portfolio manager, receive such statements from the wrap program sponsor. There are also instances where Clients elect instead to receive only their broker/custodian statements.

These reports, as well as special or customized client reports, can be furnished more frequently upon request.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Estabrook does not currently engage any third-party solicitors for client referrals.

The Adviser may receive certain research or other products or services from broker-dealers through “soft-dollar” arrangements. These “soft-dollar” arrangements create an incentive for the Adviser to select or recommend broker-dealers based on the Adviser’s interest in receiving the research or other products or services and may result in the selection of a broker-dealer on the basis of considerations that are not limited to the lowest commission rates and may result in higher transaction costs than would otherwise be obtainable by the Adviser on behalf of its clients. Please see Item 12 for further information on the Adviser’s “soft dollar” practices, including the Adviser’s procedures for addressing conflicts of interest that arise from such practices.

Item 15 – Custody

All individually managed account clients of Estabrook use a third-party qualified custodian to hold the clients’ investment assets. These qualified custodians prepare monthly or quarterly statements for each client. Estabrook compares the statements prepared by the custodians to its internal records and takes steps to reconcile any material differences. Estabrook urges you to carefully review the statements that you receive from the custodian and to compare such official custodial records to the account statements that you receive from Estabrook. Our statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

An affiliate or related person of the Adviser is deemed to have custody of client assets due to serving as a sole or joint Trustee on certain client accounts. In addition, an Adviser with the authority to disburse money to a third-party on the client’s behalf pursuant to a SLOA constitutes custody. We comply with Rule 206(4)-2 under the Investment Advisers Act of 1990, as amended.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

We generally receive and exercise discretionary authority to manage investments on behalf of Clients. As noted in Item 4 above, Clients may impose limitations on this discretion with respect to (1) the specific types of investments or asset classes that we will or will not purchase for their account; (2) the nature of the issuers of investments that we will or will not purchase for their account (e.g., no “sin” issuers, such as companies primarily doing business related to alcohol or tobacco); or (3) the risk profile of instruments we will or will not purchase for their account, or the risk profile of the account as a whole. Clients may also direct us to use a particular broker-dealer or broker-dealers. However, Clients need to understand that if they have requested us to manage assets in a “tax sensitive” manner, we will endeavor to do so but may cause tax consequences (e.g., capital gains tax) as a result of the exercise of our investment discretion. If Clients do not want us to exercise our investment discretion over certain holdings for concern of tax consequences, they should avoid putting those holdings into accounts over which our discretion applies.

We typically assume this authority through a power of attorney or contract provision granted or entered into by a Client.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

We have adopted proxy voting policies and procedures (the “Proxy Policies”). Under our Proxy Policies, our general policy is to vote proxy proposals, amendments, consents or resolutions relating to Client securities, including interests in private investment funds, if any (collectively, “proxies”), in a manner that serves the best interests of Client accounts. In determining how to vote proxies, we have designated a Proxy Committee with the responsibility for administering and overseeing the proxy voting process and procedures. We have engaged a third-party vendor, ISS, as our proxy voting delegate. In addition to actually voting our proxies, ISS researches and makes voting determinations in accordance with our proxy voting guidelines, provides recommendations with respect to proxy voting matters in general, and maintains records of votes cast.

In the absence of specific voting guidelines from the client we will vote proxies in the best interests of each particular client, and in accordance with the recommendations of the third-party vendor. We believe that voting proxies in accordance with the following guidelines is in the best interests of its clients.

- Generally, we will vote in favor of routine corporate housekeeping proposals, including election of directors (where no corporate governance issues are implicated), selection of auditors, and increases in or reclassification of common stock.
- Generally, we will vote against proposals that make it more difficult to replace members of the issuer’s board of directors, including proposals to stagger the board, cause management to be overrepresented on the board, introduce cumulative voting, introduce unequal voting rights, and create supermajority voting. For other proposals, we shall determine whether a proposal is in the best interests of our clients and may take into account the following factors, among others:
 - whether the proposal was recommended by management and our opinion of management;
 - whether the proposal acts to entrench existing management; and
 - whether the proposal fairly compensates management for past and future performance.

If a Client makes a specific request, we will vote Client proxies in accordance with that Client’s request even if it is in a manner inconsistent with our policies and procedures. Such specific requests must be made in writing by the individual Client or by an authorized officer, representative or named fiduciary of the Client.

The Proxy Committee will attempt to identify any conflicts that exist between our interests and the interests of our Clients. This examination will include a review of the relationship we have with the issuer of each security and any of the issuer’s affiliates to determine if the issuer is a Client of ours or has some other relationship with us or a Client of ours.

If a material conflict exists, we will determine whether voting in accordance with the voting guidelines and factors described above is in the best interests of the Client. We will also determine whether it is appropriate to disclose the conflict to the affected Clients and, except in the case of Clients that are subject to ERISA, give the Clients the opportunity to vote their proxies themselves. In the case of ERISA Clients, if the Investment Management Agreement reserves to the ERISA Client the authority to vote proxies when we determine we have a material conflict that affects our best judgment as an ERISA fiduciary, we will give the ERISA Client the opportunity to vote the proxies themselves.

In situations where we do not have authority to vote proxies for a Client, such Clients should receive their proxies or other solicitations directly from their custodian or a transfer agent. Should such a Client have a question in relation to a particular proxy, they can contact us at the address or telephone number listed on the first page of this document.

You may also request a copy of our Proxy Policies and the proxy voting record relating to your account by contacting us at the address or telephone number listed on the first page of this document.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Form ADV Part 2 requires investment advisers such as Estabrook to disclose any financial condition reasonably likely to impair our ability to meet contractual commitments to clients. At this time, we have no information to report that is applicable to this item.
