Logia Portfolio Management LLC

Item 4 – Advisory Business

Logia Portfolio Management LLC. (Logia) is registered as an investment adviser with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. (CRD #269963) Logia is based in Kansas and is organized as a Limited Liability Company under the laws of the State of Kansas. The firm was formed in 2015.

Logia's principal office and place of business is located at 15100 Rosewood Street, Leawood, KS 66224. Regular business hours are from 9:00am to 5:00pm Monday through Friday. The firm can be contacted by phone at 844-882-0193.

Sunflower Financial Inc. is the firm's majority owner.

As of February 28, 2017 Logia manages client assets on a discretionary basis of $270,674,424. Logia also manages client assets on a non-discretionary basis of $16,037,231.

SERVICES

Logia operates as a discretionary investment advisor for our clients. As such, we assist with planning, managing, and execution of portfolio management solutions across a broad spectrum of our clients' financial assets.

Planning and Coordination

Logia takes a holistic approach to financial planning, developing strategies and plans that are intended to accomplish the clients' goals with respect to retirement, event, and legacy needs.

Discretionary Services

We will set an investment objective for a client and then assign them to a program. The program will generally define the products that are appropriate for that client and their objective. We will use the program and the client's current situation to construct a portfolio for the client. We will determine and execute transactions on behalf of the client.

Objective Setting

Logia will request, accumulate, and analyze client financial information in order to determine the client's current assets and liabilities. Logia will collect the information needed to determine the client's future cash flow needs. From this and other relevant information, Logia will set an investment objective that is best suited to achieve those goals.

Asset Allocation

Logia will obtain the information necessary to forecast the capital market assumptions it needs to analyze the value of each asset type and asset class. Logia will then quantify risk return trade-offs. The resulting asset allocation will be different for each investment objective. The goal of the process will be to align the allocation and the objective to achieve the cash flow needs of the client.

Logia Portfolio Management LLC

Program Selection

Logia will use both passive and actively managed solutions to fulfill the asset classes determined in the asset allocation process. Logia will develop some of the program solutions and will work with contracted sources for third party programs and products for use in its client solutions.

Manager and Product Selection

Logia will work with contracted sources to assemble managers and / or products that can fulfill a particular client objective. Logia will also analyze managers in combination to see the resulting risk and return metrics of the portfolio. In addition Logia will monitor these risk and performance metrics of the managers and portfolios.

Portfolio Management

Logia will act as the portfolio manager. As the portfolio manager, we will implement the programs and managers described above which may include creating passive or semi-passive portfolios that will be used in conjunction with the Active Managers/Products. We will implement the solutions of third-party managers under the agreements we have with the third-party manager and the client.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

Logia will negotiate and charge fees based upon the client assets that we are asked to manage. These fees will be charged monthly in arrears and will be billed directly to the client.

Logia may also charge a financial planning fee when asked by a client to provide a financial plan. The financial planning fee will be a onetime flat fee to which the client agrees prior to the development of the financial plan.

Fees for asset management are separate from other expenses which may be incurred by the client including estate planning fees, legal fees, tax preparation fees, custodial fees, etc. Logia may also charge separate hourly fees for administrative functions, but such rates will be negotiated with the client in advance on a case by case basis.

Asset Management and Reporting

Logia will charge asset based fees that range from .10% to 1.0%. The fees will be charged monthly in arrears based on total assets under management (or based on total assets under management upon inception for new accounts). Partial months will be prorated. The fees, whether fixed or asset based, may be billed directly to the client or may be deducted directly from the client's account as agreed upon by both parties. Upon termination, clients will be refunded any unearned fees on a prorated basis according to the terms of the client agreement.

Logia Portfolio Management LLC

Fees for asset management and reporting are separate from other expenses which may be incurred by the client including trading costs, outside management fees, mutual fund operating expenses, custodial fees, etc.

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Logia does not charge performance-based fees (fees based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the assets of a client), and consequently does not simultaneously manage performance based and non-performance based accounts.

Item 7 – Types of Clients

Logia offers services to individuals, families, businesses, trusts, estates and charitable organizations. Logia also offers services to other registered investment advisors and to banks with trust powers or other trust organizations.

Logia requires a minimum client relationship of $500,000 for portfolio management services; however, this may be negotiable under certain circumstances.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Logia's general investment strategy is to use individual securities or exchange traded funds ("ETF's"), as well as, mutual funds or third party managers to fill asset class needs for the client. The analysis performed for passive strategies focuses on the ability to match the investment performance of an applicable benchmark while also managing the tax effect of long and short term gains.

Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Such risks include market risk, interest rate risk, currency risk, and political risk, among others.

There is also risk that exists in each part of the process that Logia performs. Asset allocation and manager selection requires forward looking assessments about the returns, turnover and correlations of the asset classes and the managers to their asset class as well as to each other. Actual returns and risk levels can deviate from those expected.

Logia does not engage in active trading with an attempt to "time" entry or exit from markets. In some cases, such timing calls may be made inside the portfolios of individual managers, but it should not be expected that the client will be insulated from losing money in periods of market decline. Conversely, it is possible that the client will not participate in all of the gains in asset classes where returns are positive.

Using a manager's model may exhibit different performance compared to a manager engaging in the direct trading of a client's account. For example, the model received by Logia may have already been acted upon which might impact the price paid for a particular security. . Some managers and all or some of their models may not be suitable for a model based arrangement with Logia.

