ITEM 4: ADVISORY BUSINESS

CB&T is a wholly-owned subsidiary of The Capital Group Companies, Inc. The Capital Group Companies form one of the most experienced families of investment management firms in the world, dating to 1931, and have always been privately held. CB&T was formed in July 2000 as a federal savings bank. CB&T's primary businesses include:

- (i) providing directed trustee services and custodial services to employer-sponsored retirement plans and individual retirement accounts invested in registered investment companies ("Directed Trustee Services");
- (ii) providing investment management and related services to institutional clients (the "Institutional Client Services"). In this regard, CB&T offers both collective investment trusts and common trust funds (collectively, "Commingled Funds"), designed for retirement plans, foundations, endowments and other entities for which CB&T acts as investment manager and/or trustee. CB&T serves as a discretionary trustee for these funds and oversees their formation and maintenance. CB&T may engage other service providers, including affiliates, to assist in administration and investment management of the Commingled Funds. It has retained Capital International, Inc. ("CIInc") and Capital Research and Management Company ("CRMC" and, together with CIInc, the "Advisers") to serve as investment advisers to the trustee of the Commingled Funds.
- (iii) providing investment management and trust services to high net-worth individuals and trusts through its CGPCS division. These services include investments in separate securities, mutual funds, the Commingled Funds and other collective vehicles.

CB&T's investment approach is based on rigorous fundamental research. CB&T's offerings of equity, fixed-income, balanced, and other customized investment strategies are formed by the investment objectives and guidelines (including any specific investment restrictions and limitations) of its clients. The client's guidelines typically describe the investment mandate and types of securities that are eligible for (or prohibited from) the account. For investments in any fund, the terms of the fund's governing documents will apply. Please also refer to Items 8 (Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss) and 16 (Investment Discretion) in this brochure for further information.

As described above, CB&T's only business is investment management and related services; it does not have any arrangements on behalf of clients with associated banking, brokerage or corporate finance businesses.

As of June 30, 2019, CB&T managed approximately $ 45,440,500,000 in client assets (regulatory assets under management) on a discretionary basis and approximately $671,100,000 in client assets on a non-discretionary basis.

ITEM 5: FEES AND COMPENSATION

WITH RESPECT TO COMMINGLED FUNDS, the fees and expenses for each commingled fund, including any brokerage and transaction costs, are described in each fund's governing documents as well as each client's agreement with CB&T or its affiliates.

The expenses of investing in the Commingled Funds will differ from the expenses of maintaining a segregated account managed by CB&T's affiliates. Investments of a certain size in those segregated accounts are subject to lower management fees than similar Commingled Funds investments; investors should carefully review their investment options and the associated fees and expenses prior to investing.

WITH RESPECT TO SALES AND MARKETING PROFESSIONALS: and whether such individuals are employed by CB&T or an affiliate, they may receive direct or indirect compensation related to the services CB&T provides. This presents a conflict of interest, as marketing and sales associates have an incentive to recommend services based upon the compensation they are provided by CB&T. However, with respect to CGPCS retirement plans, sales and marketing professionals whether employed by CB&T or an affiliate, do not receive any fees or compensation from any party that vary based upon the investment recommendations made.

WITH RESPECT TO THE CGPCS SERVICES: the fees below are for the investment management and trust services to high net worth individuals and trusts CB&T offers through the CGPCS division. CGPCS invests CGPCS client assets in (1) separate securities strategies for which CB&T serves as investment advisor and mutual funds and other collective investment vehicles and services for which CB&T or an affiliate serves as investment advisor (the "affiliated services"), and (2) services managed by unaffiliated third parties ("unaffiliated services"). In addition to the fee schedules outlined below, different fee schedules apply for certain long standing clients as well as clients with customized mandates or special service needs. Generally, fees are not negotiable.

Clients are assessed a flat advisory fee based on total managed assets for all qualifying accounts across the relationship, according to the following schedule:

$10 – $15 Million	0.500%
$15 – $20 Million	0.450%

Investment Management Fees	U.S. Equity		Core Bond
		International Equity	Short-Term Bond
		Global Equity	Core Municipal
		World Dividend Growers	Short-Term Municipal

$100 – $200 Million	0.250%	0.425%
$200 Million +	0.225%	0.400%	0.175%

Minimum Account Size

There is a minimum managed relationship size of $5 million. The minimum managed relationship size may be waived due to the overall size of the client or other factors. For relationships below $5 million, advisory fees will be assessed based on the following schedule: 1.00% up to $1 million; 0.90% from $1 million - $3 million; and 0.80% from $3 million - $5 million.

Calculation Methodology and Billing

Advisory, investment management and trustee fees will be calculated and determined quarterly based on the average of the daily market values within the relevant quarter (unless stated otherwise for a specific fund or strategy below), or the market value of the assets in client accounts, as determined in good faith by CGPCS at the respective fee rates set forth herein. Billing will be quarterly in arrears. Any extraordinary services rendered or expenses incurred by CGPCS will be charged separately. Any unpaid fees due to and unreimbursed expenses incurred by CGPCS at the termination of an account may be deducted from the assets in the account.

Trustee Fees

CB&T serves as trustee for certain accounts and typically also provides investment management services to such accounts. In addition to investment management and advisory fees, CB&T charges trustee fees for such accounts.

Additional and other Fees

Tax return preparation is charged according to the type of return required. Clients should thoroughly review all fees disclosed in the fee schedules to their Investment Management Agreement (“IMA”).

CGPCS will charge an administrative service fee of 0.10% annually on assets over which it does not provide investment advice.

For tax-transition services, CB&T’s advisory fees (as set forth above) plus a 0.20% investment management fee will apply.

Certain clients domiciled outside the U.S. that are subject to a limited service offering have a maximum PCS Advisory fee rate of 0.35%.

Any unpaid fees due to CB&T and unreimbursed expenses incurred by CB&T at the termination of an account are deductible from the assets in the account.

Fee Discounts

Our advisory fees for Capital Group Associates start at rates below those offered to the general public. In addition, we provide discounts to the published schedule for clients referred by certain firms. All clients should refer to the fee schedule outlined in their investment management agreement for further details and their applicable fees.

Mutual funds

The fees and services discussed below are for discretionary accounts invested in mutual funds. For detailed information regarding a specific fund, please refer to that fund's offering documents.

With respect to mutual fund investments held in an account, CGPCS will have a preference for and will primarily use affiliated services. CGPCS expects the proportion of affiliated services held in the account relative to holdings of other mutual funds to be high, usually 100%. CB&T and its affiliates receive a separate fee for investment advisory and other services they provide to affiliated services. These fees vary by fund and are set forth in the prospectus of each fund.

In addition, in certain cases, CB&T receives payments from affiliated service providers for the provision of sub-transfer agency services. As a result, CB&T and its affiliates will receive more total revenue when affiliated services are held in the account than if unaffiliated services are held in the account. Any unaffiliated services must meet CB&T’s investment criteria.

Aggregation

The account values of qualifying accounts across a relationship (a “Relationship”) may be aggregated for purposes of calculating CGPCS investment management and advisory fees, and subject to the approval generally of the account owners. A “Relationship” is one established by an existing CGPCS client and: (i) a spouse;¹ (ii) son/daughter, parent, brother/sister;² (iii) grandchild, grandparent, niece/nephew, aunt/uncle, cousin; (iv) son/daughter-in-law, parent-in-law, brother/sister-in-law, grandparent-in-law, niece/nephew-in-law, aunt/uncle-in-law, cousin-in-law;³ (v) godchild or godparent (and individually, each person referred to in (i) through (v), a “Relative”); and (vi) a trustee or beneficiary of any CGPCS trust or any Relative of any such trustee or beneficiary. In addition, we may extend the benefit to charitable entities. Finally, other relationships, such as former spouses and certain business relationships, may be approved on a case by case basis.

Capital Group Alternative Strategies Fund

All investors must have entered into an Investment Management Agreement (“IMA”) with CGPCS prior to investing in this fund which is managed by an unaffiliated third party. All investments into and withdrawals from the fund will be subject to the IMA. The terms here are summarized and not intended to replace the official Offering Memorandum and Limited Partnership agreement for the fund which is managed by an unaffiliated third party. In the event that the description or terms described herein are inconsistent with or contrary to the descriptions in or terms of the Offering Memorandum or the amended and restated Limited Partnership Agreement, the Offering Memorandum or amended and restated Limited Partnership Agreement shall control. Clients should thoroughly review these governing documents before investing in the fund.

Management and administrative fee of 1.60% on all assets applies, based on the average of the three month end values in the quarter. In addition, asset-based underlying manager fees generally expected to range from 1% to 3% and performance-based allocations or fees generally expected to range from 10% to 30% of net capital appreciation. Expenses for the Capital Group Alternative Strategies Master Fund will be capped at 0.10%. Expenses in the underlying Capital Group Alternative Strategies Feeder Fund will be capped at the greater of 0.10% of assets or a maximum of $200,000 for the entire fund. This does not include any organizational or extraordinary expenses.

