4. SERVICES, FEES AND COMPENSATION

GIA sponsors a wrap fee program which is available to Guggenheim Wealth Management (“GWM”) clients. The GIA wrap program consists of investment advisory services offered on a discretionary or non-discretionary basis and may include access to Riskometry™, model portfolios and private investment funds; asset allocation; investment manager (each, an “Investment Manager”) selection; portfolio implementation, monitoring and rebalancing; and reporting. Recommended investments may include Private Funds (as described below in this Wrap Fee Program Brochure) or other products or services that may be offered, advised or managed by GIA and Investment Managers that may be affiliates of GIA.

The GIA wrap program offers the same investment advisory services offered to GWM clients that do not participate in the wrap program. Custody for wrap program clients is provided by J.P. Morgan Clearing Corp. GIA charges clients a fee for the bundling of services rendered through the wrap program based on a percentage of assets under management. Guggenheim Investor Services, LLC (“GIS”), a U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission registered broker-dealer, member of FINRA and SIPC, and an affiliate of GIA may provide certain brokerage services for the wrap program. Wrap program clients are not charged a separate fee for GIS services.

Wrap program clients are eligible to make investments in the Access Funds, which are a type of Private Fund (see Item 6, “PORTFOLIO MANAGER SELECTION AND EVALUATION – Advisory Business.”) The Access Funds are the Guggenheim Onshore Access Fund, LLC and the Guggenheim Offshore Access Fund, Ltd., (together the “Access Funds”) are unmanaged pooled investment vehicles that provide access for investors to private investment funds offered, managed or advised by independent Investment Managers. Access Fund subscribers invest in a Series of the respective Access Fund that corresponds to an investment in an underlying private fund. Advisors may select any combination of managers or select managers based on theme-driven pools.

With respect to each client, the wrap fee is set forth in the investment advisory agreement at the time it is signed and/or amended. Although wrap fees may be negotiated, generally, the wrap fee is expressed as a percentage of the value of the assets under management, typically in the range of 0.75%-2.00% per year. The wrap fee typically accrues at the end of each month and is payable quarterly in arrears.

The wrap fee is negotiable will vary based on the types of assets included in client’s portfolio, the complexity and size of the portfolio, the services to be provided and other factors. Accordingly, the wrap fee for any given client may be higher or lower than for any other client. Under certain circumstances, the wrap fee may be structured as a fixed fee.

The wrap fee represents the fee payable to GIA. The wrap fee may not include, among other things, Investment Manager fees, managed fund and mutual fund fees that may be payable under the terms of the applicable fund, brokerage fees, custodial fees or other third party fees. GIA does not charge commissions or markups to wrap program clients, and GIA does not seek any fees or commissions from third parties with respect to client transactions. GIS does not charge any brokerage fees to wrap program clients, however it may receive commissions paid by funds that are recommended to a wrap program clients.

When considering the wrap program, a prospective client should be aware that the wrap program may cost more or less than purchasing advisory, brokerage and custodial services included in the wrap program separately. The factors that should be considered by a prospective client include the size of the client's portfolio, the nature of the investments to be managed, custodial expenses, the anticipated level of trading activity, commission costs, if any, and the amount of advisory fees for managing the client portfolio.

5. ACCOUNT REQUIREMENTS AND TYPES OF CLIENTS

GIA generally offers the wrap program services to clients such as high net worth individuals, trusts and other entities that have a minimum of $50 million of investable assets. However, GIA may accept wrap program clients with fewer assets.

6. PORTFOLIO MANAGER SELECTION AND EVALUATION

GIA's portfolio management team provides all portfolio management services for GIA. The portfolio management team is responsible for the following areas with respect to investment advice for clients: (i) portfolio modeling and asset allocation and (ii) Investment Manager and investment vehicle evaluation and (iii) Private Fund advising and management.

