Item 4 - Advisory Business

4. A. Firm Description and Principal Ownership:

Performa Limited (US), LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, was founded in April 2010 as Ansonborough Capital Management, LLC ("ACM").

On July 1, 2012, the Company name changed to Performa Limited (US), LLC in recognition of its affiliation with P.R.P Performa Ltd, an investment management firm located in Hamilton, Bermuda and registered with the Bermuda Monetary Authority ("BMA").

Performa registered as an investment adviser with the SEC in July 2012. Performa provides fixed income investment management, sub-advisory services and advisory services to institutions, mutual funds and other investment vehicles including Bermuda based mutual funds registered with the BMA.

Performa is a privately held company with no indirect ownership. Performa manages each of its clients' accounts in accordance with pre-determined guidelines and restrictions, either on a fully discretionary basis or on an advisory basis, as established in the applicable investment management agreement with such client.

Performa is 100% owned by its founder, David T. Kilborn, CFA and its key employees. Mr. Kilborn holds a majority of the Company's Interest directly, while the key employees hold their interests via a limited partnership in accordance to the Firm's Equity Plan that was established on August 21, 2013.

At the inception of the Equity Plan, Lawrence F. Burtschy no longer held an interest in the Company. The Firm's affiliate, P.R.P. Performa Ltd., continues to hold an option to purchase a minority interest in the Company.

4. B. Investment Management and Advisory Services:

Performa concentrates its business on what it does best: investment management and asset allocation. Performa outsources its other functions such as middle and back office as well as portfolio administration to its affiliated firm, P.R.P Performa Ltd. Performa offers Investment Management Services as well as Advisory Services as indicated below.

Fixed Income:

Performa provides continuous fixed income, investment management advice on a fully discretionary basis to institutions, high net worth individuals, private funds and non-US (offshore) registered investment vehicles. Performa also provides non-discretionary fixed income advice to institutions. Performa has set up the capability to provide investment management services to onshore vehicles with similar requirements as their offshore counterparts. In this capacity, the Company, or an affiliated entity, may act as the General Partner to such vehicles.

Performa offers the following styles of investment grade fixed income management:

Money Market or Cash Equivalents: Performa manages portfolios with guidelines that mirror those for typical registered money market funds and those that have relaxed guidelines to allow for additional yield possibilities.

Low Duration Fixed Income: Performa manages shorter portfolios with the goal of capital preservation first and foremost, and then for yield. This strategy combines high quality Corporate bonds with other sectors of the fixed income market including, but not limited to: Asset Backed Securities, Residential and Commercial Mortgage Backed Securities, Agencies, and Treasuries.

Intermediate Fixed Income: Performa manages medium term portfolios against a variety of generally accepted benchmarks and includes the same fixed income sectors as its Low Duration portfolios. This strategy may employ the use of derivatives.

Sector Strategies: Performa may manage fixed income portfolios invested only in certain individual sectors of the fixed income market such as Corporate bonds.

Customized or Non-Discretionary Portfolios: Within Performa's fixed income business, clients may require strategies outside of the usual strategies managed by the Company. The scope of services provided to such clients may include the following:

- Economic analysis;
- Fundamental research;
- Ongoing portfolio analysis that can include sector and duration recommendations;
- Implementation of recommendations if discretionary or execution assistance if non-discretionary;
- Individual security analysis and buy/sell recommendations;
- Other assistance with regulatory reporting for regulated clients; and/or Asset/Liability advice.

Equities:

Performa does not currently manage individual equity portfolios in house. Instead, the Firm's Asset Allocation strategies may invest in vehicles such as mutual funds, private funds or exchange traded/index funds that are managed by sub-advisors. When using ETFs or Index Funds, the Company uses its internally focused macro analysis and research to rotate between different equity styles and markets.

4. C. Asset Allocation and Advisory Services:

Performa may provide Asset Allocation recommendations to clients of which it may manage a portion of the client's assets. Performa will work with the client to determine suitable external managers that are complimentary to the strategies managed by Performa on behalf of the client and also meet the client's needs and objectives. Performa personnel use their experience as portfolio managers and sell-side traders to evaluate other management firms for suitability as well as other techniques from a quantitative perspective.

4. D. Individual Client Restrictions and Needs

Performa's management of client portfolios is generally on a fully discretionary basis, although clients of separately managed accounts have the ability to impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities through the establishment of their investment objectives and guidelines.