Capital Group Alternative Strategies Feeder Fund gates reserves the right to limit withdrawals to no more than 10% each month and no more than 25% each quarter. Withdrawals in excess of 95% of assets will also be subject to a holdback. The balance will be paid following the final audit, which takes place approximately 180 days after calendar year-end.

Minimum account size:

$500,000 for a new account for existing CGPCS clients.

$5 million for a stand-alone account only investing in this fund.

² Includes step and adoptive relationships.

³ References to “in-laws” include relationships derived from common law spouses and persons registered as domestic partners under state or local law where the person resides.

HarbourVest Global (Private Equity) Funds

All investors must have entered into an Investment Management Agreement (“IMA”) with CGPCS prior to investing in the funds which are offered annually by HarbourVest, an unaffiliated third party. All investments into and withdrawals from the funds will be subject to the IMA. The terms here are summarized and not intended to replace the official Offering Memorandum and Limited Partnership agreement for the funds. In the event that the description or terms described herein are inconsistent with or contrary to the descriptions in or terms of the Offering Memorandum or the amended and restated Limited Partnership Agreement, the Offering Memorandum or amended and restated Limited Partnership Agreement (the “Offering Documents”) shall control. Clients should thoroughly review these Offering Documents before investing in these funds.

Management and Administrative fees:

CG PCS fee is 0.85% based on NAV for non-retirement plans. Retirement plans are charged their applicable Advisory Fees at the rates outlined above.

The partnerships in which the fund invests through primary or secondary deals also have other fees, expenses and carried interest; refer to the Offering Documents for details.

Minimum account size:

$250,000 for a new account for existing CGPCS clients.

$5 million for a stand-alone account in these funds.

Sub-advisory Fees

Investment management fees for sub-advisory clients are generally higher than the corresponding rates for each of the investment mandates listed under the annual fee schedules below. Fees vary between accounts due to the size, relationship status of accounts and other relevant factors.

Model Investment Portfolios

On occasion, CGPCS agrees to a relationship with an unaffiliated third party involving the provision of model investment portfolios. Fees for such services will vary based on the relationship, services provided and other factors.

ITEM 6: PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

CB&T charges asset-based fees for providing investment advisory services. However, in limited circumstances, CB&T and its affiliates receive fees that are based on the performance of the account. Managing both types of accounts simultaneously creates a risk of conflicts for the portfolio manager to (i) allocate more attractive investment opportunities to accounts with performance-based fees and/or (ii) make investments for those accounts that are more speculative than for accounts that do not have performance-based fees.

To mitigate these risks, CB&T and its affiliates have adopted allocation policies that are designed in part to address these potential conflicts of interest. See Item 12 (Brokerage Practices) of this Brochure for CB&T's policy on allocating trades fairly, which is designed to allocate trades to clients in a fair and equitable manner over time, taking into consideration the interests of each client. Non-investment factors, such as fee arrangements, are not considered in selecting clients or allocating trades.

In addition, while CB&T and its affiliates provide individual investment advice and treatment to each fund and account, portfolio managers focus on particular investment mandates, using similar investment strategies in connection with the management of multiple portfolios, which helps minimize the potential for conflicts of interest. CB&T reviews accounts with similar objectives managed by CB&T and its affiliate at least annually. These reviews generally include, among other things, information related to investment results, including dispersion of results among accounts and reasons for such dispersion, if any, significant account guidelines and the investment structure of the portfolio.

ITEM 7: TYPES OF CLIENTS

CB&T provides directed trustee services and custodial services to employer-sponsored retirement plans and individual retirement accounts invested in registered investment companies, but does not offer discretionary investment advisory services to these clients.

CB&T also provides investment management and trust services to high net worth individuals and trusts through the CGPCS division.

With respect to Commingled Funds: CB&T serves as a discretionary trustee for Commingled Funds generally designed for retirement plans, foundations, endowments and other entities. Investors in these funds generally sign an agreement with CB&T to serve as fiduciary solely as it relates to such investments. Outside of the CGPCS business, CB&T does not generally exercise discretion with regard to a particular client's decision to invest in one or more Commingled Fund.

While there is no stated minimum account size, participants in the Commingled Funds who are not CGPCS clients are subject to minimum account sizes to invest in the funds, as outlined in the respective Advisers' Form ADV and the fund's governing documents. To the extent a client has signed an agreement directly with CB&T, fees and any required minimum account sizes are outlined within the agreement. In some instances, the minimum is waived due to the overall size of the client relationship or other factors. Due to the nature of the plans, minimum size requirements are not imposed on unit classes of funds designed for use primarily by defined contribution plans.

With respect to CGPCS clients: Accounts are generally subject to a minimum relationship and account size requirements referred to in Item 5 (Fees and Compensation).

ITEM 8: METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

METHODS OF ANALYSIS

CB&T and the Advisers maintain an investment philosophy that is distinguished by key beliefs and practices:

- Fundamental research – underlies all investment decisions. CB&T and the Advisers employ teams of experienced analysts who regularly gather in-depth, first-hand information on markets and companies around the globe. In addition to providing extensive research, investment professionals go to great lengths to determine the difference between the fundamental value of a company/security and its price in the marketplace.
- A long-term approach - is part of the big-picture view investment professionals take of the companies in which they invest. This is reflected by the typically low turnover of portfolio holdings. In addition, investment professionals usually remain with us for many years and are compensated according to their investment results over time.
- The Capital System - CB&T and the Advisers use a system of multiple portfolio managers in managing most separate account and fund assets. Under this approach, the portfolio of an account or fund is divided into segments managed by individual managers who decide how their respective segments will be invested. In addition, investment research analysts may make investment decisions with respect to a portion of the portfolio. Over time, this method has contributed to consistency of results and continuity of management.

Investment decisions are consistent with a portfolio's objective(s), investment guidelines, restrictions, and are subject to oversight of the appropriate investment-related committees. The objective(s), policies and restrictions of any fund are set forth in the governing documents of the fund.

CGPCS Client Accounts

In its capacity as discretionary investment manager to clients, CGPCS invests client assets in (1) affiliated services, (2) unaffiliated services. CGPCS provides asset allocation advice to clients on these investment options and confirms its clients' asset allocation in writing.

With respect to client investments in mutual funds, CGPCS will have a preference for and will primarily use affiliated services. CGPCS expects the proportion of affiliated services held in the account relative to holdings of unaffiliated services to be high, usually 100%. Unaffiliated services may be appropriate for client accounts, for example, (1) if a client transfers a fund from a prior account to CGPCS and selling the fund would incur adverse tax consequences for the client or (2) if the fund offers exposure to an asset class or investment style that CGPCS believes is appropriate for the client but that is not offered by CB&T or an affiliate. In addition, CGPCS will have a preference for the Capital Group Private Client Services Funds and the CGPCS separate securities strategies over the other affiliated services.

The Manager Research Team of CGPCS ("MRT") reviews any unaffiliated services for use in client discretionary portfolios, and any such fund must meet its investment criteria. When evaluating unaffiliated services for inclusion in client portfolios, the MRT will conduct due diligence and may consult with and rely on information provided by outside research providers. In conducting its research and analysis, the MRT will take into consideration a number of factors, including but not limited to: the appropriateness of the investment strategy for CGPCS clients, the integrity of and stability of the manager and its investment team, consistency of investment process, long-term investment results, portfolio turnover, fees, reputational risk and conflicts of interest. Generally, no single factor will determine whether an unaffiliated service will meet the MRT's investment criteria, and some factors carry greater weight than others. For example, MRT's criteria are not solely based on performance relative to peers or benchmarks.

Balanced and total opportunity strategies

U.S. Balanced — Seeks a balance of long-term growth of capital and income and high total return consistent with the conservation of capital. Invests primarily in U.S. stocks and bonds

Global Balanced — Seeks a balance of long-term growth of capital and income and high total return consistent with the conservation of capital. Invests primarily in developed and developing country equity and fixed-income securities

World Dividend Growers — Seeks long-term growth of capital and income. Invests primarily in equity and equity-related securities of companies that may increase the dividends paid to shareholders over a multi-year period.

Emerging Markets Total Opportunities – Seeks long-term capital growth with low volatility of returns and preservation of capital. Invests primarily in equity, equity-related, and fixed-income securities that are 1) from issuers in developing countries; 2) primarily traded in developing countries; 3) denominated in developing country currencies; or 4) from issuers deemed to be suitable because they are expected to have significant economic exposure to developing countries.

