Material Changes

Annual Update

Cambridge Advisors is providing this information as part of our annual updating amendment.

Material Changes since the Last Update

Through the end of 2011, Cambridge Advisors has been an SEC-registered investment advisor by virtue of the fact that Cambridge manages over $25 million in client assets. As a result of the passage of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act ("Dodd-Frank"), which brought sweeping changes to the financial services industry, the threshold for SEC registration has been raised to $100 million in client assets for 2012. Since Cambridge manages less than this amount, the firm will now be registered as an investment advisor with the Virginia State Corporation Commission, Division of Securities and Retail Franchising.

Currently, you may request our Brochure by contacting Charles R. Roberts, CEO and Chief Compliance Officer at 804-330-5600 or info@cambradv.com. Our brochure is also available on our web site www.cambradv.com.

Advisory Business

Firm Description

Cambridge Advisors (Cambridge) was founded in 1987 as Cambridge Financial Services, Ltd., a corporation organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Cambridge is a registered investment advisor with the Virginia State Corporation Commission, Division of Securities and Retail Franchising. It should be noted that the term "registered" does not imply a certain level of skill or training.

Cambridge is an independent, employee owned wealth management firm with its sole office located in Richmond, Virginia. The firm maintains its independence by not having any affiliations with banks, insurance companies or broker/dealers.

Principal Owners

The founder, W. Duke Grkovic, is the chairman, president and co-owner with Charles R. Roberts, the firm's CEO and Chief Investment Officer.

Types of Advisory Services

Cambridge provides three primary advisory services.

The firm manages investment portfolios for individuals, pension and profit sharing plans, trusts, estates, foundations and business entities. The majority of these assets are managed directly by Cambridge's Investment Policy Committee, which is chaired by the Chief Investment Officer. Some client portfolios are managed through the SEI Management Program (SEI). SEI provides advisory services to Cambridge involving the structure and design of asset allocation models comprised solely of mutual funds managed by SEI. Finally, some client portfolios are managed through the Genworth Financial Wealth Management platform (GFWM). GFWM provides advisory services to Cambridge involving the structure and design of asset allocation models comprised of exchange traded funds (ETF) and mutual funds managed by third-party money managers.

Investing in securities involves various risks, including market, currency, economic, political and business risk and there is the possibility of loss of principal.

Cambridge also offers financial planning services for clients, who may or may not be investment advisory clients. Typical financial planning engagements for individuals may include, but are not limited to: insurance needs analysis, education planning, cash flow analysis, retirement income planning and/or estate planning strategies. Typical financial planning engagements for business and business owners may include, but are not limited to: qualified retirement plans, business continuation and succession planning and legacy strategies.

On more than an occasional basis, Cambridge furnishes advice to clients on matters not involving securities in the form of employment contract negotiations.

Tailored Relationships

Most services that Cambridge offers to its clients are customized to their unique needs.

With regard to investment management services, Cambridge Investment Officers take time to understand each client's level of comfort or discomfort with risk. In addition, the Investment Officers consider other criteria such as investment time horizon, tax sensitivity, and income needs. A portfolio allocation is then determined and an appropriate investment platform is selected.

With regard to financial planning services, no two plans are alike. Cambridge utilizes state-of-the-art software to meet each client's needs, whether it is a single goals-based analysis, a sophisticated comprehensive cash-flow or estate transfer analysis.

Wrap Fee Programs

Cambridge does not participate in any wrap fee programs.

Client Assets

As of February 2, 2012 Cambridge managed $43,398,000 of client assets, all of which were in discretionary accounts. This figure includes assets at SEI Investments and Genworth Financial Wealth Management. Additionally, Cambridge oversees $3 million in client 401(k) accounts.

