Item 4- Advisory Business

- A. ACON LatAm Management, L.L.C. (“ACON LatAm” or the “Adviser”) was formed in 2010 as a Delaware limited liability company to provide investment supervisory services to pooled investment vehicles that are exempt from registration under the Investment Company Act of 1940, as amended (the “Investment Company Act”) and whose securities are not registered under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the “Funds”).

ACON LatAm from time to time may serve as the sponsor of entities that act as feeder vehicles into the Funds (the “Feeders”). Additionally, in order to meet tax, regulatory or other requirements, certain investors may invest in substantially the same portfolio as the applicable Funds through specially formed investment vehicles which are also advised by ACON LatAm (collectively, the “SPVs”).

ACON LatAm from time to time also may establish, on a transaction-by-transaction basis, investment vehicles through which certain persons may invest alongside one or more Funds (each such pooled investment vehicle, a “Co-Investment Vehicle”).

The only advisory clients of ACON LatAm are the Funds and certain Feeders, SPVs, and Co-Investment Vehicles (collectively, the “ACON LatAm Management Funds”).

The owners of ACON LatAm are Jose Knoell, Jorge Dickens, Andre Bhatia, Bernard Aronson, Kenneth Brotman, and Jonathan Ginns.

- B. As an investment adviser, ACON LatAm provides investment-related services to the ACON LatAm Management Funds, including: identifying and recommending investment opportunities; analyzing and investigating potential investment opportunities; structuring investments; identifying sources of financing for proposed investments; monitoring, managing and evaluating investments; analyzing and investigating positional dispositions of investments; supervising the negotiation, preparation and review of agreements and other documents in connection with investments, dispositions and financings; and providing all administrative, clerical and financial support services related to the management of the ACON LatAm Management Funds.
- C. The ACON LatAm Management Funds have a set of specific guidelines which are set forth in the governing documents of each ACON LatAm Management Fund and its offering documents. These guidelines may provide for limits on the size, concentration, geography, type of security and/or terms of the applicable ACON LatAm Management Fund’s investments. Each ACON LatAm Management Fund is advised by the Adviser and managed in accordance with its investment guidelines and an investment in any ACON LatAm Management Fund does not, in and of itself, create an advisory relationship between any investor in any ACON LatAm Management Fund and the Adviser.
- D. The Adviser does not participate in wrap fee programs.

- E. As of December 31, 2012, ACON LatAm manages approximately $419.2 million of client assets, all of which is managed on a discretionary basis.

Item 5- Fees and Compensation

- A. As compensation for its services, ACON LatAm generally receives from each ACON LatAm Management Fund an annual management fee (the “Management Fee”) payable semi-annually in advance (subject to potential reductions due to waivers and offsets under certain circumstances). Each ACON LatAm Management Fund’s organizational documents may permit the Management Fee to be waived and for the Adviser to receive a credit against capital contributions otherwise owed. Principals or other employees of the general partners of the ACON LatAm Management Funds, or other of the Adviser’s supervised persons, may receive a portion of the performance fees or carried interest received by the general partners of the ACON LatAm Management Funds or their affiliates.

In addition to the Management Fee, in connection with the affairs of the ACON LatAm Management Funds, ACON LatAm may receive (i) monitoring fees, organizational fees, set-up fees, financial advisory fees, transaction fees or other similar fees; (ii) cash and non-cash directors’ fees; (iii) certain management and other fees with respect to co-investment capital; and (iv) termination, break-up or other similar fees. Each ACON LatAm Management Fund’s Management Fee may be reduced by a portion of such other fees. The Management Fee may be further reduced, waived or rebated at the sole discretion of ACON LatAm.

Fees are non-negotiable, however, the general partner of any ACON LatAm Management Fund may exempt certain persons from payment of the Management Fee or otherwise reduce the Management Fee payable by certain investors, including owners of the general partners or their affiliates, persons with family or other relationships with the general partner or its affiliates, service providers for the general partners or its affiliates, or other unaffiliated parties. In addition, members of the general partners effectively do not pay the Management Fee on their indirect interests in ACON LatAm Management Funds.

