Advisory Business

Firm Description

Founded in 2003, Benningfield Financial Advisors (“BFA”) provides financial planning and investment management to individuals, families, pension and profit-sharing plans, trusts, and charitable organizations.

BFA works with clients to define financial objectives and develop strategies for reaching those objectives. At the beginning of the advisory relationship, we review and analyze clients’ financial circumstances, including investment assets, income and expenses, tax considerations, borrowings, insurance, estate plan and other factors pertaining to their financial objectives and concerns.

Afterward, we provide clients with a financial plan that we will update periodically, as necessary. Clients are responsible for notifying us of any changes in their circumstances or other information that might affect their financial plan.

Based upon the goals in the financial plan, we develop investment policy guidelines documented in an Investment Policy Statement (IPS) and then design an investment portfolio that we manage on a discretionary basis. BFA accepts limited power of attorney to execute transactions on behalf of clients without obtaining specific consent before every transaction. This authority is limited to securities contained in the client’s managed accounts.

BFA is a fee-only advisory firm and receives compensation solely from fees paid directly by clients. The firm does not accept commissions in any form and does not accept referral fees. BFA receives no benefits from custodians/broker-dealers based on client securities transactions (“soft dollar benefits”).

Investment assets managed by BFA are held by independent custodians, including Fidelity Investments, State Street Bank & Trust Company, or others, in the client’s name. BFA does not act as a custodian of client assets, although we may at times be considered by the SEC to technically have “custody” over certain types of accounts held at independent custodians.

We may recommend other professionals (e.g., attorneys, accountants, insurance agents, etc.) at the request of the client. Other professionals are engaged directly by the client on an as-needed basis. Conflicts of interest will be disclosed to the client in the unlikely event they should occur.

Principal Owners

Milo M. Benningfield is the sole owner of Benningfield Financial Advisors.

Types of Advisory Services

BFA's primary service is integrated financial management, which combines ongoing financial planning with asset management.

For small institutions such as pension or profit-sharing plans or charitable organizations such as private foundations or endowments, BFA may provide investment management as a stand-alone service under its client advisory agreement.

BFA will also periodically undertake special consulting projects not described in other types of agreements.

A client or BFA may terminate an agreement immediately by written notice of such termination. Upon termination, BFA will invoice a client for any fees outstanding up to the date of termination, and they are payable by the client upon receipt of the invoice. Any unearned portion of the fee a client has paid will be promptly refunded.

Tailored Relationships

BFA tailors advisory services to the individual needs of clients. Client goals and objectives are clarified in meetings and via correspondence and are used to determine the course of action for each individual client. The goals and objectives for each client are documented in financial plans, Investment Policy Statements, and in correspondence, depending on the nature of the client.

Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities. This must be done in writing and be signed by the client, BFA, and the separate account manager, if applicable. Agreements may not be assigned without client consent.

Managed Assets

As of March 31, 2011, BFA manages approximately $61,345,000 in assets for about 168 accounts on behalf of 27 client households. $61,345,000 is managed on a discretionary basis, and $0 is managed on a non-discretionary basis.

Fees and Compensation

Description

BFA charges an annual retainer fee for ongoing advisory services that is calculated as a percentage of assets under management. The annual fee is calculated as follows:

First $2,000,000 under management	1.00% per year
$2,000,000 but less than $5,000,000 under management	0.75% per year
$5,000,000 but less than $10,000,000 under management	0.50% per year
More than $10,000,000 under management	0.40% per year

The minimum annual retainer fee is $12,000.

Fees are billed quarterly in arrears. If authorized by clients, BFA may deduct fees from clients' managed brokerage accounts. If clients choose to pay fees directly, fees will be payable by clients immediately upon receipt of any invoice.

At the beginning of each relationship, BFA performs a variety of necessary consultative and administrative tasks for which we charge a non-recurring "Inception Fee." Our standard inception fee is $5,000. If, however, an initial evaluation of a client's situation reveals that establishing your accounts will require an unusual level of work, BFA retains the right to charge an additional fee. We can assess this fee either as a stated amount of money or as an hourly fee, as agreed upon with clients. Inception fees are due upon execution of the advisory agreement.

Fees for other services may be charged as mutually agreed upon, in advance, by clients and BFA. In addition, the above fees are negotiable and may be modified to fit the needs of a particular client.

BFA charges hourly advisory fees for services other than the ongoing financial-planning and investment-advisory services at the rate of $375 an hour. Fees for other services may be charged at a fixed rate as mutually agreed upon, in advance. BFA invoices clients periodically for such hourly, fixed-rate, or other fees, as agreed upon in advance, and they are payable by clients upon receipt of the invoice.

