Item 2 Material Changes

The purpose of this item is to inform you of any material changes that we have made to this Disclosure Brochure since our last annual updating amendment on March 24, 2017.

In the future, this section entitled “Item 2 Material Changes” will be used to provide clients with a summary of new and/or updated information. The firm will reference the date of our last update of our brochure. The firm will further provide clients with a new Disclosure Brochure as necessary based on changes or new information, at any time, without charge.

The following is a summary of material changes in this Disclosure Brochure since our last updating amendment on March 24, 2017:

We added disclosures outlining the firm’s agreement with a single company to provide financial counseling services to executives of the company. Specifically, we updated “Item 4 Advisory Business” to provide a description of these executive financial counseling services, and we updated “Item 5 Fees and Compensation” along with Exhibit 1 to disclose our fees for executive financial counseling services. We also updated “Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss” to note as a risk factor that it is the client’s responsibility to determine if, and how, any suggestions made in connection with our executive financial counseling services should be implemented or otherwise followed, and we also updated “Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation” to disclose that the firm’s fee(s) for providing executive financial counseling services may be paid, in whole or in part, by the client’s employer.

We added disclosure in Item 5 to make clear how we value assets in portfolios when computing our fee.

We updated our disclosure related to changes to our use of brokers and custodians arising from our decision to transfer client assets held in custody at Wells Fargo Advisers to Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (“Schwab”). Specifically, we updated “Item 12 Brokerage Practices” to (i) disclose that we presently recommend that our clients use Schwab as the qualified custodian of their accounts, and (ii) disclose that we entered into a three Client Benefit Confirmation Agreements with Schwab in connection with the transfer of client accounts from Wells Fargo Advisers. Pursuant to these agreements, Schwab agreed to reimburse clients certain transfer or exit fees incurred by our clients in transferring assets to Schwab, and to waive all equity commissions for the twelve (12) months following the date client accounts transferred to Schwab. Relatedly, we also updated “Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation” to clarify that we receive an economic benefit from Schwab, including credits on software licensing fees the support products, services it makes available to us and other independent investment advisors in respect of clients who maintain accounts at Schwab.

Item 4 Advisory Business

Pettyjohn, Wood & White, Inc. (the “firm,” “us,” or “we”)) provides professional guidance and advice in the management of financial assets in the amount of approximately $455.690.100 in assets as of December 31, 2017. Due to routine client transactions and fluctuations in the market since that time, however, the amount of assets under management may be different as of the date hereof.

The firm’s office is located at 1925 Atherholt Road, Lynchburg, Virginia 24501. Our regular business hours are Monday – Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. The firm’s phone number is (434) 845-1266. The firm currently maintains a website which can be accessed at www.pwandw.com.

The firm specializes in customized portfolio management primarily for individuals and families, including high net worth individuals. The firm also provides services to retirement plans, trusts, estates and foundations. The firm also has entered into an agreement with a single company to provide financial counseling services to executives of the company under arrangements with their employer. The firm is not affiliated with any brokerage firm, bank, money management firm, or any other financial institution. The firm seeks to tailor portfolios to each individual client’s unique risk profile and objectives. The firm’s investment process is driven by each client’s unique circumstances and we seek to provide our clients with a high level of service and customization.

The firm manages advisory accounts on a discretionary basis. Client portfolios are customized in accordance with each client’s risk profile and objectives. Investment objectives are determined, and subsequently affirmed, through regular contact and individual consultation with clients. Portfolios typically include direct ownership of individual equities and investment grade fixed income securities. In some cases we also utilize exchange traded funds (ETF’s) or mutual funds in the interest of efficiency and diversification.

The firm enters into a written discretionary investment management agreement with each of its clients (the “Management Agreement”). The Management Agreement remains in effect until either party terminates the Management Agreement. The client may terminate the Management Agreement at any time upon written notice to the firm pursuant to the terms of the Management Agreement. The firm does not charge clients a fee in connection with the termination of those Management Agreements.

The firm has eleven (11) employees, including the following seven (7) who manage client accounts: John D. Doyle, Jr., James W. Poats, Brian K. Blankinship, Thomas D. Gerhardt, Charles B. White, Gorham B. (“Bunny”) Wood, and Charles S. (“Shep”) Nowlin III.

Each client relationship is the primary responsibility of one portfolio manager. The trades within that client's portfolio(s) are executed by any authorized account manager and/or trader. The primary account manager is responsible for ensuring that the asset allocation and individual security positions are in accordance with that client's objectives and risk tolerance.

