Item 4 - Advisory Business

John F. Suby Wealth Management, LLC (“Wealth Management”) is an investment adviser registered with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”). Wealth Management provides Discretionary Asset Management Services and Consulting Services to a wide variety of clients. Wealth Management became registered as an investment adviser in August 2009. Wealth Management is wholly owned by John F. Suby & Associates, S.C. which is owned by several shareholders, none which own more than 25% individually. Wealth Management does not control any other firm. Wealth Management's advisory services are described in detail below.

Wealth Management is not engaged in any other business.

Asset Management Services

Wealth Management can provide investment management services which involve supervision of the account on a regular basis. In establishing an Asset Management Account, Wealth Management's Investment Adviser Representative (“IAR”) gathers information from each new client to determine the investment objectives and risk tolerance of the client. Once the investment objectives and risk tolerance have been determined, Wealth Management will provide the client with investment advice, which includes an analysis of current investments and recommendations of other appropriate investments, or a recommendation to use the services of a third-party manager.

Clients should be aware that in most cases Wealth Management will use the management services of a third-party manager, thus will not manage the account itself. Asset Management services are provided on a discretionary basis as authorized by the client through the execution of the Investment Management Agreement. With discretionary services, Wealth Management and its IARs may buy, sell or exchange securities, hire and terminate third-party investment managers, and open and terminate custodial accounts without obtaining specific consent from the client prior to each transaction. Third-party managers also have discretionary authority to buy and sell at will. Wealth Management will typically only use one third-party manager, thus will not perform a manager search before recommending third-party managers.

For Wealth Management and third-party managers to make appropriate investment decisions, it is important that the client provide accurate and complete responses to the questions asked by the IARs, as well as inform the IARs of changes to the client's investment objectives, personal circumstances and other factors that may impact management decisions for the account. IARs of Wealth Management will, on at least an annual basis, contact each client to determine whether there have been objective changes or new restrictions on the management of the Asset Management portfolio. However, it remains the responsibility of each client to inform Wealth Management of any material change.

Investment options for Management accounts include common and preferred stocks, bonds, municipal securities, government securities, exchange listed limited partnerships, mutual funds, exchange traded funds, unit investment trusts, and other investment options.

As part of the Asset Management program, Wealth Management will arrange for execution of trades, custody of assets, and performance reporting.

Clients may choose to have an advisory affiliate, John F. Suby & Associates, S.C. an accounting firm, provide accounting services to the client as part of their Asset Management agreement with Wealth Management. This is determined at the time of contract execution and a description of the fees can be found below.

As of December 31, 2010, Wealth Management had assets under discretionary management of a third-party manager of $163,866,181, and none under non-discretionary management.

Investment Consulting Services

Wealth Management also provides Investment Consulting Services on an hourly or flat fee basis to those clients seeking financial advice involving particular investment or financial situations. Wealth Management provides counseling services designed to meet the client's specific financial objectives and needs. The counseling services generally result in a financial plan, but may also involve more general consulting. Services may also include sector-planning arrangements in areas such as retirement planning, estate planning, college planning, cash flow analysis, or analysis with regard to investment of lump sum distributions from employer pension and profit sharing plans.

In preparing a financial plan for a client, information is gathered relevant to the particular service through personal interviews conducted by the IAR and through documents and other information supplied by the client. Service may include an analysis of the client's information such as their current assets and investments, liabilities, short and long-term capital and liquidity needs, risk tolerance and short and long-term financial goals and objectives.

Should a client choose to implement the recommendations contained in the financial plan, Wealth Management suggests that the client work closely with his or her attorney, accountant, insurance agent and/or securities broker. Wealth Management IARs generally make recommendations with respect to products or services offered by Wealth Management and its affiliates. The decision to implement any such recommendation rests exclusively with the client, and the client has no obligation to implement any such recommendation.

All investment programs involve risk and there is no guarantee that using the Investment Consulting Services will produce favorable results, or that losses will not occur.

All advice is based on information provided by the client. It is the client's responsibility to be certain that Wealth Management has current and accurate information.

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

Fees paid to Wealth Management are for Wealth Management advisory services only. The fees do not include, for example, the fees charged by third parties, such as accountants and attorneys, assisting with providing the client with accounting and legal advice. The fees also do not include administrative and account maintenance fees charged by the accounts custodian.

Prospective clients should be aware that in addition to Wealth Management's management fees, each mutual fund in which a client's assets are invested also pays its own advisory fees and other internal expenses which already have been deducted from the fund's reported performance. Depending on the fund, a client may be able to invest directly in the shares issued by the fund with or without incurring any sales or third-party management fees.