4. E. Wrap Fee Programs:

Performa does not participate in wrap fee programs.

4. F. Assets Under Management:

As of December 31, 2014 Performa managed approximately $1,065,555,333 in client assets on a fully discretionary basis and $0 in client assets on a non-discretionary basis.

Item 5- Fees and Compensation

Performa charges clients management fees based on a percentage of assets under management. The following description sets forth typical management fees charged to various types of clients.

Performa's fees are generally payable quarterly in arrears and may be prorated for those periods during a client's initial funding as well as termination. The basic fee schedules for separately managed fixed income accounts are:

Sub-Advisory

Sub-Advisory Fees are negotiated on a case-by-case basis as the scope and responsibility can vary greatly. Generally, Sub-Advisory fees will be of a lower initial fee structure than for separate accounts due to larger assets under management and other features. The advisor receives an invoice for payment and is encouraged to review the invoice to ensure the proper fee calculation has been made.

Performa does not accept compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products.

Item 6 - Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Performa does not participate in any performance fee arrangement with any clients.

Performa does not participate in side-by-side management of assets.

Item 7 - Types of Clients

Performa provides or may provide investment management and services to high-net worth individuals and to institutional Clients such as other investment management firms (on a sub-advisory basis), banks, insurance companies, foreign registered mutual funds, domestic or foreign private funds, pension and profit sharing plans, retirement and benefit plans for unions (Taft-Hartley plans), public funds, endowments, foundations, trusts, government-sponsored entities, educational and healthcare facilities such as colleges and hospitals and other types of corporate Clients.

The minimum account size depends on the strategy and account characteristics. Performa may accept or retain Clients whose accounts are based on our sole discretion. Typically, the Firm believes that its investment management style suits portfolios generally $5,000,000 or greater for Asset Allocation Clients and $25,000,000 or greater for fixed income separate accounts. Certain private funds have lower minimum sizes for participation.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

8. A. Methods of Analysis

Performa's investment ideas may be generated from a wide variety of sources, including internally generated fundamental, technical analysis, economic and strategic analysis. Performa also may use research issued by other independent research firms, and industry contacts such as other investors, dealers, other originators, bond and stock traders and brokers.

Performa's investment process generally starts with a macro view of the global economy and rate cycles. Performa employs four pillars of macro research to formulate the policy which then drives duration and sector allocation decisions:

- Macro-economic environment and prospects
- Monetary policy
- Structural and secular changes
- Market flows and technical analysis

Performa then uses a bottom up, security level analysis to determine the best holdings within each sector. Buy/sell decisions include fundamental research on individual issuers when necessary.

Performa designs and manages portfolios so that capital preservation can be an important goal. The key macro decisions may bear as much weight in performance as security selection at any time.

8. B. Investment Strategies

Fixed Income Strategy Descriptions

Intermediate Fixed Income Strategy

The primary objective of the intermediate fixed income strategy is to provide long term capital appreciation through an optimized mix of investment grade securities across international markets and while maintaining a relatively short duration that will not exceed seven years. This strategy focuses on particular investment guidelines in attempting to achieve its objective. There can be no assurance that the objective will be achieved. The intermediate fixed income strategy is an active strategy and only available to qualified purchasers. This strategy may be available through a private equity offering. The risks involved in investing in a private equity are numerous and are outlined in the fund's Confidential Private Offering Memorandum, Limited Partnership Agreement and Subscription Agreement. Performa personnel will only introduce or recommend this strategy as appropriate.

Low Duration Strategy

The primary objective of the low duration strategy is to preserve principal consistent with the generation of investment income. The strategy invests primarily in U.S. government and U.S. corporate bonds of investment grade quality. This strategy is currently only available to offshore investors and not available for purchase to United States persons. Additional information regarding suitable investors and the risks involved in this strategy are outlined in the Confidential Memorandum.

High Yield Strategy

The overall investment objective is to achieve, through the individual Class Funds, an above average rate of total return while attempting to limit investment risk by investing in a diversified portfolio of fixed income securities. This strategy invests primarily in high yield debt instruments of U.S. and non-U.S. issuers. An instrument is considered "High-Yield" if it is rated below investment grade by nationally recognized statistical rating organizations (NRSRO) such as S&P and Moody's or Fitch. The High Yield market is sensitive to cyclical economic events and therefore, the Manager will change the average credit quality and duration risk from time to time as deemed appropriate. This strategy is currently only available to offshore investors and not available for purchase to United States persons. Additional information regarding suitable investors and the risks involved in this strategy are outlined in the Confidential Memorandum.

