Asset Management

For select individuals and organizations, we offer asset management services, including giving continuous investment oversight advice and/or implementing investment decisions for each client based upon the client's individual investment needs, goals and objectives. We offer a customized and individualized investment program, and our representatives meet with each client relationship to determine the investment objectives, risk tolerances and appropriate asset mixes. Generally, accounts are invested in a broad spectrum of no-load (no commission) mutual funds, index-based securities, exchange traded funds (ETF's), bonds, money market accounts, certificates of deposit or Treasury bills and or may be directed by authorized individuals of Rowe Consulting Group, or retained investment managers of the clients choosing.

We will need to obtain certain information from the client to determine the retirement plan's or individual's financial situation and investment objectives. Accounts are therefore managed on the basis of each individual financial situation and investment objectives. From time to time, you are reminded to notify us whether these financial circumstances or investment objectives have changed, or if you, the client, want to impose and/or modify any reasonable restrictions in the management of your accounts. At least annually, we contact individual clients to determine whether their financial situation or investment objectives have changed, or if the client wants to impose and/or modify any reasonable restrictions on the management of accounts managed. We are always reasonably available to consult with individual clients relative to the status of their accounts. You have the ability to impose reasonable restrictions on the management of your accounts, including the ability to instruct us not to purchase certain securities. Your beneficial interest in a security does not represent an undivided interest in all the securities held by the custodian, but rather represents a direct and beneficial interest in the securities which comprise the account. A separate account is maintained for each client with the custodian of your choice and clients retain right of ownership of the account (e. g. right to withdraw securities or cash, exercise or delegate proxy voting, and receive transaction confirmations).

It is important that you understand we manage investments for other clients and may give them advice or take actions for them or for our personal accounts that is different from the advice we provide to you or actions we take for you. We are not obligated to buy, sell or recommend to you any security or other investment that we may buy, sell or recommend for any other clients or for our own accounts.

Conflicts may arise in the allocation of investment opportunities among accounts that we manage. We strive to allocate investment opportunities believed appropriate for your account(s) and other accounts advised by our firm among such accounts equitably and consistent with the best interests of all accounts involved. However, there can be no assurance that a particular investment opportunity that comes to our attention will be allocated in any particular manner. If we obtain material, non-public information about a security or its issuer that we may not lawfully use or disclose, we have absolutely no obligation to disclose the information to any client or use it for any client's benefit.

See Item 12, Brokerage Practices, for additional discussion on our recommendation and use of MG Trust Co. (MG Trust) and Matrix Settlement and Clearance Services (Matrix), TD Ameritrade Institutional, a Division of TD Ameritrade, Inc. ("TD Ameritrade") or Schwab Advisor Services a division of Charles Schwab and Co. Inc. (Schwab) registered broker/dealers and members of the FINRA and SIPC.

For qualified retirement plans (defined benefit, defined contribution and 401(k) plans utilizing mutual funds, index funds and exchange traded funds it is necessary that these assets be maintained in a custodial account with MG Trust and Matrix. We will assist you in establishing a managed account relationship through M G Trust, Matrix, TD Ameritrade, or Schwab, which will maintain custody of your funds and securities. Neither we nor our representatives act as custodian and we do not have access to your funds and securities except to have advisory fees deducted from your account by the custodian, and with your prior written authorization and then paid to us.

If you the client desire (and if we agree), we will accept trading authorization of your accounts through a written limited Power of Attorney, and will provide investment management services on a discretionary basis. Under this arrangement, we make all decisions to buy, sell or hold securities, cash or other investments in the designated managed account in our sole discretion without consulting with you before making any transactions. You must provide us with written authorization to exercise this discretionary authority and can place reasonable restrictions and limitations on the authority and portfolio holdings. See Item 16, Investment Discretion, for additional discussion on discretionary and non-discretionary authority.

FEES FOR INVESTMENT MANAGEMENT SERVICES:

Prior to engaging us to provide investment management services, you are required to enter into a formal investment advisory agreement with us setting forth the terms and conditions, including the amount of investment advisory fees under which we manage your investment assets and also a separate custodial/clearing agreement with the designated custodian.

