Item 4 Advisory Business

Eagle Capital Management, LLC (Eagle) was formed in August 1988 by Ravenel B. Curry, III and Elizabeth R. Curry. Eagle's goal was to create an environment in which equity investment decisions would be made through original, thoughtful research and rigorous valuation techniques. The firm offers one product, the Eagle Equity portfolio, which it has been managing since its inception over 22 years ago. In 1995 the organizational structure of the firm was changed to a Limited Liability Company (LLC).

Eagle is 100% employee-owned and has no affiliation with any outside entities. There are now nine partners, all of whom are full-time professionals at the firm. Ravenel B. Curry, III and Elizabeth R. Curry are the principal owners of the firm.

The Eagle Equity strategy invests in U.S. traded public equities. From time to time we identify companies trading in the form of American Depository Receipt (ADR) of large non-U.S. corporations that fit our investment criteria. Cumulative ADR positions are generally not greater than 15% of the portfolio. Each Eagle Equity portfolio typically holds 25-35 positions. Eagle's investment management is limited almost entirely to publicly traded direct equity investments. All portfolios are managed with full discretion as separate accounts according to the same model portfolio. Eagle is opportunistic when investing and liquidating funds. Over time all portfolios adhere to the same investment philosophy and process. Eagle will abide restrictions to the extent that they do not significantly alter Eagle's investment philosophy. Two proprietary portfolios have an expanded global focus.

Eagle does not provide financial planning services. Our clients and their consultants determine that the Eagle Equity portfolio is appropriate for their circumstances.

Wrap Fee Programs. Eagle Capital Management, LLC provides investment management for client portfolios participating in wrap fee programs. In some cases, Eagle's fee is included in the wrap fee. There is no difference between Eagle's services and fee schedules provided to wrap fee clients and the services and fee schedules provided to other clients.

Assets Under Management. As of December 31, 2010, Eagle Capital Management, LLC had $7,382.4 million of client assets managed on a discretionary basis.

Item 5 Fees and Compensation

Eagle Capital Management, LLC receives a management fee for its investment advisory services determined on the basis of the market value of the account assets. In July 2004 Eagle's fee schedule was set as follows: 1% annual rate on the first $5 million and .75% on the assets above $5 million, charged quarterly. There are rate reductions for assets greater than $500 million. Accounts are billed in arrears and generally based on the asset valuation at calendar quarter-end, 3/31; 6/30; 9/30; and 12/31. Some clients have requested that their bill be based on the average of the three month-end values or the average of the balance at the beginning of the quarter and at the end of the quarter. In most cases management fee invoices are generated from Axys, our portfolio accounting software system, based on the valuation of the account per Eagle's records. Clients may request that we base the invoice on the valuation of the account shown on the custodian statement. These invoices are calculated manually. Related accounts are aggregated to benefit from the billing breakpoints. Clients may terminate at any time. A pro rata portion of the fee will be calculated upon cancellation.

Eagle investment advisory fees are, in most cases, remitted to Eagle by the custodian and charged against the account. A copy of the invoice is sent to the client. Some clients prefer to pay our fee from another source after receipt of an original invoice.

Eagle receives no compensation outside of its management fee.

Clients incur costs other than Eagle's management fee, including custodian fees and transaction commissions. When clients have uninvested cash swept into a money market fund, maximizing the return on that cash, the custodian charges a fee and a proportionate share of other expenses of the money market fund. Eagle does not benefit from any such additional charges.

Further detail regarding brokerage commissions can be found in Item 12 – Brokerage Practices.

Item 6 Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Eagle Growth Limited Partnership (the LP) is a single portfolio managed to the same investment model as other Eagle Capital Management, LLC portfolios but has flexibility to invest in options and make "short" sales. It was established in 1990 and is an investment vehicle for Eagle personnel, their family members, and a former employee who together own approximately two-thirds of the partnership. The remainder is owned by seven individuals who were early clients. As of December 31, 2010, the market value of the Eagle Growth Limited Partnership was $34.9 million.

For five of the seven outside holders, Eagle charges a performance-based fee. Eagle Capital Management, LLC is the general partner of the LP. In lieu of the fee charged to clients described in Section 5, the LP's compensation is an incentive fee which may be more or less than Eagle's normal fee depending upon performance.

