Notice of Privacy Policy	FundaMental Investment Advisors, LLC ("FIA") and the investment limited partnerships for which it serves as general partner: (a) Collect non-public personal information about their clients and investors from the following sources: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>* Information received from clients or investors on applications or other forms, and</li> <li>* Information about clients' or investors' transactions with FIA, its affiliates or others;</li> </ul> (b) Do not disclose any non-public personal information about their clients or investors or former clients or investors to anyone, except as permitted by law; (c) Restrict access to non-public personal information about their clients and investors to their employees who need to know that information to provide services to clients; and (d) Maintain physical, electronic and procedural safeguards that comply with federal standards to guard clients' and investors' personal information.
Notice of Proxy Voting Policy	FIA expects that it will not vote proxies in almost all cases, because (1) the quantitative strategy that FIA employs on behalf of client accounts does not depend on understanding the types of factors that are relevant in deciding how to vote on a particular proposal (and the time spent on researching and analyzing those proposals detracts from its time developing and implementing its quantitative strategies) and (2) FIA expects that proposals typically will not have a material effect on its investment strategy. However, if FIA decides to vote a particular proxy, in determining whether a proposal serves the best interests of an account, FIA will consider a number of factors, including the economic effect of the proposal on shareholder value, the threat posed by the proposal to existing rights of shareholders, the dilution of existing shares that would result from the proposal, the effect of the proposal on management or director accountability to shareholders, and, if the proposal is a shareholder initiative, whether it wastes time and resources of the company or reflects the grievance of one individual. If a material conflict of interest over proxy voting arises between FIA and a client, FIA will vote all proxies in accordance with the policy described above. Notice of Trade Error Policy	FIA places orders for the purchase and sale of securities with brokers on behalf of its clients. The trading process can be complex and can vary for different types of securities. Moreover, FIA may be required to break up orders, or may buy or sell the same security for more than one client, further complicating the trading process. Generally, the client account with respect to which a trade error is made bears all losses, costs and expenses relating to a trade error unless (1) FIA's Chief Compliance Officer (the "CCO") determines otherwise (e.g., if the CCO determines that the error is not within the limitation of liability clause in a client's investment management agreement or the agreement of limited partnership for FundaMental Long/Short Fund, L.P. or any other investment limited partnership for which FIA is the general partner or (2) otherwise provided in a client's investment management agreement or in the agreement of limited partnership for an investment limited partnership for which FIA is the general partner.

Performance fees are assessed in arrears on an annual basis, and are only applied to profits that exceed the cumulative losses previously incurred by the respective clients. Termination Provisions. Except as may be otherwise negotiated in particular cases, a client may terminate an individually managed account by giving 45 days' written notice. In all cases, expenses, the pro rata portion of the management fee and the performance fee through the date of termination are charged to the client. All prepaid but unearned advisory fees are refunded to the client on termination of an account. General Information For All Investors and Clients The terms applicable to any particular investor's investment or any client account are negotiable and may vary. FIA (directly, or through one of its affiliates or a fund's administrator or prime broker) may provide certain investors and clients more frequent or more detailed reports of a particular fund's or account's portfolio holdings or performance, special fee and allocation arrangements and special withdrawal and redemption rights that it does not provide to other investors or clients. FIA may waive all or any portion of the management fees or performance-based fees or allocations with respect to any investor or client and it intends to do so for certain employees and independent contractors of FIA or its affiliates and certain persons with whom FIA or its affiliates have close personal or business relationships and their families. FIA complies with California Code of Regulations section 260.234, as amended, to the extent required by applicable law. FIA believes that its fees are competitive with fees charged by other investment advisers for comparable services. Comparable services may be available, however, from other sources for lower fees than those charged by FIA.
Part II Page 3 Item 3.L	FIA is authorized to enter into any type of investment transaction that it deems appropriate for its clients, pursuant to the terms of the partnership or other account agreement. FIA does not currently advise clients on any types of investments other than those identified in this section.

	may give advice and take action with respect to one client account that differs from the advice that it gives or the timing or nature of action that it takes with respect to another client account. For example, FIA selects investments for some client accounts based solely on the investment strategy to be employed on behalf of those clients. Other client accounts may have different investment strategies and expected levels of trading. In the course of providing advisory services, FIA may buy or sell a security for one type of client but not for another. Further, FIA may buy (or sell) a security for one type of client while simultaneously selling (or buying) the same security for another type of client. FIA or its affiliates may be able to obtain more favorable compensation, cost reimbursement or risk sharing arrangements in connection with some investments if some client accounts do not participate. These factors could influence FIA not to make investments on behalf of some client accounts even though participation might benefit those client accounts. It is FIA's policy, however, to the extent practicable, to allocate investment opportunities among client accounts fairly over time. Brokerage Practices Best Execution. FIA also has complete discretion over the selection of brokers to be used and the commission rates to be paid. FIA allocates portfolio transactions for the client accounts to securities brokers based on best execution. 	meals), all accounting and administrative fees (including the expenses of the accounting and bookkeeping services of third party vendors that provide such services), legal fees and the like. Accordingly, a client may be deemed to be paying for research and these other services with “soft” or commission dollars, as well as profits that brokers make on principal transactions. FIA may cause a client account to pay a brokerage commission in excess of that which another broker might charge for effecting the same transaction in recognition of the value of the brokerage, research, other services and soft dollar relationships provided by that broker. FIA also may direct client brokerage transactions to brokers who refer prospective clients and investors to FIA and its investment funds. Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 provides a “safe harbor” to investment advisers who use commission dollars of their advised accounts to obtain investment research and brokerage services that provide lawful and appropriate assistance to the manager in performing investment decision-making responsibilities. Conduct outside of the safe harbor of section 28(e) is subject to the traditional standards of fiduciary duty under state and federal law. If FIA uses commission dollars to pay for products or services that provide administrative or other nonresearch assistance to FIA or its affiliates, such payments may not fall within the safe harbor of section 28(e). In addition, FIA may receive soft dollar credits on principal, as well as agency, securities transactions with brokers. FIA generally considers the amount and nature of research, execution and other services provided by brokers as well as the extent to which clients accounts rely on such services, and attempts to allocate a portion of the brokerage transactions of the client accounts on the basis of that consideration. FIA may use the investment information and other services received from brokers, however, in servicing all of its accounts, but it may not use all such information and services for a particular account. FIA believes that allocating brokerage transactions in this manner helps clients obtain research and execution capabilities and provides other benefits to those clients. The relationships with brokerage firms that provide soft dollar services to FIA and its affiliates influence FIA’s judgment in allocating brokerage transactions and create a conflict of interest in using the services of those brokers to execute FIA’s brokerage transactions. The brokerage fees that a client account pays benefit FIA at the expense of the client account, to the extent that soft dollars are used to pay FIA’s expenses that are not otherwise reimbursable by that client. FIA believes that these relationships benefit both it and its clients, but client trades executed through these firms or any other brokerage firm may or may not be at the best price otherwise available.