M. G. Trust, Matrix, T D Ameritrade and Schwab may or may not charge separately for maintaining custody of your accounts (dependent upon the service relationship involved), although it may charge brokerage commissions and/or transaction fees directly to you. You may be charged additional fees for executing certain transactions including transaction charges, ticket charges or service fee/charges. None of these fees or expenses are paid to Rowe Consulting Group LLC. either as direct, or indirect compensation. Your investment manager may agree to offset these charges against future advisory fee collection at his or her discretion. The clients receiving a waiver of transaction fees will receive an offset against future advisory fees equal to the amount of transaction fees waived. All fees and charges are noted on your statements and/or confirmations. All transaction fee offset adjustments will be noted on your fee billing statements. The client will remain responsible for any non-transaction related fees charged by the account custodian. The specifics of each transaction fee offset agreement will be disclosed in the client's investment advisory agreement.

We do not receive any portion of the commission or fees from either the custodian or from you. In addition, you may incur certain charges imposed by third parties other than us in connection with investments made through your account, including, but not limited to, mutual fund sales loads, 12(b)-1 fees and surrender charges, variable annuity fees and surrender charges and IRA and qualified retirement plan fees. Our management fees are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by investment company securities that may be recommended to you. Either party may terminate services at any time by providing written notice to the other party. If services are terminated within 5 business days of signing the client agreement, they are terminated without penalty. After the initial 5 day period, a 30 day notice is required. During that 30 day period, we will continue to provide services previously begun but will not begin any new services without your specific instruction. Any Asset Management Fees that had been paid in advance but not earned will be refunded to the account within 30 days of the termination of services.

How Often Clients Billed or Fees Deducted

C. Additional Client Fees Charged

Brokerage, custodial and transaction fees charged by the custodian will be billed directly to the client. In addition, there may be an account set-up fee charged to the client by the custodian. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will not receive any portion of such brokerage fees and/or expenses from the custodian or client. Clients may also incur certain charges imposed by third parties other than the Rowe Consulting Group, LLC in connection with investments made through the account, including but not limited to, mutual fund sales loads, 12b-1 fees and surrender charges, variable annuity fees and surrender charges, and IRA and qualified retirement plan fees. Management fees charged by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC are separate and distinct from the fees and expenses charged by investment company securities that may be recommended to clients. A description of these fees and expenses are available in each investment company security's prospectus. See Item 12 of this Disclosure Brochure for more information regarding the firm's brokerage practices. Rowe consulting Group LLC will strive to reduce and or eliminate these expenses as is practical, prudent and reasonable.

D. Prepayment of Client Fees Disclosed

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC does not charge fees in advance and therefore does not require prepayment of advisory fees.

Client Refund of Pre-Paid Fees

Again, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC does not charge fees in advance and therefore does not require pre-payment of advisory fees. As previously stated above, fees are collected in-arrears by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC.

E. External Compensation for the Sale of Securities to Clients

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC and our Investment Advisor Representatives do not accept compensation for the sale of securities (i.e. commissions) or other investment products from any broker/dealer or other investment product sponsor. Additionally, we do not accept asset-based sales charges from the sale of mutual funds. The only compensation we receive is directly from the advisory fees charged to our clients described previously in this section.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

For suitable client situations, the Rowe Consulting Group, LLC is willing to utilize a Performance based fee arrangements, for client accounts that qualify and enroll in our Performance Fee Account program. The fee for this strategy will not exceed 20% of the net increase in portfolio value charged quarterly, in arrears.

The performance based fee will be assessed in addition to a reduced, quarterly asset based fee.

As described above in Item 5 – Fees and Compensation, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC provides services and is compensated in a way in which it accepts performance fees. That is, fees are based on a share of capital gains or capital appreciation of the assets of a client. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC also provides services and is compensated in the manner in which it accepts asset based fees. That is, fees are adjusted based on the total amount of assets placed under the responsibility of the Rowe Consulting Group LLC., by the client.

Potential Conflict of Interests

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC provides services and is compensated in a way in which it accepts performance fees. That is, fees based on a share of capital gains or capital appreciation of the assets of a client are based upon the total amount of assets owned by the client, and the net appreciation in value of the portfolio. There are conflicts of interest the Rowe Consulting Group, LLC faces by managing these accounts at the same time. For example, the nature of a performance fee poses an opportunity for Rowe Consulting Group, LLC to earn more compensation than under a stand-alone asset based fee. Thus Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may favor performance fee accounts over those accounts where Rowe Consulting Group, LLC receives only an asset based fee. One way Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may favor performance fee accounts is that Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may devote more time and attention to performance fee accounts than to accounts under an asset-based arrangement.

The performance based fee will be assessed in addition to a reduced, quarterly asset based fee.