- B. The general partner of each ACON LatAm Management Fund causes the Management Fee to be paid to ACON LatAm by or on behalf of each ACON LatAm Management Fund by (i) requiring investors to make capital contributions, (ii) withholding from investment proceeds that would otherwise be distributable to investors or (iii) causing the ACON LatAm Management Fund to borrow money. The Management Fee is due semi-annually in advance.
- C. Each ACON LatAm Management Fund bears and is charged with costs and expenses of its organization, activities, operations and meetings, including without limitation: (i) costs and expenses directly related to the discovery, investigation, development, making, management, monitoring and disposition of investments; (ii) fees and expenses of administrators, custodians, economists, consultants, outside counsel and accountants; (iii) the costs of insurance; (iv) any taxes, fees or other governmental charges levied against the ACON LatAm Management Fund; (v) costs and expenses of the ACON LatAm Management Fund's advisory committee and any firm retained to determine the fair market value of unrealized portfolio investments; (vi) interest on and fees and expenses arising out of all borrowings, including the arrangement thereof; (vii) fees and expenses incurred in connection with any audit investigation, governmental inquiry or public relations undertaking; and (viii) costs and expenses of any litigation relating to the activities or operations of the ACON LatAm Management Fund, the amount of any judgments or settlements paid in connection therewith and any other indemnification or other expenses or liabilities related to the affairs of the ACON LatAm Management Fund.

Each ACON LatAm Management Fund pays the costs incurred in connection with the organization of the ACON LatAm Management Fund (including fees and expenses of counsel, the ACON LatAm Management Fund and its general partners, travel, accommodations and related expenses of personnel of the general partner and other direct costs) up to a certain amount, as specified in each ACON LatAm Management Fund's partnership agreement.

- D. The Management Fee is generally due semi-annually in advance. In the event ACON LatAm does not provide services for the full semi-annual period, the Management Fee is typically required to be returned to the investors in the ACON LatAm Management Fund. In general, the amount of fees returned is calculated based on the number of days remaining in the applicable period.
- E. Neither ACON LatAm nor any of its supervised persons accepts compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products, including asset-based sales charges or service fees from the sale of mutual funds.

Item 6- Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

The general partner of each ACON LatAm Management Fund charges a performance-based fee (referred to as "carried interest"). Each ACON LatAm Management Fund's general partner may, in its sole discretion, waive or reduce an investor's obligation to pay carried interest and/or may amend the preferred rate of return earned by an investor. Such variation in charges could create an incentive to favor investors that pay the highest carried interest fee (and/or the lowest preferred rate of return) over those whose fees have been waived or amended. Each ACON LatAm Management Fund's governing documents set forth specific procedures designed to ensure that investors are treated fairly and to prevent this conflict from unduly influencing the allocation of investment opportunities among them.

In addition, the carried interest may create an incentive for each general partner to make riskier or more speculative investments on behalf of its ACON LatAm Management Fund than it would otherwise make in the absence of such performance-based arrangements. However, the principals of ACON LatAm have invested substantial personal capital, directly and indirectly, in the ACON LatAm Management Funds, which may serve to reduce this incentive.

Finally, if distributions are made in kind, the amount of any such distributions will be accounted for at the fair market value of the distributed property and determined in accordance with the procedures specified in the ACON LatAm Management Fund's governing documents. The amounts that an investor in the ACON LatAm Management Fund ultimately realizes from amounts distributed in kind may be less than the fair value determined at the time of the distribution from the ACON LatAm Management Fund. Because the general partner receives carried interest distributions based upon the fair value of amounts distributed to investors, there could be an incentive for the general partner to make distributions in kind rather than liquidating an investment and distributing the net proceeds to the ACON LatAm Management Fund investors. Each ACON LatAm Management Fund's governing documents have specific procedures surrounding the distributions in kind, including their valuation, that serve to reduce this potential incentive.

Item 7- Types of Clients

ACON LatAm provides investment advice to the ACON LatAm Management Funds. Investment advice is provided directly to the ACON LatAm Management Funds, subject to the direction and control of the general partner of each such ACON LatAm Management Fund, and not individually to the limited partners of such ACON LatAm Management Funds.