The GIA portfolio management team develops customized portfolio models and asset allocation recommendations based on an investor's objectives and restrictions. For portfolio modeling and asset allocation, GIA uses Riskometry, a proprietary risk assessment program that evaluates how people actually behave during a variety of market conditions. Riskometry examines the psychology of investing and considers the intuitive responses and behavioral biases that individuals exhibit when considering risk tolerance for investing. GIA evaluates an investor's risk tolerance through the use of specialized questionnaires, as well as a review of an investor's holdings and current financial situation. The portfolio management team uses proprietary software to evaluate and test the effects of multiple portfolio strategies and assist in developing an investor's investment policy statement ("Investment Policy Statement"). The Investment Policy Statement includes the portfolio objectives and guidelines, which may contain liquidity constraints, asset or liability matching goals, drawdown provisions, legal investment structures, domicile of investment, volatility and risk (different beta limitations), as well as other instructions regarding investments, such as the continued holding of particular investments and limitations based on social issues or other matters.

With respect to Investment Manager and investment vehicle selection, GIA's portfolio management team employs a detailed approach to researching and selecting Investment Managers suitable for investment. This analysis and selection process is performed for individual clients and Private Funds. GIA identifies potential Investment Managers through networks established by analysts at GIA and its affiliates, as well as through periodicals, directories and databases containing information about Investment Managers. After a potential Investment Manager is identified, GIA and/or one of its affiliates will perform investment, operational and/or other due diligence on the Investment Managers and its key personnel through a variety of methods, including a review of the Investment Manager's offering documents and SEC or other regulatory filings (if applicable), as well as interviews with the Investment Manager's personnel (both principals and staff).

After an Investment Manager has been approved, GIA and/or one of its affiliates conduct on-going reviews and analysis of the Investment Manager's investment performance, including adherence to its investment strategy, guidelines and restrictions. Investment manager performance is reviewed relative to applicable major market and style indices, on an absolute basis and on a risk-adjusted basis.

GIA may cease recommending an Investment Manager for reasons including but not limited to changes in management or ownership, poor performance, failure to follow a stated investment discipline or other concerns, or because of the identification of an alternative Investment Manager that provides similar investment characteristics but is thought to be superior.

GIA evaluates Investment Managers specializing in a wide variety of financial instruments and investment strategies, including (i) domestic and international fixed income, including taxable and tax-exempt; (ii) equity and long-short equity securities, including domestic, international and developing economy; (iii) real assets and inflation-related strategies, including real estate, commodities and inflation-linked financial instruments; and (iv) multi-strategy funds, such as opportunistic, relative value, distressed securities, global macro, managed futures, market neutral and event driven. The Investment Managers execute their strategies by advising separately managed accounts and pooled investment vehicles such as mutual funds and private or hedge funds and other products.

GIA seeks out Investment Managers with a range of disciplines to make a wide variety of strategies available. Each of the investment strategies has risks. Investing in securities involves risk of loss that an investor should be prepared to bear.

Wrap program clients generally may invest with Investment Managers, either through a pooled investment vehicle or separate account managed by a particular Investment Manager. An investment in a pooled investment vehicle, including the Private Funds that are managed or advised by GIA, that allocate assets to Investment Managers carries certain risks that are described below.

Investment Manager Risk. There is no guarantee that the manager of a Private Fund will be successful in selecting portfolio managers. Decisions regarding timing, size of allocation to Investment Managers and the overall mix of trading styles will all impact the performance.

Limited Transparency. To the extent that a Private Fund invests in an Investment Manager's private fund, GIA will have limited access to information that might permit early detection of problems or management issues. Many Investment Managers do not distribute performance figures until month or quarter end, and information on their positions may be vague. The timeliness and usefulness of that information could create issues for the management of the Private Fund.

General Investment Risk. All investments in securities and other financial instruments involve substantial risk of volatility (potentially resulting in rapid declines in market prices and significant losses) arising from any number of factors that are beyond the control of the Investment Manager, such as: changing market sentiment; changes in industrial conditions, competition and technology; changes in inflation, exchange or interest rates; changing domestic or international economic or political conditions or events; changes in tax laws and governmental regulation; and changes in trade, fiscal, monetary or exchange control programs or policies of governments or their agencies (including their central banks).