Cash Management Strategy

The overall investment objective is to achieve income while attempting to limit investment risk by investing in a diversified portfolio of cash and near cash instruments. This strategy focuses on particular investment guidelines in attempting to achieve its objective. There can be no assurance that the objective will be achieved. The money market strategy is an actively managed strategy focused on investing principally in cash and near cash instruments. This strategy is currently only available to offshore investors and not available for purchase to United States persons. Additional information regarding suitable investors and the risks involved in this strategy are outlined in the Confidential Memorandum.

8. C. Risk of Loss

General Investment Risks: Securities investments are not guaranteed and you may lose money on your investments. Clients or prospective Clients should carefully read any offering documentation or other materials relating to an investment for a detailed explanation of the risks associated with an investment.

Risks Relating to Fixed Income Securities: Performa may invest (long or short) in debt instruments or other fixed-income securities of U.S. and non-U.S. issuers, including, without limitation, debt securities issued or guaranteed by the U.S. Government or one of its agencies or instrumentalities and debt instruments issued or guaranteed by other sovereign nations. Fixed-income securities pay fixed, variable or floating rates of interest. The value of fixed-income securities in which Performa invests will change in response to fluctuations in interest rates. In addition, the value of certain fixed-income securities can fluctuate in response to perceptions of credit worthiness, political stability or soundness of economic policies. Fixed-income securities are subject to the risk of the issuer's inability to meet principal and interest payments on its obligations (i.e., credit risk) and are subject to price volatility due to such factors as interest rate sensitivity, market perception of the creditworthiness of the issuer and general market liquidity (i.e., market risk).

The material risks relating to the significant methods of analysis and investment strategies described above are set forth below:

Credit Risk: Debt securities are subject to the risk that an issuer will fail to make timely payments of interest or principal, or go bankrupt, or that the value of the securities will decline because of a market perception that the owner may not make payment on time. The lower the rating of a debt security, the higher its credit risk.

Interest Rate Risk: Debt securities will generally lose value if interest rates increase. U.S. Government securities can exhibit price movements resulting from changes in interest rates. Interest rate risk is generally higher for investments with longer maturities or durations. Treasury Inflation Protected Securities ("TIPS") can also exhibit price movements as a result of changing inflation expectations and seasonal inflation patterns.

Mortgage and Asset Backed Security Risk: Mortgage and asset-backed securities are debt instruments that are secured by interests in pools of mortgage loans or other financial assets. The value of these securities will be influenced by the factors affecting the assets underlying such securities, swings in interest rates, changes in default rates, or deteriorating economic conditions. During periods of declining asset values, mortgage-backed and asset-backed securities may face valuation difficulties, become more volatile and/or illiquid.

Prepayment and Call Risk: When mortgages and other obligations are prepaid and when securities are called, the Fund may have to reinvest in securities with a lower yield or fail to recover additional amounts paid for securities with higher interest rates, resulting in an unexpected capital loss.

Foreign Securities Risk: Foreign securities involve special risks such as currency fluctuations, economic or financial instability, lack of timely or reliable financial information and unfavorable political or legal developments and delays in enforcement of rights. These risks are increased for investments in emerging markets.

Below Investment Grade Securities Risk: Below investment grade securities (sometimes referred to as "junk bonds") involve greater risk of default or downgrade and are more volatile than investment grade securities. Below investment grade securities may also be less liquid than higher quality securities.

Derivatives Risk: Investments in derivatives exposes a Client to additional volatility and potential loss. Losses on investments in certain types of derivatives may exceed the initial investment.

Foreign Currency Forward Contracts Risk: The technique of purchasing foreign currency forward contracts to obtain exposure to currencies or manage currency risk may not be effective. In addition, currency markets generally are not as regulated as securities markets.