The ACON LatAm Management Funds are pooled investment vehicles formed under domestic laws and operated as exempt investment pools under the Investment Company Act. The investors participating in private investment funds may include high net worth individuals, banks or thrift institutions, other investment entities, pension and profit-sharing plans, trusts, estates or charitable organizations or other corporations or business entities and may include, directly or indirectly, principals or other employees of ACON LatAm and its affiliates.

Minimum investment commitments may be established for limited partners in ACON LatAm Management Funds. The general partner of each ACON LatAm Management Fund, in its sole discretion, may permit investments that are less than the required minimum investment commitment set forth in the applicable fund documents of such ACON LatAm Management Fund.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

- A. The investment strategy of ACON LatAm and each ACON LatAm Management Fund's general partner is to seek to increase the value of, and to find desirable exit opportunities for, the investments made on behalf of each ACON LatAm Management Fund. This strategy may involve the use of information generated by individuals or entities not affiliated with ACON LatAm or its affiliates. Sources of such information include, but are not limited to, research provided by institutions and the brokerage community, internally and externally generated analysis of potential opportunities, specialized consultants, industry experts, and industry and trade publications, as well as direct contact with management of potential portfolio companies and related due diligence.

The Adviser's investment strategy begins by identifying middle-market companies in which it can generally invest $10 to $150 million of capital in the form of buyouts as well as capital for expansion, acquisition, restructuring, or debt refinancing. ACON LatAm Management Funds seek private investments in companies that operate mainly within the within the countries of Latin America including but not limited to Brazil, Mexico, Colombia, Peru and Chile (the "Target Countries"). ACON LatAm seeks to structure capital to each individual investment in order to meet the specific needs of a given opportunity and the company's specific business plan. ACON LatAm seeks to become an active participant in guiding the growth of the ACON LatAm Management Fund's portfolio companies through its role as owners and board members or through shareholder rights negotiated concurrent with an investment. The Adviser's industry experience and broad affiliate network allows its managers to draw on a diverse set of strategic, financial and industry-specific resources.

ACON LatAm focuses on investment opportunities primarily in the Target Countries with a focus on both capital appreciation and current income. The Adviser's understanding of industry trends, regulatory mandates and changes, international trade opportunities, and demographic indicators help it to identify prospects that allow maximum value for its investors.

The Adviser believes its close work with proven partners and management teams drives performance improvement and unlocks shareholder value. The Adviser is committed to actively overseeing each portfolio company by helping its management develop and execute strategic initiatives; launch and integrate subsequent acquisitions; arrange for debt and/or equity financings; recruit additional management resources; and generate liquidity opportunities in public and/or private markets.

ACON LatAm generally follows an investment process which seeks to: (i) generate a continuous flow of quality, proprietary deal leads; (ii) subject potential transactions to a multi-stage screening process with certain hurdles at each stage; (iii) institute the appropriate controls and monitoring mechanisms to facilitate the ability of the ACON LatAm's professionals to add value to portfolio companies; and (iv) maximize the value of investments upon exit.

An investment in any ACON LatAm Management Fund involves a high degree of risk and, therefore, should be undertaken only by investors who have the financial sophistication and expertise to evaluate the merits and risks of an investment in the ACON LatAm Management Fund and for which the ACON LatAm Management Fund does not represent a complete investment program. There can be no assurances any ACON LatAm Management Fund will meet its investment objectives or otherwise be able to carry out its investment program successfully or that an investor will receive a return of its capital contributed to the ACON LatAm Management Fund. In addition, there can be no assurance that any ACON LatAm Management Fund will be able to generate returns for investors or that returns will be commensurate with the risks of the ACON LatAm Management Fund's investments. An investment in any ACON LatAm Management Fund should only be made by persons that can afford a loss of their entire investment.

- B. ACON LatAm Management Funds seek private investments in the Target Countries. Certain of the risks related to this investment strategy are summarized below. However, prospective investors should carefully consider all of the risks related to investing in the ACON LatAm Management Fund that are set forth in the private placement or other offering document for that particular ACON LatAm Management Fund, including those discussed in Item 8.C. below.

In addition, an ACON LatAm Management Fund may use special purpose entities formed for the sole purpose of investment in a single asset. As such, a single asset investment may involve risks greater than those generally associated with more diversified funds, including significant fluctuations in returns. In addition, a single asset investment may be concentrated in a country that contains greater economic, political, and regulatory risk than a more diversified set of assets.

