Item 4 - Advisory Business

- A. The Adviser is an investment advisory firm located in Massachusetts that specializes in making private equity investments in the upstream and midstream oil and gas sectors as well as making investments in working interests in oil and gas projects. The Adviser provides investment advisory services on a discretionary basis to institutional investors (each, a “Client”, and together, the “Clients”).

The Adviser was formed in 2013 by Messrs. Daniel Rioux, Sean O’Neill, Gregory Morzano, and Scott Carson, the principals of the Adviser (the “Principals”). The Principals are the equity owners of the Adviser.

- B. Investment advisory services include working with the Client to establish an investment objective and selecting portfolio investments utilizing the Adviser’s overall investment strategy, which focuses on making private equity investments in the upstream and midstream oil and gas sectors and making investments in working interests in oil and gas projects. Each Client portfolio is managed pursuant to an investment management agreement with the Client, any investment guidelines attached thereto, the Client’s investment policy, and any applicable regulations.
- C. While each of its Clients generally follows the strategy stated above, the Adviser may tailor the specific advisory services with respect to each Client on the individual investment strategy of each Client.
- D. The Adviser does not participate in wrap fee programs.
- E. As of December 4, 2013, the Adviser managed approximately $2,256,839,666 in discretionary and non-discretionary portfolios.

Item 5 - Fees and Compensation

- A. Below is a discussion of how the Adviser is compensated in connection with providing advisory services to its Clients. The Adviser may enter into different fee arrangements on a Client by Client basis.

Management Fees. For its services to each Client, the Adviser is entitled to a management fee (the “Management Fee”) based on a percentage of assets under management. The annual Management Fee for each Client will be negotiated with each such Client. The Management Fee is calculated and billed on a quarterly basis.

Performance Fees. Client accounts may be charged a performance fee based on net profits (the “Performance Fee”). The annual Performance Fee for each Client will be negotiated with each such Client. The Performance Fee will be calculated and billed periodically.

Lower fees for comparable services may be available from other sources.

- B. Management Fees and Performance Fees are generally billed directly to Clients and the fees paid by the Client’s custodian on the approval of the Client.
- C. Client accounts may be subject to other third party fees and/or expenses, which may vary based on the amount of assets managed and the types of investments in the Client’s account. These fees may include certain custodial fees and transaction fees.

The Adviser does not maintain any trading accounts and does not use “soft” dollars.

Please refer to Item 12, Brokerage Practices, for more information.

- D. As stated above, Management Fees are payable quarterly. The Adviser will refund any pre-paid Management Fees by a Client if the advisory contract with such Client is terminated before the end of the billing period. Management Fee refunds are calculated on a pro-rata basis for partial periods.
- E. Other than as described above, neither the Adviser nor any of its supervised persons receives any compensation from the sale of securities or other investment products.

Item 6 - Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

As stated in Item 5 above, the Adviser or its affiliates receive performance-based fees or allocations from certain Clients. These payments are subject to Section 205(a)(1) of the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, as amended (the “Advisers Act”), in accordance with the available exemptions thereunder, including the exemption set forth in Rule 205-3.

Performance-based fees, in general, may create an incentive for an adviser or its supervised persons to make investments that are riskier and more speculative than would be the case in the absence of a performance-based fee. Such fee arrangements may also create an incentive to favor higher fee paying clients over other clients in the allocation of investment opportunities. To address these conflicts of interest, the Adviser has implemented policies and procedures to ensure that all Clients receive equitable and fair treatment over time with respect to the allocation of investment opportunities.

Item 7 - Types of Clients

The Adviser provides investment advisory services only to institutional advisory clients.

Item 8 - Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

A. Introduction

The Adviser's primary investment objective is to pursue investment opportunities that possess potential for significant upside. The Adviser seeks to do this through leveraging its Principals' proprietary network and vast industry knowledge to identify and source opportunities for its Clients to make investments in (i) private equity investments in the upstream and midstream oil and gas sectors and (ii) working interests in oil and gas projects.

Private Equity Investments

The Adviser seeks to make privately negotiated equity or equity-related investments in private companies in the upstream and midstream oil and gas sectors, including companies involved in the exploration and production of oil and gas as well as the transportation of oil and gas from wellhead to pipeline.

The consideration of portfolio investment opportunity begins with the assessment of the company's management team. The Adviser seeks to partner with superior management teams that show operational capabilities and an expertise in specific geography or geological formations and will continuously evaluate management capabilities over time, including their ability to exploit competitive advantage and create incremental value for the company.

In considering an opportunity, the Adviser also considers whether there is opportunity for active involvement by the Adviser in strategic and asset development so that the Adviser can mitigate risk and maximize value for Client portfolios through providing management teams with market intelligence, additional transactional opportunities, and access to operational best practices.

