Research services furnished by brokers may include written information and analyses concerning specific securities, companies or sectors; market, financial and economic studies and forecasts; statistics and pricing or appraisal services; discussions with research personnel; invitations to attend conferences or meetings with management or industry consultants. BAAM is not required to weigh any of these factors equally. Information so received is in addition to and not in lieu of services required to be performed by BAAM and the Management Fee is not reduced as a consequence of the receipt of such supplemental research information. Research services provided by broker-dealers used by each Client may be utilized by BAAM and its affiliates in connection with their investment services for other clients and, likewise, research services provided by broker-dealers used for transactions of other clients may be utilized by BAAM in performing services for each Client. 	client directs Registrant to use a particular broker or dealer, it should be understood that the client has the sole responsibility for negotiating commission rates and other transaction costs with the directed broker and that a disparity may exist between the commissions borne by the account and the commissions borne by Registrant's other clients that do not direct Registrant to use a particular broker. The client should further understand that by instructing Registrant to execute all transactions through the directed broker, the client may not necessarily obtain commission rates and execution as favorable as those that would be obtained if Registrant was able to place transactions with other broker- dealers. The client also may forego benefits that Registrant may be able to obtain for its other clients through, for example, negotiating volume discounts or block trades. Further, it should be noted that when clients are referred by registered representatives of brokerage firms and the trades for those clients are placed through the referring broker, Registrant has a potential conflict of interest between the client receiving best execution and Registrant receiving future referrals from the brokerage firm. Finally, clients who have directed their brokerage to a specific broker will be traded after all non-directed clients on a rotational basis. BAAM pays any trading costs associated with transactions in its managed accounts held at Fidelity. If that occurs, and BAAM is not able to acquire the desired aggregate amount of such securities on terms and conditions which BAAM deems advisable, BAAM will endeavor to allocate in good faith the limited amount of such securities acquired among the various accounts for which BAAM considers them to be suitable. BAAM may make such allocations among the accounts in any manner which it considers to be fair under the circumstances, including, but not limited to, allocations based on relative account sizes, the degree of risk involved in the securities acquired and the extent to which a position in such securities is consistent with the investment policies and strategies of the various accounts

In many instances, the purchase or sale of like securities for other accounts or entities. Such transaction may be made at slightly different prices, due to the volume of securities purchased or sold. In such event, the average price of all securities purchased or sold in such transactions may be determined, at BAAM's sole discretions, and each Client may be charged or credited, as the case may be, with the average transaction price. Referral of Investors: BAAM may also direct some brokerage business to brokers who refer prospective investors to each Client. Because such referrals, if any, are likely to benefit BAAM but will provide insignificant (if any) benefits to Clients, BAAM will have a conflict of interest with each Client when allocating Client brokerage business to a broker who has referred investors to BAAM. To prevent Client brokerage commissions from being used to pay investor referral fees, BAAM will not allocate Client brokerage business to a referring broker unless BAAM determines in good faith that the commissions payable to such broker are reasonable in relation to those available from non-referring brokers offering services of substantially equal value to such Client. BAAM may be introduced to Clients by a third-party marketer and other persons and pay a marketing fee or commission in connection with such activities, including ongoing payments, at BAAM's own expense (except in circumstances involving directed brokerage).