- C. There are significant risks and potential conflicts of interest in investing in private securities issued by middle market companies as well as in companies that operate within the countries of Latin America. Certain of these risks and potential conflicts of interest are summarized below. However, prospective investors should carefully consider all of the risks related to investing in an ACON LatAm Management Fund that are set forth in the private placement memorandum or other offering document for that particular ACON LatAm Management Fund.

Investment Strategy Risks

Investments in diverse jurisdictions. The value of ACON LatAm Management Fund's assets may be affected by changes in the legal, administrative and regulatory climates in the Target Countries. Any such changes or developments may affect the value and marketability of ACON LatAm Management Fund's investments. Many emerging market countries often have less developed legal frameworks than are commonly found in developed countries. The laws and regulation of certain jurisdictions may impose restrictions that would not exist in the U.S. and Europe and investments in such countries may require significant government approvals under corporate, securities, exchange control, foreign investment and other similar laws and may require financing and structuring alternatives that differ significantly from those customarily used in the U.S. and Europe. Certain countries (i) require governmental approval prior to investments by foreign persons and (ii) limit the amount of investment by foreign persons in a particular company. Certain countries may restrict investment opportunities in issuers or industries deemed important to national interests. In addition, some governments from time to time impose restrictions intended to prevent capital flight that may, for example, require governmental approval for the repatriation of investment income or involve punitive taxation (including high withholding taxes) on certain securities transfers or the imposition of exchange controls making it difficult or impossible to exchange or repatriate the local currency. In addition, the repatriation of currency and other restrictions may make it impracticable for an ACON LatAm Management Fund to distribute the full amount of a limited partner's capital accounts in U.S. dollars, and therefore a portion of the distribution may be made in non-U.S. securities or currency.

Special risks. The ACON LatAm Management Funds plans to invest in the Target Countries, which may expose the ACON LatAm Management Funds and their investments to certain risks, including: (i) political, social or economic instability, (ii) the unpredictability of international trade patterns, (iii) the possibility of foreign governmental actions such as expropriation, nationalization or confiscatory taxation without fair compensation, (iv) the imposition or modification of currency controls, (v) price volatility, (vi) the imposition of withholding taxes on dividends, interest and gains and (vii) different bankruptcy laws and practice. Also, it may be more difficult to obtain and enforce legal judgments against entities in the Target Countries.

Currency exchange risk. Capital contributions to ACON LatAm Management Funds are payable in U.S. dollars and the ACON LatAm Management Funds assets will be valued in U.S. dollars. A portion of the ACON LatAm Management Funds' investments may be denominated in currencies other than the U.S. dollar, and hence the value of such investments will depend in part on the relative strength of the U.S. dollar. The ACON LatAm Management Funds may be affected favorably or unfavorably by exchange control regulations or changes in the exchange rate between foreign currencies and the U.S. dollar, as well as the transaction costs associated with converting foreign currencies into U.S. dollars. Changes in foreign currency exchange rates may also affect the value of dividends and interest earned, and the level of gains and losses realized on the sale of such investments. The ACON LatAm Management Funds may, but are not required to, engage in currency hedging. The ACON LatAm Management Funds may benefit from the use of such currency hedging mechanisms; however, such mechanisms may result in losses for the ACON LatAm Management Funds and an overall poorer performance than if it had not entered into such currency hedging transactions. Additionally, there can be no assurance as to the success of any hedging arrangements that the ACON LatAm Management Funds may implement, and there can be no assurance that adequate hedging arrangements will be available on an economically viable basis.

Inflation. Some of the Target Countries have experienced substantial rates of inflation in recent years. Inflation and rapid fluctuations in inflation rates have had, and may continue to have, negative effects on the economics and securities markets of such Target Country economies. There can be no assurance that inflation will not become a serious problem in the future and thus have an adverse impact on the ACON LatAm Management Funds' returns.