Past Performance Is No Guarantee of Future Results. There is no guarantee that an Investment Manager that has profitably executed a strategy in the past will continue to be profitable in the future.

Leverage. The investment strategies used by Investment Managers may require the use of substantial leverage, which may magnify the degree of risk, as well as the opportunity for gain. To the extent that the Investment Manager uses leverage in a separately managed account, its trading positions may result in losses that exceed the value of the assets committed to the managed account.

Use of Derivatives. Certain of the Investment Managers may use derivative instruments, including futures contracts, option contracts, swap agreements and forward contracts, as well as derivative techniques for hedging or speculative purposes. The use of such instruments or techniques may result in significant leveraging of the assets of the fund or account managed by the Investment Manager.

The risk factors described above are not exhaustive, but rather represent some of the more common risks ascribed to investing in portfolios and products that are advised or recommended by GIA. Additional risks may apply to specific pooled investment vehicles (including the Private Funds), separately managed accounts and other products and are more fully described in the offering and other disclosure documents that may be provided to an investor. All investments are subject to the risk of loss that an investor should be prepared to bear.

See Item 9, “ADDITIONAL INFORMATION- Review of Accounts” for additional information on standards used to calculate performance and account review and valuation.

Related Persons

The portfolio management team is responsible for asset allocation and portfolio management for accounts participating in the GIA wrap fee program. GIA affiliates do not provide portfolio advice to the GIA wrap fee program. GIA may recommend investments in separately managed accounts, pooled investment vehicles such as mutual funds, exchange traded funds and private or hedge funds, as well as other products that may be offered, managed or advised by GIA or one of its affiliates as described above. GIA and/or its affiliates may receive compensation as an Investment Manager or other service provider for funds, accounts or products; however, neither GIA nor any of its supervised persons is compensated directly for the sale of a product or service offered, managed or advised by an affiliate.

Advisory Business

For the wrap program, GIA’s “Guggenheim Wealth Management” or “GWM,” business is described at Item 4, “SERVICES, FEES AND COMPENSATION.” The GIA wrap program offers the same investment advisory services offered to GWM clients that do not participate in the wrap program. Advisory services are provided to GWM clients on both a discretionary and a non-discretionary basis.

GIA also provides services through the management of certain strategy funds (collectively, the “Private Funds”). The Private Funds to which GIA provides its services are exempt from registration under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended (the “Investment Company Act”), and interests in such Private Funds are not registered under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended. The Private Funds are offered on private placement basis, exclusively to investors who meet the specific requirements set forth in the offering documents for each Private Fund. Currently, the Private Funds that GIA manages may invest in separately managed accounts, as well as pooled investment vehicles such as mutual funds, exchange traded funds and other private or hedge funds that are organized, controlled, advised and/or managed by Investment Managers. Selected Investment Managers may or may not be affiliates of GIA. Certain Private Funds may also invest in and directly hold financial instruments. GIA has discretionary authority with respect to the Private Funds’ investment allocations to the Investment Managers; however Investment Managers generally have discretion with respect to investing and trading activities related to that allocation. GIA manages the Private Funds in accordance with the terms of the applicable investment management agreements, service agreements, organizational documents or offering documents.

GIA does not restrict its investment advice to certain specific types of investments; however decisions regarding portfolio recommendations will be made in accordance with the applicable investor’s, Private Fund’s stated investment objectives, including limitations on investment.

Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

GIA may charge certain GWM clients performance-based fees and other clients, including certain wrap program clients, only a management fee based on a percentage of the client's net assets under management. GIA charges others, including Private Funds that are executed through and maintained by an independent investment adviser a management fee based on the net assets under management. Fees for services provided to Intermediaries will be negotiated and billed on a case-by-case basis, but no performance fees are charged currently.