The California Code of Regulations imposes two notice requirements upon financial advisers: (a) lower cost comparable services may be available from others, and (b) the possibility exists for a conflict of interest between client interests and those of BFA. However, BFA believes that its services are competitively priced and, since all BFA's income is derived from client fees, our respective interests should be well-aligned.

Fee Billing

BFA bills for advisory services quarterly, in arrears, meaning that we invoice clients after the three-month billing period has ended. Payment in full is expected upon invoice presentation. Fees are usually deducted from a designated client account to facilitate billing. The client must consent in advance to direct debiting of their investment account.

Other Fees

Where BFA uses mutual funds in client portfolios, clients will incur an additional level of fees, those charged by the mutual-fund management. Mutual fund managers also incur other expenses, such as trading charges, which reduce client returns. BFA does not benefit from any mutual-fund fees.

Unless clients direct otherwise in writing, BFA will select brokers, dealers and other agents to implement the transactions for client accounts, and may aggregate orders with those of other clients. BFA will select the brokers, dealers, and other agents by evaluating the services provided and the fees charged. Accordingly, the brokers, dealers, and other agents may not necessarily charge the lowest fees and commissions available. BFA will make every effort to obtain the best price and the most favorable commission terms for you. Any brokerage commissions, stock transfer fees and other similar charges incurred with respect to transactions in the Managed Portfolio will be paid directly from the Managed Portfolio and are separate from and in addition to fees payable to us.

BFA may refer clients to other professionals to obtain services not provided by BFA. BFA receives no compensation for making such referrals. In addition, BFA may use outside consultants for tax planning, estate planning, insurance needs and other issues. Any fees charged by such consultants will be in addition to those charged by BFA for ongoing advisory services. BFA will obtain client approval before incurring any consultant fees.

Performance-Based Fees

No Sharing of Capital Gains

BFA does not use a performance-based fee structure, where compensation is based on a share of capital gains or capital appreciation, because of the potential conflict of interest. Performance-based compensation may create an incentive for the adviser to recommend an investment that may carry a higher degree of risk to the client. However, the nature of asset-based fees allows BFA to participate in the growth of the client's investment portfolio. This also means that our fees can decline when the client's portfolio declines in value.

Types of Clients

Description

BFA provides services primarily to individuals, families, and trusts. The firm does not require a minimum dollar value of assets or other conditions for client engagements. However, BFA does charge minimum fees as described above in "Fees and Compensation."

Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

Security analysis methods at BFA include fundamental analysis. The main sources of information include Morningstar reports, fund prospectuses, financial newspapers and magazine, research materials prepared by others, filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and annual reports. Employees of BFA also attend on- and off-site visits with fund representatives and portfolio managers, conference calls, and industry conferences.

Investment Strategies

The primary investment strategy for client accounts is strategic asset allocation. We may use passively managed index and exchange-traded funds when appropriate for the client as well as actively managed funds where there are opportunities to make a difference by security selection. Portfolios are generally globally diversified.

The investment strategy for a specific client is based upon the objectives stated by the client during consultations. The client may change these objectives at any time. Each client executes an Investment Policy Statement that documents their objectives and their desired investment strategy.

Other strategies may include long-term purchases, short-term purchases, trading, short sales, margin transactions, and option writing (including covered options, uncovered options or spreading strategies).

Risk of Loss

All investment programs have certain risks that are borne by the investor. Our investment approach constantly keeps the risk of loss in mind. Investors face the following investment risks:

- Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.
- Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying circumstances. For example, political, economic and social conditions may trigger market events.
- Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.
- Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.
- Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e. interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.
- Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. For example, oil-drilling companies depend on finding oil and then refining it, a lengthy process, before they can generate a profit.

- Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.
- Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a business' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value.

Disciplinary Information

Legal and Disciplinary

The firm and its employees have not been involved in legal or disciplinary events related to past or present investment clients.

Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Financial Industry Activities

BFA does not participate in any other industry business activities.

Affiliations

BFA does not have arrangements that are material to its advisory business or its clients with any related person.

Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

The employees of BFA have committed to a Code of Ethics and Fiduciary Oath as outlined by the National Association of Personal Financial Advisors (NAPFA). These commitments include: putting the client's interest first, objectivity, confidentiality, competence, fairness and suitability, integrity and honesty, regulatory compliance, full disclosure, and professionalism. CFP® designees are also held to a Code of Ethics as outlined by the CFP® Board of Standards. The firm will provide a copy of the Code of Ethics to any client or prospective client upon request.

Participation or Interest in Client Transactions

BFA and its employees may at times buy or sell securities that are also held by clients. Employees may not trade their own securities ahead of client trades.

