Advisory Services and Needs of Clients

Services offered by the Firm consist of investment advice, asset management and fee-based financial planning for clients based upon their individual financial circumstances, objectives, time horizon and risk tolerance. An Investment Advisor Representative (“Advisory Representative”) of the Firm may review a client’s assets, net worth, tax status, investments, investment history and other factors to correctly determine suitable products and/or advisory services. This information is used, in part, to help clients select investment products and investment programs that suit their circumstances and goals. The Firm may also perform various administrative and clerical duties that allow the client to open an account.

If appropriate to the client’s needs, the Firm may make available separately managed accounts, fee-based securities accounts, asset allocation programs or other investment programs through registered or exempted third-party investment advisers with which the Firm enters into either a solicitors agreement or co-advisory relationships.

Currently, the Firm works with the following providers of investment products and programs:

Fee-Based Financial Planning

The Firm, through its Advisor Representatives, provides objective, generic advice to clients on matters that may not involve securities. In this respect, the Firm offers clients the ability to obtain fee-based financial planning services on an hourly or flat fee basis. Such fees are due and payable to the firm either at the time a client enters into an agreement with the Firm or upon receipt of a written plan delivered to the client.

To minimize the potential for conflict of interest, the financial plan created by the Advisory Representative may contain only generic recommendations as to the general types of insurance and investment products that are appropriate for the client's financial position. Clients are under no obligation to accept a recommendation or implement a recommendation through the Firm or a Firm's Advisory Representative. Clients have the right to rescind the financial planning agreement without penalty within five (5) business days of entering into such contract.

The financial planning services offered by the Firm include estate planning, investment planning, retirement planning and business succession planning. In addition, the Firm and/or its advisory representatives occasionally present seminars concerning financial planning topics to groups of employees, associates, and the general public on a negotiated fee basis. Advisory representatives are also available for consultations on specific issues for which clients are charged an hourly fee.

Clients should speak to an Advisory Representative for specific details. Financial information and goals are obtained from the clients after entering into a financial planning contract. The information is then reviewed and evaluated. Based on this evaluation, specific financial planning recommendations are delivered to the client.

Wrap Fee Programs

The Firm does not participate in wrap fee programs.

Management of Client Assets on a Discretionary Basis

The Firm does allow its Advisory Representatives to exercise discretion over client assets only if the client approves such an arrangement and if a properly executed Limited Power of Attorney is filed with the firm and with any applicable third-party managers that provide investment products and/or investment programs to the client through a relationship with the Firm. As of March 15, 2011, less than six percent (6%) of the Firm's Assets Under Management are managed on a discretionary basis.

FEES AND COMPENSATION

The fees paid by clients depend upon the services they select from the firm.

Separately Managed Accounts, Fee-Based Securities Accounts and Other Investment Management Programs Sponsored by Third-Party Managers

For separately managed accounts, fee-based securities accounts and other investment management programs sponsored by a third-party managers, clients pay their Advisory Representative a fee based on a percentage (%) of assets under management. For these products, the Firm maximum advisory fee for its Advisory Representatives is 1.5% (150 basis points) of assets under management. This does not include program or product fees, servicing fees or any other fee imposed on the account by the applicable third-party advisory program manager or its affiliates, such as transaction costs, custodial and mutual fund 12-b1 fees. Each third-party manager maintains their own fee schedules, therefore full disclosure of all applicable fees, refunds and termination provisions will be provided separately to the client by the Advisory Representative via Form ADV part II of the third party advisor or they will be contained in the new account forms signed by the client. However, the total maximum fee, including all third-party fees and the Firm's advisory fee cannot exceed 2.25% (225 basis points). All fees are deducted from the client's account and any Advisory Representative fees are paid directly to the Firm by the third-party manager. Clients never pay fees directly to the Firm for these products.

These services are typically offered for accounts with a minimum market value of $5,000 - $25,000 for Mutual Fund Accounts and $100,000 for Exchange Traded Fund ("ETF") and Privately Managed Accounts. The firm reserves the right to waive this minimum at its discretion, as long as any applicable third-party advisory program sponsor waives its respective minimum as well.

Fee-Based Financial Planning

Fees for financial planning are based on the specific planning services to be provided to the client and the complexity of the client's financial situation and goals. Fees for services are subject to prior negotiation and agreement between the client and the Advisory Representative. The Firm does not dictate a minimum required fee, or a range for financial planning services. After the first anniversary of their initial contract, clients may wish or the Advisory Representative may suggest that their contracts be renewed in order to update their financial plans, in whole or in part. If a client chooses to renew his/her contract, current financial information relevant to the planning areas is obtained and evaluated and a written summary/update is provided to the client. A new negotiated fee may apply.

Generally, fees negotiated for financial planning consist of an hourly rate to be invoiced to the client in arrears on a monthly basis. Flat-fee arrangements are also available, also invoiced to clients in arrears.

Brokerage Commissions

In some instances, a client may choose to trade in mutual funds, ETFs, common stock, options or other securities in a brokerage account through their Advisory Representative. In such instances, it is imperative to understand that the Advisory Representative is acting in his or her capacity as a Registered Representative of a Broker-Dealer not affiliated with the Firm. Additionally, the Advisory Representative may receive broker-dealer sales commissions on these products in addition to any financial planning or other fees that the client pays through the Firm, which constitutes a conflict of interest.

Additional charges, such as transaction costs, custodial and mutual fund 12b-1 fees may also apply to the maintenance of and trading in such a brokerage account.

Additional Compensation

World Capital Advisors may enter into a revenue sharing agreement with third party money managers from time to time. This revenue share is based on the Firm's level of production and assets with the third party advisor. Typical revenue share ranges from .03% to .10% (3bps to 10bps) of assets under management. This is paid by the third party advisor out of their portion of the management fee.

Some Advisory representatives may have other professional designations and may receive fees for other services. This can include but is not limited to, legal, estate, accounting and insurance services.

PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES

The Firm and its Advisory Representatives do not accept performance-based fees.