GIA may face conflicts of interest by managing accounts for GWM clients charged a performance-based fee and accounts for GWM clients charged only a management fee or a flat fee, including that GIA may have an incentive to favor accounts for which it receives performance-based fees. GIA's performance fees may create an incentive for it to make investments that are riskier or more speculative than would be the case in the absence of such fees because GIA benefits from such fees on the appreciation in value of the applicable investments. Moreover, the Private Funds may invest in separately managed accounts and pooled investment vehicles, such as mutual funds, exchange traded funds and other private or hedge funds that are organized, controlled and/or managed by Investment Managers, including affiliates of GIA, that are compensated in whole or in part based on the appreciation in value (including unrealized appreciation) of the assets managed by the Investment Managers. This type of arrangement may create an incentive for the Investment Managers to make investments that are riskier or more speculative than would be the case in the absence of such an arrangement. All Private Fund offering documents disclose where performance fees may be charged by an Investment Manager to the Private Fund.

Voting Client Securities

GIA does not vote proxies or corporate actions with respect to securities in portfolios. Investors retain the responsibility for voting proxies and other corporate actions that are held in the name of the individual investor. This policy applies to all GWM clients, including wrap program clients.

Generally, an investor will receive proxies or other solicitations directly from its custodian or a transfer agent. In the event that GIA receives proxy materials or other solicitations on behalf of an investor, GIA will forward such information to the investor.

With respect to the Private Funds, GIA does not vote securities in the ordinary course of business. GIA generally will authorize Investment Managers to exercise voting rights with respect to the securities held by a separately managed account, and an Investment Manager are authorized to exercise voting rights for a pooled investment vehicle that it manages. Certain Investment Managers, however, may not accept authority to exercise voting rights on behalf of a separately managed account. In such a case, or if a Private Fund invests directly in securities that have voting rights, GIA's portfolio management team will be responsible for voting such securities. The portfolio management team, in accordance with its written guidelines, will evaluate voting for board memberships, corporate organizational and policy matters and corporate actions such as tender offers and exchange offers.

Investors may contact GIA at 212-901-9405 with operational questions about proxy materials or solicitations, but GIA will not advise on the merits of a particular solicitation.

7. CLIENT INFORMATION PROVIDED TO PORTFOLIO MANAGERS

GIA encourages ongoing communication between its clients and portfolio managers for client portfolios. Clients in the wrap program provide personal and financial information to GIA. Each wrap program client has a relationship manager who, among other things, is principally responsible for gathering information about the client and collecting account documentation.

The portfolio management team monitors client portfolios on an ongoing basis. At least quarterly, the performance of wrap program client portfolios is evaluated on an absolute, relative and risk-adjusted basis and for compliance with the Investment Policy Statement established for the portfolio. At least annually, the Portfolio Managers will review a client's Investment Policy Statement to confirm that it remains consistent with client stated goals and objectives. Typically, relationship managers will meet with clients at least annually, and more frequently if requested by a client, to review the client's portfolio, including performance, market conditions, financial circumstances and investment objectives. For additional information, see Item 9, "ADDITIONAL INFORMATION- Review of Accounts."

8. CLIENT CONTACT WITH PORTFOLIO MANAGERS

GIA encourages ongoing communication between its clients and their GIA portfolio managers with respect to client portfolios. There are no restrictions placed on the clients' ability to contact and consult with their GIA portfolio managers.

GIA may recommend investments in separately managed accounts, pooled investment vehicles such as mutual funds, exchange traded funds and private or hedge funds, as well as other products that may be offered, managed or advised by GIA or one of its affiliates as described above. GIA and/or its affiliates may receive compensation as an Investment Manager or other service provider for funds, accounts or products; however, GIA is not compensated directly for the sale of a product or service offered, managed or advised by an affiliate. GIA will have a conflict between its obligation to act in the best interests of its clients and any interest that GIA’s affiliates may have in generating revenues for themselves or promoting themselves. Such conflicts are disclosed in this Wrap Fee Program Brochure, and may be disclosed in the offering materials for of pooled investment vehicles, separately managed accounts and other products or services managed or advised by GIA and/or its affiliates.

GIA does not have any relationships that are material to its advisory business or to its clients with a bank or thrift institution, an accountant or accounting firm, a lawyer or a law firm, or a real estate broker or dealer.

Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

GIA has adopted a Code of Ethics (“Code of Ethics”) pursuant to the Advisers Act Rule 204A-1. The Code of Ethics applies to all employees and is designed to address conflicts of interest arising among GIA, its employees and client transactions that may arise during the course of business. It is also designed to detect and prevent the misuse of material, nonpublic information. The Code of Ethics is based upon the principle that GIA’s employees owe a fiduciary duty to clients to conduct their affairs, including their personal securities transactions, in such a manner as to avoid: (i) serving their own personal interests ahead of clients; (ii) taking inappropriate advantage of their position with GIA; and (iii) any actual or potential conflicts of interest or any abuse of the position of responsibility. The Code of Ethics establishes policies and procedures that are reasonably designed to (a) prevent improper personal trading, (b) identify circumstances that may result in an actual or potential conflict of interest or the appearance thereof, and (c) provide a means to resolve such conflicts. Generally, the Code of Ethics requires each employee of GIA and any other person subject to GIA’s supervision and control to obtain prior approval of all personal transactions in securities. Clients and prospective clients may request a copy of GIA’s Code of Ethics at the address or telephone number listed on the first page of this Wrap Fee Program Brochure.

For wrap program clients, GIA may recommend investments in separately managed accounts, pooled investment vehicles, such as mutual funds, exchange traded funds and other private or hedge funds and other products that are managed or advised by GIA and/or one affiliates. GIA and/or its affiliates may receive asset-based compensation as an issuer, underwriter, manager or adviser to such funds, accounts or products. This may create an incentive for GIA to recommend such separately managed accounts, pooled investment vehicles, such as mutual funds, exchange traded funds and other private or hedge funds or other products for investors and clients, including the Private Funds, rather than recommending investment vehicles that are managed or advised by independent third parties. In addition, GIA’s portfolio management fees and expenses, combined with fees charged by separately managed accounts, pooled investment vehicles, such as mutual funds, exchange traded funds and other private or hedge funds or other products managed or advised by GIA and/or its affiliates may result in an additional layer of fees and greater expense than would be associated with direct investment.

Affiliates of GIA also may serve as service providers with respect to transactions, including as brokers and providers of other financial services for wrap program clients. Further, as described above, GIA may recommend investments in financial instruments issued, underwritten, distributed by or otherwise sponsored by its affiliates. The use of affiliated service providers, brokers, counterparties or distributors creates certain conflicts of interest between GIA’s duties to its investors and its incentive to direct business to such affiliates. Additionally, affiliated service providers or brokers may not have the same independence with respect to the performance of their duties to a client as an unaffiliated service provider, broker or Investment Manager.

Such conflicts are disclosed in this Wrap Fee Program Brochure, as well as in the offering materials for pooled investment vehicles such as the Private Funds.

GIA will not effect any cross transactions for GWM clients, including wrap program clients. Private Funds may be recommended to wrap program clients. Although GIA has not done so, it may effect cross transactions for the Private Funds in accordance with the policies of the Private Funds, as set forth in the offering documents for the Private Funds, and in compliance with the Advisers Act and applicable law.

Review of Accounts

Each wrap program client portfolio is reviewed quarterly by committee of the portfolio management team. The purpose of the quarterly reviews is to (1) assess the performance of the assets with respect to the chosen strategies; (2) determine whether the assets have been allocated in accordance with each investor's Investment Policy Statement portfolio mandates and/or execution schedule; (3) determine whether adjustments should be made to assets within an investment or asset category; and (4) determine whether adjustments need to be made to assets as a result of market factors, internal investment research and/or changes in client circumstance.

The portfolio management team may also conduct ad hoc reviews or assessments of specific accounts. These reviews are generally prompted by market factors (e.g., volatility resulting in significant increases or decreases in market value) and/or changes in investor circumstance (e.g., cash flow needs, risk tolerance or investment time horizon).