The firm also has entered into an agreement to provide financial counseling services to executives of a single company under an arrangement with such executives' employer. The nature and scope of these services will vary among clients, depending on the service offering selected by the client and the client's employer-sponsor, as well as the facts, requests, circumstances, personal financial goals and/or needs of each executive client. Executive financial counseling services generally include, without limitation, investment planning, benefits and compensation planning, cash-flow planning and formulation of strategies for long-term wealth-accumulation and preservation, in each case as agreed upon in advance and set forth in a written executive financial counseling services agreement (an "Executive Financial Planning Services Agreement") with each executive client and his or her employer-sponsor. The Executive Financial Planning Services Agreement remains in effect until either party terminates the Agreement. The client or the employer-sponsor may terminate the Executive Financial Planning Services Agreement at any time upon written notice to the firm pursuant to the terms of the Agreement. The firm does not charge a fee in connection with the termination of an Executive Financial Planning Services Agreement. In providing executive financial counseling services, the firm does not act as an investment manager with respect to any of the client's assets, and the firm does not possess or exercise any discretionary authority or discretionary control with respect to any transactions the client may execute, except in the event that the firm and the client enter into a separate Management Agreement for discretionary investment management.

Item 5 Fees and Compensation

Investment Advisory Services

The firm is compensated for advisory services based on the value of a client's assets under management. The firm's standard annual fees for new accounts are set forth on the attached Exhibit 1. The actual fees charged to each client, however, are set forth in the written Management Agreement with each client. The annual fees for services are based on the market value of the assets in the account as computed quarterly, in arrears, and they are prorated for partial quarters. Management fees are calculated based on rates set forth in each Management Agreement using account balances computed using valuation information provided by the client's independent custodian. Account balances used for billing are computed on a non-accrual basis (excluding accrued interest that independent custodians may report for certain classes of securities, including bonds). As a result, account balances used for billing may be different than the account balances reported on client statements produced by the independent custodian, which may include accrued income balances. Although the minimum account size and minimum fee have varied from time to time, as of the date hereof, the preferred minimum account size for new clients of the firm is $500,000.

Minimum account size and fees are negotiable in the firm's sole discretion. Please note that some existing clients of the firm are subject to discounted fee schedules or arrangements, different from both the firm's current standard fee schedule attached hereto and from each other, which results in the firm charging different fees for similar investment management services under certain circumstances. The firm retains the right to revise the terms of client Management Agreements in the future in accordance with the terms of each Agreement.

The firm typically deducts management fees due directly from client accounts. Fees are deducted quarterly (which may not correspond to a calendar quarter) in arrears. Upon request, we will bill certain clients directly for fees. We do not charge clients for services before the service is provided.

In addition to the fees described above, clients incur other expenses and charges, including brokerage and transaction fees, mark-ups on the purchase or sale of bonds, custodial fees, management and other fees and expenses embedded in mutual fund or ETF products, or other fees related to their account. Such fees and expenses are paid to parties other than the firm. ETF and Mutual fund fees and expenses, while not typically detailed on custodial account statements, are described in each fund's prospectus.

Investment Advice and Counseling

Executive Financial Counseling:

The firm's fees for providing executive financial counseling services are negotiable and could vary significantly depending on the nature and scope of services contracted for and the terms of the Executive Financial Planning Services Agreement negotiated by the firm and the client or the client's employer-sponsor. The firm charges a flat annual fee, as negotiated, for each individual participating in an employer-sponsored executive financial counseling arrangement that elects to use our services. Annual fees are payable in equal quarterly installments, in arrears. Fees for executive financial counseling services may be paid, in whole or in part, by the client's employer.

The firm has agreed to provide executive financial and counseling services to executives of one company. Thus, while the firm anticipates that its fees for executive and counseling services will span a range depending on the scope of services, as of the date hereof the firm charges a flat fee of $12,000 per executive per year.

Other:

On a limited basis in years past, but not in recent history, the firm has provided clients investment advice and portfolio analysis and review through consultations. In such cases, the fee for such services was set at a negotiable hourly or fixed rate and was billed to the client after we performed the services. While the firm has accommodated such client requests on a case by case basis, this is not a core service traditionally provided to clients of the firm, and we do not anticipate that this will occur in the future.

Item 6 Performance–Based Fees and Side by Side Management

The firm does not charge performance-based fees or perform side-by-side management.

Item 7 Types of Clients

The firm provides services primarily to families and individuals, including high net worth individuals. The firm also provides services to trusts, business entities, estates, qualified retirement plans, individual retirement accounts, charities, and foundations. Although subject to negotiation, we reserve the right to require a minimum account of $500,000. Subject to requirements for minimum account size, the firm has not established minimum income or asset requirements for its clients.

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

We generally manage balanced portfolios with an emphasis on both appreciation and generation of current income.

For new clients, our process typically begins with an analysis of each client’s total financial picture. Factors considered in establishing a client’s risk profile and investment objectives include, but are not limited to: time horizon, projected liquidity and income needs, tax considerations (capital gains, estate, and income tax), concentrated positions, securities held elsewhere, legal and regulatory considerations, and client-imposed restrictions or preferences.