In addition, there are tax effects pertaining to fund share redemptions made by Wealth Management on behalf of clients. Redemptions are taxable events which may accelerate the recognition of capital gains, and losses, and frequent redemptions may result in short-term, rather than long-term, capital gains and losses.

Asset Management Service Fees

Fees for Asset Management Services are negotiable, thus vary from client to client, and calculated as a percentage of the total value of investments under Wealth Management's management at the rates set forth in the Fee Schedule below. In addition to this advisory fee, as indicated above, there will be transaction, commission, administrative, servicing fees and other servicing fees charged by the account's custodian.

Assets Under Management	Annual Fee (Paid Quarterly)
$0 to $1,000,000	1.00%
$1,000,001 to $2,000,000	0.80%
$2,000,001 to $3,000,000	0.60%
$3,000,001 to $5,000,000	0.50%
$5,000,001 to $10,000,000	0.40%
Over $10,000,000	0.30%

For services provided under Wealth Management's program, clients are charged a fee calculated by applying the annual fee schedule percentage to the account's value each quarter or as negotiated between the client and Wealth Management. The market value, which may be determined on an account by account basis or household on an aggregated basis (including interest paid or accrued), is calculated as of the last business day of the previous calendar quarter. The fee will be debited from the client's account in arrears quarterly. Fees are due for assets withdrawn from the account.

If the account is established any day other than the first day of a calendar quarter, the fee due for the first billing period is paid on a prorated basis based on the days services were provided. The account custodian will determine fair market value for fee calculation purposes. Client acknowledges and agrees that it is client's responsibility to verify the accuracy of such fee calculation and that the custodian will not determine whether fees are properly calculated.

Clients may terminate the agreement at any time in its entirety by giving Wealth Management written notice of termination. Wealth Management may also terminate by notice to the client. The client is responsible for paying all fees earned by Wealth Management to date of termination.

Wealth Management's fees may be more or less than those charged by Wealth Management to another client for similar services and other advisers for similar services. Wealth Management does not guarantee the results of investment management advice it gives or the advice given and actions taken by third-party portfolio managers such as Provident Trust Company. Thus, losses can occur by using Wealth Management's services.

For those clients choosing to receive affiliate services, such as accounting and/or trustee services, as determined in the Management Agreement, Wealth Management will pay for such services in an amount equal to but no more than 50% of the advisory fee collected during the first year the affiliate services were provided. Fees for services provided by the affiliate that are not specified in the Management Agreement are the responsibility of the client.

Investment Consulting Service Fees

Wealth Management may charge fees for Investment Consulting Services based on an hourly or flat fee, as explained below.

Hourly fee. Wealth Management's hourly fee varies from $100 to $500 per hour and depends upon the nature and scope of the advice requested by the client, the amount and nature of the research required to complete the project and the nature and number of reports required by the client. The hourly fee may be calculated based upon each professional staff member's time spent on a project. Prior to engagement, each client signs an agreement which provides an estimate of the total fee for services. One-half of the fee is due upon contract signing. The balance is due after services are provided.

Flat fee. Wealth Management's flat fee is quoted in advance and usually ranges from $500 to $25,000 depending upon the nature and scope of the advice requested by the client, the nature and number of investments in a client's portfolio, amount and nature of research required to complete the project and scope and number of reports requested by a client. Flat fees are negotiated based on the nature of the work, not by the type of client. Prior to engagement, each client signs an Agreement which provides an estimate of the total fee for services. One-half of the estimated fee is due upon signing of the advisory agreement with the balance due after services are provided.

The agreement between Wealth Management and a client for Investment Consulting may be terminated by either party providing 10 days advance written notice to the other. Any fee due, but not yet paid by a client, is due promptly after termination of the Agreement. Any unearned portion of a prepaid fee is returned to the client.

Item 6 - Performance Based Fees and Side-by-Side Management

Wealth Management does not charge any performance-based fees. All fees are disclosed above.

Item 7 - Types of Clients/Minimum Account Size

Wealth Management makes its advisory services available to a wide variety of clients including, but not limited to, individuals, banks or thrift institutions, investment companies, pension and profit sharing plans, trusts, estates, charitable organizations, corporations and other business entities.

Wealth Management does not require a minimum account size or minimum fee to receive its advisory services.

Again, for Asset Management Services, Wealth Management typically recommends the services of the third-party manager.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Wealth Management's security analysis method includes, but is not limited to, charting (using charts to track individual security or market movements over time); fundamental analysis (evaluating securities based upon its historical and projected financial performance); technical analysis (examining technical moves in the price of an issue based upon peer securities or comparisons to an investment sector or index); and cyclical analysis (determining the desirability of an issue based upon the status of an issue within the price cycle the security or similar securities have followed historically).