Legal risks in the Target Countries. The ACON LatAm Management Funds may be required to register, and may be subject to regulation, in certain Latin America countries in which it makes an investment. Many of the laws that govern private foreign investments, securities transactions, intellectual property rights, creditors' rights and other contractual relationships in the Target Countries are new and largely untested. As a result, the ACON LatAm Management Funds may be subject to a number of unusual risks, including inadequate investor protections, contradictory legislation, incomplete, unclear, inconsistent and changing laws, ignorance or breaches of regulations on the part of other market participants, lack of standard practices and confidentiality customs standard of developed markets, a high degree of discretion on the part of governmental authorities and lack of enforcement of existing regulations. The ACON LatAm Management Funds may also be subject to an understaffed, underfunded judiciary whose immunity from economic, political and nationalistic influences remains uncertain. Judges and courts may be inexperienced in business and corporate law and enforcement of court judgments can be selective and practically very difficult. Furthermore, it may be difficult to obtain and enforce a judgment in regional courts, and a judgment obtained in court from an arbitral panel may not be given direct effect by regional courts. There can be no assurance that this difficulty in protecting and enforcing rights will not have a material adverse effect on the ACON LatAm Management Funds and their operations.

Issuer selection and issuer-specific risks. In implementing its investment strategy, the Adviser will focus on identifying investments in the securities of companies that have significant issuer-specific risks as a result of business, financial, market or legal uncertainties, including companies that require operational improvements or restructuring. Changes to the financial condition or outlook of these issuers may cause the value of these investments to be volatile.

Availability of investment opportunities and diversification. The business of identifying and structuring private equity investments is highly competitive and involves a high degree of uncertainty. It is possible that any ACON LatAm Management Fund will never be fully invested if enough sufficiently attractive investments are not identified or consummated during that ACON LatAm Management Fund's commitment period. In addition, an ACON LatAm Management Fund may participate in a limited number of investments and, as a consequence, the aggregate return of that ACON LatAm Management Fund may be substantially adversely affected by the unfavorable performance of even a single investment.

Long-term nature of interests and the Fund's investments. While an ACON LatAm Management Fund's investments may generate some current income, the return of capital and the realization of gains, if any, from an investment will occur only upon the partial or complete disposition of such investment. Investments in portfolio companies typically will not be liquidated for a number of years after the initial investment, and it is unlikely that any ACON LatAm Management Fund will realize substantial capital gains during its early years. An ACON LatAm Management Fund may invest in investments that unexpectedly cannot be realized in an orderly fashion until after the date on which the ACON LatAm Management Fund is scheduled to terminate. Although it is the expectation of the general partner that all investments will be disposed of prior to the end of an ACON LatAm Management Fund's term, the ACON LatAm Management Fund may have to sell or otherwise dispose of investments on disadvantageous terms as a result of the ACON LatAm Management Fund's termination, or distribute such investments in kind.

Leverage. To the extent that an ACON LatAm Management Fund invests in a company with a leveraged capital structure, its investment will be subject to increased exposure to adverse factors such as a significant rise in interest rates, a severe downturn in the economy or deterioration in the condition of the company or its industry. To the extent that a company is unable to generate sufficient cash flow to meet obligations under its indebtedness, the value of the ACON LatAm Management Fund's investment could be significantly reduced or even eliminated.

Controlling interests. Although it is the intention of the general partner to structure investments to avoid liability for any ACON LatAm Management Fund, because of its equity ownership, representation on the board of directors and/or contractual rights, an ACON LatAm Management Fund may often be considered to control, participate in the management of or influence the conduct of portfolio companies. This could expose the assets of the ACON LatAm Management Fund to claims by a portfolio company, its other security holders, its creditors or governmental agencies, which may exceed the value of the ACON LatAm Management Fund's initial investment in that portfolio company.

Investment in joint-ventures and other entities. An ACON LatAm Management Fund may co-invest with third parties through partnerships and/or make investments through joint ventures or other entities. Such investments may involve risks not present in direct investments, including, for example, the outcomes of collaborative decision-making varying (adversely) from those which the general partner would have reached itself, and the possibility that a co-venturer or partner might become bankrupt, or might have interests, objectives, rights or remedies that are different from or may conflict with those of the ACON LatAm Management Fund. Furthermore, if such co-venturer or partner defaults on its funding obligations, it may be difficult for the ACON LatAm Management Fund to make up the shortfall. The ACON LatAm Management Fund may be required to make additional contributions to replace such shortfall, reducing the diversification of the Fund's investments. The ACON LatAm Management Fund may also be liable for the conduct of its co-venturers or partners. In addition, in negotiating an investment through joint ventures or other similar arrangements, the ACON LatAm Management Fund may have to agree to less favorable terms (e.g., bearing a disproportionate share of expenses) than might be present in direct investments.