There are other conflicts associated with performance fees that are not as common under an asset-based fee arrangement. The nature of performance fees can encourage unnecessary speculation with client assets in order to earn or increase the amount of the fee. The result of riskier investments can have a positive effect in that results could equal higher returns when compared to an asset-based account. On the other hand, riskier investments historically have a higher chance of losing value. Also, since in a performance fee arrangement an adviser is compensated based on capital gains and/or capital appreciation, these arrangements could give an investment adviser an incentive to time transactions in a client's account on the basis of fee considerations rather than on what is necessarily in the best interest of the client.

Performance fees can potentially cause an investment adviser to engage in transactions or strategies which will increase the amount of the performance fees, but which may not increase the overall performance of the client's account. For example, an account may lose value during a year and no performance fee will be earned. In the following year, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may receive a performance fee for simply recouping losses from the previous year. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC has controls in place for this potential conflict of interest by using "high-water marks". A performance fee may also encourage Rowe Consulting Group, LLC to make riskier and more speculative investments. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC does not represent that the amount of the performance fees or the manner of calculating the performance fees is consistent with other performance related fees charged by other investment advisers under the same or similar circumstances. The performance fees charged by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may be higher than the performance fees charged by other investment advisers for the same or similar services.

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC has established policies and procedures to address the various conflicts of interest associated with charging a performance fee:

- Rowe Consulting Group, LLC devotes equal time to the management of performance fee accounts and asset based fee accounts as well as utilizing similar investment selection processes based upon each client's investment goals, objectives and risk tolerances.
- Only clients that are able to assume additional risk, and are particularly inclined (and have indicated such interest in performance fee arrangements) are solicited to engage in a performance fee arrangement. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC provides such client's full disclosure of the additional risks associated with a performance fee arrangement.

- Rowe Consulting Group, LLC's managing members will typically manage personal accounts using a similar investment strategy used for clients.
- Rowe Consulting Group, LLC has implemented internal compliance policies and procedures designed to comply with applicable state and federal securities law. Procedures are available to clients upon request.
- The performance based fee will be assessed in addition to a reduced, quarterly asset based fee.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

A. Methods of Analysis and Investment Strategies

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC employs a proprietary quantitative domestic equity investment rotation methodology that identifies emerging trends in domestic stock performance. Our models are expected to identify equity market capitalization and equity style rotation cycles. Based upon the output and information; equity allocations will be shifted (tilted) to the emerging out performing style and capitalization and away from declining styles and capitalization. Dependent on the investment parameters for the client portfolios, the allocations may be more or less aggressive in capturing the rotation through higher or lower reallocations among the equity sectors. Investment Rotation methodologies have successfully been used by the founders as the core platform of a very successful investment management consulting practice over the past 20+ years. The methodology has been utilized with mid-market and institutional foundations, endowments and 401(k) and defined benefit pension portfolios since 1993. The RCG principles have extensive experience in the development of the Equity Investment Rotation (EIR) methodology over the past 20 years. The methodology has been utilized to develop a solid and impressive track record with a wide variety of investment portfolios, and has demonstrated consistent risk adjusted returns that are superior to the typical buy and hold strategies which are commonplace in the securities industry.

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC, or the investment managers or fund managers responsible for the day to day investment of portfolio assets use the following methods of analysis in formulating investment advice:

Charting - The set of techniques used in technical analysis in which charts are used to plot price movements, volume, settlement prices, open interest, and other indicators, in order to anticipate future price movements. Users of these techniques, called chartists, believe that past trends in these indicators can be used to extrapolate future trends of asset classes and related securities.

Cyclical - Analyzes the investments and asset classes sensitive to business cycles and whose performance is strongly tied to the overall economy. For example, cyclical companies tend to make products or provide services that are in lower demand during downturns in the economy and higher demand during upswings. Examples include the automobile, steel, and housing industries. The stock price of a cyclical company will often rise just before an economic upturn begins, and fall just before a downturn begins. Investors in cyclical stocks try to make the largest gains by buying the stock at the bottom of a business cycle, just before a turnaround begins.

Fundamental - A method of evaluating a security or asset class by attempting to measure its intrinsic value by examining related economic, financial and other qualitative and quantitative factors. Fundamental analysts attempt to study everything that can affect the security's value, including macroeconomic factors (like the overall economy and industry conditions) and individually specific factors (like the financial condition and management of companies). The end goal of performing fundamental analysis is to produce a value that an investor can compare with the security's current price in hopes of figuring out what sort of position to take with that security (underpriced = buy, overpriced = sell or short). This method of security analysis is considered to be the opposite of technical analysis. Fundamental analysis is about using real data to evaluate a security's value. Although most analysts use fundamental analysis to value stocks, this method of valuation can be used for just about any type of security.