Wealth Management's main sources of information include, but are not limited to, financial newspapers and magazines, inspections of corporate activities, research materials prepared by others, corporate rating services, annual reports, prospectuses, public filings and company press releases.

Neither Wealth Management nor the third-party managers it uses, guarantee the results of the advice given. Thus, significant losses can occur by investing in any security, or by following any strategy, including conservative investment strategies recommended or applied by Wealth Management or a third-party manager.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

Wealth Management does not have any disciplinary information to report regarding itself or any of its counselors or other related persons.

Item 10 - Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Wealth Management is a single member limited liability company owned by John F. Suby & Associates, S.C. a full-service accounting firm offering auditing, accounting and tax services. Both firms expect that they will refer clients to each other, for no fee, if either believes the other will benefit their clients. These referrals create a conflict of interest since the affiliated entity providing the service will be compensated for doing so. For clients receiving accounting services, the fee for those services may, as negotiated between the client and Wealth Management, be covered under the advisory fee being paid to Wealth Management.

Item 11 - Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Wealth Management does not maintain an inventory of investments for resale, and does not buy or sell securities for itself that it recommends to (or purchases and sells for) clients. However, Wealth Management's employees and IAR's may purchase or sell for their own accounts securities or other investment products that are also recommended to clients. When purchasing or selling securities, priority is given to client transactions. Wealth Management employees and IARs are subject to the provisions of Wealth Management's policies regarding personal securities transactions. These policies are designed to prevent detriment to the client or any benefit to Wealth Management employees or IARs resulting from investment activities.

Wealth Management has established a Code of Ethics applicable to all persons who have access to confidential client records or to recommendations being made for client accounts. Designed to prevent conflicts of interest between the financial interests of clients and the interests of the firm's staff, the Code requires such "access persons" to obtain pre-approval of certain securities transactions, to report transactions quarterly and to report all securities positions in which they have a beneficial interest at least annually. These reporting requirements allow supervisors at the firm to determine whether to allow or prohibit certain employee securities purchases and sales based on transactions made, or anticipated to be made, in the same securities for client accounts. The Code also establishes certain bookkeeping requirements relating to federal reporting rules. The Code is required to be reviewed annually and updated as necessary. A complete copy of the firm's Code is available upon request by writing, mailed to 2901 West Beltline Highway, Suite 201, Madison, WI 53713.

An affiliate of Wealth Management, John F Suby & Associates, S.C., is available to provide accounting and trustee services. To the extent that IARs of Wealth Management recommend the accounting and trust services of its affiliate, a conflict of interest exists since the affiliate and the IAR will receive additional compensation from the provision of these services.

Clients and prospects should be aware of the fact that one individual client of Wealth Management has loaned funds to John F. Suby. Although this loan creates an inducement for Wealth Management to favor this client over others, and therefore a potential conflict of interest, it is Wealth Management's intent not to treat this client any differently than others while providing management services.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

Wealth Management generally does not exercise discretion to select brokerage firms. Wealth Management and third-party managers used by Wealth Management seek to obtain the best combination of net price and execution when effecting brokerage transactions for client accounts.

Wealth Management and third-party managers consider certain factors in analyzing overall execution quality. Such factors may include, but are not necessarily limited to: current transaction costs, the nature of the securities being purchased or sold and access to market participants, which may be limited due to thin trading activity for a particular security or unavailability of such securities; the size of the transaction; the desired timing of the transaction; the activity existing and anticipated in the market for the particular security; the execution, clearance, and settlement capabilities of the broker/dealer; and the research products, and other services provided for the benefit of Wealth Management and its clients.

When providing Investment Consulting services, Wealth Management and its IARs are not granted discretion to select brokerage firms or to purchase and sell securities. The client selects the brokerage firm and also decides upon the investments to purchase or sell.

Item 13 - Review of Accounts and Reports

Asset Management accounts receive a report of account transactions and positions at least quarterly from the account custodian.

Reports to clients receiving Investment Counseling services are provided as frequently as agreed upon in advance between Wealth Management and the client.

Wealth Management IAR's continuously monitor Asset Management portfolios to identify situations that may warrant either a more detailed review or specific action on behalf of a portfolio or client. Such reviews include, but are not necessarily limited to, suitability, inactivity and high concentrations in individual securities. In addition, Wealth Management IARs providing continuous and regular investment advice or investment supervisory services to clients, either alone or through a third-party manager, review client portfolios and communicate with clients regularly, as agreed upon by the client, for conformity with respective portfolios, specific investment objectives, changes in the client's financial condition, any reasonable restrictions to be imposed as to specific assets or types of assets to be included or excluded from client portfolios, and all applicable rules and regulations. Wealth Management also examines investment results on a regular basis.

