MATERIAL CHANGES

On July 28, 2010, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission published “Amendments to Form ADV” which amends the requirements of the disclosure document that Pension Consultants provide to clients as required by applicable rules and regulations. This Disclosure Brochure, originally dated March 31, 2011, was a new document prepared according to the new requirements and rules. As such, that document was materially different in structure and required certain new information that our previous Form ADV Part II did not require. This item (Item 2 – Material Changes) discusses only specific material changes that are made to the Disclosure Brochure and provides readers with a summary of such changes.

Since our last brochure, dated March 31, 2013, Richard L. Potter, a Principal and 50% owner of the firm, passed away. His interest in the firm was purchased by Howard H. Pohl.

In the past our firm has offered or delivered information about our qualifications and business practices to clients on at least an annual basis. Pursuant to new rules, we will ensure that you receive a summary of any material changes to this and subsequent Disclosure Brochures within 120 days after our fiscal year end, December 31st. Additionally, we may provide other ongoing disclosure information about material changes as necessary.

Assistance in administration searches, establishment and replacement of fund options, as well as on-going performance evaluation of all investment funds.

TAILORED RELATIONSHIPS

We believe that the circumstances and situations facing each client are unique; therefore we do not have a “one size fits all” approach in dispensing advice and recommendations. We work with each client to understand their needs and tailor our services and advice to meet their specific requirements. As a completely independent firm, our advice is free from conflicts of interest since we do not offer investment products or investment management services.

As a completely non-discretionary consultant that does not manage any assets, our clients or their investment managers always make the final decisions regarding any transactions in their accounts. We work with many clients who maintain investment policy restrictions on asset mix, specific securities, or types of investment structures. We are happy to adapt our advice to comply with any investment restrictions imposed by the client.

Becker, Burke Associates does not participate in wrap fee programs. Becker, Burke Associates does not manage any discretionary or non-discretionary assets.

ITEM 5 - FEES AND OTHER COMPENSATION

FEES

Becker, Burke Associates receives compensation by invoicing clients for consulting services provided. Most clients elect to utilize all of our firm's capabilities and enter into a "full-service" retainer-based relationship. This arrangement entitles the client to receive all of the consulting services as mentioned in the prior section (Advisory Business). Other clients desire only selected services on either a one-time or ongoing basis. In all cases, fees are agreed to in advance and are commensurate with the scope of services to be provided. We negotiate fees in advance of any consulting engagement to reach agreement on a rate satisfactory to all parties.

Becker, Burke Associates invoices clients directly on a quarterly basis for investment consulting services provided. Some clients have elected to have their invoices sent to their custodian and paid directly from plan assets. In these cases, the plan sponsor has authorized such payments based upon standing written instructions to the custodian.

Clients electing "full-service" annual retainer or other on-going relationships are invoiced quarterly in advance. If a client terminates a consulting contract prior to the end of the period for which fees were paid, a pro-rata refund would be issued for the period representing the unused portion. A-la-carte services and projects are invoiced for 50% of the fee at the start of the project and the remainder at the completion of the engagement.

OTHER COMPENSATION

Becker, Burke Associates does not charge, assess, or levy any other fees or expenses to our clients beyond the agreed contractual fee for consulting services provided. We are a completely independent firm which derives 100% of our revenue by providing investment consulting services. We never charge, participate in, or share in any other fees that may result from the implementation of our recommendations. Firms providing custodial, administrative, investment management, mutual fund, brokerage, or other services will charge additional fees to the client for their activities.

Neither Becker, Burke Associates, nor any supervised persons of the firm, accept any compensation for the sale of securities or other investment products. We have no affiliated brokers or agents. We do not charge commissions or markups.

ITEM 6 - PERFORMANCE-BASED FEES AND SIDE-BY-SIDE MANAGEMENT

Becker, Burke Associates does not accept performance-based fees and is not involved with side-by-side management. As such, there are no conflicts of interest.

ITEM 7 - TYPES OF CLIENTS

Becker, Burke Associates provides investment consulting services solely to institutional plan sponsors including retirement systems, endowments, foundations, corporations, and labor unions. We require that all clients have investable assets over $1 million.