Capital Group American Balanced Trust (US) - The investment objectives of the fund are: (1) conservation of capital, (2) current income and (3) long-term growth of capital and income. The fund uses a balanced approach to invest in a broad range of securities, including common stocks and investment-grade bonds (rated Baa3 or better or BBB- or better by Nationally Recognized Statistical Rating Organizations or unrated but determined to be of equivalent quality). The fund also invests in securities issued and guaranteed by the U.S. government and by federal agencies and instrumentalities. The fund invests in debt securities with a wide range of maturities. In addition, the fund may invest a portion of its assets in common stocks, most of which have a history of paying dividends, bonds and other securities of issuers domiciled outside the United States.

Target Date Retirement Series – Depending on the proximity to its target date, the fund will seek to achieve the following objectives to varying degrees: growth, income and conservation of capital. The fund will increasingly emphasize income and conservation of capital by investing a greater portion of its assets in bond, equity-income and balanced funds as it approaches and passes its target date. In this way, the fund seeks to balance total return and stability over time.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that funds and clients should be prepared to bear. Each account and fund is subject to certain risks associated with the investment strategy employed by CB&T and in accordance with the fund or account's policies and restrictions. These risks may include, but are not limited to, certain of the risks set forth below.

- Management — CB&T actively manages client's investments. Consequently, accounts and funds are subject to the risk that the methods and analyses employed by CB&T in this process may not produce the desired results. This could cause the assets of these accounts or funds to lose value or their investment results to lag relevant benchmarks or other accounts or funds with similar objectives.
- Market conditions — The prices of, and income generated by, the common stocks and other securities held by the accounts or funds may decline – sometimes rapidly or unpredictably – due to market conditions and other factors, including events or conditions affecting the general economy or particular industries; overall market changes; local, regional or global political, social or economic instability; governmental or governmental agency responses to economic conditions; and currency, interest rate and commodity price fluctuations.

- Investing in stocks — Investing in stocks may involve larger price swings and greater potential for loss than other types of investments. As a result, the value of the accounts or funds may be subject to sharp, short-term declines in value. For fund of fund strategies, income provided by an underlying fund may be reduced by changes in the dividend policies of, and the capital resources available at, the companies in which the underlying fund invests.
- Investing in growth-oriented stocks — Growth-oriented common stocks and other equity-type securities (such as preferred stocks, convertible preferred stocks and convertible bonds) may involve larger price swings and greater potential for loss than other types of investments. These risks may be heightened in the case of smaller capitalization stocks.
- Investing in income-oriented stocks — Income may be reduced by changes in the dividend policies of, and the capital resources available at, the companies in which an account or fund invests.
- Issuer risks — The prices of, and the income generated by, securities held by the account or fund may decline in response to various factors directly related to the issuers of such securities, including reduced demand for an issuer's goods or services, poor management performance, major litigation related to the issuer, changes in government regulations affecting the issuer or its competitive environment and strategic initiatives such as mergers, acquisitions or dispositions and the market response to any such initiatives.
- Currency – The prices of, and the income generated by, many securities may be affected by changes in relative currency values. If the U.S. dollar appreciates against foreign currencies, the value in U.S. dollars of the account's or fund's securities denominated in such currencies would generally fall and vice versa. U.S. dollar denominated securities of foreign issuers may also be affected by changes in relative currency values. The use of forward currency contracts involves the risk that currency movements will not be accurately predicted by the investment adviser, which could result in losses to the account or fund. While entering into forward currency contracts could minimize the risk of loss due to a decline in the value of the hedged currency, it could also limit any potential gain that may result from an increase in the value of the currency. Additionally, CIIInc may use forward currency contracts to increase exposure to a certain currency or to shift exposure to currency fluctuations from one country to another. Forward currency contracts may expose the account or fund to potential gains and losses in excess of the initial amount invested.
- Currency Transactions – In addition to the risks generally associated with investing in derivative instruments, the use of certain currency transactions involves the risk that currency movements will not be accurately predicted by the investment adviser, which could result in losses to the account or fund. While entering into these could minimize the risk of loss due to a decline in the value of the hedged currency, it could also limit any potential gain that may result from an increase in the value of the currency. Additionally, use of these transactions may have a leveraging effect by exposing the account or fund to potential gains and losses significantly in excess of the initial amount invested.

- Investing in small companies — Investing in smaller companies may pose additional risks. For example, it is often more difficult to value or dispose of small company stocks and more difficult to obtain information about smaller companies than about larger companies. In addition, the prices of these stocks may be more volatile than stocks of larger, more established companies.
- Investing outside the United States — Securities of issuers domiciled outside the United States, or with significant operations outside the United States, may lose value because of adverse political, social economic or market developments (including social instability, regional conflicts, terrorism and war) in the countries or regions in which the issuer operates. These securities may also lose value due to changes in foreign currency exchange rates against the U.S. dollar and/or currencies of other countries. Issuers of these securities may be more susceptible to actions of foreign governments, such as nationalization, currency blockage or the imposition of price controls or punitive taxes, each of which could adversely impact the value of these securities. Securities markets in certain countries may be more volatile and/or less liquid than those in the United States. Investments outside the United States may also be subject to different settlement and accounting practices and different regulatory, legal and reporting standards, and may be more difficult to value, than those in the United States. In addition, the value of investments outside the United States may be reduced by foreign taxes, including foreign withholding taxes on interest and dividends. Further, there may be increased risks of delayed settlement of securities transactions. These risks may be heightened in connection with investments in emerging market and developing countries. Additional costs could be incurred in connection with the account's or fund's investment activities outside the United States. Brokerage commissions may be higher outside the United States, and the account or fund will bear certain expenses in connection with its currency transactions. Furthermore, increased custodian costs may be associated with maintaining assets in certain jurisdictions.
- Investing in emerging market countries — Investing in emerging markets may involve risks in addition to and greater than those generally associated with investing in developed countries. For instance, emerging market and developing countries may have less developed legal and accounting systems than those in developed countries. The governments of these countries may be more unstable and more likely to impose capital controls, nationalize a company or industry, place restrictions on foreign ownership and on withdrawing sale proceeds of securities from the country, and/or impose punitive taxes that could adversely affect the prices of securities. In addition, the economies of these countries may be dependent on relatively few industries that are more susceptible to local and global changes. Securities markets in these countries can also be relatively small and have substantially lower trading volumes. As a result, securities issued in these countries may be more volatile and less liquid, and may be more difficult to value, than securities issued in countries with more developed economies and/or markets. Less certainty with respect to security valuations may lead to additional challenges and risks in calculating for an account's or fund's net asset value. Additionally, there may be increased settlement risks for transactions in local securities. Additionally, emerging markets are more likely to experience problems with the clearing and settling of trades and the holding of securities by banks, agents and depositories that are less established than those in developed countries.
- Exposure to country, region, industry or sector — The account or fund may have significant exposure to a particular country, region, industry or sector. Such exposure may cause the account or fund to be more impacted by risks relating to and developments affecting the country, region, industry or sector, and thus its net asset value may be more volatile than an account or fund without such levels of exposure. For example, if the account or fund has significant exposure in a particular country, then social, economic, regulatory or other issues that negatively affect that country may have a greater impact on the account or fund than on an account or fund that is more geographically diversified.

- Investing in debt instruments — The prices of, and the income generated by, bonds and other debt securities held by the account or fund may be affected by changing interest rates and by changes in the effective maturities and credit ratings of these securities. Rising interest rates will generally cause the prices of bonds and other debt securities to fall. A general rise in interest rates may cause investors to sell debt securities on a large scale, which could also adversely affect the price and liquidity of debt securities and could also result in increased redemptions from the account or fund. Falling interest rates may cause an issuer to redeem, call or refinance a debt security before its stated maturity, which may result in the account or fund failing to recoup the full amount of its initial investment and having to reinvest the proceeds in lower yielding securities. Longer maturity debt securities generally have greater sensitivity to changes in interest rates and may be subject to greater price fluctuations than shorter maturity debt securities. Bonds and other debt securities are also subject to credit risk, which is the possibility that the credit strength of an issuer or guarantor will weaken or be perceived to be weaker, and/or an issuer of a debt security will fail to make timely payments of principal or interest and the security will go into default. A downgrade or default affecting any of the account's or fund's securities could cause the value of the account's or fund's shares to decrease. Lower quality debt securities generally have higher rates of interest and may be subject to greater price fluctuations than higher quality debt securities. Credit risk is gauged, in part, by the credit ratings of the debt securities in which the account or fund invests. However, ratings are only the opinions of the rating agencies issuing them and are not guarantees as to credit quality or an evaluation of market risk. The account's or fund's investment adviser relies on its own credit analysts to research issuers and issues in seeking to assess credit and default risks.
- Investing in lower rated debt instruments — Lower rated bonds and other lower rated debt securities generally have higher rates of interest and involve greater risk of default or price declines due to changes in the issuer's creditworthiness than those of higher quality debt securities. The market prices of these securities may fluctuate more than the prices of higher quality debt securities and may decline significantly in periods of general economic difficulty. These risks may be increased with respect to investments in lower quality, higher yielding debt securities (generally rated Ba1 or below and BB+ or below or unrated but determined by CB&T to be of equivalent quality ("junk bonds")).
- Investing in securities backed by the U.S. government — Securities backed by the U.S. Treasury or the full faith and credit of the U.S. government are guaranteed only as to the timely payment of interest and principal when held to maturity. Accordingly, the current market values for these securities will fluctuate with changes in interest rates. Securities issued by government-sponsored entities and federal agencies and instrumentalities that are not backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. government are neither issued nor guaranteed by the U.S. government.