Technical - A method of evaluating securities and asset classes by analyzing statistics generated by market activity, such as past prices and volume. Technical analysts do not attempt to measure a security's intrinsic value, but instead use charts and other tools to identify patterns that can suggest future activity. Technical analysts believe that the historical performance of stocks and markets are indications of future performance.

The Rowe Consulting Group, LLC uses the following investment strategies when managing client assets and/or providing investment advice:

Long term purchases. Investments held at least a year.

Strategic/dynamic asset allocation. Which calls for establishing target allocations and then periodically and dynamically rebalancing the portfolio back to those targets as investment returns skew the original asset allocation percentages. The concept is akin to a "buy and hold" strategy, rather than an active trading approach. Of course, the strategic asset allocation targets and weightings will change over time as the investment market opportunities and preferences change, or the client's goals and needs change and as the time horizon for major events such as retirement and college funding grow shorter.

Short term purchases. Investments sold within a year (typically the result of the active investment management by the fund's investment managers..

Tactical asset allocation. Allows for a range of percentages in each asset class (such as Stocks = 20-70% or large cap value = 25-55%). These are minimum and maximum acceptable percentage ranges that allow the Rowe Consulting Group to take advantage of market conditions within these parameters for our clients. Thus, a form of market timing within the domestic equity asset class is possible, since the advisor may move equity assets to the higher end of the range of an allowable cap size or style, and underweight an out of favor cap size or style.

Trading. (In very rare circumstances and driven by unexpected and important market activity) Investments sold within 30 days.

B. Investment Strategy and Method of Analysis, Material Risks

Your investment portfolio entrusted with Rowe Consulting Group may vary with the success and failure of our investment strategies, research, analysis and determination of investment manager and investment vehicle selections, and portfolio of securities utilized by you, the client. If our investment strategies do not produce the expected returns, the value of your investments may decrease.

The risk associated with Fundamental analysis is that it is considered to be somewhat subjective. While a quantitative approach is possible, fundamental analysis usually entails a qualitative assessment of how market forces interact with one another in their impact on the investment in question. It is possible for those market forces to point in different directions, thus necessitating an interpretation of which forces will be dominant. This interpretation may be wrong, and could therefore lead to an unfavorable investment decision.

C. Security Specific Material Risks

Clients must understand that past performance is not indicative of future results. Therefore, current and prospective clients should never assume that future performance of any specific investment or investment strategy will be profitable. Investing in securities (including stocks, mutual funds, and bonds) involves risk of loss. Further, depending on the different types of investments there may be varying degrees of risk. Clients and prospective clients should be prepared to bear investment loss including loss of original principal.

Because of the inherent risk of loss associated with investing, Rowe Consulting Group is unable to represent, guarantee, or imply that our services and methods of analysis can or will predict future results, successfully identify market tops or bottoms, or insulate your investment portfolio from losses due to market corrections or declines. There are certain additional risks associated when investing in securities through any investment management program.

- Market Risk – Either the stock market as a whole, or the value of an individual company, goes down resulting in a decrease in the value of client investments. This is also referred to as systemic risk.
- Equity (stock) market risk – Common stocks are susceptible to general stock market fluctuations and to volatile increases and decreases in value as market confidence in and perceptions of their issuers change. If you held common stock, or common stock equivalents, of any given issuer, you would generally be exposed to greater risk than if you held preferred stocks and debt obligations of the issuer.
- Company Risk. When investing in stock positions, there is always a certain level of company or industry specific risk that is inherent in each investment. This is also referred to as unsystematic risk and can be reduced through appropriate diversification. There is the risk that the company will perform poorly or have its value reduced based on factors specific to the company or its industry. For example, if a company's employees go on strike or the company receives unfavorable media attention for its actions, the value of the company may be reduced.
- Fixed Income Risk. When investing in bonds, there is the risk that issuer will default on the bond and be unable to make payments. Further, individuals who depend on set amounts of periodically paid income face the risk that inflation will erode their spending power. Fixed-income investors receive set, regular payments that face the same inflation risk.
- Options Risk. Options on securities may be subject to greater fluctuations in value than an investment in the underlying securities. Purchasing and writing put and call options are highly specialized activities and entail greater than ordinary investment risks.
- ETF and Mutual Fund Risk – When investing in a an ETF or mutual fund, you will bear additional expenses based on your pro rata share of the ETFs or mutual fund's operating expenses, including the potential duplication of management fees. The risk of owning an ETF or mutual fund generally reflects the risks of owning the underlying securities the ETF or mutual fund holds. Clients will also incur brokerage costs when purchasing ETFs.
- Management Risk – Your investment with our firm varies with the success and failure of our investment strategies, research, analysis and determination of portfolio securities. If our investment strategies do not produce the expected returns, the value of the investment will decrease.
- Domestic Equity Style and Capitalization Overweighting - The Equity Investment Rotation (EIR) methodology will develop strategic over and under weightings of domestic equity portfolios based upon equity style (growth and value) and capitalization weightings (large, medium and small), which may or may not conform to market over and under performance.

