Company Background and Ownership Structure

Founded in 1990, DLB is a real estate investment consulting and advisory firm. We are a Registered Investment Advisor with the Securities and Exchange Commission as well as a licensed broker with the California Department of Real Estate. DLB has been providing a full range of services to public pension funds, tax exempt public and private institutional investors, corporations, non-profit foundations and endowment funds, family trusts, and individual investors for over twenty (20) years.

Our services, which include, but are not limited to, independent fiduciary review and advisory services, acquisition/disposition services, debt resolution/restructuring, and asset management/property management services are structured to accommodate each of our client's specific objectives and goals. Our independent fiduciary review and advisory services may include projects as broad as investment planning and portfolio evaluation, or as narrow as pooled fund reviews and property-level transactions. Acquisition/disposition services consist of strategic planning, transaction structuring, capital sourcing, and due diligence for a single asset or an entire portfolio. We also provide asset management and property management services to our clients for both individual asset holdings and portfolios. All services are non-discretionary and are based on a set of pre-determined investment guidelines and objectives as defined by the individual client.

Our professionals are dedicated to providing the highest level of service to our clients in order to maximize the benefits of owning and investing in real estate. We provide hands-on personal attention to each of our clients and tailor our services to their specific needs. We place a great deal of emphasis on understanding our clients' goals and objectives. Our combined experience and in-depth knowledge of the real estate industry along with the strong relationships we have built with other professionals such as mortgage and lease brokers, developers, architects, engineers, lenders, attorneys, etc., provide us with the tools necessary to devise the most effective means of meeting or exceeding our clients' goals and objectives.

The development of a long-term, mutually beneficial relationship between a client and advisor is the very foundation of our business. The building and fostering of these relationships is crucial to successful investment management. The degree of success achieved in these relationships is what ultimately becomes the measure of a firm's desirability and reliability; namely, its reputation. We are proud of the reputation we have earned in the real estate advisory industry by consistently meeting or exceeding our clients' goals and objectives from the start of a transaction through its logical end.

We currently have six (6) full time employees, excluding Mr. David Bonuccelli. Employees do not participate in the equity ownership and there is no specific compensation or bonus arrangement with employees. Item 7 – Types of Clients

DLB provides services to public pension funds, corporations, family trusts, and individual investors. While we do not have a specific required account size we are very selective in our acceptance of clients and, as a result, maintain a relatively small portfolio of clients. We believe that by being both selective in our hiring and choosing to focus on a limited number of clients, we confine ourselves to clients of only the highest quality which we can serve with superior service.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies, and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

Investment guidelines and objectives are developed and set forth by each individual client. Real estate transactions are analyzed using the income capitalization approach to value (direct capitalization and discounted cash flow methods). These methods are based on the premise that value is created by the expected future income to be derived from the property, and that this value is represented by the present worth of the rights to this income. This approach involves estimating the annual net income the property will earn and converting it into value. This process, called capitalization, is accomplished by dividing the net income, before payment of debt service, by a capitalization rate. This rate will vary because of such factors as risk, time, interest or capital investment, and recapture of the depreciating asset.

Rental Income Analysis: One of the first steps in the income capitalization approach is to estimate the total possible gross income a property can generate, usually measured over a one-year period. In order to accomplish this, rents being achieved at the subject property are reviewed, as well as market rents for comparable properties.

Vacancy: The second income capitalization approach step is to project a vacancy rate and the income loss attributable thereto. Vacancy and collection loss is the allowance for a reduction in potential gross income attributable to vacancies, tenant turnover, and non-payment of rent. This loss should reflect typical investor expectation over a specific holding period, assumed or projected.

The third step in the income capitalization approach analysis is to project expenses for the coming year, including costs for proper third party management. Based on historical and market data, the coming year's expenses are projected.

This method is called “Direct Capitalization”

Related to “Direct Capitalization” is the “Discounted Cash Flow Method”. In this method, the periodic cash flows (which consist of net operating income less capital costs) and a reversionary value are developed and discounted to a present value using an internal rate of return that is determined by analyzing current investor yield requirements for similar investments.

Information for financial analyses is obtained from local real estate brokers, loan brokers, and industry publications.

Investment Strategies

Investment strategies are developed by each individual client; however, DLB does provide assistance to our client in the development of those strategies by providing financial analyses for potential real estate acquisitions and dispositions. Our services are non-discretionary and all investment strategies are based on investment guidelines and objectives as developed and set forth by each individual client.

Risk of Loss

Risk is an inherent part of investing. The possibility that an investment's actual return will be different than expected; includes the possibility of losing some or all of the original investment. Clients should evaluate the risks and merits of all prospective investments and obtain information from independent source in order to make informed investment decisions.