- Interest rate risk — The values and liquidity of the securities held by the account or fund may be effected by changing interest rates. For example, the values of these securities may decline when interest rates rise and increase when interest rates fall. Longer maturity debt securities generally have greater sensitivity to changes in interest rates and may be subject to greater price fluctuations than shorter maturity debt securities. The account or fund may invest in variable and floating rate securities. Although such securities are generally less sensitive to interest rate changes, the value of variable and floating rate securities may decline if their interest rates do not rise as quickly, or as much, as general interest rates. Conversely, floating rate securities will not generally increase in value if interest rates decline. During periods of extremely low short-term interest rates, the account or fund may not be able to maintain a positive yield and, given the current historically low interest rate environment, risks associated with rising rates are currently heightened.
- Investing in future delivery contracts — An account or fund may enter into contracts, such as to-be-announced contracts and mortgage dollar rolls, that involve selling mortgage-related securities and simultaneously contracting to repurchase similar securities for delivery at a future date at a predetermined price. This can increase the account's or fund's market exposure and the market price of the securities the account or fund contracts to repurchase could drop below their purchase price. While the account or fund can preserve and generate capital through the use of such contracts by, for example, realizing the difference between the sale price and the future purchase price, the income generated by the account or fund may be reduced by engaging in such transactions. In addition, these transactions may increase the turnover rate of the account or fund.
- Investing in mortgage-related and other asset backed securities — Mortgage-related securities, such as mortgage-backed securities, and other asset-backed securities, include debt obligations that represent interests in pools of mortgages or other income-bearing assets, such as consumer loans or receivables. Such securities often involve risks that are different from or more acute than the risks associated with investing in other types of debt securities. Mortgage-backed and other asset-backed securities are subject to changes in the payment patterns of borrowers of the underlying debt, potentially increasing the volatility of the securities and the account's or fund's net asset value. When interest rates fall, borrowers are more likely to refinance or prepay their debt before its stated maturity. This may result in the account or fund having to reinvest the proceeds in lower yielding securities, effectively reducing the account's or fund's income. Conversely, if interest rates rise and borrowers repay their debt more slowly than expected, the time in which the mortgage-backed and other asset-backed securities are paid off could be extended, reducing the account's or fund's cash available for reinvestment in higher yielding securities. Mortgage-backed securities are also subject to the risk that underlying borrowers will be unable to meet their obligations and the value of property that secures the mortgages may decline in value and be insufficient, upon foreclosure, to repay the associated loans. Investments in asset-backed securities are subject to similar risks.
- Investing in derivatives — The use of derivatives involves a variety of risks, which may be different from, or greater than, the risks associated with investing in traditional cash securities, such as stocks and bonds. Changes in the value of a derivative may not correlate perfectly with, and may be more sensitive to market events than, the underlying asset, rate or index, and a derivative instrument may have a leveraging effect by exposing the account or fund to losses significantly in excess of its initial investment. Derivatives may be difficult for the account or fund to buy or sell at an opportune time or price and may be difficult to terminate or otherwise offset. The account's or fund's use of derivatives may result in losses to the account or fund, and investing in derivatives may reduce the account's or fund's returns and increase the account's or fund's price volatility. The account's or fund's counterparty to a derivative transaction (including, if applicable, the account's or fund's clearing broker, the derivatives exchange or the clearinghouse) may be unable or unwilling to honor its financial obligations in respect of the transaction. Certain derivatives, repurchase and reverse repurchase transactions may be collateralized and additional cash or securities, such as U.S. Treasuries, may be held for these purposes.

- Investing in swaps — Swaps, including interest rate swaps and credit default swap indices, or CDX, are subject to many of the risks generally associated with investing in derivative instruments. Additionally, although swaps require no or only a small initial investment in the form of a deposit of initial margin, the amount of a potential loss on a swap contract could greatly exceed the initial amount invested. The use of swaps involves the risk that the investment adviser will not accurately predict anticipated changes in interest rates or other economic factors, which may result in losses to the account or fund. To the extent the fund enters into a bilaterally negotiated swap transaction, there is a possibility that the counterparty will fail to perform in accordance with the terms of the swap agreement. If a counterparty defaults on its obligations under a swap agreement, the account or fund may lose any amount it expected to receive from the counterparty, potentially including amounts in excess of the account's or fund's initial investment. Certain swap transactions are subject to mandatory central clearing or may be eligible for voluntary central clearing. Although clearing interposes a central clearinghouse as the ultimate counterparty to each participant's swap, central clearing will not eliminate (but may decrease) counterparty risk relative to uncleared bilateral swaps. Some swaps, such as CDX, may be dependent on both the individual credit of the account's or fund's counterparty and on the credit of one or more issuers of any underlying assets. If the account or fund does not correctly evaluate the creditworthiness of its counterparty and, where applicable, of issuers of any underlying reference assets, the account's or fund's investment in a swap may result in losses to the account or fund.
- Investing in futures contracts — In addition to the risks generally associated with investing in derivative instruments, futures contracts are subject to the creditworthiness of the clearing organizations, exchanges and futures commission merchants with which the account or fund transacts. Additionally, although futures require only a small initial investment in the form of a deposit of initial margin, the amount of a potential loss on a futures contract could greatly exceed the initial amount invested. While futures contracts are generally liquid instruments, under certain market conditions futures may be deemed to be illiquid. For example, the account or fund may be temporarily prohibited from closing out its position in a futures contract if intraday price change limits or limits on trading volume imposed by the applicable futures exchange are triggered. If the account or fund is unable to close out a position on a futures contract, the account or fund would remain subject to the risk of adverse price movements until the account or fund is able to close out the futures position. The ability of the account or fund to successfully utilize futures contracts may depend in part upon the ability of the account or fund's investment adviser to accurately forecast interest rates and other economic factors and to assess and predict the impact of such economic factors on the futures in which the account or fund invests. If the investment adviser incorrectly forecasts economic developments or incorrectly predicts the impact of such developments on the futures in which it invests, the account or fund could be exposed to the risk of loss.

- Hedging – There may be imperfect or even negative correlation between the price of the futures contracts and the price of the underlying securities. For example, futures contracts may not provide an effective hedge because changes in futures contract prices may not track those of the underlying securities or indexes they are intended to hedge. In addition, there are significant differences between the securities and futures markets that could result in an imperfect correlation between the markets, causing a given hedge not to achieve its objectives. The degree of imperfection of correlation depends on circumstances such as variations in speculative market demand for futures, including technical influences in futures trading, and differences between the financial instruments being hedged and the instruments underlying the standard contracts available for trading. A decision as to whether, when and how to hedge involves the exercise of skill and judgment, and even a well-conceived hedge may be unsuccessful to some degree because of market behavior or unexpected interest rate trends. In addition, an account's or fund's investment in exchange-traded futures and their resulting costs could limit the account's or fund's gains in rising markets relative to those of unhedged accounts or funds.
- Investing in thinly traded securities – There may be little trading in the secondary market for particular bonds or other debt securities, which may make them more difficult to value, acquire, or sell.
- Cash and cash equivalents — The percentage of the account or fund invested in cash and cash equivalents will vary and depend on various factors, including market conditions. A larger percentage of such holdings could moderate the fund's investment results in a period of rising market prices. Alternatively, a larger percentage of such holdings could reduce the magnitude of the fund's or account's loss in a period of falling market prices and provide liquidity to make additional investments or to meet redemptions.
- Liquidity risk — Certain account or fund holdings may be or become difficult or impossible to sell, particularly during times of market turmoil. Illiquidity may result from the lack of an active market for a holding, legal or contractual restrictions on resale, or the reduced number and capacity of market participants to make a market in such holding. Market prices for less liquid or illiquid holdings may be volatile, and reduced liquidity may have an adverse impact on the market price of such holdings. Additionally, the sale of less liquid or illiquid holdings may involve substantial delays (including delays in settlement) and additional costs and the account or fund may be unable to sell such holdings when necessary to meet its liquidity needs or may be forced to sell at a loss.
- Loss of investment — An investor may lose money by investing in an account or fund. The likelihood of loss may be greater if the investor invests for a shorter period of time.
- Investments are not guaranteed — Investments in accounts and funds are not bank deposits and are not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other governmental agency, entity or person.