- Style and Cap Size Adherence- Investment vehicles and/or investment managers may deviate from their stated investment styles (style and cap size adherence), thereby over or under exposing portfolios to higher or lower concentrations in a particular asset class.
- Market and/or Economic Conditions may Temporarily Shift – EIR models may cause portfolios to overweight and/or underweight asset classes contra to prevailing market performance.

Please refer to Item 12 – Brokerage Practices for a description of Rowe Consulting Group LLC block trading procedures.

There is no direct link between the broker/dealers we recommend and the investment advice Rowe Consulting Group, LLC provides to its clients, although Rowe Consulting Group, LLC receives economic benefits through its participation in the institutional platforms. These benefits include receipt of duplicate client confirmations; access to a trading desk serving Rowe Consulting Group, LLC and other institutional platform participants; Performance Reporting; retirement plan reporting compliant to industry standards; institutional trading capabilities; electronic ID trading capability; daily valuation and reporting to client

As part of its fiduciary duties to clients, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC endeavors at all times to put the interests of its clients first. Clients should be aware, however, that the receipt of investment practice tools; account information & access; research and economic benefits by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC in and of itself creates a potential conflict of interest.

At least annually, the Rowe Consulting Group LLC will review alternative custodians in the marketplace for comparison to the currently used custodians, evaluating criteria such as overall expertise, cost competitiveness, capabilities versus competitors and industry standards. errors and financial condition. Quality of execution for custodians will be reviewed through trade journal evaluations. No single criteria will validate nor invalidate a custodian, but rather, all criteria taken together will be used in evaluating the currently utilized custodian, and their effectiveness in maintaining our client accounts.

A.3.a - Recommendation of Broker Dealer

Rowe Consulting Group LLC will recommend and in some cases require that the client establish an account at either Matrix Settlement & Clearance Services, M G Trust Company LLC., T D Ameritrade or Schwab Advisor Services as a result of Rowe Consulting Group, LLC's participation in their respective investment advisor institutional platforms.

Each of these firms offer independent investment advisors services which include custody of securities, trade execution, clearance and settlement of transactions. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC is not affiliated with either firm. The next paragraph describes additional benefits Rowe Consulting Group, LLC is able to receive as a result of its participation in the Matrix Settlement & Clearance Services, M G Trust Company, T D Ameritrade or Schwab Advisor Services institutional platforms.

A.3.b - Client Directed Brokerage

While Rowe Consulting Group, LLC generally recommends, and in some cases requires, the use of Matrix Settlement & Clearance Services, M G Trust Company LLC., T D Ameritrade or Schwab Advisor Services, a client may be allowed to select a broker/dealer of their own choosing and still participate in Rowe Consulting Group LLC investment consulting services. The decision to use a broker/dealer other than one preferred by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC must be agreed upon by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC and the client. It should be noted that not all investment advisor firms require the use of a particular broker/dealer. Some investment advisors permit their clients to use any broker/dealer the client may want to use. When a client directs the use of a particular broker/dealer or other custodian, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may not be able to obtain the best level of service for themselves or their clients, prices and execution for the transaction. Clients who direct the use of a particular broker/dealer or custodian may receive less favorable prices than would otherwise be the case if clients had not designated a particular broker/dealer or custodian. Further, clients with directed brokerage arrangements may have trades placed by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC after effecting non-directed trades.