	Prospective clients who consider such soft dollar practices material to their decision to engage FIA should request FIA's most recent information on soft dollar practices. Arrangements with Prime Broker and Custodian. FIA will retain a custodian to serve as the prime broker and custodian for its clients. FIA may replace the custodian or appoint an additional prime broker and custodian at any time. The services that the custodian provides as prime broker may include custody, margin financing, clearing, settlement and stock borrowing in accordance with the terms of the prime brokerage agreement entered into between each client and the custodian. The custodian has custody of most client assets and may receive other services from the custodian. These services may include: technology services (such as e-mail archiving and disaster recovery systems), capital introduction services, portfolio reporting and access to electronic communications networks. FIA expects to use a substantial portion of these services for research and trading on behalf of client accounts, but some may be used for administrative purposes, which would not be within the safe harbor of section 28(e). Although many prime brokers provide similar services to investment advisers in exchange for brokerage, custody and clearance fees and other charges, if FIA did not receive these services from the prime broker, FIA would be required to pay for all or some portion of them. FIA is not required to direct a particular number of trades to the custodian or to continue to use it as the custodian, but it has an incentive to do so based on the custodian's prior and continued services. A client's obligations to a prime broker and any other custodian (and their affiliates) are secured by first priority perfected security interests over that client's assets held in custody by that custodian. A custodian may transfer to itself or to an affiliate all rights, title and interest in and to those assets as collateral and may deal with, lend, dispose of, pledge or otherwise use all such collateral for its own purposes. If any such transfer occurs, the client will rank among such custodian's (or affiliate's) unsecured creditors. If such custodian or affiliate becomes insolvent, the client may not be able to recover such equivalent securities in full. In addition, each client's cash held by a custodian may not be segregated from such custodian's own cash and, if not so segregated, may be used by such custodian or affiliate in the course of its business and the client will therefore rank as an unsecured creditor in relation thereto. If any client's investments are registered in the name of a custodian or affiliate due to the nature of the law or market practice of a particular jurisdiction, such investments will not be segregated from the custodian's or affiliate's own investments and if such custodian or affiliate becomes insolvent, the client may not be able to recover such equivalent investments in full.

4Item of Form (identify)	Answer
	Trade Aggregation. FIA may aggregate sale and purchase orders of securities held by a client account with similar orders being made simultaneously for other client accounts if, in its judgment, such aggregation is reasonably likely to result in an overall economic benefit to the client accounts, in the aggregate, based on an evaluation that the client accounts will benefit from relatively better purchase or sale prices, lower commission expenses or beneficial timing of transactions, or a combination of these and other factors. In many instances, FIA purchases or sells securities for a client account and simultaneously purchases or sells like securities for other client accounts. Such transactions may be made at slightly different prices, because of the volume of securities purchased or sold. In such event, a client account may be charged or credited, as the case may be, the average transaction price of all securities purchased or sold in such transactions. As a result, the price may be less favorable to a client account than it would be if similar transactions were not executed concurrently for other client accounts. Cross Transactions. Periodically, FIA may seek to adjust or rebalance the portfolios of client accounts by effecting cross trades between or among those accounts (i.e., causing one or more of those accounts to sell securities to one or more of those accounts). In effecting such cross trades, FIA seeks to reduce the transaction costs to its clients of such account adjustments. All such cross trades will be consistent with the investment objectives and policies of each client account involved in the trades. Directed Brokerage. If a client directs FIA to use a specific broker, FIA has not negotiated the terms and conditions (including, but not limited to, commission rates) relating to the services provided by such broker. FIA does not have any responsibility for obtaining for the client from any such broker the best prices or particular commission rates with or through any such broker. The client may not obtain rates as low as it might otherwise obtain if FIA had discretion to select broker-dealers other than those chosen by the client. The client may not participate in aggregate securities transactions, as described above, and may trade after such aggregate transactions and receive less favorable execution. Third Party Solicitors. FIA may engage solicitors to whom it pays cash or a portion of the advisory fees paid by clients and investors referred to it by those solicitors. In such cases, this practice is disclosed in writing to the client or investor.