The Adviser also seeks to leverage the transactional experience and industry knowledge of its Principals to identify and mitigate risk factors with respect to Client portfolio investments by (i) structuring investments to develop flexible deal terms and quickly evaluate transactions opportunities; (ii) leverage industry networks and knowledge to continually assess portfolio investments; and (iii) time exits to maximize investments by analyzing each company's development risk and overall market conditions.

Working Interest Investments

The Adviser intends to implement a process of disciplined and opportunistic acquisition of oil and gas, aggressive property development and management, cost reductions and strategic asset divestitures. In addition, the Adviser will seek to acquire properties with proved reserves possessing significant development potential. The Adviser will seek to build diversified energy portfolios that reflect a balanced product distribution with oil, natural gas and natural gas liquids. The goal of this investment focus is to provide a current return from the producing reserves, while establishing further economic upside from the development of the non-producing component.

The Adviser will focus primarily on asset transactions with proved and probable oil and gas reserves in North America with development upside. In particular, the Adviser invests in properties with superior operators. The Adviser will seek to pursue opportunistic transactions that present significant upside potential and are consistent with a particular Client's investment objective and the Adviser's overall investment philosophy.

- B. The Adviser's investment strategy focuses on private equity transactions and working interest investments which involve high degree of business and financial risk that can result in substantial losses and is suitable only for investors prepared to bear such risk. The risk factors below are not intended to be exhaustive.

Business Risks; Nature of Investments. A Client's investment portfolio consists primarily of interests in privately held assets, and operating results in a specified period are difficult to predict. Such investments involve a high degree of business and financial risk that can result in substantial losses. The investments made by the Adviser are speculative in nature and the possibility of partial or total loss of capital exists.

Future and Past Performance. The prior performance of the Principals is not necessarily indicative of the Adviser's future results. While the Adviser intends for each Client to make investments that have estimated returns commensurate with the risks undertaken, there can be no assurances that the targeted internal rate of return will be achieved. On any given investment, loss of principal is possible.

Concentration of Investments. A Client's portfolio may participate in a limited number of investments and intends to make its investments in the oil and gas sector. As a result, the Adviser's strategy does not provide Clients with the diversity available through the ownership of interests in other entities that invest in different types of businesses. Further, oil and gas-related investments tend to be long-term and are generally difficult to liquidate, particularly in a short period of time. Therefore, it may be difficult for the Adviser to respond quickly to changing conditions or to liquidate its assets quickly.

Difficulty of Locating Suitable Investments. The activity of identifying, completing and realizing on appropriate investments is highly competitive and involves a high degree of uncertainty. The Adviser is competing for investments with other investors, including individual investors, other partnerships, institutional investors and publicly held oil and gas companies. In general, the availability of desirable investment opportunities and the Adviser's investment returns are affected by conditions in the financial markets and general economic conditions. There can be no assurance that the Adviser will be able to locate and complete investments that satisfy a Client's investment criteria and rate of return objectives or realize upon their values.

Limited Information; Accuracy of Information. In certain circumstances, the Adviser may not receive access to all available information to determine fully the manner in which the investments have been operated. Further, the Adviser may select investments for a Client, in part, on the basis of information and data made available to the Adviser by third parties. Although the Adviser evaluates all such information and data and ordinarily seeks independent corroboration when the Adviser considers it is appropriate and when such corroboration is reasonably available, the Adviser may not be in a position to confirm the completeness, genuineness or accuracy of such information and data, and in some cases, complete and accurate information may not be available.

Leveraged Instruments. The Adviser may make use of leverage by incurring debt to finance a portion of a Client's investment in a given asset. Leverage generally magnifies both a Client's opportunities for gain and its risk of loss from a particular investment. The use of leverage may increase the exposure of investments to adverse economic factors such as rising interest rates and severe economic downturns. The cost and availability of leverage is highly dependent on the state of the broader credit markets, which state is difficult to accurately forecast. During times when credit markets are tight, it may be difficult to obtain or maintain the desired degree of leverage. The failure to obtain leverage at the contemplated advance rates, pricing and other terms could have a material adverse effect on a Client.

Reliance on the Adviser. A Client account's future profitability depends largely upon the business and investment acumen of the Adviser and the Principals. The loss of service of one or more of the Principals could have an adverse effect on the Adviser's ability to realize its investment objectives.

Projections. Projected operating results of an entity in which the Adviser invests normally are based primarily on financial projections prepared by parties other than the Adviser. In all cases, projections are only estimates of future results that are based upon information received from such third parties and assumptions made at the time the projections are developed. There can be no assurance that the results set forth in the projections will be attained, and actual results may be significantly different from the projections.