Fees and Compensation

Description

As a registered investment advisor, Cambridge receives a fee for the management of client assets. Unlike a broker-dealer, Cambridge does not receive a commission each time a trade is placed. Cambridge bills quarterly, in advance, which means that one-fourth of the annual fee is assessed on the market value of the account at the beginning of the quarter. Billing in advance means that the management fee is for the next three months. An Investment Management Agreement (IMA) governs the relationship between the client and Cambridge. The IMA outlines what the client can expect from Cambridge and what Cambridge can expect from the client. If a client were to close an account during the billing period, they would be entitled to a pro rata refund. Per the terms of the IMA, fees are deducted directly from client accounts. The client has the right to terminate an advisory agreement without penalty within five business days after entering into the agreement.

Fee Billing

Cambridge's standard investment advisory fees vary depending on the size and complexity of the account but do not exceed the following schedule:

Assets Under Management	Annual Fee	Quarterly Fee
First $500,000	1.75%	0.4375%
$500,001 to $1,000,000	1.50%	0.3750%
$1,000,001 to $2,000,000	1.25%	0.3125%
$2,000,001 and above	1.00%	0.2500%

All fees are negotiable. Cambridge will combine the accounts of a household in order to take advantage of the break points in the fee schedule. This results in a lower effective fee for each account than if each account were billed separately.

All fees paid to Cambridge for investment advisory services are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by mutual funds to the fund shareholders. These fees and expenses are described in each fund's prospectus. Cambridge does not receive any portion of these mutual fund fees and expenses. Whenever possible, Cambridge will utilize "no transaction fee" mutual funds (NTF) that are available through Fidelity's Institutional FundsNetworksm one of the largest mutual fund supermarkets in the industry. NTF funds are typically Class A shares that are purchased at net asset value (NAV), in other words, without a front-end load. On rare occasions, Cambridge may utilize a mutual fund that has a transaction fee. The fees are typically $25 for each transaction.

Some mutual funds may also impose a contingent deferred sales charge (CDSC) if the fund is sold within a certain time period after purchase. A CDSC may range from 0.50% to 1.0% of the investment value and may be imposed for periods of up to 90 days. While Cambridge does not invest client assets to earn short-term profits, rapidly changing market conditions may warrant the early sale of this type of mutual fund, triggering a CDSC.

A client could invest in securities directly, however the client would not receive the services of Cambridge, which are designed to, among other things, assist the client in determining which funds are most appropriate given the client's financial condition and investment objective. Accordingly, the client should review both the fees charged by the funds and the fees charged by Cambridge in order to fully understand the actual cost to the client and thereby evaluate the advisory services being offered.

In client accounts that are managed under Cambridge's Actively Managed Portfolios (AMP), the primary type of security utilized is the exchange traded fund (ETF). ETFs trade like stocks and as such, the custodian charges a transaction fee for each purchase or sale transaction. These fees can range from $7.95 to $12.95 per trade. Cambridge receives no part of these fees.

Some client accounts are managed through the SEI Management Program. SEI functions as a sub-advisor to Cambridge. Cambridge does not receive a referral fee for recommending SEI. Client accounts are assessed an annual fee based on assets under management according to the following schedule:

Assets Under Management	Annual Fee	Quarterly Fee
First $500,000	1.00%	0.2500%
$500,001 to $1,000,000	0.75%	0.1875%
$1,000,001 to $1,500,000	0.65%	0.1625%
$1,500,001 and above	0.50%	0.1250%

Fees are paid quarterly, in arrears, which means that one-fourth of the annual fee is assessed on the market value of the account at the end of the quarter. Fees are debited directly from the client's account per the SEI IMA. This fee structure is not negotiable. The above referenced fee schedule does not include custody fees, custodial transaction fees, transfer taxes and other charges mandated by law. In the event that a client closes an account, SEI would calculate a pro rata fee for the number of days in the quarter and deduct the fee from the account prior to closing and transferring funds to another custodian. The client has the right to terminate an advisory agreement without penalty within five business days after entering into the agreement.

In the SEI Mutual Fund Program, the fee reflects charges for all advisory services provided by Cambridge. SEI does not charge a separate advisory fee, but is indirectly compensated through its share of management and other fees it received from the SEI funds in which the client invests. Any separate charges for custodial and trading services are listed in the Client Services Agreement between the client and SEI.