- Long-Term Perspective – Investors in the account or fund should have a long-term perspective and be able to tolerate potentially sharp declines in value.
- Cybersecurity risks — With the increased use of technologies such as the Internet to conduct business, the accounts or funds have become potentially more susceptible to operational and information security risks through breaches in cybersecurity. In general, a breach in cybersecurity can result from either a deliberate attack or an unintentional event. Cybersecurity breaches may involve, among other things, infection by computer viruses or other malicious software code or unauthorized access to the accounts’ or funds’ digital information systems, networks or devices through “hacking” or other means, in each case for the purpose of misappropriating assets or sensitive information (including, for example, clients’ personal information), corrupting data or causing operational disruption or failures in the physical infrastructure or operating systems that support the accounts or funds. Cybersecurity risks also include the risk of losses of service resulting from external attacks that do not require unauthorized access to the accounts’ or funds’ systems, networks or devices. For example, denial-of-service attacks on the investment adviser’s or an affiliate’s website could effectively render the accounts’ or funds’ network services unavailable to clients and other intended end-users. Any such cybersecurity breaches or losses of service may cause the accounts or funds to lose proprietary information, suffer data corruption or lose operational capacity, which, in turn, could cause the accounts or funds to incur regulatory penalties, reputational damage, additional compliance costs associated with corrective measures and/or financial loss. In addition, cybersecurity failures by or breaches of the accounts’ or funds’ third-party service providers (including, but not limited to, the accounts’ or funds’ investment advisers, transfer agents, custodians, administrators and other financial intermediaries) may disrupt the business operations of the service providers and of the accounts or funds, potentially resulting in financial losses, the inability of clients to transact business with the accounts or funds and of the accounts or funds to process transactions, the inability of the accounts or funds to calculate its net asset value, violations of applicable privacy and other laws, rules and regulations, regulatory fines, penalties, reputational damage, reimbursement or other compensatory costs and/or additional compliance costs associated with implementation of any corrective measures. Cybersecurity risks may also impact issuers of securities in which the accounts or funds invest, which may cause the accounts’ or funds’ investments in such issuers to lose value.
- Operational Events – To the extent that a strategy relies on proprietary and third party data analysis and systems to support investment decision making, there is a risk of software or other technology malfunctions or programming inaccuracies that may impair the performance of these systems. System impairment may negatively impact performance.
- Past investment results are not predictive of future investment results.

For Target Date fund investments, additional risks include:

- Allocation risk — Investments in the fund are subject to risks related to allocation choices. The selection of the underlying funds and the allocation of the fund’s assets could cause the fund to lose value or its results to lag relevant benchmarks or other funds with similar objectives. For investors who are close to or in retirement, the fund’s equity exposure may result in investment volatility that could reduce an investor’s available retirement assets at a time when the investor has a need to withdraw funds. For investors who are farther from retirement, there is a risk the fund may invest too much in investments designed to ensure capital conservation and current income, which may prevent the investor from meeting his or her retirement goals.

- Proprietary funds – The fund invests only in underlying funds offered and/or managed by the trustee or its affiliates, including the investment adviser. The fund does not intend to invest in unaffiliated funds. The fund's fees will not vary based on the allocation to underlying funds. The investment results of the fund may differ if it invested in non-proprietary funds.
- Underlying fund risks — Because the fund's investments consist of underlying funds, the fund's risks are directly related to the risks of the underlying funds. For this reason, it is important to understand the risks associated with investing in the underlying funds, as described below.

Clients should also refer to account guidelines as well as to each account's or fund's governing documents or other disclosure documents for further information specific to their account or fund investment.

ITEM 9: DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Neither CB&T nor its management persons have been the subject of legal or regulatory findings, or are the subject of any pending criminal proceedings that are material to a client's or prospective client's evaluation of our advisory business or the integrity of our management. From time to time, CB&T or its management persons may be subject to regulatory examinations, investigations, litigation or inquiries that arise in the ordinary course of our business. In the event we become aware of any regulatory matter or litigation that we believe would be material to an evaluation of our advisory business, we notify all clients or prospects effected by those events, subject to applicable law and regulation.

ITEM 10: OTHER FINANCIAL INDUSTRY ACTIVITIES AND AFFILIATIONS

CB&T has the following arrangements that are material to its advisory business with certain affiliated entities. Some of CB&T's directors and executive officers and employees are also directors, officers or employees of one or more affiliates.

Broker-dealer

American Funds Distributors, Inc. ("AFD") is a registered broker-dealer and a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority and Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board. AFD acts as the principal underwriter and distributor of mutual funds, including investment companies advised and administered by CB&T's affiliates, and provides related services. In addition, certain of CB&T's management persons are registered representatives of AFD. American Funds Distributors, Inc. is also registered as an insurance agency or producer in certain states. American Funds Distributors, Inc. is also an investment adviser which provides investment advisory related services in connection with various wrap-fee programs sponsored by unaffiliated broker-dealers or other financial institutions, where CB&T's affiliates can be retained as an investment manager.

Registered Investment Companies

Capital International, Inc. ("CIInc") and Capital Research and Management Company ("CRMC") serve as investment advisers for investment companies registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940. CIInc and CRMC receive advisory and other fees and expenses from each fund based upon the value of the fund's assets; those fees are described in each fund's governing documents. CRMC is also registered as a commodity pool operator and a member of the National Futures Association.

Unregistered Collective Investment Funds

CB&T serves as the discretionary trustee to privately-offered collective investment funds that are exempt from registration. CIInc and CRMC serve as investment advisers to CB&T for these Commingled Funds. CB&T, CRMC, and CIInc all receive compensation in connection with their services to the Commingled Funds. Fees are described in each fund's governing documents.

Commodity Pool Operator

Capital Research and Management Company, an affiliated investment adviser, is registered as a commodity pool operator and a member of the National Futures Association.

Other Investment Advisers

Because our funds, accounts, and our personnel are located around the world, we conduct business through a number of affiliated entities licensed to offer services in various jurisdictions and to perform particular business functions. Though legally distinct, our affiliates function as a unified, global business. We believe that our globally integrated model helps us to serve our clients' needs better. We often engage our affiliates and their personnel to assist in managing client mandates. For example, our affiliated personnel provide research, portfolio management or trading services to certain client accounts.

Certain portfolio managers employed by the following affiliated investment advisers, under the supervision and review of CB&T or its affiliates, determine the securities to be purchased and sold for certain clients:

CRMC is an affiliated investment adviser with which CB&T shares supervised persons

Capital Research Company is an affiliated registered investment adviser and indirectly provides investment advisory research to CB&T. This includes managing assets, subject to the supervision and control of CB&T, or its other advisory affiliates.

Capital International K.K. is a Japan-based investment adviser and indirectly provides research information and services to CB&T.

CIInc is an affiliated registered investment adviser with the Securities and Exchange Commission as well as with the Monetary Authority of Singapore and the Hong Kong Securities and Futures Commission as it also conducts investment advisory and asset management services in those regions;

Capital International Limited (“CIL”) has been authorized by the U.K. Financial Conduct Authority to provide investment advisory and asset management services.

Capital International Sarl (“CISA”) is based in Switzerland and has been authorized by the Financial Markets Supervisory Authority to provide investment advisory services.

Neither CIL nor CISA is registered as an investment adviser under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 and each is deemed to be a “Participating Affiliate” of CB&T and its affiliates, as this term has been used by the SEC’s Division of Investment Management in various no-action letters granting relief from the Advisers Act’s registration requirements for certain affiliates of registered investment advisers.

ITEM 11: CODE OF ETHICS, PARTICIPATION OR INTEREST IN CLIENT TRANSACTIONS AND PERSONAL TRADING

CB&T and its affiliated companies have adopted a Code of Ethics for its associates (Code of Ethics) that requires all associates: (1) act with integrity, competence and in an ethical manner; (2) comply with applicable U.S. federal securities laws, as well as all other applicable laws, rules and regulations; and (3) promptly report violations of the Code of Ethics. All associates are required to certify at least annually that they have read and understand the Code. A copy of the Code of Ethics is available to clients and prospective clients upon request and on americanfunds.com.

