Item 4 – Advisory Business

Legacy Capital Group California started as an early shared vision between Richard Baer and Brent Bunger and the two officially formed Legacy Capital Group California in 1992.

Richard Baer and Brent Bunger are the principal owners of Legacy Capital Group California, each owning 47.5% of the privately held company.

They created a company based on the guiding principal that the wealth of a client belongs to that client; it is their money and their choice what they do with it. Legacy Capital Group California's job is to assist them in making the right decisions for their dreams, their life, and their legacy.

Legacy Capital Group California does not:

- manage investment advisory accounts not involving investment supervisory services
- issue periodicals about securities by subscription
- issue special reports about securities not included in any service described above
- provide a timing service
- participate in any defined wrap-fee programs

Legacy Capital Group California does:

- furnish investment advice through consultations
- on more than an occasional basis, furnish advice to clients on matters not involving securities
- furnish advice about securities, money managers and managed accounts

Legacy Capital Group California does not take custody of any client asset, nor does it have discretionary authority. The discretionary authority is given, by the individual account holder, to the Money Manager(s) selected to manage the client's assets. Legacy Capital Group California will recommend to the client the Money Manager(s) to use along with other investment opportunities as well as the percentage to allocate to each recommendation. However, the final decision is made by the investor.

The total assets Legacy Capital Group California is providing assistance, advice and recommendations for as of April 30, 2013 is $238,638,320.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

The specific manner in which fees are charged by Legacy Capital Group California is established in a client's written agreement with us. Legacy Capital Group California will generally bill its planning fees in two parts: the initial fee is typically $5,000 and is due via check from the client at the time the planning agreement is entered into. The second portion of the planning fee, typically $5,000, is due and payable upon completion and presentation of the financial plan either via electronic mail, upload to a secure site or physical delivery. The second payment is typically waived if a client chooses to continue working with Legacy Capital Group California with regard to its recommendations. In the case of an extremely complicated plan, the typical fee may be increased and/or combined with hourly consulting fees. In any case, the fee will be quoted and agreed upon prior to any work being performed.

All fees are subject to negotiation.

Legacy Capital Group California fees are exclusive of brokerage commissions, transaction fees, and other related costs and expenses which shall be incurred by the client. Clients may incur certain charges imposed by custodians, brokers, third party investments, and other third parties such as fees charged by managers, custodial fees, deferred sales charges, odd-lot differentials, transfer taxes, wire transfers and electronic fund fees, and other fees and taxes on brokerage accounts and securities transactions. Mutual funds and exchange traded funds also charge internal management fees, which are disclosed in a fund's prospectus.

Such charges, fees and commissions are exclusive of and in addition to Legacy Capital Group California's planning fee. Legacy Capital Group California may receive a portion of the fees the money manager and/or Investment collects from the investor or investor's account. These fees and/or commissions provide Legacy Capital Group California's primary compensation.

The fee collection frequency and manner will be detailed in each investment agreement and may be different between investments. The fees charged by the money manager/investment may include performance fees. Performance fees will only be collected by the fund manager in the case of an alternative investment such as a hedge fund. The alternative investment fund manager may share a portion of the performance fee with Legacy Capital Group California.

Item 12 further describes the factors that Legacy Capital Group California considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

Written Feasibility Studies:

Legacy Capital Group California provides written feasibility studies for the analysis and design component of its practice. These reports may include tax projection estimates prepared in-house or in conjunction with outside tax counsel. These reports may also include:

- * Financial Projections
- * Cash Flow Estimates
- * Tax Projection Estimates
- * Portfolio Allocations and Reallocations
- * Strategies for Estate/Tax Planning
- * Philanthropic Estate/Tax Planning
- * Life Insurance Analysis and Recommendations
- * Employee Stock Option Exercise and Tax Strategies
- * Retirement Anticipation Planning

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Legacy Capital Group California does not charge any performance-based fees (fees based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the assets of a client).

However, some of the investments it recommends may. In such case, the Investment or Money Manager will enter into performance fee arrangements via their typical account/investment establishment paperwork with qualified clients. The Investment or Money Manager will structure any performance or incentive fee arrangement subject to Section 205(a)(1) of the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 (The Advisors Act) in accordance with the available exemptions thereunder, including the exemption set forth in Rule 205-3. In measuring clients' assets for the calculation of performance-based fees, the Investment or Money Manager shall include realized and unrealized capital gains and losses. Receiving a portion of performance based fee from the Investment or Money Manager may create an incentive for Legacy Capital Group California to recommend investments which may be riskier or more speculative than those which would be recommended under a different fee arrangement. Such fee arrangements also create an incentive to favor higher performance fee paying accounts over other accounts in the allocation of investment opportunities. Legacy Capital Group California has procedures designed and implemented to ensure all clients are treated fairly and equally, and to prevent this conflict from influencing the allocation of investment opportunities among clients.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics

Legacy Capital Group California has adopted a Code of Ethics for all supervised persons of the firm describing its high standard of business conduct, and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Ethics includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, a prohibition of rumor mongering, restrictions on the acceptance of significant gifts and the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. All supervised persons at Legacy Capital Group California must acknowledge the terms of the Code of Ethics annually, or as amended.