Equity Management

Our team-based research methods incorporate a combination of qualitative and quantitative measures. We draw on a number of sources of information, including without limitation: industry publications, public SEC filings, independent research providers, and research from national and regional brokerage firms. We exercise independent judgment in selecting securities. In addition to our independent research, we use external research as a supplemental source of information and as a means of gauging market sentiment and “testing” our investment thesis. We examine several qualitative factors including, but not limited to, the following company characteristics: competitive position within industry, brand and franchise value, and depth and quality of management. The quantitative process incorporates a blend of “bottom-up” and “top-down” fundamental considerations. Bottom-up considerations include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Traditional absolute valuation measures (P/E, Price/Book, Price/Sales, Price/Cash Flow);
- Company valuation relative to its projected earnings and dividend growth rate (such as the P/E to growth rate, or PEG ratio);
- Company valuation relative to its own trading history; and
- Company valuation relative to its peer group and the broader market averages.

Our top-down view of identifiable long-term macroeconomic trends, combined with bottom-up valuation considerations, are considered in determining the appropriate sector exposure for a given client.

We will use Exchange Traded Funds (ETF's) when deemed more efficient to achieve exposure to a part of the market that requires specialized research, or if we want some broad-based exposure to a particular asset class or sector of the market.

Fixed Income Management

For individually managed accounts, the firm's fixed income management style is best characterized as a passively managed ladder. We generally do not actively trade bond positions. We view the fixed income portion of a portfolio as a vehicle for controlling portfolio volatility, providing cash-flow to supplement client liquidity needs, or to provide a source of funds for future equity and fixed-income purchases. For individually managed accounts, our fixed income exposure typically consists of investment-grade corporate and tax-free municipal bonds (depending on a given client's tax situation). We may also own Treasuries, U.S. Government Agencies, Taxable Municipals, and FDIC insured bank certificates of deposit. In addition, we will purchase closed end funds (CEF) and ETFs in the interest of diversification and efficiency.

Risk

Your account with the firm may lose money. We make investment decisions based on a long-term view, and the likelihood of loss may be greater if you invest your money with us for a shorter period of time. The prices of, and the income generated by, the common stocks, bonds and other securities that we invest in may decline due to market conditions and other factors, including those directly involving the issuers of securities that we invest in. Income produced in client portfolios may be reduced by changes in the dividend policies of, and the capital resources available at, the companies in which we invest. We cannot and do not guarantee results and the client may lose all or some of the investment.

Rising interest rates will generally cause the prices of bonds and other debt securities to fall. In addition, falling interest rates may cause an issuer to redeem, call or refinance a security before its stated maturity, which may result in us having to reinvest the proceeds in lower yielding debt securities. Longer maturity debt securities may be subject to greater price fluctuations than shorter maturity debt securities. Bonds and other debt securities are subject to credit risk, which is the possibility that the credit strength of an issuer will weaken and/or an issuer of a debt security will fail to make timely payments of principal or interest and the security will go into default. Lower quality debt securities generally have higher rates of interest and may be subject to greater price fluctuations than higher quality debt securities. There may be little trading in the secondary market for particular bonds or other debt securities, which may make them more difficult to sell.

The firm actively manages our client's investments. Consequently, our clients are subject to the risk that the methods and analyses employed by our firm in this process may not produce the desired results. This could cause a client account to lose value, and our clients' investment returns may lag relevant benchmarks. Further, while equity prices can and do fluctuate for a variety of reasons, including the overall strength of the economy, demand for particular products or services, and world events, because of our active management our clients may experience results that differ significantly from a given market index or benchmark.

As discussed above, for some of our clients we purchase mutual funds and ETFs rather than individual securities. The value of a mutual fund is impacted by the value of the securities held in the fund and is subject to market risk. Some of the additional risks of mutual funds include having to pay capital gain taxes on distributions the client receives, even if the fund declines in value, and the lack of real-time prices. Each mutual fund has its own risk features based on the type of the fund. Generally, the higher the potential return, the greater the risk of loss. Exchange traded funds are also impacted by the value of the underlying securities and are subject to market risk. As with mutual funds, each exchange traded fund has its own risk factors based on the type of the fund. Additional risk related to individual ETFs and mutual funds are set forth in the prospectus for those funds. We will provide you with a copy of any prospectus on request.

With respect to the firm's executive financial counseling services, except as otherwise expressly agreed in writing, the firm does not assume any duties to take action pursuant to recommendations, advice or financial planning strategies that the firm may provide to an executive client, which ultimately remain each client's obligation. It is the client's responsibility to determine if, and how, any suggestions made in connection with the firm's executive financial counseling services should be implemented or otherwise followed. Our executive financial counseling services are not designed, and should not be relied upon, as a substitute for the client's own business judgment nor are they meant to mitigate the necessity of the client's personal review and analysis of any particular plan, strategy or recommendation. Clients should carefully consider all relevant factors in making these determinations, including consulting with other professionals (for example, attorneys, accountants and other advisors).

Item 9 Disciplinary Information

Investment advisors are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to a client's evaluation of the firm or the integrity of the firm's management. Management is not aware that the firm nor any of its principals or employees is currently subject to, nor ever has been subject to, any legal or disciplinary event relating to the delivery of professional services.