The Code of Ethics includes:

- Protection of Non-Public Information: Policies and procedures designed to prevent and detect the misuse of material non-public information by associates. These procedures require all associates who believe they may be in possession of material non-public information regarding an issuer to notify the Legal Department, which will determine the appropriate actions to be taken.
- Personal Investing: Policies related to personal investing by associates. The policies ban excessive trading of any Capital-managed investment vehicles worldwide, including the American Funds. Associates generally are not authorized to participate in the acquisitions of securities in initial public offerings. Additional restrictions apply to associates with access to non-public information relating to current or imminent fund/client transactions, investment recommendations or fund portfolio holdings (covered associates). Covered associates generally do not effect securities transactions for their own account when any investment advisory account is transacting in the issuer in question. All such covered associates must report their securities transactions on a quarterly basis and disclose their holdings annually. Covered associates must pre-clear certain personal security transactions and special review of private placements is required. Additional restrictions and reporting apply to investments professionals, including blackout periods on personal investing and a ban on short-term trading.
- Gifts and Entertainment: Policy prohibiting associates from accepting and extending gifts or entertainment that are excessive, repetitive or extravagant, if such gifts or entertainment involve a third party's business relationship (or prospective business relationship) with Capital. Procedures include quarterly reporting of gifts or entertainment received or offered, a dollar limit on gifts that can be accepted from any one source during a calendar year, and preclearance of entertainment beyond a certain dollar limit.
- Political Contributions: Policy governing political contributions and/or other activities that directly support officials, candidates, or organizations that may be in a position to influence decisions to award business to investment management firms. Specific rules exist for political contributions and activities within the U.S. and restricted associates are required to seek preclearance and approval for political contributions to state and local government officials (or candidates for those positions), federal candidate campaigns and affiliated committees, and political organizations, such as Political Action Committees (PACs).

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

In addition, CB&T or its affiliates recommend that certain clients invest in limited partnerships, pooled funds or mutual funds managed by CB&T or its affiliates. Additionally, CB&T, in its capacity as investment agent, will be empowered to invest CGPCS client assets in certain of these funds. In all cases, the nature and scope of the financial interest (e.g., investment management fees or economic interest in such partnerships or funds) is disclosed.

CB&T's employees may also purchase shares in certain pooled funds advised by CB&T or an affiliate of CB&T. Such purchases take place either through their personal account or through retirement plans sponsored by The Capital Group Companies, Inc., the parent company of CB&T. All such transactions are conducted at net asset value and in accordance with the purchase and redemption provisions as described in either the prospectus or offering memorandum of the fund.

ITEM 12: BROKERAGE PRACTICES

Selecting Broker-Dealers

Portfolio Transactions

CB&T and its affiliates place orders with broker-dealers for clients' portfolio transactions. Purchases and sales of equity securities on a securities exchange or an over-the-counter market are effected through broker-dealers who receive commissions for their services. Purchases and sales of fixed-income securities and currency foreign exchange transactions are generally made with an issuer or a primary market-maker acting as principal with no stated brokerage commission. Prices for fixed-income securities in secondary trades usually include undisclosed compensation to the market-maker reflecting the spread between the bid and ask prices for the securities. The prices for equity and fixed-income securities purchased in primary market transactions, such as initial public offerings, new fixed-income issues, secondary offerings and private placements, may include underwriting fees.

Best Execution

When executing portfolio transactions on behalf of its clients and clients of its affiliates, CB&T and its affiliates strive to obtain "best execution" (the most favorable total price reasonably attainable under the circumstances) for their clients' portfolio transactions, taking into account a variety of factors. These factors include the size and type of transaction, the nature and character of the markets for the security to be purchased or sold, the cost, quality, likely speed and reliability of execution and settlement, the broker-dealer's or execution venue's ability to offer liquidity and anonymity and the tradeoff between market impact and opportunity costs. CB&T considers these factors, which involve qualitative judgment, when selecting broker-dealers and execution venues for its clients' portfolio transactions. CB&T views best execution as a process that should be evaluated over time as part of an overall relationship with particular broker-dealer firms. In this regard, CB&T does not consider itself as having an obligation to obtain the lowest commission rate available for a portfolio transaction to the exclusion of price, service and qualitative considerations. Brokerage commissions are only a small part of total execution costs and other factors, such as market impact and speed of execution, contribute significantly to overall transaction costs.

Oversight

The Capital Group Companies Equity Trading Oversight and Best Execution Committee and the Capital Group Companies Fixed-Income Best Execution Committee provide oversight to CB&T's policies, procedures and practices relating to best execution. CB&T obtains third-party analysis of trading execution quality. These analyses compare execution results with various benchmarks which provide quantitative data that is one of many data points that is evaluated to ensure that CB&T is meeting its best execution obligation.

The Market and Transaction Research group performs in-depth analysis on equity trade execution data and reviews the findings with the Global Equity Trading Manager to enhance the ability to measure and interpret trading costs and their effects on portfolio performance. The Equity Trading Oversight and Best Execution Committee meets periodically to review such trade execution analysis and evaluate the overall quality of execution and trades. The Equity Trading Oversight and Best Execution Committee also reviews equity trading policies and approves changes as appropriate.

The Fixed-Income Best Execution Committee meets periodically to review current fixed-income trading practices and overall quality of execution for fixed-income and foreign exchange trades.

The Capital Group Companies Corporate Access and Research Services Oversight Committee provides oversight of Capital Group's research management program. It is responsible for evaluating the quality of the research acquired by CB&T and its affiliates to inform future procurement decisions and payment levels and proposing an annual research budget to the Capital Group Management Committee.

Commission Rates

CB&T and its affiliates negotiate commission rates with brokers based on what they believe is reasonably necessary to obtain best execution. CB&T and its affiliates do not consider the appropriate commission to necessarily be the lowest available commission, but attempt to maximize the overall benefits received by their clients for their commissions. Commission rates vary based on the nature of the transaction, the market in which the security is traded and the venue chosen for trading, among other factors.

CB&T and its affiliates seek, on an ongoing basis, to determine what the reasonable levels of commission rates for execution services are in the marketplace, taking various considerations into account, including the extent to which a broker-dealer has put its own capital at risk, historical commission rates and, commission rates that other institutional investors are paying.

Brokerage and Investment Research Services

CB&T and its affiliates execute portfolio transactions with broker-dealers who provide certain brokerage and/or investment research services to CB&T and its affiliates but only when in CB&T's and its affiliates' judgment the broker-dealer is capable of providing best execution for that transaction. CB&T and its affiliates make decisions for procurement of research separately and distinctly from decisions on the choice of brokerage and execution services. The receipt of these research services permits CB&T and each affiliate to supplement its own research and analysis and makes available the views of, and information from, individuals and the research staffs of other firms. These services include, among other things, reports and other communications with respect to individual companies, industries, countries and regions, economic, political and legal developments, as well as scheduling meetings with corporate executives and seminars and conferences related to relevant subject matters. This information may be provided in the form of written reports, telephone contacts and meetings with securities analysts.

CB&T and its affiliates have undertaken to bear the cost of all third-party investment research services for all client accounts they advise. However, in order to compensate certain U.S. broker-dealers for research consumed, and valued, by their investment professionals, CB&T and its affiliates continue to operate a limited commission sharing arrangement with commissions on equity trades for registered investment companies managed by CB&T or its affiliates. CB&T and its affiliates voluntarily reimburse such registered investment companies for all amounts collected into the commission sharing arrangement. In order to operate the commission sharing arrangement, CB&T and its affiliates may cause such registered investment companies to pay commissions in excess of what other broker-dealers might have charged for certain portfolio transactions in recognition of brokerage and/or investment research services. In this regard, CB&T and its affiliates have adopted a brokerage allocation procedure consistent with the requirements of Section 28(e) of the U.S. Securities Exchange Act of 1934. Section 28(e) permits an investment adviser to cause an account to pay a higher commission to a broker-dealer to compensate the broker-dealer or another service provider for certain brokerage and/or investment research services provided to CB&T and its affiliates, if CB&T and each affiliate makes a good faith determination that such commissions are reasonable in relation to the value of the services provided to CB&T and its affiliates in terms of that particular transaction or CB&T's or its affiliates overall responsibility to their clients.

Certain brokerage and/or investment research services may not necessarily benefit all accounts paying commissions to a broker-dealer, therefore, CB&T and its affiliates assess the reasonableness of commissions in light of the total brokerage and investment research services provided to CB&T and its affiliates. Further, research services may be used by all investment associates of CB&T and its affiliates regardless of whether they advise accounts with trading activity that generates eligible commissions. In accordance with its internal brokerage allocation procedure, CB&T and its affiliates periodically assess the brokerage and investment research services provided by each broker-dealer and each other service provider from whom they receive such services.

As part of ongoing relationships, CB&T and its affiliates routinely meet with firms to discuss the level and quality of the brokerage and research services provided, as well as the value and cost of such services. In valuing the brokerage and investment research services CB&T and its affiliates receive from broker-dealers and other research providers in connection with its good faith determination of reasonableness, CB&T and its affiliates take various factors into consideration, including the quantity, quality and usefulness of the services to CB&T and its affiliates. Based in this information and applying their judgment, CB&T and its affiliates set an annual research budget.

Research analysts and portfolio managers periodically participate in a research poll to determine the usefulness and value of the research provided by individual broker-dealers and research providers. Based on the results of this research poll, CB&T and its affiliates may, through commission sharing arrangements with certain broker-dealers, direct a portion of commissions paid to a broker-dealer by registered investment companies managed by CB&T or its affiliates to be used to compensate the broker-dealer and/or other research providers for research services they provide.