B. Aggregating Securities Transactions for Client Accounts

It is the objective of Rowe Consulting Group, LLC to provide a means of allocating trading and investment opportunities between all advisory clients on a fair and equitable basis and in compliance with all applicable state and federal guidelines. With respect to clients' accounts with powers of attorney with the advisor and substantially similar investment objectives and policies, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may often seek to purchase or sell a particular security in each account. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will aggregate orders only when such aggregation is consistent with Advisor's duty to seek best execution and is consistent with the investment objective of each client. No client account will be unfairly favored over any other account. Each client that participates in an aggregated order will participate based on the average execution price in that particular security. All transaction costs will be allocated pro rata based on each client's participation in the transaction. All securities purchased or sold, whether the order is filled completely or partially, will then be allocated pro rata based on the assets of each account.

Handling of Trade Errors

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC has implemented procedures designed to prevent trade errors; however, trade errors in client accounts cannot always be avoided. Consistent with its fiduciary duty, it is the policy of Rowe Consulting Group, LLC to correct trade errors in a manner that is in the best interest of the client. In cases where the client causes the trade error, the client will be responsible for any loss resulting from the correction. Depending on the specific circumstances of the trade error, the client may not be able to receive any gains generated as a result of the error correction. In all situations where the client does not cause the trade error, the client will be made whole and any loss resulting from the trade error will be absorbed by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC if the error was caused by the firm. If the error is caused by the broker-dealer, the broker-dealer will be responsible for covering all trade error costs. If an investment gain results from the correcting trade, the gain will remain in the client's account unless the same error involved other client account(s) that should also receive the gains and it is not permissible for all clients to retain the gain. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may confer with clients to determine if the client should forego the gain (e.g., due to tax reasons).

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will never benefit or profit from trade errors.

Accounts are reviewed in the context of each client's stated investment objectives and guidelines, ensuring that the structure of the portfolio is coordinated with these objectives, at least quarterly.

B. Review of Client Accounts on Non-Periodic Basis

More frequent reviews may be triggered by material changes in variables such as the client's individual circumstances, or the investment market, political or economic environment. Examples of circumstances indicating such a review would be significant market volatility (up or down), significant changes of Federal Reserve policy, economic disruption, and global events. Such reviews and reports will be issued on an ad hoc and infrequent schedule, dependent upon prevailing circumstances.

C. Content of Client Provided Reports and Frequency

Clients will receive monthly statements directly from the custodian. Confirmation statements will be issued by the custodian for all trading activity, unless the client directs otherwise.

Reports are Written

Client account statements prepared by the broker/dealer are in written format.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

A. Economic Benefits Provided to the Advisory Firm From External Sources and Conflicts of Interest

The only form of compensation received for advisory services is the fees charged for providing investment advisory services (as described in Item 5 of this brochure). The firm receives other benefits and non-economic benefits for dealing with Matrix Settlement & Clearance Services, M G Trust Company LLC., T D Ameritrade and Charles Schwab (as described in Item 12 of this brochure).

Advisory Firm Payments for Client Referrals

From time to time, Rowe Consulting Group LLC may retain solicitors to refer clients to Advisor. If a client is introduced to Rowe Consulting Group LLC by either an unaffiliated or an affiliated solicitor, Advisor may pay that solicitor a referral fee in accordance with the requirements of Rule 206(4)-3 of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended, and any corresponding state securities law requirements. Any such referral fee shall be paid solely from Advisor's management fee, and shall not result in any additional charge to the client. If the client is introduced to Advisor by an unaffiliated solicitor, the solicitor, at the time of the solicitation, shall disclose the nature of his/her/its solicitor relationship, and shall provide each prospective client with a copy of Advisor's written disclosure statement as same is set forth in this Disclosure Brochure, together with a copy of the written disclosure statement from the solicitor to the client disclosing the terms of the solicitation arrangement between Advisor and the solicitor, including the compensation to be received by the solicitor from Advisor. Any affiliated solicitor of Advisor shall disclose the nature of his/her relationship to prospective clients at the time of the solicitation and will provide all prospective clients with a copy of Advisor's written disclosure statement as same is set forth in this Disclosure Brochure.

Economic Benefits

Advisor may recommend that clients establish brokerage accounts with certain registered broker-dealers to maintain custody of clients' assets and to effect securities transactions for their accounts. While Advisor is not affiliated with these broker dealers, they may provide Advisor with access to its institutional trading and operations services, which are typically not available to retail investors. These services may include research, brokerage, custody, and access to mutual funds, ETF's and other investment securities that are otherwise generally available only to institutional investors or would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment.