Item 10 Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Eric J. Sorenson, Jr., a member of the firm's board of directors, is a principal in the law firm of Woods Rogers, PLC in Lynchburg, Virginia. We do not believe that this creates a material conflict of interest with our clients. Except for the foregoing, the firm and its related persons are not engaged in other financial industry activities.

Item 11 Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

We require all of our employees to maintain high ethical standards. We have adopted a Code of Ethics that each of the managers and all employees are required to follow. We have designed our Code of Ethics to ensure that the high ethical standards that we have set for ourselves continue to be applied. The purpose of the Code is to preclude activities that may lead to or give the appearance of a conflict of interest, insider trading, or other forms of prohibited or unethical business conduct. The Code of Ethics sets forth certain restrictions and standards of conduct for the firm's managers and employees. Annually, our employees acknowledge that such employee has a) received a copy of the Code of Ethics, b) has read and understands the Code of Ethics, and c) agrees to comply with the Code of Ethics. All violations must be reported to the Chief Compliance Officer who will investigate the violation.

The firm will provide a copy of its Code of Ethics to any client upon request.

The portfolio managers of the firm may, from time to time, buy or sell, or have a position in securities that are owned by or recommended to clients. Because of the potential for a conflict of interest with our clients, we have also adopted a Personal Trading Policy. In addition to the requirements set forth in our Code of Ethics, the Personal Trading Policy is designed to reduce the potential for a conflict of interest.

In accordance with our Code of Ethics and our Personal Trading Policy:

- Our managers and employees are required to prepare and submit quarterly a disclosure form showing any significant transaction for their own or related account(s).
- We monitor the securities transactions of managers and employees to ensure that such transactions are not adverse to the interest of the firm's clients.

We do not engage in any "agency cross securities transactions" (defined below), "internal cross trades" (defined below) or "principal transactions" (defined below) for client accounts.

"Principal transactions" are generally defined as transactions where an adviser, acting as principal for its own account or the account of an affiliated broker-dealer, buys from or sells any security to any advisory client. A principal transaction may also be deemed to have occurred if a security is crossed between an affiliated hedge fund and another client account. An "agency cross securities transaction" is defined as a transaction where a person acts as an investment adviser in relation to a transaction in which the investment adviser, or any person controlled by or under common control with the investment adviser, acts as broker for both the advisory client and for another person on the other side of the transaction. An "internal cross trade" occurs when we buy and sell the same security from one client account to another.

In addition, the firm is a member of the national not-for-profit Investment Advisers Association (IAA). The Association is the oldest organization that exclusively represents SEC-registered investment advisor firms (although we are registered as an investment advisor with the SEC, such registration does not imply any level of skill or training). The Association works closely with Federal and State policy makers and regulators to promote the highest standards of integrity, public responsibility and competence in the investment advisory profession and to provide effective, quality representation of the investment advisory profession at all levels of government with respect to the development, formulation, and enactment of legislation, rules, and regulations relating to investment advisers.

Item 12 Brokerage Practices

The Custodian and Brokers We Use

We do not maintain custody of your assets, although we may be deemed to have custody of your assets under certain circumstances as described in "Item 15 – Custody." We require that all clients use a “qualified custodian,” generally a broker-dealer or bank, to hold and maintain the assets we manage.

We presently recommend that our clients use Schwab as the qualified custodian. As of the date hereof, Charles Schwab & Co., Inc. (“Schwab”), a FINRA-registered broker-dealer, member SIPC, serves as the qualified custodian of approximately 95.5 % of our total assets under management, and other firms serve as the qualified custodian of the remaining 4.5% of our total assets under management.

In connection with this transition of a large number of client accounts from Wells Fargo Advisers to Charles Schwab & firm, Inc. in 2017, the firm entered into three Client Benefit Confirmation Agreements (collectively, the “Benefit Agreements”) with Schwab, through its Advisor Services division. In engaging Schwab to provide custodial services to our clients and to assist us in making our clients’ transition to Schwab as smooth as possible, Schwab agreed to reimburse existing clients of the firm for exit or transfer fees charged to them by current custodians when moving accounts to Schwab. Further, Schwab agreed to provide clients who transferred their accounts to Schwab with commission-free equity trades for twelve (12) months following the transfer.

The firm is independently owned and operated and it is not affiliated with Schwab or any other custodian used by our clients.

While we presently recommend that new and existing clients use Schwab as the qualified custodian, the firm permits several existing clients to continue to use a qualified custodian other than Schwab selected by such client, provided that such qualified custodian is able to provide services required by us and the client. In recommending Schwab to new and existing clients, the firm has considered a wide range of factors. (see “How the firm Selects Brokers / Custodians to Recommend” in this Item 12 below).

We assist new clients in opening of accounts by having the client enter into an account agreement directly with Schwab—we do not open the account for you. Schwab will then hold the client’s assets in a brokerage account and buy and sell securities as instructed by the firm. Even though your account is maintained at Schwab or another qualified custodian, we will occasionally use other brokers to execute trades for your account.