Wealth Management does not verify performance data provided to it by third parties, except to the extent of calculation methods and the related account holdings shown. Where appropriate, Wealth Management may change or recommend a change of the Wealth Management IAR for the client's portfolio.

Accounts are reviewed as frequently as set forth in the services agreement or as Wealth Management IARs deem appropriate. Reviews are often triggered by changes in client financial circumstances or objectives, client requests, market or sector trends, news about a security, or account review intervals established by Wealth Management.

Clients may contact Wealth Management or their account's third-party manager any time they wish.

Item 14 - Client Referrals and Other Compensation

An affiliate of Wealth Management, John F Suby & Associates, S.C., is available to provide accounting and trustee services. To the extent that IARs of Wealth Management recommend the accounting and trust services of its affiliate, a conflict of interest exists since the affiliate and the IAR will receive additional compensation from the provision of these services.

Item 15 - Custody

Wealth Management does not take custody of client funds or securities. These safekeeping services are typically provided to managed accounts by the brokerage firm processing the securities transactions ordered by Wealth Management.

To the extent a client receives any account or other investment ownership statement from Wealth Management or third-party managers, Wealth Management recommends the client carefully compare the report to the custodian's statements.

Item 16 - Investment Discretion

Wealth Management and third-party managers provide investment advice to certain of its clients on a discretionary basis, pursuant to written authorization granted by those clients in the services agreement. Wealth Management also has discretion to hire and terminate third-party money managers, however the firm usually recommends the services of one manager which also acts as custodian.

Client account transactions are typically completed independently for each account. Wealth Management may, however, purchase or sell the same securities or instruments for a number of clients simultaneously. When appropriate, orders for the same security may be combined or "batched" to facilitate best execution and reduce brokerage commissions or other costs. Wealth Management affects batched transaction in a manner designed to ensure that no participating client is favored over any other client. Specifically, each client that participates in a batched order transaction will participate at the average price for all of Wealth Management's transactions effected to fulfill the batched order. Securities purchased or sold in batched transactions are typically allocated pro-rata to the participating client accounts in proportion to the size of the order placed for each account. Wealth Management may increase or decrease the amount of securities allocated to each account if necessary to avoid holding odd lot or small numbers of shares for particular clients, in situations where it maintains discretion. Additionally, if the clearing firm is unable to fully execute a batched transaction and Wealth Management determines that it would be impractical to allocate a small number of securities among the accounts participating in the transaction on a pro-rata basis, Wealth Management may allocate such securities in a manner determined in good faith to be fair and equitable.

In those instances where an order error occurs, it is Wealth Management's and each third-party manager's policy to reverse the order to make the client's account whole.

Item 17 - Voting Proxies on Client Securities

Wealth Management and its IARs do not vote proxies on behalf of clients who will receive such notices from their account's custodian. However, Wealth Management will assist clients by answering questions they may have regarding the nature of a proxy and voting procedures.

Wealth Management also does not take any action on legal notices it or a client may receive from issuers of securities held in a client's managed account. However, it is available to answer questions regarding such notices.

Item 18 - Financial Information

Wealth Management does not receive fees of more than $1,200 six months or more in advance, thus no financial statement for Wealth Management is attached. Wealth Management does not have any financial condition that is reasonably likely to impair its ability to meet its contracted commitment to any client.

CPAs are licensed and regulated by their state boards of accountancy. While state laws and regulations vary, the education, experience and testing requirements for licensure as a CPA generally include minimum college education (typically 150 credit hours with at least a baccalaureate degree and a concentration in accounting), minimum experience levels (most states require at least one year of experience providing services that involve the use of accounting, attest, compilation, management advisory, financial advisory, tax or consulting skills, all of which must be achieved under the supervision of or verification by a CPA), and successful passage of the Uniform CPA Examination. In order to maintain a CPA license, states generally require the completion of 40 hours of continuing professional education (CPE) each year (or 80 hours over a two year period or 120 hours over a three year period). Additionally, all American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA) members are required to follow a rigorous Code of Professional Conduct which requires that they act with integrity, objectivity, due care, competence, fully disclose any conflicts of interest (and obtain client consent if a conflict exists), maintain client confidentiality, disclose to the client any commission or referral fees, and serve the public interest when providing financial services. The vast majority of state boards of accountancy have adopted the AICPA's Code of Professional Conduct within their state accountancy laws or have created their own.