Eagle Growth Limited Partnership is primarily invested in the same securities that all our clients' accounts are invested in. The different fee structure for the LP could create a conflict of interest for our firm. Because a performance-based fee is charged and some funds are related parties, there could be an incentive to favor the LP when making trading decisions. To protect our clients' interests, we treat the LP as a "directed brokerage" relationship when buying and selling stocks. Trades for those accounts with directed trading are generally executed after accounts where Eagle has full trading discretion.

Item 7 Types of Clients

The Eagle Equity strategy is suitable for a wide range of long-term investors who wish to invest in a portfolio of direct equity securities. Eagle Capital Management, LLC clients include public funds, corporate clients, endowments and foundations, union plans, pension funds, limited partnerships, trusts, and high-net-worth individuals.

The majority of individual clients are introduced by consultants and advisers who have deemed Eagle's equity focus appropriate for their clients.

The minimum account size is $5 million. Business considerations may compel exceptions to this policy.

Item 8 Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Philosophy. Eagle Capital Management, LLC has one investment philosophy for the firm and its sole product, which has not changed since the inception of the firm:

Eagle believes that most successful equity investments are made when a longer-term perspective is taken. The vast majority of Eagle's commitments are made with a three-to-five year holding period in mind. Eagle sees its role as that of an accumulator of shares of businesses which offer above-average returns over that period as opposed to focusing on short-term strategies. From time to time, however, sharp short-term price fluctuations may dictate sales and purchases in order to realize profits or reduce losses.

To achieve investment returns superior to broad equity market indices in both up and down markets, Eagle uses a bottom-up, research-driven approach to find undervalued companies that will experience long-term secular change—fundamental analysis. By identifying change early, ahead of the general market, the firm minimizes risk and maximizes the upside potential in the stock.

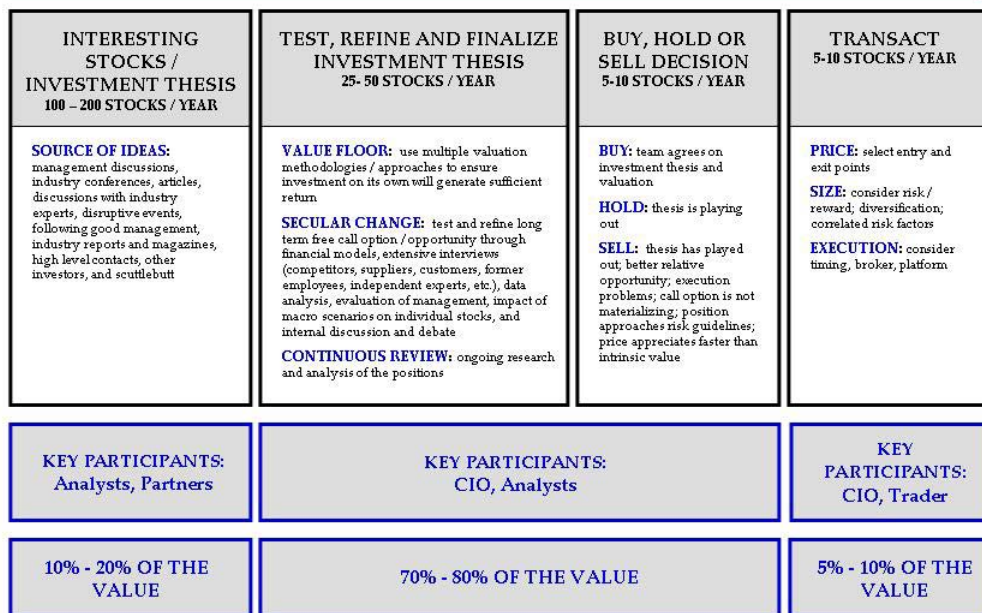

The investment team builds a portfolio of businesses with two primary characteristics. The first is that, even in times of stress, the underlying income-producing assets are strong enough to maintain a value floor for the investment. In other words, the company is a good value based on what we can be fairly certain of now.