How the firm Selects Brokers / Custodians to Recommend

We seek to recommend and use qualified custodians who will hold client assets and execute transactions on terms that are, overall, most advantageous when compared to other available providers and their services. We consider a wide range of factors, including, among others:

- Combination of transaction execution services and asset custody services;
- Capability to execute, clear, and settle trades (buy and sell securities for client accounts);
- Capability to facilitate transfers and payments to and from accounts (wire transfers, check requests, bill payment, etc.);
- Breadth of available investment products (stocks, bonds, mutual funds, exchange-traded funds, etc.);
- Availability of investment research and tools that assist us in making investment decisions;
- Quality of services;
- Technology, including the ability to interface with our service providers and to provide online account access to our clients;
- Competitiveness of the price of those services (commission rates, margin interest rates, other fees, etc.) and willingness to negotiate the prices;
- Reputation, financial strength, and stability;
- Prior service to us and our other clients; and
- Availability of other products and services that benefit us, as discussed below (see “Products and Services Available from Custodians” in this Item 12).

Brokerage and Custody Costs Borne by Clients for Accounts Maintained by Custodians

Schwab generally does not charge you separately for custody services but, rather, is compensated by charging commissions or other fees on trades that they execute or that settle into client accounts. Schwab will typically charge the client a flat dollar amount as a “prime broker” or “trade away” fee for each trade that we have executed by a different broker-dealer but where the securities bought or the funds from the securities sold are deposited (settled) into a client’s account. These fees are in addition to the commissions or other compensation clients pay the executing broker-dealer. Schwab’s commission rates applicable to our client accounts at Schwab were negotiated based on our commitment to maintain at least a certain amount of our clients’ assets statement equity in accounts at Schwab. This commitment benefits our clients with accounts at Schwab because the overall commission rates such clients pay are lower than they would be if we had not made the commitment.

Current clients of the firm who use qualified custodians other than Schwab, pay higher trade commissions than our clients who use Schwab. Further, some clients who maintain their accounts at bank or trust companies pay separate fees for custody services that they would not pay if their account was held at Schwab. We inform clients of this additional cost before the client selects an alternate custodian.

Currently, we have three clients who have chosen a third party that does not offer brokerage services (e.g., a bank or trust company) as a custodian. For these accounts, we typically execute trades through Schwab. Based on our analysis of the services Schwab provides and the fees Schwab charges, we have determined that this arrangement is beneficial to our clients.

When opening an account or when otherwise requested, we advise clients of these fees. Our clients also received detailed fee information from the selected custodian.

Products and Services Available from Custodians

Schwab Advisor Services (formerly called Schwab Institutional) is Schwab's business serving independent investment advisory firms like us. They provide us and our clients with access to their institutional brokerage services—trading, custody, reporting, and related services—many of which are not typically available to retail customers. Schwab also makes available various support services. Some of those services help the firm manage or administer our clients' accounts, while others help us manage and grow our business. Those support services are generally available on an unsolicited basis (we don't have to request them) and at no charge to us as long as our clients collectively maintain a minimum total amount with the custodian.

Custodian Services That Benefit our Clients

The institutional brokerage services offered by Schwab and other custodians selected by the clients of the firm include access to a broad range of investment products, execution of securities transactions, and custody of client assets. The investment products available through Schwab and some other custodians include some to which we might not otherwise have access or that would require a significantly higher minimum initial investment by our clients. Schwab's and other custodians' services described in this paragraph generally benefit our clients and their accounts.

Custodian Services That May Not Directly Benefit our Clients

Schwab and other custodians also make available to us other products and services that benefit us but may not directly benefit our clients. These products and services assist us in managing and administering our clients' accounts. They include investment research, both that of the custodians themselves and that of third parties. We may use this research to service all or a substantial number of our clients' accounts, including accounts not maintained at the particular custodian offering the service at issue. In addition to investment research, Schwab and other custodians may also make available software and other technology that:

- Provide access to client account data (such as duplicate trade confirmations and account statements);
- Facilitate trade execution and allocate aggregated trade orders for multiple client accounts;
- Provide pricing and other market data;
- Facilitate payment of our fees from our clients' accounts; and
- Assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping, and client reporting.

Custodian Services That Generally Benefit Only the firm

Schwab also offers other services intended to help us manage and further develop our business enterprise. These services include:

- Educational conferences and events;
- Consulting on technology, compliance, legal, and business needs;
- Publications and conferences on practice management and business succession; and
- Access to employee benefits providers, human capital consultants, and insurance providers.

Schwab or other custodians may provide some of these services themselves. In other cases, they arrange for third-party vendors to provide the services to us. Schwab or other custodians also discount or waive their fees for some of these services or pay all or a part of a third party's fees. Schwab or other custodians may also provide us with other benefits, such as occasional business entertainment of our personnel.

Although we are currently not using any such services from custodians other than Schwab, other custodians may offer these and similar services from time to time.