Some client accounts are managed through the Genworth Financial Wealth Management program. Genworth functions as a sub-advisor to Cambridge. Cambridge does not receive a referral fee for recommending Genworth. Client accounts are assessed an annual fee based on assets under management according to the following schedule:

Assets Under Management	Annual Fee	Quarterly Fee
First $500,000	1.75%	0.4375%
$500,001 to $1,000,000	1.50%	0.3750%
$1,000,001 to $2,000,000	1.25%	0.3125%
$2,000,001 and above	1.00%	0.2500%

Fees are paid quarterly, in advance, which means that one-fourth of the annual fee is assessed on the market value of the account at the beginning of the quarter. Billing in advance means that the management fee is for the next three months and are debited directly from the client's account per the GFWM IMA. This fee structure is negotiable. The above referenced fee schedule does not include custody fees, custodial transaction fees, transfer taxes and other charges mandated by law. If a client were to close an account during the billing period, they would be entitled to a pro rata refund. The client has the right to terminate an advisory agreement without penalty within five business days after entering into the agreement.

The fees charged for this program are shared by Cambridge and Genworth. Cambridge typically receives 1.00% of the client's assets under management.

Certain custodians may assess a fee when an account is closed. Closure fees are typically $75.

Other Fees

Cambridge offers financial planning services to clients who may or may not be investment management clients. The plans are prepared by an experienced CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ professional, who is not directly compensated by the client. Each plan, like each client, is unique and the fee varies by the scope and complexity of the engagement. The planning fee is negotiable and agreed upon by both parties prior to the start of the engagement, however, the minimum fee is $1,000. A typical engagement is in the range of $2,500 to $4,500. Cambridge bills a minimum 50% deposit of the agreed-upon fee at the beginning of the engagement. The balance of the fee is due upon satisfactory completion of the engagement. From time to time, the scope of the engagement may broaden and require additional fees. Cambridge will provide to the client a written addendum to the initial agreement and no additional work will be done, or fees incurred, unless the client authorizes such work. Financial planning services may be terminated by either party by providing written notice to the other party. Termination will be effective upon receipt. The client will be responsible for the time expended by Cambridge's associated persons prior to the receipt of the termination. The firm will provide a billing statement to the client detailing the time expended prior to receipt of the notice of termination and the fees will be due upon receipt, or conversely refunded, versus the initial deposit. The client has the right to terminate an advisory agreement without penalty within five business days after entering into the agreement. Financial planning clients are not obligated to utilize Cambridge's investment advisory services, nor are clients obligated to implement plan recommendations through Cambridge.

In certain unusual circumstances, Cambridge may elect to offer to bill clients at an hourly rate. Hourly fees range from $175 - $350 per hour, depending on the nature and complexity of each client's circumstances. An estimate for total hours will be determined at the start of the advisory relationship. 50% of the estimated fee may be due upon signing the advisory agreement, with the balance (based on actual hours) due upon presentation of the plan to the client. The initial retainer will be earned within six months of beginning the advisory service, provided that the client has furnished all requested information to Cambridge in a timely manner.

Additional Compensation

Financial planning clients may, but are not obligated to, implement plan recommendations through Cambridge. At the client's request, Cambridge will research the insurance markets and make recommendations as to a specific insurance carrier and product(s). Mr. Grkovic is an independent insurance broker appointed with numerous insurance companies. Cambridge would receive a commission from the insurance company for placing any life, disability or long-term care policies.

Direct Debiting

The client may elect to have Cambridge directly debit our advisory fees from the client's account. In this circumstance, we will send the client an invoice at the same time we invoice the client's custodian. The invoice sent to the client will show the amount of the fee, the account value on which the fee was calculated, and how the fee was calculated. The client is responsible for verifying fee computations, since custodians may not typically perform this task. The custodian will send the client a statement at least quarterly that shows all amounts paid from the client's account, including all management fees paid by the custodian to Cambridge.