The Chief Compliance Officer of BFA is Milo M. Benningfield. Milo reviews all employee trades each quarter. The personal trading reviews ensure that the personal trading of employees was not based on inside information and that clients receive preferential treatment. The trades are not of a significant enough value to affect the securities markets.

Brokerage Practices

Selecting Brokerage Firms

BFA does not have any affiliation with any bank, custodian, or broker-dealer firm. BFA recommends specific custodians to clients based on their need for such services and based on the proven integrity and financial responsibility of the firm, the best execution of orders at reasonable commission rates, and the quality of client service.

BFA recommends discount brokerage firms and trust companies (qualified custodians), such as Fidelity and State Street. BFA does not receive fees or commissions from any of these arrangements, although BFA may benefit from electronic delivery of client information, electronic trading platforms and other services provided by custodians for the benefit of clients. BFA may also benefit from other services provided by custodians such as research, continuing education, and practice-management advice. These benefits are standard in a relationship with these custodians and are not in return for client recommendations or transactions.

BFA reviews the execution of trades at each custodian annually. Trading fees charged by the custodians are also reviewed annually. BFA does not receive any portion of the trading fees.

Soft Dollars

BFA does not receive soft-dollar benefits from custodians to whom we recommend clients.

Order Aggregation

Most trades are mutual funds or exchange-traded funds where trade aggregation does not garner any client benefit.

Review of Accounts

Periodic Reviews

Investment management accounts are reviewed periodically. More frequent account reviews may be triggered by excess cash accumulation, deposits, withdrawals, or asset class allocations that depart significantly from those specified in the investment policy. An investment account database is maintained for all investment management clients in order to facilitate ongoing reviews. Financial planning reviews are generally conducted annually.

Milo M. Benningfield performs account reviews. An Investment Policy Statement is prepared for all investment management clients and this policy statement determines the parameters of the review. There is currently no limit on the number of accounts that can be reviewed by a reviewer.

Regular Reports

Clients receive periodic communications on at least an annual basis. The written updates may include performance analysis and asset-allocation reports from our portfolio-accounting software as well as other portfolio graphs and reports as needed.

Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Incoming Referrals

BFA has been fortunate to receive many client referrals over the years from sources such as current clients, estate planning attorneys and accountants. The firm does not pay for referrals.

Referrals to Other Professionals

BFA does not accept referral fees or any form of remuneration from other professionals when we refer a client or anyone else to them.

Custody

Account Statements

All assets are held at qualified custodians, which means the custodians provide account statements directly to clients at their address of record at least quarterly. Clients are encouraged to review carefully the statements provided by their custodians and to compare these statements with any statements provided by BFA.

Net Worth Statements

At times BFA provides clients account statements, net worth statements, and net worth graphs that are generated from our portfolio accounting and financial-planning software. Net worth statements contain approximations of bank account balances provided by the client, as well as the value of land, limited partnerships, real estate and other hard-to-price assets. The net worth statements are used for long-term financial planning where the exact values of assets are not material to the financial planning tasks. Clients are urged to compare the statements they receive from us to those they receive from their qualified custodians.

Investment Discretion

Discretionary Authority for Trading

BFA accepts discretionary authority to manage securities accounts on behalf of clients. BFA has the authority to determine, without obtaining specific client consent, the securities to be bought or sold, and the amount of the securities to be bought or sold. Discretionary trading authority facilitates placing trades in your accounts on your behalf so that we may promptly implement the investment policy that you have approved in writing.

Limited Power of Attorney

Clients must sign a limited power of attorney before BFA is given discretionary authority. The limited power of attorney is included in the qualified custodian's account application for our main custodians. For accounts not held with our main custodians, clients may sign a separate limited power of attorney document giving discretionary authority to BFA.

Voting Client Securities

Proxy Votes

BFA does not vote proxies on securities. Clients retain the right and obligation to vote any proxies relating to the securities held in their accounts.

Financial Information

Financial Condition

BFA does not have any financial impairment that will preclude the firm from meeting contractual commitments to clients. A balance sheet is not required to be provided because BFA does not serve as a custodian for client funds or securities, and does not require prepayment of fees of more than $1,200 per client, and six months or more in advance.

Business Continuity Plan

General

BFA has a Business Continuity Plan in place that provides detailed steps to mitigate and recover from the loss of office space, communications, services or key people.

The Business Continuity Plan covers natural disasters such as snow storms, hurricanes, tornados, and flooding. The Plan covers man-made disasters such as loss of electrical power, loss of water pressure, fire, bomb threat, nuclear emergency, chemical event, biological event, communications line outage, Internet outage, railway accident and aircraft accident. Electronic files are backed up daily and archived offsite.

Loss of Key Personnel

BFA has signed a Business Continuation Agreement with another financial advisory firm to support BFA in the event of Milo M. Benningfield's serious disability or death.