The firm's Interest in the Custodian's Services

Some services that Schwab provides or makes available benefit the firm because we do not have to produce or purchase those services. The firm does not have to pay for these services so long as our clients collectively keep certain minimum totals of their assets in accounts with Schwab. Beyond that, these services are not contingent upon us or our clients committing any specific amount of business to Schwab in trading commissions or assets in custody. The minimum account amounts may give us an incentive to recommend that you maintain your account with Schwab, based on our interest in receiving Schwab's services that benefit our business rather than our clients' interest in receiving most favorable execution. This presents a theoretical and potential conflict of interest. However, our recommendation is primarily supported by the scope, quality, and price of the custodian's services (see "How the firm Selects Brokers / Custodians to Recommend" in this Item 12 above) and not by how a custodian's services will or may benefit only us.

We have adopted a "Block Trade Allocation Policy" which we follow when blocking trades, that is, aggregating the orders of more than one client, to ensure that we distribute investment opportunities among client accounts in an efficient, rational, and consistent manner. Clients who choose a third-party custodian other than Schwab will be unable to participate in block trades under certain circumstances and, as a consequence, their trade executions likely will differ from firm clients who have selected Schwab.

Soft Dollar Benefits to the firm from Custodians

As discussed above, we receive certain services, including research, from Schwab. We use the research in making investment decisions for all clients, regardless of whether Schwab actually serves as custodian or executes trades for or on behalf of those clients.

Additionally, in engaging Schwab to provide custodial services to our clients and to assist us in making our clients' transition to Schwab as smooth as possible discussed above (see "Item 12 Brokerage Practices"), Schwab provides us with a discount for certain software solutions provided by Schwab Performance Technologies. This discount is based on the expectation that will have a specified minimum in end client statement equity in Schwab client accounts.

To the extent that the services and benefits above constitute "soft dollar" benefits, the provisions and receipt of such services are in compliance with applicable law.

In the event that any client has any questions or concerns about any differences in cost or practice between Schwab or any other potential third-party custodian, the firm is committed to providing whatever information is necessary for that client to determine which option may be best for the client in each individual case. Likewise, if a client directs us to direct trades through a specific broker, the costs for such trades could be greater than the trades we execute through Schwab. In addition, we may not be able to obtain the most favorable execution of trades through the selected broker.

Item 13 Review of Accounts

Major holdings held firm-wide are monitored on a daily basis by the officers of the firm. Individual client accounts are reviewed continuously and evaluated as to the appropriateness of their portfolio structure and diversification. Individual securities are continuously monitored as to suitability for each client's individual risk profile. Reviewers include our Account Managers: John D. Doyle, Jr., Thomas D. Gerhardt, James W. Poats, Brian K. Blankinship, Charles B. White, Gorham B. ("Bunny") Wood, or Charles S. ("Shep") Nowlin III.

We provide clients with account valuations and performance updates typically on a quarterly basis, but not less frequently than annually. These reports are client driven and are created and communicated in the forms and at the times preferred by each client, whether by mail and/or in telephone / face-to-face meetings, or otherwise. To the extent that written reports are provided, they will include at least the following information: a) current portfolio appraisal, including type of security, cost, market value, current yield and estimated annual income, and security ownership by category; and b) a portfolio summary (which includes a summary of management fees paid). In addition, the third-party custodian for each account (e.g., Schwab or other custodian) independently provides the client with reports that contain asset values and a detailed accounting of all account transactions.

Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation

The firm does not a) compensate any outside parties for client referrals; or b) except as described below, receive any non-cash economic benefit for referring clients to specific custodians.

We receive an economic benefit from Schwab in the form of the support products and services it makes available to us and other independent investment advisors in respect of clients who maintain accounts at Schwab. These products and services, how they benefit us, and the related conflicts of interest are described above in "Item 12 – Brokerage Practices." The availability to us of Schwab's products and services is not based on us giving particular investment advice, such as buying particular securities for our clients.

Additionally, in engaging Schwab to provide custodial services to our clients and to assist us in making our clients' transition to Schwab as smooth as possible discussed above (see "Item 12 Brokerage Practices"), Schwab has agreed to provide us with a discount for certain software solutions provided by Schwab Performance Technologies. This discount is based on the expectation that will have a specified minimum in end client statement equity in Schwab client accounts.

The firm's fee(s) for certain executive financial counseling services may be paid, in whole or in part, by the client's employer.

Item 15 Custody

The firm requires that all clients use a third-party qualified custodian such as a bank or a broker-dealer.

Under government regulations, we are deemed to have custody of your assets if you authorize us to instruct Schwab or any other custodian to deduct our advisory fees directly from your account. The independent custodian maintains actual custody of your assets. You will receive account statements directly from the independent custodian at least quarterly. They will be sent to the email or postal address you have provided the custodian. You should carefully review those statements promptly when you receive them. We also encourage you to compare these account statements to the periodic accounts statements or portfolio reports you receive from us.

We typically are authorized to deduct our fees from client accounts. This process generally is more efficient for both the client and the firm. Under government regulations, we are deemed to have custody of your assets if you authorize us to instruct Schwab or another qualified custodian for your account, as the case may be, to deduct our advisory fees directly from your account. The qualified custodian maintains actual custody of your assets.