ITEM 8 - METHODS OF ANALYSIS, INVESTMENT STRATEGIES AND RISK OF LOSS

METHODS OF ANALYSIS & INVESTMENT STRATEGIES

We view asset allocation as a systematic way to study the probable impacts that various investment policy mixes may have on a diversified portfolio. Our process combines a logical framework, a reasoned evaluation of the various allocation approaches, and a focus on the specific objectives facing the client.

Prior to any analysis, we gather crucial details and review them thoroughly. These details may include the asset-liability characteristics, liability growth rates, actuarial assumptions, and the financial goals that are unique to each client's assets. Pairing our clients' understanding of their funds in terms of risk tolerance and investment horizon, with our knowledge of the key issues involved in developing investment policies, we design the most appropriate solutions based on the objectives our clients seek to achieve. Since virtually all investments involve some potential for loss, we focus on the clients' ability to withstand such losses.

Once the characteristic information and any additional constraints have been considered, we simulate the performance of various asset mixes and determine a set of optimized asset allocations. The asset allocation methodology employed is based on estimated risk/return parameters relying on historic, current and forecasted data, and the use of modern portfolio theory. The current status, consensus view of future return potential, and macro economic risk factors are analyzed to generate a model representing the expected risks and returns of each asset class considered for inclusion in the allocation.

Our recommendations are based on long term risk/reward characteristics compiled using industry-accepted methods and criteria for evaluating a client's investment goals. We do not believe that chasing short term opportunities or "market timing" are methods that add value to institutional assets. The result of this work is to help our clients consider the trade-offs associated with various allocation approaches and to arrive at a consensus on the most appropriate means to accomplish their goals.

INVESTMENT MANAGER SEARCH

We utilize a process, which we refer to as investment manager search, to formulate advice regarding the selection of investment managers. Our investment manager search process has five steps: definition of objectives, development of potential manager candidates, quantitative & qualitative screening, finalist selection & interviews, and manager selection & transition. Outlined below are the procedures followed in each step in the process.

A. DEFINITION OF OBJECTIVES

At the inception of the search, the objectives, expectations, and scope are discussed in detail. In this initial phase, we help develop the client's ideas on the goals for the allocation, identify appropriate minimum requirements as related to organization types, and examine various investment approaches that can be utilized to meet the needs of the fund.

B. DEVELOPMENT OF POTENTIAL MANAGER CANDIDATES

Once objectives are established, Becker, Burke's professionals begin the due diligence process of reviewing potential manager candidates. In this phase we focus on identifying organizations that have a strong commitment to and qualifications for working with the chosen investment discipline. Ultimately we seek to narrow the universe of candidates to a subset suitable for the next level of due diligence. Manager sourcing for this process utilizes three inputs.

1. Investment Manager Research Consulting Data

First is a proprietary database developed by gathering composite data directly from investment managers. Our manager research database includes a comprehensive representation of managers covering all major asset classes. In addition to over one thousand managers that we follow regularly, we have access to information on most other firms in the investment business. The composition of this database is evolving constantly, as new firms emerge and existing firms become less interesting as prospective investment manager candidates. We receive no compensation from managers, directly or indirectly, for inclusion in our database.

2. Performance Measurement Data

Second is a database holding the performance and characteristic information from the custodian portfolio data of over a thousand plan sponsors. Beyond just return and performance information, this database also contains manager specific portfolio characteristics and analytics.

3. Professional Expertise

Third, all Becker, Burke professionals have significant investment consulting experience. Each professional in the firm is active in interviewing managers and performing due diligence analysis. We place a great importance on maintaining a regular dialog with managers' key investment decision makers. We have conducted hundreds of manager searches and devote considerable resources to maintaining our knowledge of the investment management industry.