Swap Risk: Certain Clients may enter into swap agreements, including credit default swaps, for purposes of attempting to gain exposure to a particular asset without actually purchasing that asset, or to hedge a position. Credit default swaps may increase the Client's exposure to credit risk and could result in losses if Performa does not correctly evaluate the creditworthiness of the entity on which the credit default swap is based. Swap agreements may also subject the Client to the risk that the counterparty to the transaction may not meet its obligations.

Futures Contract Risk: Certain Clients may enter into futures contracts. The risks associated with futures include Performa's ability to manage these instruments, the potential inability to terminate or sell a position, the lack of a liquid secondary market for the Client's position and the risk that the counterparty to the transaction will not meet its obligations.

Leverage Risk: Certain transactions and the use of derivatives such as foreign currency forward contracts, swaps and futures may create leveraging risk. Leverage may cause the Client's account to be more volatile than if the Client's account had not been leveraged. This is because leverage tends to exaggerate the effect of any increase or decrease in the value of the Client's securities.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

Performa has no reportable disciplinary events to disclose.

Item 10 - Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

David T. Kilborn, Managing Member, Chief Investment Officer, Chief Executive Officer & President of Performa, acts as the Chief Investment Officer for Performa's affiliated firm, P.R.P. Performa considers Managing Members that are active in the day-to-day management of the Company and all employees to be "Access Persons" and subjected to all policies and procedures. Performa will provide a copy of its Code of Ethics to any client or prospective client upon request.

It is Performa's policy that no Access Person may usurp any investment opportunity which may be appropriate for one or more client accounts without first presenting the opportunity to Performa's management, particularly where there is limited availability for participation in the opportunity.

The Gifts and Entertainment Policy - Establishes limitations on the acceptance of gifts and/or entertainment by Access Persons, as well as reporting requirements and enforcement procedures. All Access Persons are prohibited from accepting gifts that exceed $100 from the same party during the same calendar year.

Insider Trading - Performa has adopted an Insider Trading Policy in accordance with Advisers Act Section 204A which establishes policies and procedures to prevent the misuse of material information by Access Persons. Performa and its related persons may, from time to time, come into possession of material nonpublic and other confidential information, which, if disclosed, might affect an investor's decision to buy, sell or hold a security. Under applicable law, Performa and its related persons may be prohibited from improperly disclosing or using such information for their personal benefit or for the benefit of any other person, regardless of whether such other person is an advisory Client. Accordingly, should such persons acquire possession of material nonpublic or other confidential information with respect to any company, they may be prohibited from communicating such information to, or using such information for the benefit of, their respective Clients, and have no obligation or responsibility to disclose such information to, nor responsibility to use such information for the benefit of, their Clients when following policies and procedures designed to comply with law.

Political Contributions - All Access Persons are subject to pre-approval and reporting of all political contributions. It is Performa's policy to prohibit contributions to local and state officials and candidates for such offices as it presents potential conflicts of interests or could be construed as an attempt to influence.

Personal Trading - In accordance with the Advisers Act, specifically Rule 204A-1, and the 1940 Act, specifically, Rule 17j-1(b)(1), Performa has adopted a strict Code of Ethics that addresses personal and professional conflicts of interest, prohibits certain types of personal securities transactions, and is designed to avoid perceived or actual conflicts and prevent front running and possible insider trading abuses.

The Code of Ethics also establishes reporting requirements and enforcement procedures. Procedures with reporting requirements are fulfilled by Access Persons through reporting to the designated Compliance Review Officer within the Compliance Department.

All Access Persons are required to comply with Federal Securities Laws.

All Access Persons are required to immediately report any violation of the Code of Ethics to the Board of Managers and Compliance Department.

All Access Persons are required to initially/quarterly/annually submit the appropriate information, material, and documentation regarding all personal trading.

Each Access Person is required to direct each brokerage firm or bank at which such Access Person maintains a securities related account which the Access Person has direct or indirect beneficial interest in, to send duplicate copies of each person's confirmations and statement to the Compliance Department.

All Access Persons are required, in accordance with firm policies, to pre-clear and/or report personal transactions in their accounts. (Certain mutual funds, cash/cash equivalents, indexes and government related securities may be exempt.)

Market timing and late day trading detailed by the SEC are not permitted

Short term trading is discouraged.

Access Persons may be restricted from trading certain securities during certain periods of time. These are referred to as “black out” periods and are designed as a means of protecting Clients against employee front running and insider trading.