Performance-Based Fees & Side-by-Side Management

Sharing of Capital Gains or Capital Appreciation

Cambridge does not charge any fees based on performance, nor does the firm share in the capital gains or capital appreciation of client accounts.

Types of Clients

Description

The majority of the firm's clients are individuals. Cambridge also manages accounts in qualified plans, trusts, estates and foundations.

Account Minimums

$250,000 is the general account minimum for investment management services. The firm will consider smaller accounts on a case by case basis.

The minimum investment in the GFWM platform depends upon the investment solution chosen. Generally, the minimum is $50,000 for mutual fund based accounts, $100,000 for ETF based accounts and between $50,000 and $500,000 for Privately Managed Accounts and/or Unified Managed Accounts.

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

Cambridge manages the majority of client portfolios utilizing a tactical approach based on the Point and Figure methodology. The primary investment vehicle for this methodology is the exchange traded fund (ETF).

For smaller accounts, defined as having a market value of less than $100,000, Cambridge will apply a tactical approach using mutual funds as the primary investment vehicle.

Cambridge's securities analysis methods include: charting, fundamental analysis, technical analysis and cyclical analysis. The main sources of investment information include: financial newspapers and magazines, research materials prepared by third parties and prospectuses.

Investment Strategies

Cambridge believes that it is important to utilize strategies that are effective in both generally rising (Bull) markets and falling (Bear) markets. One methodology that has existed since the late-1800's and has been proven effective in both kinds of markets is known as the Point & Figure (PnF) methodology. PnF methodology has developed over the last 100+ years, and remains at its core a logical, organized means for recording the supply and demand relationship in any investment vehicle. If there are more buyers than sellers willing to sell, the price will move higher. If there are more sellers than buyers willing to buy, the price must move lower.

Tactical decisions are made utilizing the research and evaluation techniques of Dorsey, Wright & Associates, who have extensive expertise in PnF charting. This type of analysis attempts to evaluate the supply and demand forces of particular asset classes and ranks them from strongest to weakest based upon relative strength (RS). The ranking process is comprised of the following four steps and given the name DALI - Dynamic Asset Level Investing.

Step 1: A roster is established for each asset class. For instance, in the international equity sector, all areas of the world are represented from Europe to Latin America to Canada to Australia and Asia-Pacific. The process of determining the roster is essential so that no one segment within an asset class has too great of an influence.

Step 2: A relative strength calculation is compiled for each member of the roster versus every other member of the evaluation set. After all individual calculations are computed and charted on a PnF basis, each member now has its number of RS "wins."

Step 3: The total number of "wins" for each individual member of the asset class is added together to get a composite score for the entire asset class. The asset classes are then ranked from 1 to 6, with one being the strongest asset class. The asset classes ranked are as follows:

Domestic Equities	Currencies
International Equities	Fixed Income
Commodities	Cash

Step 4: The top two asset classes are eligible to be deemed as Emphasized in DALI, but they must pass one last hurdle. The asset class is compared to Cash on a PnF relative strength basis. If Cash is stronger, Cash takes its place as Emphasized in DALI. Cash is the only asset class that can occupy both of the Emphasized Asset Class spots in DALI.

Risk of Loss

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear.

Cambridge takes risk management very seriously and utilizes state-of-the-art software to determine a client's risk profile. The FinaMetrica system provides Cambridge with resources that enable best practice in educating clients about risk and return, and in managing their expectations of risk and return. The client completes a questionnaire that results in a raw score that ranges from 0 to 100. This score correlates to a risk group, which in turn determines the maximum amount of a client's portfolio that will be subject to growth assets. The balance of the portfolio is invested in fixed income securities and cash. The following table outlines the relationship:

Investment Objective	Growth Assets	Fixed Income
Preservation	0%	100%
Income	20%	80%
Income & Growth	40%	60%
Growth & Income	60%	40%
Growth	80%	20%
Aggressive Growth	100%	0%

Risk is managed at the asset class level whenever there is a change in DALI. This occurs when one of the other asset classes demonstrates higher relative strength than the emphasized asset classes. Risk is managed within the asset classes by daily monitoring of the PnF charts of each of the holdings. Several technical criteria are reviewed including: relative strength, momentum, moving averages and support/resistance levels.