Legacy Capital Group California anticipates that, in appropriate circumstances, consistent with clients' investment objectives, it will cause accounts over which Legacy Capital Group California has management authority to effect, and will recommend to investment advisory clients or prospective clients, the purchase or sale of securities in which Legacy Capital Group California, its affiliates and/or clients, directly or indirectly, have a position of interest. Legacy Capital Group California's employees and persons associated with Legacy Capital Group California are required to follow our Code of Ethics. Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of Legacy Capital Group California and its affiliates may trade for their own accounts in investments which are recommended to and/or purchased for Legacy Capital Group California's clients.

The Code of Ethics is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the employees of Legacy Capital Group California will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts.

Under the Code, certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of Legacy Capital Group California's clients. In addition, the Code requires pre-clearance of many transactions, and restricts trading in close proximity to client trading activity. Nonetheless, because the Code of Ethics in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. Employee trading is monitored under the Code of Ethics, and to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Legacy Capital Group California and its clients.

Legacy Capital Group California's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Legacy Capital Group California at (408) 939-6330 or info@legacycapitalgroup.com.

It is Legacy Capital Group California's policy that the firm will not affect any principal or agency cross securities transactions for client accounts. Legacy Capital Group California will also not cross trades between client accounts. Principal transactions are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliated broker-dealer, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. A principal transaction may also be deemed to have occurred if a security is crossed between an affiliated hedge fund and another client account. An agency cross transaction is defined as a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser, or any person controlled by or under common control with the investment adviser, acts as broker for both the advisory client and for another person on the other side of the transaction. Agency cross transactions may arise where an adviser is dually registered as a broker-dealer or has an affiliated broker-dealer.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

Legacy Capital Group California does not receive any soft dollar benefits from a broker-dealer or third party in connection with client security transactions.

Richard Baer, Brent Bunger and Legacy Capital Group California hereby inform clients they are registered with NFP Securities, Inc. In appropriate situations, clients may be referred to NFP Securities, Inc. for implementation of a financial or other investment plan. Clients are under no obligation to purchase securities through NFP Securities, Inc.

Legacy Capital Group California does not require, but does recommend the broker-dealer. Not all advisers require their clients to direct brokerage. Legacy Capital Group California does not. By directing brokerage, Legacy Capital Group California may be unable to achieve most favorable execution of client transactions, and this practice may cost clients more money.

For instance, the advisor may recommend a non-security, such as a First Trust Deed, to an investor, for which the advisor may receive a portion of the fees. The advisor may receive finder's fees or other solicitation fees for referring clients to third party investment advisers and hedge funds. Likewise, third parties may pay finder's fees and other solicitation fees to Legacy Capital Group California for its referrals of individuals to their services or programs including but not limited to non-clients, investment advisors, accountants, qualified individuals, and/or law firms.

From time to time, Legacy Capital Group California may pay referral fees to individuals qualified as solicitors. These and all such referral fees will be made and or received in accordance with SEC Rules.

Item 15 – Custody

Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains client's investment assets. Legacy Capital Group California urges clients to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that Legacy Capital Group California may provide. Legacy Capital Group California's statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Legacy Capital Group California does not have custody of client funds.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

Legacy Capital Group California typically presents the client with an investment recommendation at the outset of an advisory relationship. However, it is always the client's final decision as to which Money Manager or Investment to utilize and at no time will Legacy select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold without consent from the client. Throughout the relationship, Legacy Capital Group California may make investment recommendations, but the client is always given the option of accepting or rejecting the recommendation. The client will give discretionary authority to the Money Manager or Investment in a separate agreement, but never to Legacy Capital Group California.

When selecting investment recommendations, Legacy Capital Group California observes any goals and objectives, plan documents, limitations and restrictions of the clients for which it advises.

Investment guidelines and restrictions must be provided to Legacy Capital Group California in writing.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

As a matter of firm policy and practice, Legacy Capital Group California does not have any authority to and does not vote proxies on behalf of advisory clients. Clients retain the responsibility for receiving and voting proxies for any and all securities maintained in client portfolios OR that task is given to the Money Manager or Investment client's assets are invested with in a separate agreement. Legacy Capital Group California may provide advice to clients regarding the clients' voting of proxies.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Registered investment advisers are required in this Item to provide you with certain financial information or disclosures about Legacy Capital Group California's financial condition. Legacy Capital Group California has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding.