The second characteristic is some change going on that is unrecognized by the market and likely to be very valuable in the out years—a free call option. If we get those two pieces right, the value part of our work should defend the portfolio when times are bad, while the eventual realization of the change should generate extra return when things go right.

The investment team looks for companies undergoing profitable change that is not yet recognized by the market. Examples include the introduction of a new product line, a new way of using technology to cut costs, and a new management team that will better allocate resources. In identifying attractive securities for further work, Eagle looks for strong management, a business with a sustainable competitive advantage, and compelling valuation.

INVESTMENT PROCESS

Eagle Capital Management

A stock is added to the portfolio when the team agrees that 1) the investment thesis is valid and compelling, 2) the valuation is attractive, and 3) on a relative basis, this opportunity is more attractive than others that the team is following. Full positions (generally 5% of the portfolio at cost) are scaled in over time except in cases where the Chief Investment Officer believes that the opportunity to purchase at value will be fleeting. Although all of our investment professionals work as a team with daily interaction, Ravenel B. Curry, III, Eagle's Chief Investment Officer, makes the final buy and sell decisions for the portfolio.

The investment process has not changed since the inception of the firm. Management believes that consistency of investment philosophy and process is a core requisite of long-term success.

Eagle's portfolio consists of the firm's 25-35 best investment opportunities at any time. Eagle generally limits its portfolio holdings to 5% portfolio weights at cost initially and 10% portfolio weights at market value. The firm also generally limits sector exposure to 25% of the portfolio. The firm generally considers companies with market capitalizations in excess of $3 billion.

Stock selection, concentration, and bottom-up analysis of the long-term outlook, while remaining sector agnostic, limits exposure to themes, sector movements, and extremes in valuations that typically drive index performance on a short-term basis.

Eagle's portfolios are generally fully invested with a residual cash position of 2% to 5%. At times, when changing positions within a portfolio, there may be temporary periods where cash levels are higher. Cash residuals are swept daily into highly liquid money market funds depending on custodian and client direction. The firm does not use cash as an investment vehicle. This cash management policy has not changed over time.

Risk Management. Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Eagle considers risk to be the likelihood that events occur which lead to a permanent loss of client capital.

A basic tenet of the firm is “Risk is greatest when agreement is greatest.” We avoid high expectation stocks where the perceived future opportunity has been discounted. We seek stocks that are fairly valued based on their current franchise and where there is limited market recognition of their long-term potential for growth.

Our primary focus is on “fundamental” risk versus “price” risk. We need to maintain a high degree of confidence in the fundamental strengths of our portfolio companies. We are willing to be patient through periods of stock price volatility if we continue to maintain confidence in the fundamental characteristics and long-term investment opportunity of a portfolio company.

If we are disciplined in our stock selection and consistently adhere to our investment philosophy, we should be managing risk at the single stock level. Our valuation discipline and our requirement for sound, strong, competitive, and durable businesses with extraordinary managements provide the lion’s share of our fundamental risk protection.

Item 9 Disciplinary Information

To the best of our knowledge, there are no legal or disciplinary events or facts that are material to a client’s or prospective client’s evaluation of our advisory business or the integrity of our management, nor have there ever been.

Item 10 Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

The firm and its management do not participate in other financial industry activities or possess other financial industry affiliations.

Item 11 Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

Code of Ethics

Eagle Capital Management, LLC and each of our personnel wholly adopt and accept duty as a fiduciary to render professional, continuous and unbiased investment service. Fundamental to that duty is knowledge of and adherence to federal securities laws governing our industry. Fundamental to that duty is that all personal transactions be conducted in such a manner as to avoid any actual or potential conflict of interest or abuse of a position of trust and responsibility. Fundamental to that duty is that all clients be treated fairly and equitably. Fundamental to that duty is that all client information be protected.