At times, stop-loss orders may be placed on a given security in an attempt to prevent a significant loss due to rapid deterioration in the underlying security, the sector or general market conditions. The use of margin and covered option writing may also be used on occasion, assuming the appropriate documentation and authorization have been executed. In rare instances, Cambridge may utilize ETFs that are designed to double or triple the performance of an underlying index or double or triple the inverse of the performance of an underlying index.

The tactical investment approach may involve more frequent trading of investment securities than a more static, strategic investment approach. Frequent trading can affect the investment performance due to increased trading costs and taxes.

Risk is managed in these accounts by reviewing portfolio holdings at least quarterly by the Chief Investment Officer or a member of the Investment Policy Committee. A material addition or subtraction from the account, or changes to a fund's portfolio manager or fund strategy would also trigger a review. Portfolio allocations are compared with each account's target allocation in order to ensure that the account is within an acceptable tolerance of variation.

As discussed above, some of our strategies will use ETFs, which will be subject to essentially the same risks as those associated with the direct ownership of the securities comprising the index on which the ETF is based. Additionally, the value of the investment will fluctuate in response to the performance of the underlying index. ETFs typically incur fees that are separate from those charged by Cambridge. Accordingly, our investments in ETFs will result in the layering of expenses.

No matter what the methodology, investing in securities involves various risks, including market, currency, economic, political and business risk and there is the possibility of loss of principal.

Technical analysis is based on the study of historical price movements and past trend patterns. There are no assurances that movements or trends can or will be duplicated in the future.

Investments in international and emerging markets securities include exposure to risks such as currency fluctuations, foreign taxes and regulations, and the potential for illiquid markets and political instability.

Small- and mid-cap companies may be hindered as a result of limited resources or less diverse products or services and have therefore, historically been more volatile than the stocks of larger, more established companies.

There are special risks associated with an investment in real estate, including credit risk, interest rate fluctuations and the impact of varied economic conditions.

High-yield bonds, also known as "junk bonds" are subject to greater risk of loss of principal and interest, including default risk, compared with higher rated (higher quality) bonds.

Any commodity purchase represents a transaction in a non-income-producing asset and is highly speculative. Therefore, commodities and commodities linked investments should not represent a significant portion of an individual's portfolio.

Similarly, investments in foreign currencies and foreign currency-linked investments are highly speculative and are subject to interest rate risk, exchange rate fluctuations and global political instability and therefore should not represent a significant portion of a individual's portfolio.

No guarantees can be offered that the client's goals or objectives will be achieved. Further, no promises or assumptions can be made that the advisory services offered by Cambridge will provide a better return than other investment strategies.

Recommend Securities with Material Financial Interest

Cambridge does not permit any employee transactions in securities where there is or appears to be a material financial interest.

Invest in Same Securities Recommended to Clients

Cambridge or its employees may from time to time purchase or sell securities that the firm recommends to advisory clients. Cambridge's Code of Ethics establishes rules of conduct for all employees and is designed to, among other things, govern personal securities trading activities in the accounts of employees, immediate family and accounts in which an employee has a beneficial interest. The Code is based upon the principle that Cambridge and its employees owe a fiduciary responsibility to the firm's clients. As such, the firm and its employees are required to conduct their affairs, including personal securities transactions, in such a manner as to avoid:

- Serving their own personal interests ahead of clients
- Taking inappropriate advantage of their position with the firm, and
- any actual or potential conflicts of interest or any abuse of their position of trust and responsibility

Personal Trading Policies

Every new employee is required, within 10 days of employment, to file an initial holdings report containing the following information:

- The title and exchange ticker symbol or CUSIP number, type of security, number of shares and principal amount (if applicable) of each reportable security in which the employee had any direct or indirect beneficial interest ownership when the person becomes a supervised person;
- The name of any broker, dealer or bank, account name, number and location with whom the employee maintained an account in which any securities were held for the direct or indirect benefit of the employee; and
- The date that the report is submitted by the employee.

