We must provide you with sufficient explanation of the minimum qualifications required for this designation to allow you to understand the value of the designation.

CPAs are licensed and regulated by their state boards of accountancy. While state laws and regulations vary, the education, experience and testing requirements for licensure as a CPA generally include minimum college education (typically 150 credit hours with at least a baccalaureate degree and a concentration in accounting), minimum experience levels (most states require at least one year of experience providing services that involve the use of accounting, attest, compilation, management advisory, financial advisory, tax or consulting skills, all of which must be achieved under the supervision of or verification by a CPA), and successful passage of the Uniform CPA Examination. Illinois has a two-tier system of licensure for accountants, which includes Licensed Certified Public Accountants (LCPAs) and Registered Certified Public Accountants (RCPAs). RCPAs like Mr. Dutton are prohibited from "practicing public accounting" as defined under Illinois law and are not required to complete Continuing Professional Regulation requirements as LCPAs are. However, RCPAs are permitted to use the CPA title and to prepare tax returns and provide other professional services.