All personnel must disclose and provide statements of all personal investment trading accounts involving “Reportable” securities for themselves and their household members and any accounts in which the individual has a beneficial interest, within ten days of hire, annually thereafter, and upon opening or closing of any accounts. The holdings reports must include title and type of security, exchange symbol or CUSIP number, number of shares, and principal amount. Copies of monthly statements of all active brokerage accounts are received directly from the broker. All transactions in “Reportable” securities in all personnel accounts managed outside the firm, including all initial public offerings, must be precleared by the trading department and reviewed by the compliance department. Activity in the accounts is reviewed monthly by the compliance department and statements initialed. The review and the reviewer's investment activity are reviewed quarterly by the Chief Compliance Officer and initialed. An annual personnel questionnaire concerning outside activities is required to be completed. Personnel pension (SEP-IRA) accounts, a family charitable foundation, and an employee account are managed at the firm. Purchases and sales in personnel pension accounts and the employee account are executed at the end of the trading day or after all other transactions in the specific securities are completed. Transactions in the foundation account are executed with other accounts or at the end of the day after all other transactions in the specific securities for clients are completed.

All personnel have acknowledged and have agreed in writing to adhere to this code of ethics and to have read and understood the Eagle Capital Management, LLC Policies and Procedures Manual. A signed attestation is retained. Activities of all personnel are monitored to ensure adherence to this code. Violations are reported to the Chief Compliance Officer and responded to appropriately.

Truth, fairness, respect, responsibility and trust are the tenets of Eagle Capital Management, LLC.

Item 12 Brokerage Practices

Eagle Capital Management, LLC, as a matter of policy and practice, seeks to obtain best execution for client transactions, i.e., seeking to obtain not necessarily the lowest commission but the best overall qualitative execution in the particular circumstances.

Eagle considers the overall quality of research received, the responsiveness of the broker to requests for information, the assistance of the sell-side trader in securing the best price execution, and the promptness and accuracy of the brokers' back office operations when selecting broker-dealers for client transactions. With regard to the reasonableness of compensation (e.g., commissions), the trader uses market expertise and published materials to judge the current rates being paid. The trader estimates the cost of the transaction and considers the incremental services that the broker provides. The low turnover in the Eagle accounts and the total commissions generated are also considered. In a few instances, the low price of a stock may also affect the commission rate.

Research and Other Soft-Dollar Benefits. Eagle Capital Management, LLC maintains soft-dollar arrangements with pre-selected brokers for research products and services that assist Eagle in its investment decision-making process. Because the research and products obtained through soft-dollars are obtained using client brokerage commissions, Eagle Capital Management, LLC does not pay for them directly. These products include critical stock and trading information, research, quotes and on-line computer services. Eagle considers commissions generated from trades executed with brokers as assets of the client. Research services furnished by brokers through which Eagle effects securities transactions may be used in servicing all of Eagle's accounts, and not all such services may be used by Eagle in connection with the accounts which paid commissions to the broker providing such services. Likewise, Eagle does not seek to allocate soft-dollar benefits to clients' accounts proportionately to the soft-dollar credits the accounts generate. Because they provide this service, there may be an additional incentive to utilize these brokers beyond most favorable execution, and the commission charged by these brokers may be higher than other brokers. Eagle directs brokerage trades to these pre-selected firms when they are expected to be of equal execution.

Eagle's soft-dollar policy is to make a good faith determination of the value of the research product or services in relation to the commissions paid.

Eagle splits the cost of certain research products which are paid for in soft-dollars with one other registered investment adviser. Trading commissions from both of the investment advisers are used to pay for the research products.

In the event Eagle obtains any mixed-use products or services on a soft-dollar basis, Eagle will make a reasonable allocation of the cost between that portion which is eligible as research or brokerage services and that portion which is not qualified. The portion eligible as research or other brokerage services will be paid for with discretionary client commissions. The portion not eligible under the Section 28(e) Securities Exchange Act of 1934 safe harbor, e.g., computer hardware, accounting systems, etc., will be paid for with Eagle's own funds. For any mixed-use products or services, Eagle will maintain appropriate records of its reviews and good faith determinations of its reasonable allocations.

The Eagle Trading Committee periodically reviews the firm's soft-dollar arrangements, budget, and allocations and monitors the firm's brokerage policy. Eagle uses Morgan Keegan Interstate's and BNY Mellon's industry expertise as resources to keep abreast of soft-dollar regulations. As part of Eagle's policy and soft-dollar practices, appropriate disclosures are periodically reviewed and updated to accurately disclose the firm's policies and practices.