Every employee is required to, no later than thirty (30) days after the end of each calendar quarter, file a quarterly transaction report containing the following information:

- The date of the transaction, the title and exchange ticker symbol or CUSIP number, the interest rate and maturity date (if applicable), the number of shares and the principal amount (if applicable) of each covered security;
- The nature of the transaction (i.e., purchase, sale or any other type of acquisition or disposition);
- The price of the reportable security at which the transaction was effected;
- The name of the broker, dealer or bank with or through whom the transaction was effected; and
- The date the report is submitted by the supervised person.

The chief compliance officer, or a designee, will monitor and review all reports required under the Code and applicable SEC rules and regulations.

Brokerage Practices

Selecting Brokerage Firms

Cambridge has evaluated Fidelity and believes that it will provide Cambridge clients with a blend of execution services, commission costs and professionalism that will assist Cambridge in obtaining best execution for transactions. Clients should be aware that Cambridge is enrolled in the Institutional Wealth Services ('IWS') program sponsored by Fidelity and receives certain benefits from Fidelity that it would not receive if it did not provide investment advice.

Cambridge reserves the right to decline acceptance of any client account that directs the use of a broker-dealer other than Fidelity if Cambridge believes that this choice would hinder its fiduciary duty to the client. In directing the use of Fidelity it should be understood that Cambridge will not have authority to negotiate commissions or to necessarily obtain volume discounts, and best execution may not be achieved. In addition, a disparity in commission charges may exist between the commissions charged to the client and those charged to other clients (who may direct the use of another broker-dealer). Clients should note, while Cambridge has a reasonable belief that Fidelity is able to obtain best execution and competitive prices, Cambridge will not be independently seeking best execution price capability through other broker-dealers.

Research and Soft Dollars

As indicated above, Cambridge utilizes the services of the IWS program sponsored by Fidelity. While there is no direct linkage between the investment advice given to clients and Cambridge's participation in the IWS program, economic benefits are received by Cambridge, which would not be received if Cambridge did not provide investment advice to clients. These benefits include: A dedicated trading desk that services IWS participants exclusively, a dedicated service group and an account services manager dedicated to Cambridge accounts, access to a real-time order matching system, ability to 'block' client trades, electronic download of trades, balances and positions, access, for a fee, to an electronic interface with IWS's software, duplicate and batched client statements, confirmations and year-end summaries, the ability to have advisory fees directly debited from client accounts (in accordance with federal and state requirements), availability of third-party research and technology, a quarterly newsletter, access to Fidelity mutual funds, access to WealthCentral (internet access to statements, confirmations and transfer of asset status), access to over 350 mutual fund families and 4,500 mutual funds NOT affiliated with Fidelity, of which over 2,000 have no transaction fee, ability to have loads waived for Cambridge clients who invest in certain Fidelity loaded funds, when certain conditions are met and maintained. The benefits received through participation in the IWS program may depend upon the amount of transactions directed to, or amount of assets held in custody by Fidelity.

With respect to the GFWM platform, Cambridge may, subject to negotiation with GFWM, receive certain allowances, reimbursements or services from GFWM similar to IWS in connection with Cambridge's investment advisory services to its clients.

Brokerage for Client Referrals

Cambridge does not direct clients to other broker-dealers and therefore receives no soft dollars or client referrals.

Directed Brokerage

In order to be eligible for the SEI Management Program, clients are required to use SEI Financial Services, a FINRA registered broker-dealer, for the placement of all trades. Therefore, Cambridge, through its recommendation of the SEI Management Program, is recommending SEI Financial Services as the broker-dealer to be used. SEI Trust Company, a subsidiary of SEI Corporation, acts as the transfer agent and custodian for SEI Management Program accounts. Cambridge client accounts are required to be maintained at SEI Trust Company in order to participate in the SEI Management Program. In directing the use of SEI Trust Company it should be understood that Cambridge will not have the authority to negotiate commissions or to necessarily obtain volume discounts, and best execution may not be achieved. In addition, a disparity in commission charges may exist between the commissions charged to the client and those charged to other clients.