While CB&T and its affiliates may negotiate commission rates and enter into commission sharing arrangements with certain broker-dealers with the expectation that such broker-dealers will be providing brokerage and research services, none of CB&T, any of its affiliates or any of their clients incurs any obligation to any broker-dealer to pay for research by generating trading commissions. CB&T and its affiliates negotiate prices for certain research that may be paid through commission sharing arrangements or by themselves with cash.

Cross Trades

As part of its authority to invest client assets on a discretionary basis, CB&T places cross-trades between client accounts managed by CB&T and its affiliates from time to time. CB&T recognizes that a potential conflict of interest may exist when placing trades between client accounts. To address such potential conflicts, CB&T maintains cross-trade policies and procedures and places a cross-trade under those limited circumstances when such a trade: (a) is in the best interest of all participating clients and (b) is not prohibited by the participating clients' investment management agreement or applicable law.

Exchange or alternative trading system ownership

An affiliate of CB&T currently owns an interest in IEX Group and Luminex Trading and Analytics. CB&T may place orders on these or other exchanges or alternative trading systems in which it, or one of its affiliates, has an ownership interest, provided such ownership interest is less than five percent of the total ownership interests in the entity. CB&T is subject to the same best execution obligations when trading on any such exchange or alternative trading system.

Sale of Fund Shares Not Considered

CB&T may place orders for a client's portfolio transactions with broker-dealers who have sold shares in the funds managed by CB&T or its affiliated companies; however, it does not consider whether a broker-dealer has sold shares of the funds managed by CB&T or its affiliated companies when placing any such orders for a client's portfolio transactions.

Client Referrals

CB&T does not consider client referrals from a broker-dealer or third party in selecting or recommending broker-dealers.

Directed Brokerage

In some instances, CB&T or its affiliates will accept a client's instructions to direct a portion of the account's brokerage commissions to a particular broker or group of brokers so long as the direction is consistent with CB&T's policy of seeking best execution. CB&T's ability to meet client direction requests will depend on the broker(s) selected by the client and the securities and markets in which the account invests, among other factors. Furthermore, CB&T and its affiliates will only accept requests to direct brokerage from clients who are subject to ERISA only if the client's direction program complies with ERISA.

Occasionally, clients direct CB&T to place all or a portion of their account's annual brokerage costs to one or several broker-dealers and do not require that directed trades be subject to CB&T's policy of seeking best execution. In these cases, CB&T may be limited in negotiating commissions with broker-dealers to whom it directs trades and such accounts may therefore pay higher commissions than those that do not direct brokerage in this way. Further, such trades are not aggregated with trades for CB&T's other clients and funds, and may be executed subsequent to trades for other CB&T accounts and funds. CB&T believes clients are best served when it has the full authority to determine the broker and negotiate commissions for securities transactions.

With directed brokerage arrangements of this type, CB&T cannot assure clients that they will be able to obtain best execution.

Aggregation and Allocation of Portfolio Transactions

Frequently, CB&T will place orders to purchase or sell the same security for a number of clients of CB&T of CB&T and its affiliates that are advised by the same investment division. CB&T typically aggregates such orders when they are substantially similar. As an aggregated order is executed, securities are allocated to clients in accordance with this policy. CB&T believes that placing aggregated or “block” trades is consistent with its duty to seek best execution. Further, a client’s trades are aggregated with those of other clients only if it is consistent with the terms of the client’s investment advisory agreement. CB&T may not aggregate certain trades only when it believes that doing so will not have a material impact on the price or quality of other transactions.

This policy is designed to allocate trades of the same security to clients in a fair and equitable manner over time, taking into consideration the interests of each client. Non-investment factors, such as fee arrangements, are not considered in selecting clients or allocating trades.

Equity Securities

When executing portfolio transactions in the same equity security for clients, funds or portions of funds over which CB&T, or any affiliates with which it manages assets, has investment discretion, CB&T and all such affiliates will normally aggregate purchases or sales and execute them as part of the same transaction or series of transactions. CB&T and its affiliates normally aggregate purchases or sales with those of funds, or portions of funds, and clients advised by the Capital International Investors and Capital World Investors equity investment divisions of Capital Research and Management Company.

In addition, restrictions in client accounts, such as broker selection requirements, may require that a client’s order be traded separately. Client accounts that are traded separately from the aggregate order may receive a less favorable execution price than the accounts that are part of the aggregate order.

Certain clients have requested CB&T to direct a portion of their trades to a particular broker-dealer, subject to the CB&T’s duty to seek best execution. If the trader believes that best execution would not be harmed by directing the client’s trade to the requested broker-dealer, then the trade for that client may be removed from the block to place the trade with the requested broker-dealer.

As an aggregated order is filled, executed equity trades are generally allocated pro rata to clients based on the authorized order size for each client at the time the trade is executed. All clients receive shares at the average execution price and pay a pro rata portion of all transaction costs. Allocated amounts will be rounded to take into account CB&T’s and market practices for lot sizes.

Special instructions. In certain circumstances, special portfolio manager instructions or other factors may result in a different allocation. For example, a portfolio manager may place an order for a particular fund or account subject to a price limit. If other open orders are not subject to the price limit, trades executed above the limit (in the case of purchases) or below the limit (in the case of sales) would be allocated without regard to the order with special instructions. Occasionally when there is a relatively small remaining open order and a very large new order is placed, trading may complete the small order before proceeding with the larger new order, rather than aggregating the orders.

Additional equity authorizations. If an additional order to purchase or sell a security is placed after the trader has begun to work the initial orders, the Equity Trading Platform allocates executed trades to participating accounts based on the initial orders and then begins a new allocation process based on the remaining open orders and the new orders. Under certain circumstances, traders are given discretion to include orders they receive after the trader has started to work an initial order with the initial aggregated order for allocation purposes. This may occur for example when an analyst has issued a recommendation in the morning and not all managers have had the opportunity to hear the recommendation before the start of trading or an order for the same security is subject to additional compliance approvals. The traders have discretion to allocate on this basis when to do so will be fair and equitable to all participating client accounts.

Program and list trades. CB&T and its affiliates serve as investment adviser for certain accounts that are designed to be substantially similar to another account. This type of account will often generate a large number of relatively small trades when it is rebalanced to its reference fund due to differing cash flows or when the account is initially started up. CB&T may not aggregate program trades or electronic list trades executed as part of this process. Non-aggregated trades performed for these accounts will be allocated entirely to that account. This is done only when CB&T believes doing so will not have a material impact on the price or quality of other transactions.

Minimum allocation size. Often, a single aggregated order is executed in a series of smaller transactions over a period of time. In those circumstances, some clients, particularly those that represent a small portion of an aggregated order, may incur significant trade ticket, custody and related fees due to multiple allocations. To reduce the transaction costs that clients may incur as a result of small allocations, CB&T may observe a minimum transaction size per client account. These minimums may vary by client account in an effort to treat all clients fairly and equitably.

Initial Public Offerings

Clients are selected to participate in initial public offerings of equity securities (“IPOs”) in the same manner as described above. The trading department aggregates authorized orders it receives for IPOs and places a block trade with the underwriting syndicate.

If the resulting allocation received from the underwriting syndicate is not sufficient to fill all orders, each equity investment division generally allocates the transaction on a pro rata basis based on each account’s authorized order size, unless the relevant investment committee approves another allocation. In certain circumstances orders are placed based on approximate fund asset size; however, no fund will be allocated more than its indication. Allocations may be subject to CB&T’s and its affiliates market practices for lot sizes. If the allocation places some client accounts below the minimum lot size, then the trading department will exclude those accounts in the allocation process and allocate the remaining shares to other clients on a pro rata basis.

Fixed-Income Securities

When executing portfolio transactions in the same fixed-income security for the funds and other clients over which CB&T has investment discretion, CB&T will normally aggregate such purchases or sales and execute them as part of the same transaction or series of transactions.

Fixed-income investment professionals select participating client accounts and place trade orders with the fixed-income trading department. Most trades are allocated on the day the trade is executed (“trade date”), but trades may be allocated on the next business day after the trade date. Executed trades are allocated considering portfolio guidelines and a variety of other factors including: (1) other securities held in the portfolios; (2) appropriateness of the security for the portfolios’ objectives; (3) industry/sector, issue/issuer holdings, portfolio analytic data; (4) size of the portfolios; (5) the size of the confirmed, executed transaction; (6) invested position of the portfolio; and (7) marketability of the security. Once a fixed-income trade has been executed and participating client accounts are identified as described above, all accounts receive the same purchase price when participating in a block trade.