Directed Brokerage. Eagle does not recommend, request or require that clients direct Eagle to execute transactions through a specified broker-dealer.

Some of Eagle's clients have relationships with particular brokers or brokerage firms. In such cases, the establishment of brokerage fees and commissions is generally a matter of negotiation between the client and broker. The brokers generally act as custodian of the client's assets as well. Any client-directed brokerage instructions are required to be in writing.

When clients require the use of a particular brokerage house as a custodian and broker, specific transaction prices and commission costs could be more or less attractive for the client. Certain clients have arrangements with their broker-dealers whereby clients pay a separate fee to their broker-dealer and are not charged commissions on trades. Eagle does not assume responsibility for judging the fairness of these fees as they may or may not encompass services beyond stock trading and custody. Discretionary trading accounts are generally traded ahead of accounts where the client has requested that Eagle trade with a specific broker (also known as directed trading accounts). Trading ahead may or may not benefit accounts, depending upon market conditions.

If a client or prospective client of Eagle Capital Management, LLC has no established relationship with a broker or brokerage firm, the Eagle trader will make the decision about which trading firm to use to execute a particular trade. The trader works from a pre-approved and pre-ranked list of brokers. Broad allocations for the ensuing period are determined.

This list of brokers is compiled after receiving input from the trader, the portfolio manager and analysts, and the operations department. These rankings measure the quality of the research and the responsiveness of the broker to requests for information, the assistance of the sell-side trader in securing the best price execution, and the promptness and accuracy of the broker's back office operations. These semi-annual assessments of the utilized brokers are retained.

At the time of the specific trade, drawing from the approved list, the trader selects a broker in part based upon that broker's expertise in particular areas. Through the deployment of services to which we subscribe, the trader gains insight into who might be currently or potentially involved with the stock, i.e., where he or she might find a natural buyer or seller. Another factor taken into account is the stock's liquidity.

Most of Eagle Capital Management, LLC's accounts are custodied at banks, and trades are generally grouped to effect a better transaction. All participating clients receive the same price and pay the same commission on each block trade. Partially completed trades are randomly allocated after considering the size of completion and efficiency of distribution while maintaining fairness over time. The trader deploys features of the Moxy order management system to ensure fairness over time.

When appropriate opportunities occur, Eagle Capital Management, LLC will cross trades of non-ERISA accounts. Crossing trades may reduce execution and commission costs, enable cash withdrawals and contributions to be effected with less market impact and at the same time facilitate portfolio rebalancing to achieve diversification. Crossed trade records are maintained and monitored to ensure fairness.

Upon written instructions from a client, Eagle will allocate a dollar amount into a specified money market fund or fixed income instrument identifying it in the portfolio as an unsupervised asset. No Eagle management fee will be charged on that investment. Additions to or deletions from those investments must be made in dollar terms and in writing.

Initial public offerings (IPOs) are offerings of securities which frequently are of limited size and limited availability. IPOs may also become "hot issues" which are offerings that trade a premium above the initial offering price.

In the event Eagle Capital Management, LLC participates in any IPOs, Eagle Capital Management, LLC's policy and practice is to allocate IPO shares fairly and equitably among our advisory clients who have been deemed non-restricted persons. In allocating these IPOs, we put first priority on clients that have given us complete trading discretion. We must be able to sell the stock easily, if necessary. A second priority will be clients who have not received an IPO in the current cycle. A third priority will be that our allocation is at least 1% of the portfolio since it is inconsequential to put a smaller allocation in a large portfolio.

Item 13 Review of Accounts

Each investment account is assigned to a managing director responsible for ensuring investment decisions concerning the account are made in a manner consistent with the Eagle Equity strategy and account specific directions or restrictions.

All investment accounts are managed to a model, and the portfolio manager reviews all trades made in the accounts. The client services department reviews accounts monthly to determine compliance with Eagle's investment policies and specific restrictions. Portfolio administration reviews each account at least monthly when reconciling to custodian statements. Certain transactions, e.g. deposits and withdrawals, are reviewed by the portfolio manager, client services, portfolio administration and trading when they occur.