The firm currently provides bill paying services to some clients through the utilization of Standing Letters of Authorization ("SLOA's") executed between clients of the firm and the independent custodian. These SLOA's authorize the firm to direct payment to third parties specified by a client to facilitate bill payment. These payments are made in the form of the check payable to the pre-defined third party and mailed to us for processing and remittance to third parties designated by our clients. This arrangement constitutes custody under applicable regulations. Also, for a few clients, we also provide bill payment services through Old Dominion Client Services, LLC, a wholly-owned subsidiary of the firm. Through this service, we will pay certain bills of client (e.g, taxes or utilities) as requested. Clients electing to receive these services must provide either the firm or ODCS, as applicable, with a limited power of attorney authorizing the firm to direct third party payments on behalf of clients or to reimburse ODCS for payments made at the request of and on behalf of clients. Through the services it provides, ODCS is deemed to have custody of the cash and bank accounts of the ODCS clients. ODCS currently does not charge a fee in connection with these services.

Some clients have granted us standing authority to transfer funds from their brokerage account to specific bank accounts (as specified in writing by the client to the independent custodian) via ACH transfer. Some of these specified bank accounts may be registered differently than the clients' brokerage accounts. Because we are authorized in some instances to direct the independent custodian in the dollar amount and timing of such ACH transfers, we are deemed to have custody of assets in these accounts.

In addition, in limited circumstances, an account officer of the firm serves as a trustee of trusts that are clients of the firm. Except when such person serves as a result of a family or personal relationship, the firm is deemed to have custody of the trust's assets.

Finally, until mid-2017 Schwab's standard account agreements granted us first party wire authority over client accounts. Even though this authority only allowed funds to be wired to accounts of the clients titled identically, Schwab has interpreted that this first party wire authority constitutes custody. In early 2018, the firm elected to remove first party wire authority from all client account custodied with Schwab.

All of our clients receive account statements directly from the third-party qualified custodians not less frequently than quarterly. These statements are sent directly to the address the client provided to the qualified custodian. To ensure that all account transactions, including the fee deductions, holdings, and values are correct, we urge our clients to carefully review these account statements promptly upon receipt and also to compare them to the periodic reports and statements that we furnish.

Because we have custody over some client assets, the firm has entered into an agreement with an independent accounting firm that is registered with the Public firm Accounting Oversight Board to perform the annual surprise examination required by SEC rule 206(4)-2 under the Investment Advisors Act of 1940 (the "Act"). The firm had a surprise examination in 2017 and received an unqualified opinion (a copy of which is available upon request). In addition, a copy of Form ADV-E will be provided at your request. An electronic copy is available at www.adviserinfo.sec.gov. The firm will have another surprise examination in 2018.

Item 16 Investment Discretion

By signing the Management Agreement, clients hire us to provide discretionary asset management services. Under this arrangement we place trades in a client's account without contacting the client prior to a trade to obtain the client's permission. This discretionary authority includes the ability to determine the securities to be bought and sold as well as the amount of the security to buy or sell. Under the Management Agreement, we have full discretion regarding securities selection and the composition and structure of the client's portfolio.

Generally, there are no limitations on this authority unless confirmed in writing. We determine the amount and type of securities to be purchased, subject to unique client guidelines, if any.

Item 17 Voting Client Securities

The firm has adopted and implemented policies and procedures that we believe are reasonably designed to ensure that proxies are voted in the best interest of clients, in accordance with our fiduciary duties and SEC rule 206(4)-6 under the Act.

Unless otherwise directed by a client, the firm votes proxies for client accounts. The firm's clients retain the right to vote their own proxies. A client that wishes to vote its own proxies or direct the proxy vote should instruct the firm in writing.

The firm generally votes with management on routine matters related to the operation of the company that are not expected to have a material impact on the company and/or shareholders. We evaluate a company's management and corporate governance prior to making an initial investment and therefore are likely to agree with most management recommendations. However, if we conclude that a proposal is likely to be detrimental to shareholders, we will vote against the proposal or sell our holdings.

When voting proxies, each proxy is reviewed and voted on by an account manager of the firm. Should we determine that a particular issue conflicts with what is in the best interest of our clients, or if we believe that a material conflict of interest exists on a proxy matter between the firm and our clients, then the matter is submitted to the firm's Proxy Committee for a determination and the firm will ultimately vote the proxy in accordance with the recommendations of its Proxy Committee. The Proxy Committee consists of the officers of the firm.

The firm maintains records on how it has voted proxies for the requisite period of time. Upon written request, the firm will provide a client with information on how that client's proxies were voted.

A copy of the proxy voting policy of the firm is available upon request.

Item 18 Financial Information

Only firms that require or solicit pre-payment for more than $1,200 advisory fees per client, six months or more in advance are required to disclose financial information. The firm has no such pre-payment requirements for customers and, therefore, this Item does not apply to our firm. The firm has never been subject to a bankruptcy petition.