Forward Currency Exchange Transactions

CB&T generally executes foreign currency transactions for funds or accounts over which it has investment discretion directly through broker-dealers; however, a fund's or account's custodian may be used to execute certain foreign exchange transactions. These include transactions in markets with legal restrictions or operational risks that make executing directly in those markets impractical.

Identification and Resolution of Trade Errors

CB&T maintains policies and procedures that address the identification and remediation of trade errors. These policies and procedures are designed to address the resolution of errors and to provide appropriate oversight and review of such errors. To the extent a trade error occurs, CB&T seeks to identify and resolve such error in a manner that is fair to its clients as promptly as possible. CB&T will address and resolve errors on a case-by-case basis, in its discretion, based on each error's facts and circumstances.

ITEM 13: REVIEW OF ACCOUNTS

Compliance and investment control teams monitor funds and accounts on an ongoing basis and perform periodic reviews. This monitoring and review is conducted to verify that funds and accounts are in compliance with their objectives and guidelines. In addition, certain portfolio data for funds and accounts is periodically reviewed by investment professionals, including portfolio managers.

The Commingled Funds are reviewed at least annually by a Committee of the CB&T Board or its designee. The review generally includes, among other things, information related to investment results, significant fund guidelines, and the investment structure of the portfolio. In addition, compliance teams of the investment advisers to CB&T also conduct regular reviews to verify that overall positions are appropriately aligned relative to the funds' objectives.

Investors in pooled investment vehicles are provided periodic portfolio statements and such other reports as they are specifically requested from time to time.

CGPCS clients receive monthly or quarterly detailed statements and such other reports as they may from time to time request.

ITEM 14: CLIENT REFERRALS AND OTHER COMPENSATION

CB&T may compensate affiliates for client referrals, client relations and marketing services.

CB&T or its affiliates from time to time compensate third parties for CGPCS client referrals pursuant to a written solicitation agreement. The solicitor must provide CB&T with a copy of the solicitor's separate written disclosure document provided to the client. No solicitation payments can be made prior to CB&T receiving a signed copy of the solicitation agreement and client acknowledgement letter that contains the applicable referral fee disclosures and acknowledgement of the fee arrangement.

Some of CB&T's clients and prospective clients retain investment consultants to evaluate and recommend investment advisers and their services. CB&T may provide investment management services to these consultants or their affiliates. CB&T is not affiliated with an investment consultant business and has never paid to gain favor from consultants in terms of future or continuing new business opportunities. Many consultants offer valuable services to investment managers, and CB&T and its affiliates regularly subscribe to various consultant services to gain access to their index and peer data and occasionally participate in their conferences and training programs. In addition, from time to time, CB&T and its affiliates co-sponsor with other managers or consultants, industry events such as conferences. Also, CB&T and its affiliates purchase other products or services from certain consultants such as data feed transmission, electronic services and related software.

ITEM 15: CUSTODY

CB&T does not have physical custody of client assets but is deemed to have custody of certain client assets and Commingled Funds, as defined under rule 206(4)-2 of the Investment Advisers Act. Clients for which CB&T is deemed to have custody will receive account statements from a third party custodian bank quarterly or monthly and should carefully review those statements against the account statements provided by CB&T, if applicable. Investors in the Commingled Funds will receive audited financial statements within 120 days after the fund's fiscal year end.

If a third party inadvertently delivers client securities or funds to CB&T, such securities or funds generally will be forwarded to the client or the client's custodian. In certain circumstances, however, they may be returned to sender.

ITEM 16: INVESTMENT DISCRETION

For Commingled Funds:

CB&T maintains Commingled Funds pursuant to their governing declarations of trust and engages other service providers, including affiliates, to assist in the administration and investment management of these funds. CB&T has retained CRMC and CIInc to each serve as investment adviser to the trustee for the Commingled Funds. CB&T can also act as fiduciary with respect to a particular client's assets transferred to CB&T for investment in the Commingled Funds, as directed by the client pursuant to an agreement. However, outside of the CGPCS business CB&T does not generally exercise discretion with regard to a particular client's decision to invest in one or more commingled fund.

For CGPCS clients:

When CB&T is retained on a discretionary basis pursuant to an investment management agreement it is generally authorized, without client consultation or consent to determine, among other things:

- what securities are to be bought or sold;
- the amount of securities to be bought or sold;
- the prices at which securities are to be bought or sold;
- the broker or dealer to be used; and
- the commissions to be paid.

CB&T normally agrees with clients to investment guidelines for new accounts that set forth the objectives of the account and specific investment restrictions and limitations. The guidelines typically describe the investment mandate and types of securities that are eligible for (or prohibited from) the account. For investments in funds, the terms of the fund's governing documents will apply. However, assets that a client delivers to their account shall be considered non-discretionary assets until that client and CB&T have agreed on the asset allocation applicable to such assets and whether any such assets will not be managed by CB&T. CGPCS non-discretionary assets shall also include assets that the client and CB&T have agreed will be subject to client's sole investment discretion.

Investment discretion and authorizations are described in the investment management agreement signed by CB&T and the client. The agreement, including any unique investment guidelines, is typically reviewed by administrative and legal personnel (as required) before being signed.

ITEM 17: VOTING CLIENT SECURITIES

CB&T receives investment advisory services from affiliated investment advisers who execute trades for the Commingled Funds and has adopted each adviser's Proxy Voting Policies as it relates to those funds. Please refer to the ADV Part 2A Brochures of our affiliated registered investment advisers, CRMC, and CIIInc for more information about their practices related to voting client securities. CB&T will provide a copy of these materials to its clients upon request.

CB&T accepts proxy voting authority from its CGPCS clients and follows its Proxy Voting Policy and Procedures, which are summarized below. If CB&T has voting authority for a client account, it generally does not provide the client the option to direct a proxy vote with respect to a particular solicitation.

Some clients reserve the right to vote proxies and do not give CB&T the authority to vote on their behalf. In those cases, clients should contact their custodian about receiving proxies. CB&T would not expect to discuss particular solicitations with clients for whom it does not have proxy voting authority.

Summary of Proxy Voting Policy and Procedures - CGPCS clients

CB&T considers proxy voting an important part of those management services, and as such, CB&T seeks to vote the proxies of securities held by clients in accounts for which it has proxy voting authority in the best interest of those clients. The procedures that govern this activity are reasonably designed to ensure that proxies are voted in the best interest of CB&T's clients. Proxy issues are evaluated on their merits and considered in the context of the analyst's knowledge of a company, its current management, management's past record, and CB&T's general position on the issue.

CB&T has developed proxy voting guidelines that reflect its general position and practice on various issues. To preserve the ability of decision makers to make the best decision in each case, these guidelines are intended only to provide context and are not intended to dictate how the issue must be voted. The guidelines are reviewed and updated as necessary, but at least annually, by the appropriate proxy voting and investment committees.

Associates on the proxy voting team in CB&T's Portfolio Control department are responsible for coordinating the voting of proxies. These associates work with outside proxy voting service providers and custodian banks and are responsible for coordinating and documenting the internal review of proxies. Standard proxy items are typically voted with management unless the research analyst who follows the company or a member of an investment or proxy voting committee requests additional review. Standard items currently include the uncontested election of directors, ratifying auditors, adopting reports and accounts, setting dividends and allocating profits for the prior year, and certain other administrative items. All other items are voted in accordance with the decision of the analyst, portfolio managers, investment specialists, the appropriate proxy voting committee or the full investment committee(s) depending on parameters determined by those investment committee(s) from time to time. Various proxy voting committees specialize in regional mandates and review the proxies of portfolio companies within their mandates.

From time to time CB&T votes a) on proxies of portfolio companies that are also clients of CB&T or its affiliates, b) on shareholder proposals submitted by clients, or c) on proxies for which clients have publicly supported or actively solicited CB&T or its affiliates to support a particular position. When voting these proxies, CB&T analyzes the issues on their merits and does not consider any client relationship in a way that interferes with its responsibility to vote proxies in the best interest of its clients. The CB&T Special Review Committee reviews certain of these proxy decisions for improper influences on the decision-making process and takes appropriate action, if necessary.

If a research analyst has a personal conflict in making a voting recommendation on a proxy issue, he or she must disclose such conflict, along with his or her recommendation. If a member of the proxy voting committee has a personal conflict in voting the proxy, he or she must disclose such conflict to the appropriate proxy voting committee and must not vote on the issue.

This summary of CB&T's Proxy Voting Policy and Procedures is qualified by the full policy, which is available on request.

Also upon request, CB&T will provide to clients for whom it has proxy voting authority, reports of its proxy voting record related to the securities held in that client's account.

ITEM 18: FINANCIAL INFORMATION

CB&T does not require or solicit pre-payment of investment advisory fees in advance.

CB&T is not aware of any financial condition that is reasonably likely to impair its ability to meet its contractual commitments.

ITEM 19: REQUIREMENTS FOR STATE-REGISTERED ADVISERS

CB&T is not registered with any state securities authority.