Many factors trigger account review by the portfolio manager, including the decision to add or eliminate a particular investment, to balance gains and losses for tax purposes, to raise cash for distribution to clients at their request, to invest new cash contributions in a portfolio, and to alter the asset mix as market conditions dictate.

Quarterly statements including specific holdings, current performance, and investment commentary are provided. More frequent information will be provided if requested. Custodians of clients' funds and securities provide their own separate reports to clients.

Item 14 Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Eagle Capital Management, LLC does not employ third-party marketing companies or individuals.

The Gracia Group is paid a monthly retainer plus expenses for introductions to institutions and high-net-worth individuals in the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC).

Item 15 Custody

Eagle Capital Management, LLC does maintain custody, as defined by the SEC, of advisory client funds, securities or assets. The custody rule under the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 defines custody as "holding, directly or indirectly, client funds or securities, or having any authority to obtain possession of them." The custody definition now includes three examples to clarify what constitutes custody for advisers as follows:

- Possession of client funds or securities, unless an adviser receives them inadvertently. If the adviser returns them within three business days of receipt, custody can be avoided (inadvertent custody).
- Any arrangement which authorizes or permits an adviser to withdraw client funds or securities, e.g., a general power of attorney or direct debiting of advisory fees.
- Any capacity that gives an adviser or supervised person legal ownership or access to client funds or securities.

The custody rule requires that client funds and securities are maintained with "qualified custodians", which include banks and registered broker-dealers. Clients will receive account statements at least quarterly from these custodians. These statements should be carefully reviewed and compared to quarterly statements delivered by Eagle.

As the general partner and investment adviser to the Eagle Growth Limited Partnership, Eagle ensures that the LP is audited annually by an independent accounting firm in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) by an independent public accountant registered with and subject to regular inspection by the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (PCAOB). The audited financial statements are distributed to each investor in the investment pool (or their respective independent representative) within 120 days of the fiscal year-end of the investment pool.

Item 16 Investment Discretion

Eagle Capital Management, LLC has discretionary authority to manage securities accounts on behalf of clients, as described in and vested through Eagle's Investment Manager Agreement. Eagle will accept limitation on this authority in the form of specific stock restriction requests from clients. Eagle will abide restrictions to the extent that they do not significantly alter Eagle's fundamental investment philosophy.

Item 17 Voting Client Securities

Eagle Capital Management, LLC, as a matter of policy and as a fiduciary to our clients, has responsibility for voting proxies, unless otherwise instructed, for portfolio securities. Our policies and practices include the responsibilities to: monitor and evaluate the proposals for the companies we are invested in; vote clients' proxies where Eagle has been given authority to do so; retain information regarding the voting of proxies; and maintain relevant and required records.

All voting decisions are conducted on a case-by-case basis in accordance with Eagle's best judgment. Conflicts of interest with individual clients may arise; with adequate notification, clients may direct a vote in a particular solicitation.

Eagle ensures that proxies are voted in an accurate and timely manner and that voting records are maintained. Eagle has hired the proxy service company, Broadridge, to electronically compile and maintain voting records of clients' proxies for a majority of Eagle's clients. Broadridge provides access to client ballots and records via a password protected website, ProxyEdge. Eagle executes its voting privilege via this website. Broadridge notifies Eagle of new meeting ballots. Eagle's analysts determine how Eagle will vote the associated proxies, in accordance with applicable voting guidelines. The analysts make their recommendations to Ravenel B. Curry, III, Chief Investment Officer, who gives final approval. Once approved, Eagle votes the electronic ballots via the ProxyEdge platform. Unsupervised assets and money market vehicles will be voted in accordance with management suggestions. Clients may call Eagle to discuss proxies pertaining to their accounts, obtain a copy of Eagle's voting policies and procedures, and obtain their voting records upon request.

Item 18 Financial Information

In certain circumstances, none of which are applicable to Eagle Capital Management, LLC, registered investment advisers are required to provide financial information or disclosures about their financial condition in this Item. Eagle is a privately-held, 100% employee-owned firm. The firm's sole source of revenue is the investment management fee paid by its clients. Eagle Capital Management, LLC has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary obligations to clients. Eagle Capital Management, LLC has never been the subject of a bankruptcy hearing.