PRIVACY NOTICE

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

Pettyjohn, Wood & White, Inc. (“PW&W”) places a high value on the relationships we have with our clients and prospective clients. We strive to maintain our clients’ trust and confidence in our company, an essential aspect of which is our commitment to protecting their personal information to the best of our ability. We believe that our clients and prospective clients value their privacy, so we have established this Privacy Notice to help us ensure that information about our clients and prospective clients will be handled in an appropriate manner. As a general rule, we will not disclose your personal information to anyone outside of PW&W unless you consent, it is necessary to enable us to provide you with our products or services, or it is permitted or required by law. In addition, all such disclosures will be made in accordance with this Privacy Notice.

WHY YOU HAVE RECEIVED THIS NOTICE

The reason you have received this notice is that you are either a current PW&W client, or you have contacted PW&W about certain products or services that we provide. This notice describes our practices and policies concerning how we handle information about you.

THE PERSONAL INFORMATION THAT WE COLLECT, MAINTAIN, AND DISCLOSE

PW&W collects and maintains your personal information so we can provide investment management services to you. The types and categories of information we collect and maintain include personally identifiable financial information about you that we obtain in connection with providing services to you, including:

- Information we receive from you to open an account or provide investment advice to you (such as your home address, telephone number, social security number, and financial information);
- Information that we generate to service your account (such as trade tickets and account statements);
- Information about your transactions with us; and
- Information that we may receive from third parties with respect to you or your account (such as trade confirmations from brokerage firms or information from consumer reporting agencies).

DISCLOSURE OF NONPUBLIC PERSONAL INFORMATION OF OUR CLIENTS

We do not disclose any nonpublic personal information about you or our former clients to anyone, except to assist us in servicing your account or as required by law.

In order to assist us in servicing your account, we may provide nonpublic personal information to certain nonaffiliated third parties. These parties may include financial service providers (such as companies that perform services on your behalf, including securities brokers-dealers), non-financial companies (such as our technology consultants who assist us in maintaining our computer systems), and other nonaffiliated third parties to whom disclosure of nonpublic personal information is required by law (such as the Securities and Exchange Commission).

DISCLOSURE OF NONPUBLIC PERSONAL INFORMATION ABOUT OUR FORMER CLIENTS

If you choose to close your account(s) or become an inactive client, we will adhere to this Privacy Notice with respect to your nonpublic personal information. Nonpublic personal information about former PW&W clients will not be treated any differently than information about our current clients.

HOW WE PROTECT OUR CLIENTS' PERSONAL INFORMATION

To fulfill our privacy commitment at PW&W, we have instituted firm-wide practices to safeguard the information that we maintain about our clients. These practices include:

- Adopting policies and procedures that put in place physical, electronic, and other safeguards to keep our clients' personal information safe;
- Limiting access to personal information to those employees who need it to perform their job duties;
- Requiring third parties that perform services for us to certify annually that they will keep personal information strictly confidential; and
- Protecting information of our former clients to the same extent as our current clients.

Mr. White has been in the investment advisory business since 1997.

The Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) charter is a globally respected, graduate-level investment credential established in 1962 and awarded by CFA Institute — the largest global association of investment professionals. There are currently more than 138,000 CFA charter holders working in 134 countries. To earn the CFA charter, candidates must: 1) pass three sequential, six-hour examinations; 2) have at least four years of qualified professional investment experience; 3) join CFA Institute as members; and 4) commit to abide by, and annually reaffirm, their adherence to the CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct.

High Ethical Standards

The CFA Institute Code of Ethics and Standards of Professional Conduct, enforced through an active professional conduct program, require CFA charter holders to:

- Place their clients' interests ahead of their own
- Maintain independence and objectivity
- Act with integrity
- Maintain and improve their professional competence
- Disclose conflicts of interest and legal matters

Global Recognition

Passing the three CFA exams is a difficult feat that requires extensive study (successful candidates report spending an average of 300 hours of study per level). Earning the CFA charter demonstrates mastery of many of the advanced skills needed for investment analysis and decision making in today's quickly evolving global financial industry. As a result, employers and clients are increasingly seeking CFA charter holders—often making the charter a prerequisite for employment. Additionally, regulatory bodies in over 30 countries and territories recognize the CFA charter as a proxy for meeting certain licensing requirements, and more than 125 colleges and universities around the world have incorporated a majority of the CFA Program curriculum into their own finance courses.

Comprehensive and Current Knowledge

The CFA Program curriculum provides a comprehensive framework of knowledge for investment decision making and is firmly grounded in the knowledge and skills used every day in the investment profession. The three levels of the CFA Program test a proficiency with a wide range of fundamental and advanced investment topics, including ethical and professional standards, fixed-income and equity analysis, alternative and derivative investments, economics, financial reporting standards, portfolio management, and wealth planning. The CFA Program curriculum is updated every year by experts from around the world to ensure that candidates learn the most relevant and practical new tools, ideas, and investment and wealth management skills to reflect the dynamic and complex nature of the profession.

To learn more about the CFA charter, visit www.cfainstitute.org.