These broker-dealers may also provide access to Advisor of other investment products and investment services that benefit Advisor and our clients but may not necessarily benefit equally, each clients' accounts. Some of these other investment products and investment services are expected to assist Advisor in managing and administering client' accounts. These include software and other technology that provide access to client account data (such as trade confirmations and account statements), facilitate trade execution (and allocation of aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts), provide research, pricing information and other market data, facilitate payment of Advisor's fees from its clients' accounts, and assist with back-office support, record keeping and client performance reporting. Many of these services generally may be used to service all or a substantial number of Advisor's client accounts, including accounts not maintained at the specific broker/dealer that is offering this particular service. These broker-dealers also provide Advisor with other services intended to help Advisor manage and further develop its business enterprise. These services may include consulting, publications, conferences and presentations on practice management, information technology, business succession, regulatory compliance, and marketing. In addition, these broker-dealers may make available, arrange and/or pay for these types of services to Advisor by independent third parties. These broker-dealers may discount or waive fees it would otherwise charge for some of these services or pay all or a part of the fees of a third-party providing these services to Advisor. While Advisor serves as a fiduciary and endeavors to act in its clients' best interests, Advisor's recommendation that clients maintain their assets in accounts with these broker-dealers may be based in part on the benefit and marketing support to Advisor of the availability of some of the foregoing products and services and not solely on the nature, cost or quality of custody and brokerage services provided by these broker-dealers which may create a potential for or perception of conflicts of interest. It is important to note that Advisor will not receive any compensation for any securities transactions conducted in any client custodial or brokerage accounts.

Item 15 – Custody

Custody, as it applies to investment advisors, has been defined by regulators as having access or control over client funds and/or securities. In other words, custody is not limited to physically holding client funds and securities. If an investment advisor has the ability to access or control client funds or securities, the investment advisor is deemed to have custody and must ensure proper procedures are implemented.

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC is deemed to have custody of client funds and securities whenever Rowe Consulting Group, LLC is given the authority to have fees deducted directly from client accounts. However, this is the only form of custody Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will ever maintain. It should be noted that authorization to trade in client accounts is not deemed by regulators to be custody.

For accounts in which Rowe Consulting Group, LLC is deemed to have custody, the firm has established procedures to ensure all client funds and securities are held at a qualified custodian in a separate account for each client under that client's name. Clients or an independent representative of the client will direct, in writing, the establishment of all accounts and therefore are aware of the qualified custodian's name, address and the manner in which the funds or securities are maintained. Finally, account statements are delivered directly from the qualified custodian to each client, or the client's independent representative, at least quarterly. Clients should carefully review those statements and are urged to compare the statements against reports received from Rowe Consulting Group LLC. When clients have questions about their account statements, they should contact Rowe Consulting Group, LLC or the qualified custodian preparing the statement.

When fees are deducted from an account, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC is responsible for calculating the fee and delivering instructions to the custodian. At the same time Rowe Consulting Group, LLC instructs the custodian to deduct fees from the client's account; Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will send the client an invoice itemizing the fee. Itemization shall include the formula used to calculate the fee, the amount of assets under management the fee is based on, and the time period covered by the fee.

Custodian will Send Reports

Account statements are delivered directly from the qualified custodian to each client, or the client's independent representative, at least quarterly.

Clients should carefully review any correspondence received from Rowe Consulting Group LLC and are urged to compare the correspondence against reports and/or statement received from the account custodian. When clients have questions about their account statements, they should contact Rowe Consulting Group LLC or the qualified custodian preparing the statement.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

Through its asset management services and upon receiving written authorization from a client, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will maintain trading authorization over client accounts. Upon receiving written authorization from the client, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may implement trades on a discretionary basis. When discretionary authority is granted, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will have the authority to determine the type of securities, the amount of securities that can be bought or sold, the broker or dealer to be used, and the commission rates paid for the client's portfolio without obtaining the client's consent for each transaction. However, it is the policy of Rowe Consulting Group, LLC to consult with the client prior to making significant changes in the account even when discretionary trading authority is granted by the client.

If you decide to grant trading authorization on a non-discretionary basis, we will be required to contact you prior to implementing changes in your account. Therefore, you will be contacted and required to accept or reject our investment recommendations including:

- The security being recommended
- The number of shares or units
- Whether to buy or sell

Once the above factors are agreed upon, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will be responsible for making decisions regarding the timing of buying or selling an investment and the price at which the investment is bought or sold. If your accounts are managed on a non-discretionary basis, you need to know that if you are not able to be reached or are slow to respond to our request, it can have an adverse impact on the timing of trade implementations and we may not achieve the optimal trading price.