Access Persons may be restricted from specific styles of trading such as good-until-canceled orders, and may be restricted from specific types of investments such as initial public offerings (“IPOs”) and private placements.

The Compliance Department reviews personal activity daily/quarterly/annually to determine if any individual violations occurred during that period.

Performa shall maintain records under the conditions described in Rule 31a-2 under the 1940 Act and Rule 204-2 of the Advisers Act that shall be available for examination by representatives of the SEC.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

Performa requires discretionary clients to provide us written authority to select a broker-dealer in connection with transactions effected on behalf of such client. Performa generally has authority to select broker-dealers and to negotiate transaction related charges including commissions to be paid.

When placing portfolio transactions and negotiating commission rates, Performa will seek to obtain the best execution for its clients, taking into account the following factors:

- (i) availability of electronic trading platforms as the most desirable form for execution for a particular market
- (ii) the ability to effect prompt and reliable executions at favorable prices (including the applicable dealer spread or commission, if any);
- (iii) the operational efficiency with which transactions are effected, taking into account the size of order and difficulty of execution;
- (iv) the financial strength, integrity and stability of the broker;
- (v) the reputation of the broker;
- (vi) the firm’s risk in positioning a block of securities;
- (vii) efficiency of execution and error resolution;

- (viii) the quality, comprehensiveness and frequency of available research services considered to be of value; and
- (ix) the competitiveness of commission rates in comparison with other brokers satisfying the Performa's other selection criteria.

For discretionary clients, Performa is authorized to pay higher prices for the purchase of securities from or accept lower prices for the sale of securities to brokerage firms that provide it with such investment and research information or to pay higher commissions to such firms if Performa determines such prices or commissions are reasonable in relation to the overall services provided.

Research services furnished by brokers may include written information and analyses concerning specific securities, companies or sectors; market, financial and economic studies and forecasts; statistics and pricing or appraisal services; discussions with research personnel; and invitations to attend conferences or meetings with management or industry consultants. Performa is not required to weigh any of these factors equally. Information so received is in addition to and not in lieu of services required to be performed by Performa, and no fees are reduced as a consequence of the receipt of such supplemental research information.

Research services provided by broker/dealers used by Performa may be utilized by Performa or its affiliates (including other investment funds managed by such persons) in connection with their other investment activities. Since commission rates in the United States are negotiable, Performa's selection of brokers on the basis of considerations which are not limited to applicable commission rates may at times result in the clients being charged higher transaction costs than it could otherwise obtain.

Allocation of Trades. Performa may at times determine that certain securities will be suitable for acquisition for its clients. If Performa is not able to acquire the desired aggregate amount of such securities on terms and conditions which Performa deems advisable, Performa will endeavor to allocate in good faith the limited amount of such securities acquired among the various accounts for which Performa considers them to be suitable. In particular, certain situations may arise where securities or other instruments determined by Performa to be suitable for acquisition on behalf of its clients may not be allocable among all clients for a variety of reasons, including, without limitation, restrictions regarding the holders of such securities or instruments, or country-specific or broker restrictions.

Performa may make such allocations among the accounts in any manner which it considers to be fair under the circumstances, including but not limited to, allocations based on relative account sizes, funds available for investment, diversification considerations, the degree of risk involved in the securities acquired, and the extent to which a position in such securities is consistent with the investment policies and strategies of the various accounts involved. All things being equal, Performa will always attempt to allocate on a pro-rata basis.

Aggregation of Orders. Performa may aggregate purchase and sale orders of securities held by its clients with similar orders being made simultaneously for other accounts or entities if, in Performa's reasonable judgment, such aggregation is reasonably likely to result in an overall economic benefit to the clients based on an evaluation that the clients will be benefited by relatively better purchase or sale prices, lower commission expenses or beneficial timing of transactions, or a combination of these and other factors. In many instances, the purchase or sale of securities for the clients will be effected simultaneously with the purchase or sale of like securities for other accounts or entities. Such transactions may be made at slightly different prices, due to the volume of securities purchased or sold. In such event, the average price of all securities purchased or sold in such transactions may be determined, at Performa's sole discretion, and the client may be charged or credited, as the case may be, with the average transaction price.

Soft Dollar Practices. Performa does not intend to engage in any soft dollar transactions on behalf of its clients.