Follow-On Investments. Following its initial investment in a given asset, the Adviser may provide additional funds to such asset or may have the opportunity to increase its investment in a successful asset. There is no assurance that the Adviser will make follow-on investments or that a Client account will have sufficient funds to make all or any of such investments. Any decision by the Adviser not to make follow-on investments or its inability to make such investments may have a substantial negative effect on an asset in need of such an investment or may result in a lost opportunity for a Client to increase its participation in a successful operation.

Hedging Policies/Risks. The Adviser may employ hedging techniques designed to protect a Client against adverse movements in interest rates and other risks. While such transactions may reduce certain risks, the transactions themselves may entail certain other risks. Thus, while a Client may benefit from the use of these hedging mechanisms, unanticipated changes in commodity prices, interest rates or other factors may result in a poorer overall performance for the Client than if it had not entered into such hedging transactions.

Risks Related to Private Oil and Gas Companies and Projects. The companies and projects in the energy industry in which the Adviser invests are inherently subject to numerous risks arising from their operations. For example, companies involved in the production of oil and natural gas face risks that include, without limitation: (i) the uncertainty of estimating hydrocarbon reserves and their value; (ii) the risks of conducting drilling operations (including risks of substantial losses to properties, bodily injury and environmental damage arising from operations that do not proceed as planned and the risk of failing to find commercially productive reserves); (iii) risks associated with the marketing of hydrocarbon production; (iv) risks of compliance with increasingly burdensome environmental regulations and other regulations governing the production of natural resources; (v) geopolitical risks associated with governments who play significant roles in the production and distribution of natural resources; and (vi) risks of catastrophic and other force majeure events.

Risks Related to Oil and Gas Development. Exploration, drilling, and development of oil and gas properties are not exact sciences and involve a high degree of risk. There is no assurance that the Adviser's activities in the oil and gas industry will yield sufficient oil or gas production or other operating revenues that will be profitable for Clients. During the drilling and completion of any oil or gas wells in which the Adviser participates, the Adviser could encounter hazards including unusual or unexpected formations, high formation, pressures or other conditions, blow-outs, fires, failure of equipment, and downhole collapses. There can be no assurance that in the event of such problems that the Adviser will have sufficient funds to solve such problems.

Importance of Future Prices, Supply and Demand for Oil and Gas. Revenues generated from production activities in the oil and gas industry will be highly dependent on the future prices and demand for oil and gas. Factors which may affect prices and demand for oil and gas include, without limitation: (i) the worldwide supply of oil and gas; (ii) the price of oil and gas produced in the United States or imported from foreign countries; (iii) consumer demand for oil and gas; (iv) the price and availability of alternative fuels; (v) federal and state regulation; and (vi) national and worldwide economic and political conditions.

C. See Section 8.B. above.

Item 9 - Disciplinary Information

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of the adviser or the integrity of adviser's management.

There are no legal or disciplinary events that are material to an evaluation of the Adviser's advisory services or the integrity of management.

Item 11 - Code of Ethics, Participation or Interest in Client Transactions and Personal Trading

- A. The Adviser has adopted a written Code of Ethics (the “Code”) designed to address and avoid potential conflicts of interest as required under Rule 204A-1 under the Advisers Act. The Code sets forth a standard of business conduct and compliance with federal securities laws by all of the Adviser's employees. The Code contains policies and procedures that ensure that all personal securities trading by employees of the Adviser is conducted in such a manner as to avoid actual or potential conflicts of interest or any abuse of an individual's position of trust and responsibility. The Adviser prohibits personal trading on certain securities or instruments; requires pre-clearance of personal trades in certain circumstances, including purchases of an IPO or a new private placement; requires periodic reporting of employees' personal securities transactions and holdings; and requires prompt internal reporting of Code violations.

As part of its Code, the Adviser has established procedures to prevent the abuse of material, non-public information, which includes procedures for, among other things, the use and maintenance of restricted trading lists. Because the structure of the Adviser would make information barriers impractical, the firm has not imposed information barriers to restrict the internal flow of possible material, non-public information. Thus, all professionals are deemed to be in receipt of material, non-public information, in all instances where any professional of the Adviser has received material, non- public information, and, therefore, may not trade on the basis of that information.

The Adviser will provide a copy of the Code to any investor or prospective investor upon request.

- B. Neither the Adviser nor any of its related persons recommend to Clients investments in which the Adviser or any related persons have a material financial interest.
- C. Neither the Adviser nor any of its related persons invest in the same or related securities that either the Adviser or its related persons recommend to Clients.
- D. See Item 13.C. above.

Furthermore, the Adviser does not maintain any trading accounts and does not use "soft" dollars received from broker-dealers from the purchase and sales of securities for its Clients.

Item 17 - Voting Client Securities

The Adviser's investment strategy involves private equity investments in the upstream and midstream oil and gas sectors as well as investments in working interests in oil and gas projects. As a result, the Adviser does not generally hold Clients investments in public equity securities and therefore does not generally receive proxies on behalf of its Clients.