All clients have the ability to place reasonable restrictions on the types of investments that may be purchased in an account. Clients may also place reasonable limitations on the discretionary power granted to our firm so long as the limitations are specifically set forth or included as an attachment to the client agreement.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

A. Describe Whether Clients Can Direct The Adviser How to Vote/Describe Policy

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC will not vote proxies on behalf of your account therefore you cannot direct Rowe Consulting Group LLC to vote proxies on your behalf. While there are some investment advisors that will vote proxies and other corporate decisions on behalf of their clients, we have determined that taking on the responsibility for voting client securities does not add enough value to the services provided to clients to justify the additional compliance and regulatory costs associated with voting client securities.

Therefore, it is your responsibility of you the client, or the custodian, or investment manager to vote all proxies for securities held in accounts managed by Rowe Consulting Group.

Clients will receive proxies directly from their custodian or transfer agent and such documents will not be delivered by the advisor. Although we do not vote client proxies, if you have a question about a particular proxy feel free to contact us.

Clients May Obtain Copy of Adviser Voting Policies

If you would like to view our internal compliance policy describing the fact that the firm does not vote proxies on your behalf, please contact us.

Performance Based Fees

As previously disclosed in Item 6, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC charges a Performance based fee on client account that enroll in our Performance Fee Account program. The fee for this strategy will include a 20% of the gain achieved in each client account in excess of a previously agreed upon benchmark charged quarterly, in arrears.

As described above in Item 5 – Fees and Compensation, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC provides services and is compensated in a way in which it accepts performance fees. That is, fees based on a share of capital gains and/or capital appreciation of the assets of a client. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC also provides services and is compensated in a way in which it accepts asset based fees. That is, fees based on the total amount of assets owned by the client.

Potential Conflict of Interests

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC provides services and is compensated in a way in which it accepts performance fees. That is, fees based on a share of capital gains or capital appreciation of the assets of a client, which are adjusted to the total amount of assets owned by the client and entrusted to Rowe Consulting Group. There are conflicts of interest Rowe Consulting Group, LLC faces by managing these accounts at the same time. For example, the nature of a performance fee poses an opportunity for Rowe Consulting Group, LLC to earn more compensation than under a stand-alone asset based fee. Thus Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may favor performance fee accounts over those accounts where Rowe Consulting Group, LLC receives only an asset based fee. One way Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may favor performance fee accounts is that Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may devote more time and attention to performance fee accounts than to accounts under an asset-based arrangement.

There are other conflicts associated with performance fees that are not as common under an asset-based fee arrangement. The nature of performance fees can encourage unnecessary speculation with client assets in order to earn or increase the amount of the fee. The result of riskier investments can have a positive effect in that results could equal higher returns when compared to an asset-based account. On the other hand, riskier investments historically have a higher chance of losing value. Also, since in a performance fee arrangement an adviser is compensated based on capital gains or capital appreciation, these arrangements could give an investment adviser an incentive to time transactions in a client's account on the basis of fee considerations rather than on what is necessarily in the best interest of the client.

Performance fees can potentially cause an investment adviser to engage in transactions or strategies which will increase the amount of the performance fees, but which may not increase the overall performance of the client's account. For example, an account may lose value during a year and no performance fee will be earned. In the following year, Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may receive a performance fee for simply recouping losses from the previous year. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC controls for this potential conflict of interest by using a high-water mark. A performance fee may also encourage Rowe Consulting Group, LLC to make riskier and more speculative investments. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC does not represent that the amount of the performance fees or the manner of calculating the performance fees is consistent with other performance related fees charged by other investment advisers under the same or similar circumstances. The performance fees charged by Rowe Consulting Group, LLC may be higher than the performance fees charged by other investment advisers for the same or similar services.

Rowe Consulting Group, LLC has established policies and procedures to address the various conflicts of interest associated with charging a performance fee:

- Rowe Consulting Group, LLC devotes equal time to the management of performance fee accounts and asset based accounts.
- Only clients that are able to assume additional risk are solicited to engage in a performance fee arrangement. Rowe Consulting Group, LLC provides such client's full disclosure of the additional risks associated with a performance fee arrangement.
- Rowe Consulting Group, LLC's managing members will typically manage personal accounts using a similar investment strategy used for clients.
- Rowe Consulting Group, LLC has implemented internal compliance policies and procedures designed to comply with applicable state and federal securities law. Procedures are available to clients upon request.