Order Aggregation

Clients whose accounts are managed under Cambridge's AMP program have model portfolios that are comprised primarily of ETFs. Whenever possible, Cambridge will aggregate buy or sell orders into a single order, known as a block trade. This approach may result in a lower cost for some client accounts. More importantly, once the trade is filled, the shares are allocated to the various accounts and all shares will receive the same average cost of the trade. This ensures fairness in the allocating of the cost of the trade.

Review of Accounts

Periodic Reviews

The frequency of client investment account reviews depends on the strategy. For client accounts that are managed under Cambridge's AMP strategy, specific holdings in the model portfolios are reviewed daily. The Investment Policy Committee meets weekly to discuss overall strategy and any changes to DALI as described in detail in the Investment Strategies section. Members of the committee review a Drift Report which details the holdings of each account and whether or not the allocation is within model tolerance. Members of the IPC will exercise discretion with regard to rebalancing specific accounts based on market factors present at the time.

Accounts that are not managed tactically, or are invested on the SEI or Genworth platforms are reviewed at least quarterly by members of the IPC.

The performance of all accounts at Cambridge are reviewed quarterly by members of the IPC and compared with relevant benchmarks in order to assess the effectiveness of the strategy. Clients may request a meeting to discuss any aspect of their portfolio whenever they wish.

Reviews of financial planning clients occur at least annually, or whenever a client request a review. The purpose of the review is to update plan information and assess the effectiveness of the implementations of plan recommendations.

Review Triggers

Events that would trigger a review of a specific client's investment account(s) or financial plan would include, but are not limited to: a major life event (e.g. death, inheritance or other significant increase/decrease in net worth), onset of retirement or disability, change in employment status, the need for income for college expenditures or major purchase.

Regular Reports

Clients receive performance reports for each account prepared by Cambridge on a quarterly basis. These reports are prepared using best-in-class software that integrates with the custodian's data base. The report compares the account's time-weighted return performance over various timeframes against standard benchmarks over the same period. Additional information displays the general allocation among equities, fixed income and cash as well as realized and unrealized gains/losses as of the date of the report.

Performance reports for accounts held at SEI or GFWM are prepared by the respective custodian and forwarded to Cambridge.

Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Economic Benefits

Cambridge does not compensate any individuals or firms for referrals. Certain benefits are received through IWS, SEI or GFWM, as more fully described in the Research and Soft Dollars section.

Third Party Solicitors

Cambridge does not utilize the services of third party solicitors.

Custody

Account Statements

Cambridge does not take possession of client assets. The majority of client accounts are held in custody at Fidelity Investments. Accounts invested on the SEI platform are held in custody at SEI Trust Company. Accounts invested on the GFWM platform are either held at Fidelity or Genworth Financial Trust Company depending on the specific program selected. Clients receive monthly statements and transaction reports from the respective custodians. Quarterly performance reports and billing statements are also provided.

Investment Discretion

Discretionary Authority for Trading

Cambridge manages client assets on a discretionary basis. This means that when a client engages Cambridge for investment management services, they grant the investment officers of the firm authority to make the decisions as to not only what to buy/sell but also when to buy/sell without needing to consult the client first. This authority is detailed in the Investment Management Agreement.

Limited Power of Attorney

On occasion, the client will grant Cambridge a limited power of authority or limited trading authorization to effect transactions on behalf of the client in accounts such as 401(k)/403(b) plans. Cambridge does not have the authority to withdraw funds and/or securities, to request loans or to change an address or modify logon credentials.

Voting Client Securities

Proxy Voting

Cambridge has chosen to not vote proxies on behalf of advisory clients. Clients will receive proxies or other solicitation directly from their custodian, transfer agent or Cambridge. Clients may contact Cambridge for assistance in understanding a particular solicitation.