Transactions with Portfolio Companies and Conflicts of Interest. As described in Item 5, ACON LatAm and its related persons may receive, from prospective portfolio companies, actual portfolio companies or their respective affiliates, monitoring fees, organization fees, set-up fees, financial advisory fees, transaction fees and other similar fees. Certain of these fees may not be established on an arm's-length basis and may adversely impact the performance of the relevant portfolio companies. Moreover, because the limited partners will receive a benefit from such fees only to the extent set forth in the partnership agreement, such fees may create an incentive for the ACON LatAm Management Fund's general partner and its affiliates to approve and cause the ACON LatAm Management Fund to make more speculative investments than it would otherwise make in the absence of such compensation.

Conflicts of interest will also arise in situations where an ACON LatAm Management Fund (i) makes an equity or other subordinated investment in a portfolio company that has issued or is issuing a senior mezzanine or debt security to an portfolio company of an affiliated fund (a "Legacy Investment") or (ii) purchases securities, the proceeds of which are used to repay a loan to the portfolio company from a Legacy Investment. Conflicts will also arise in connection with any purchase or sale of a portfolio company, or assets or businesses held by a portfolio company, from or to a Legacy Investment, including with respect to the amount of consideration paid by or to, and the obligations and rights of, such Legacy Investment. If a portfolio company in which the ACON LatAm Management Fund and a Legacy Investment hold different classes of securities encounters financial problems, decisions over the terms of any workout will raise conflicts of interest (including conflicts over proposed waivers and amendments to debt covenants).

Conflicts with portfolio companies. Officers and employees of the general partner and its affiliates will serve as directors of certain portfolio companies and, in that capacity will be required to make decisions that consider the best interests of the portfolio company. In certain circumstances, for example in situations involving bankruptcy or near-insolvency of a portfolio company, actions that may be in the best interest of that portfolio company may not be in the best interests of the ACON LatAm Management Fund, and vice versa. Accordingly, in these situations, there will be conflicts of interests between such individual's duties as an officer or employee of the general partner or its affiliates and such individual's duties as a director of a portfolio company.

Material non-public information. By reason of their responsibilities in connection with their other activities, certain of the ACON LatAm Management Fund's partners may acquire confidential or material non-public information or be otherwise restricted from initiating transactions in certain securities. The ACON LatAm Management Fund will not be free to act upon any such information. Due to these restrictions, the ACON LatAm Management Fund may not be able to initiate a transaction that it otherwise might have initiated and may not be able to sell an investment that it otherwise might have sold.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

ACON LatAm is required to disclose any legal or disciplinary events that are material to a client's or prospective client's evaluation of ACON LatAm or the integrity of its management. ACON LatAm does not have any disclosure applicable to this item to report.

Item 10- Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

- A. Neither ACON LatAm nor any of its management persons are registered, or have an application pending to register, as a broker-dealer or a registered representative of a broker-dealer.
- B. Neither ACON LatAm nor any of its management persons are registered, or have an application pending to register, as a futures commission merchant, commodity pool operator, a commodity trading advisor, or an associated person of the foregoing entities.
- C. Some of the Principals, officers, chief compliance officer, employees and/or consultants of ACON LatAm serve in similar capacities for the general partner (or similar managing body) of the ACON LatAm Management Funds, ACON Equity Management, L.L.C. (“ACON Equity”), ACON Funds Management, L.L.C. (“AFM”) or other affiliates.

ACON LatAm, AFM, ACON Equity and ACON Investments Management, L.L.C. (“AIM”) are affiliates and each is an investment adviser. ACON LatAm, AFM, ACON Equity, and AIM and other affiliates, including the general partner (or similar managing body) of each entity, share certain employees and officers, and ACON Investments, L.L.C., a service affiliate, provides certain administrative services under a services agreement to ACON LatAm, AFM, ACON Equity and AIM, including the payment of payroll, benefits and overhead costs related to the shared employees and facilities. ACON LatAm may also subcontract the provision of certain services to affiliates that operate in the Target Countries, the employees of which are considered supervised persons.