On a quarterly basis, each wrap program client is provided with a written performance report (a "Performance Report"), which details a portfolio's performance and includes explanatory charts and graphs, and also may compare performance to benchmarks and/or indices such as the S & P 500 Equity Index and Barclays Aggregate Bond Index where appropriate.

Performance Reports are prepared by third party providers using data provided by custodians, Investment Managers and independent pricing services. Publicly traded securities are valued based on information obtained from an independent pricing service and custodian statements. Private funds (including hedge funds, private equity, real estate and venture capital or other funds) are valued based on statements or information provided by or on behalf of a private fund (including its administrator).

GIA uses third-party software for record keeping, performance calculation and reporting. GIA reports performance using Time-Weighted Rates of Returns ("TWR"). TWR is a series of geometrically linked internal rates of return ("IRRs"). By geometrically linking the IRRs from each sub-period (usually one-month periods), any impact on of returns caused by cash flows moving through an account is minimized. GIA uses TWR because by minimizing the effects of large cash flows, it better reflects the performance of underlying assets and allows for more accurate comparisons of performance of portfolios to benchmarks and/or the returns of different Investment Managers.

If requested by a wrap program client, GIA may include information on assets that are not in the portfolio in the Performance Report, though the inclusion of this information may result in an additional fee to the client. To the extent that the value of other assets is included in a Performance Report at the request of the client, the values are reported as provided by the client. GIA will not independently verify the valuation and/or pricing information provided by the investor.

From time to time GIA may adjust previously reported returns. This may occur because we receive corrected or more current information. The most common reason is due to the use of estimates reported by a private fund. When actual or corrected information is received, GIA compares it to the estimated information. If the difference is material (generally, a variance of over 0.50%), GIA will, for each affected investor, calculate the dollar amount of the change to the valuation of the affected portfolio. If such amount represents 50 basis points or more of the total value of an investor's portfolio, GIA will issue a revised Performance Report. Historically, these differences typically have not been material, however, with a negligible effect on historical quarterly returns and, thus, in the ordinary course past reports will not be revised.

Clients in the wrap program may invest in the Private Funds that GIA offers.

Private Fund Reviews. The portfolio management team communicates with members of GIA's operations and research teams to review the status of Private Funds. Periodic reports are prepared to show the investment performance and risk exposures of the Private Funds. Based on investment performance and market conditions, GIA's portfolio management team assesses the risk exposures of the Private Funds, along with their investment allocations among the various investment strategies and Investment Managers to make decisions concerning the allocation or re-allocation of holdings among such investment strategies and/or Investment Managers. A review of the Private Funds' allocations may also be triggered by any unusual activity.

GIA generally reviews each Private Fund's portfolio allocations monthly or more frequently and reviews the investment objectives for all Private Funds at least annually.

Investors in the Private Funds receive monthly unaudited statements showing account net asset values, changes in account values and account activity. On an annual basis, investors in the Private Funds also receive copies of the relevant Private Fund's audited financial statements.

Client Referrals and Other Compensation

GIA does not receive economic benefits from non-clients for providing investment advice and other advisory services. GIA may compensate an affiliated solicitor, including its own employees, affiliates, employees of its affiliates or third party solicitors, including placement agents, finders, distributors or similar persons who refer clients to GIA or solicit or place interests in the Private Funds to prospective investors. Any such compensation generally is expected to be paid by GIA to the solicitor and will not result in any additional charge to its clients, including the Private Funds.

Where applicable, GIA acts in accordance with the Advisers Act Rule 206(4)-3 and other applicable federal and state laws.

Solicitation fees may be calculated as a percentage of the wrap fees or allocations actually received by GIA or its affiliates with respect to such clients or interests.

Financial Information

GIA does not require or solicit the prepayment of wrap fees. All wrap fees are billed in arrears. Management fees for a Private Fund in which a wrap program client may invest may be charged monthly or quarterly, generally in arrears, and are pro-rated for partial periods.

GIA is not required to include a balance sheet for its most recent fiscal year, is not aware of any financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to its clients, and has never been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.

10. REQUIREMENTS FOR STATE-REGISTERED ADVISERS

This item is not applicable to GIA.