C. QUALITATIVE & QUANTITATIVE SCREENING

Before considering a manager for inclusion in a search, we review their performance and style characteristics. We meet with managers to understand their investment philosophy, decision making process, and business plans. We evaluate the soundness of their investment approach, consistency in implementation of their philosophy, stability of the organization, evidence of client satisfaction, and value-added performance compared to similar styles. Rather than judging firms simply on their past track records, we look for managers who have demonstrated that they have the skills, resources, and commitment to produce superior performance for our clients in the future. We strongly believe that the strength of the organization and personnel are keys to a manager being positioned to achieve good investment performance in the future.

The list of potential candidate managers is further narrowed based on the considerations discussed above. Formal due diligence questionnaires are sent to the remaining candidates. Using the responses we receive, the candidate universe is further narrowed. Recommended managers are selected based on their qualifications, professional skills, integrity, organizational reputation, fees, and historical track record. Next, written profiles of the selected candidates are prepared. These profiles provide detailed firm and investment information in a format which makes it easy to compare them on the basis of organization, representative client list, investment philosophy, decision process, and historical investment results.

D. FINALIST SELECTION / MANAGER INTERVIEW

In a follow-up meeting with the client, we discuss the list of recommended organizations and their investment products. By responding to a client's questions and concerns, bringing to bear our knowledge of the managers, and utilizing our experience in the selection process, we assist in identifying a sub-group of finalists firms. Once the finalists are selected, we schedule the managers to make formal presentations, briefing each organization on the client's specific objectives and concerns. We participate actively in these interviews to ensure that all issues are addressed and that all the information needed to make a sound decision has been brought to the table.

E. MANAGER SELECTION / TRANSITION

Following the selection, we assist our clients in fee negotiations and in the transfer of assets. Our experience shows that attention to these details may result in cost savings to our clients.

RISK OF LOSS

The asset allocation advice and recommendations provided by Becker, Burke Associates have been developed based on historical performance of the standard asset classes (stocks, bonds, real estate, cash, etc.) and of representative fund products, including ETFs and index funds, as well as concepts of modern portfolio theory. The projected information generated is hypothetical and does not reflect actual investment results and does not guarantee future results.

All investment programs have certain risks that are borne by the investor. Our investment approach constantly keeps the risk of loss in mind. Investors face many risks, the following are primary investment risks:

- Interest-Rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.
- Market Risk: The price of any security may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying circumstances. For example, political, economic and social conditions may trigger market events.
- Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will be worth less than a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.
- Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.
- Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e. interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.
- Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. For example, oil-drilling companies depend on finding oil and then refining it, a lengthy process, before they can generate a profit. They carry a higher risk of profitability than an electric company, which generates its income from a steady stream of customers who buy electricity no matter what the economic environment.

- Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.
- Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a business' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value.

Thus, risk can have many definitions - risk of loss, purchasing power, volatility, liquidity, etc. When developing recommendations, we try to make sure that a client is comfortable with the risks associated with the suggested investment program.

We believe there is a material risk to loss of principal by investing in securities that clients must be prepared to bear. Care must be exercised in selecting investments. We strive to recommend investment options that represent the least risk commensurate with the desired return. Our process strives to eliminate any recommendations or advice that bears significant or unusual risk than could be expected within a given asset class. However, as is often noted, past performance is no guarantee of future results.

OTHER RISK

Becker, Burke Associates recognizes several significant risks to essential business processes through potential and unexpected disruptive events. The increasing development in technology based processes and the related high level of dependence upon these technological processes, in order to conduct our business, has made it necessary to establish and support a contingency planning program to evaluate the impact of such disruptions. To this effect, processes are in place so that all of our central file servers and databases are backed-up off-site permanently on a daily basis. In the event of a serious disaster, operations can resume in a new location after data is reloaded onto new hardware. Since it is impossible to anticipate every type of potential disaster, there can be no assurance that there will be no interruption of Becker, Burke Associate's business functions in all circumstances.

ITEM 9 - DISCIPLINARY INFORMATION

Becker, Burke Associates has never incurred nor do we believe there are any pending legal or disciplinary events material to a client's or prospective client's evaluation of our consulting business or the integrity of management. Further, neither Becker, Burke Associates nor any management person has been named in proceedings, found to be in violation of, or are the subject of any criminal conviction, or civil action regarding our consulting business or any investment related statutes.