- D. ACON LatAm does not recommend or select other investment advisors for the ACON LatAm Management Funds. However, it may, as described in Item 10.C., sub-contract certain services to its affiliates.

Item 11 - Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

- A. ACON LatAm and its affiliates have adopted a Code of Ethics (the “Code”) to ensure that ACON LatAm fulfills its fiduciary requirements to the ACON LatAm Management Funds and to address and avoid potential conflicts of interest which exist when providing advisory services to the ACON LatAm Management Funds. The Code requires that personnel of ACON LatAm comply with all applicable provisions of federal securities laws. The Code includes policies and procedures related to the disclosure and pre-clearance of certain trading activity. The policy also addresses confidentiality and insider trading and expressly prohibits personnel from disseminating material nonpublic information or using such information inappropriately for the benefit of any party. Personnel are required to provide written certification as to their compliance with the Code on an annual basis.

ACON LatAm will provide a copy of its Code of Ethics to any client or prospective client upon request by contacting the Chief Compliance Officer, Barry E. Johnson; 202-454-1100 x135.

- B. From time to time, consistent with each ACON LatAm Management Fund's investment objectives and subject to satisfaction of the policies and procedures set forth in the Code, the ACON LatAm Management Fund's governing documents and applicable law, ACON LatAm may recommend that the ACON LatAm Management Fund acquire or sell securities in which an ACON LatAm related or affiliated person has a pre-existing direct or indirect interest, and an affiliate of ACON LatAm may cause the ACON LatAm Management Fund to effect the recommended transaction. A potential conflict of interest could arise in that the interested ACON LatAm related person could benefit from such a purchase or sale of the applicable security by the ACON LatAm Management Fund. However, the Code is designed to identify and manage conflicts of interest to the extent they arise in connection with such transactions, and to ensure that ACON LatAm fulfills its role as a fiduciary to the ACON LatAm Management Funds. In particular, the Code requires that ACON LatAm act in the best interests of the ACON LatAm Management Funds, in good faith and in an ethical manner. Certain terms of each ACON LatAm Management Fund's governing documents and the equity participation of ACON LatAm related persons in the ACON LatAm Management Fund further mitigate such conflicts, including the need for approval by the ACON LatAm Management Fund's Limited Partner Committee in certain circumstances.
- C. From time to time, subject to satisfaction of the policies and procedures set forth in the Code, the ACON LatAm Management Fund's governing documents and applicable laws, an ACON LatAm related person may acquire or sell securities that are recommended to the ACON LatAm Management Fund or in which the ACON LatAm Management Fund has a pre-existing direct or indirect interest. A potential conflict of interest could arise in that the interested ACON LatAm related person or affiliate could benefit from the ACON LatAm Management Fund's ownership of, or subsequent sale of, the applicable security. However, the Code is designed to identify and manage conflicts of interest to the extent they arise in connection with the personal securities transactions and other investment activities of ACON LatAm related persons, and to ensure that the Firm fulfills its role as a fiduciary to the ACON LatAm Management Fund. In particular, the Code requires that ACON LatAm related persons abide by policies in procedures in connection with their personal securities trading activities, and such activities are monitored under the Code to ensure compliance with such policies and procedures.
- D. From time to time, in appropriate circumstances and subject to satisfaction of the policies and procedures set forth in the Code and each Partnership's governing documents, ACON LatAm personnel and other related persons or affiliates may co-invest in the ACON LatAm Management Fund investments at the same time as and on a side-by-side basis with the ACON LatAm Management Fund's limited partners and other investors. ACON LatAm does not believe that this common industry practice gives rise to a material conflict of interest, and that any potential conflicts of interest are addressed by the Code and the ACON LatAm Management Fund's governing documents.

Item 12 - Brokerage Practices

- A. ACON LatAm primarily invests in private securities and does not regularly engage in high volume trading of public securities. Accordingly, ACON LatAm is generally not in a position to select a broker-dealer for any ACON LatAm Management Fund's transactions.

ACON LatAm may distribute securities to investors in an ACON LatAm Management Fund or sell such securities, including through using a broker-dealer if a public trading market exists.