Item 13 - Review of Accounts

All Performa client portfolios are reviewed at formal weekly meetings for asset allocation accounts or the Fixed Income investment policy group. Both meetings include members of Performa's portfolio management, client service and compliance departments. This review includes a number of assessments for portfolio guidelines, investment strategy, client and cash flow changes along with any other client specific factors. The managers of the three departments are:

Sandi Prescott – Head of Client Service
David Kilborn – Chief Investment Officer
Kathy Nicholl – Chief Compliance Officer

In addition to the weekly meetings, client portfolios are also reviewed on an ad hoc basis via the Firm's daily investment call.

Other factors that may cause a portfolio review are client contributions or distributions, revised client objectives or changes in law.

Performa provides a variety of reporting to its clients including:

- 1) monthly portfolio valuations, performance, activity and cash flow and fact sheets
 - 2) quarterly management reports which expand upon the monthly reporting and include investment and market commentary; typically detailing trading, performance, holding and information and information about market activity
 - 3) ad hoc meeting reports
 - 4) month-end financial market commentary publication as well as ad hoc client market update communications
 - 5) Performa may provide more frequent reporting as requested by a client

Item 14 - Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Additional Compensation. While it does not currently do so, Performa or its affiliates may sell interests in an investment vehicle through broker-dealers, placement agents and other persons (each such person, a "Placement Agent") and pay a marketing fee or commission in connection with such activities, including ongoing payments. Clients should recognize that the selection of brokers who have referred, or may refer clients, creates a potential conflict of interest between the client's interest in best price and execution and the adviser's interest in referrals. Such Placement Agent fees or commissions shall be payable by Performa or its affiliates (either directly or indirectly by offsetting Management Fees owed to Performa), or by the individual investor introduced to an investment vehicle by such Placement Agent (on a fully disclosed basis).

Performa may on occasion enter into solicitation agreements with individuals, financial intermediaries or others who may or may not be affiliated with Performa. All solicitation agreements will comply with Rule 206(4)-3 under the Advisers Act and any other law as applicable.

Item 15 – Custody

For separate account clients, Performa does not have physical custody of Client securities, cash or any other assets. Each separate account client selects and contracts with a qualified custodian of their choice to custody the assets that the client appoints Performa to manage. Client should receive at least quarterly statements from the qualified custodian that hold and maintains the client's investment assets. Performa urges each client to carefully review such statements and to compare such official custodial records to the account statements that are provided by Performa. It is possible our statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities.

Performa may be deemed to have custody of the assets and securities of any partnership by which it is the sole General Partner even though it is not the qualified custodian. To qualify for an exemption to the custody rule's surprise exam requirement, Performa has taken the following steps: 1) All transactions and assets in the partnership will be held at a qualified custodian; 2) either Performa or the third party record keeper will send, not less than quarterly, statements to all members participating in the partnership; 3) audited financial statements will be prepared annually by a member of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board in accordance with "generally accepted accounting principles" and will be distributed to all members of the partnership within 120 days of the end of each fiscal year; and 4) in the event of liquidation of a partnership, Performa will obtain a final audit of the partnership's financial statements and distribute the financial statements to all partnership investors promptly after completion of the audit.

Item 16 - Investment Discretion

Clients may engage Performa to provide discretionary investment management services, in which case Performa places trades in a client's account without contacting the client prior to each trade to obtain the client's permission. Performa usually receives discretionary authority from a client at the outset of an advisory relationship, pursuant to an investment management agreement with the client. Performa's discretion may be limited pursuant to the terms and conditions of the applicable advisory relationship.

Discretionary authority allows Performa the ability to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold for a client's account, without contacting the client.

Item 17 - Voting Client Securities

Performa is not required to take any action or render any advice with respect to the voting of proxies solicited by or with respect to the issuers of securities in which client assets may be invested from time to time. Arrangements should be made by the client to have the custodian deliver the proxy solicitations directly to them. In the event that Performa receives any such proxies, it shall promptly forward them to the relevant client for voting purposes or otherwise cooperate with the client in voting such proxies in accordance with the client's instructions.

Performa may accept proxy voting responsibility at the request of a Client. In such instances where Performa accepts proxy voting responsibility, generally the Client will be allowed to request to vote their proxies on a particular solicitation and Performa will attempt to comply with the request on a best efforts basis. The Client may request confirmation of proxy voting submissions.
