12. A.	INVESTMENT OR BROKERAGE DISCRETION When a client agrees to discretionary management, Beck will be responsible for selecting the amount of securities to be bought and sold. When a client has given Beck broker discretion, there is no restriction on the brokers Beck may select to execute client transactions. Beck's general guiding principle is to trade through broker-dealers who offer the best overall execution under the particular circumstances. With respect to execution, Beck considers a number of factors, including if the broker has custody of client assets, the actual handling of the order, the ability of the broker-dealer to settle the trade promptly and accurately, the financial standing of the broker-dealer, the ability of the broker-dealer to position stock to facilitate execution, Beck's past experience with similar trades, and other factors which may be unique to a particular order. Also, in certain instances Beck may execute over-the-counter securities transactions on an agency basis, which may result in advisory clients incurring two transaction costs for a single trade: a commission paid to the executing broker-dealer plus the market maker's mark-up or mark-down. Beck may aggregate numerous Clients' purchases or sales as a single transaction. Transactions are usually aggregated to seek a lower commission, lower costs, or a more advantageous net price. The benefits, if any, obtained as a result of such aggregation, are generally allocated pro-rata among the accounts of the clients that participated in the aggregated transaction. Subject to any minimum transaction fees imposed by the broker-dealer.

A client may direct Beck in writing to use a particular broker or dealer to execute all transactions for client's account. When a client selects the broker to be used for his or her account, the commission rates are decided upon between the client and his or her broker. In addition, Beck does not have any responsibility for obtaining for the client from any such broker the best prices or particular commission rates, and the client may not obtain rates as low as it might otherwise obtain if Beck had discretion to select broker-dealers other than those chosen by the client.

Clients that restrict Beck to using a particular broker/dealer (or direct Beck to use a particular broker/dealer) for executing their transactions generally will be unable to participate in aggregated orders and will be precluded from receiving the benefits, if any, of an aggregation which other clients may receive. Beck will generally execute aggregated orders for non-directed clients before Beck executes orders for clients that direct brokerage.

There may be conflicts of interest over time devoted to managing any one account and the allocation of investment opportunities among all accounts managed by Beck. Beck will attempt to resolve all such conflicts in a manner that is generally fair to all clients.

Beck is not obligated to acquire for any account any security that Beck acquires for its own accounts or for the account of any other client, if in Beck's absolute discretion it is not practical or desirable to acquire a position in such security.

Beck uses research and trading services furnished by brokers with respect to the securities markets, the economy, particular industries, individual issues, and similar topics having broad applications to client accounts. Beck uses research and trading services for the benefit of all of Beck's clients, including clients whose securities transactions are not effected by the broker providing such services.

RECOMMENDING BROKERS/CUSTODIANS

Beck recommends that its clients use Charles Schwab and Co., Inc. ("Schwab") as its broker. The services provided by Schwab are a factor in the firm's suggestion that clients use Schwab, whose services will ordinarily include monthly or at least quarterly account statements to clients. Schwab will also provide Beck with computer software services whereby Beck can place orders and obtain up to date review of client accounts.

13. A.	Beck may recommend that clients establish brokerage accounts with the Schwab Institutional division of Charles Schwab &amp; Co., Inc. (Schwab), a registered broker-dealer, member SIPC, to maintain custody of clients' assets and to effect trades for their accounts. Beck is independently owned and operated and not affiliated with Schwab. Schwab provides Beck with access to its institutional trading and custody services, which are typically not available to Schwab retail investors. These services generally are available to independent investment advisors on an unsolicited basis, at no charge to them so long as a total of at least $10 million of the advisor's clients' assets is maintained in accounts at Schwab Institutional, is are not otherwise contingent upon Beck committing to Schwab any specific amount of business (assets in custody or trading). Schwab's services include brokerage, custody, research, and access to mutual funds and other investments that are otherwise generally available only to institutional investors or would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment. For Beck's client accounts maintained in its custody, Schwab generally does not charge separately for custody but is compensated by account holders through commissions or other transaction-related fees for securities trades that are executed through Schwab or that settle into Schwab accounts. Schwab also makes available to Beck other products and services that benefit Beck but may not benefit its clients' accounts. Some of these other products and services assist Beck in managing and administering clients' accounts. These include software and other technology that provide access to client account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements); facilitate trade execution (and allocation of aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts); provide research, pricing information and other market data; facilitate payment of Beck's fees from its clients' accounts; and assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping and client reporting.