No investment strategy can guarantee a profit or assure that losses are avoided.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to the evaluation of the firm or the integrity of its management. Logia is currently not subject to, nor has ever been subject to, any legal or disciplinary events of a material nature. Similarly, members of Logia's management are currently not subject to, nor have any of the members of Logia's management ever been subject to, any legal or disciplinary events of a material nature.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Neither the firm nor any of its management persons participate in any other financial industry activities nor have any other financial industry affiliations.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics

Code of Ethics

Logia has adopted a Code of Ethics expressing the firm's commitment to ethical conduct. Logia's Code of Ethics describes the firm's fiduciary duties and responsibilities to clients, and practices for reviewing the personal securities transactions of supervised persons with access to client information. The Code of Ethics also requires compliance with applicable securities laws, addresses insider trading, and covers possible disciplinary measures for violations.

Logia Portfolio Management LLC

Logia will provide a complete copy of its Code of Ethics to any current or prospective client upon request to the Chief Compliance Officer.

Trading Conflicts of Interest

Individuals associated with Logia are permitted to buy or sell securities for their personal accounts that are the same as those recommended to clients. However, no person employed by Logia is allowed to favor their own interest over that of a client or make personal investment decisions based on the investment decisions of advisory clients.

In order to address potential conflicts of interest, Logia requires that associated persons with access to advisory recommendations provide annual securities holdings reports and quarterly transaction reports to the firm's Chief Compliance Officer. Logia also requires prior approval from the Chief Compliance Officer for investing in any initial public offerings ("IPOs") or private placements (limited offerings).

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

The Custodian and Brokers We Use

Logia does not maintain custody of client assets. Instead, Logia requests that all client assets be maintained in an account at a “qualified custodian,” generally a broker-dealer or bank. Logia is affiliated with a custodian that operates as a Trust Company under National Bank powers. We provide investment advice to this Trust Company.

While we may recommend that a client use a particular custodian, each client will ultimately decide whether to do so and will open an account with that custodian or another custodian/broker by entering into an account agreement directly with them. We do not open accounts for clients with a custodian, although we can assist a client in doing so.

How We Select Custodians and Brokers

When recommending a custodian or broker for our clients, we consider many different factors including quality of service, types of services offered, overall capability, execution quality, competitiveness of transaction costs, reputation and stability of the firm, and their financial resources. In determining the reasonableness of a broker’s compensation, we consider the overall cost to the client relative to the benefits received, both directly and indirectly, from the broker.

Brokerage and Custody Costs

Our clients receive various services directly from the selected custodian. The selected custodian may charge separately for custody services by charging commissions or other fees on transactions in the client accounts they maintain. Fees applicable to each client account may be affected by the collective level of assets at the custodian. We feel that this commitment benefits the client because the overall rates paid may be lower than would otherwise be charged to an individual client account.

Since the selected custodian charges a fee for each trade, even if the trade is executed by a different broker-dealer, we may have the selected custodian execute most trades for client accounts in order to minimize client trading costs.

We agree that having the selected custodian execute most trades is consistent with our duty to seek “best execution” of trades on behalf of clients. Best execution means seeking the most favorable terms for a transaction based on all relevant factors, including those listed above.

Products and Services Available to Us from Brokers/Custodians

The recommended custodian provides us and our clients with access to its institutional brokerage services which include trading, custody, reporting, and related services, many of which are not typically available to retail customers. The custodian also makes available various support services, some of which may help us manage or administer our clients’ accounts, while others may help us manage our business.

The custodian also makes available to us other products and services that benefit us but may not directly benefit clients or their accounts. These products and services assist us in managing and administering our clients’ accounts. They can include investment research from the custodian and/or that of third parties. We may use this research to service all or a substantial number of our clients’ accounts, including accounts not maintained at our custodian. The custodian also makes available software and other technology that provide access to client account data, facilitate trade execution for multiple client accounts, provide pricing and other market data, facilitate payment of our fees from client accounts, and assist with back-office functions, recordkeeping, and client reporting.

The custodian also offers other services intended to help us manage and further develop our business. These services include educational conferences and events, consulting on technology, compliance, legal, and business needs, publications and conferences on practice management and business succession.

The availability of these services from the custodian benefits us because we do not have to produce or purchase them. Of course, this may give us an incentive to recommend that you maintain your account with the recommended custodian based on our interests rather than yours, which is a potential conflict of interest. We believe, however, that the selection of the recommended custodian is in the best interests of our clients, and is primarily supported by the scope, quality, and price of the custodian’s services and not the services that may only benefit our clients indirectly.

Aggregation of Transactions

Logia may recommend transactions in securities for clients which are customarily “bundled” when traded to facilitate more efficient management and cost. Where trades are bundled, participating client accounts will be treated equally.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

Reviews of Investment Management Accounts

Investment management accounts are supervised by the principals of Logia. Where we act as an advisor Logia will periodically, and at least annually, review each client's investment policy and risk profile, then discuss each client's account to the extent appropriate. Where we act as a sub-advisor we will contractually require that the advisor comply with their legal requirements.

Additional account reviews may be triggered by a specific client request, by a change in client goals or objectives, by an imbalance in a portfolio asset allocation, or by market or economic conditions.

All clients are advised that it remains their ongoing responsibility to advise Logia of any changes in their investment objectives and/or financial situation.

Regular Reports Provided to Clients

Investment management clients are provided with written account statements from their custodian on at least a quarterly basis which list account holdings and transactions for the period. Investment management clients may also be provided with written performance reports on an annual basis that detail current market value, performance relative to market benchmarks, and overall portfolio allocation. We urge our clients to carefully review custodial statements and compare to reports received from us.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Logia may pay other professional entities to refer clients to us via a Solicitor's Agreement. Such agreements are structured to be in compliance with applicable securities laws. Each client is provided a disclosure statement prior to or at the time of entering into any advisory contract which describes the specific compensation arrangement. Clients referred to Logia by outside parties do not pay additional fees in order to compensate outside solicitors. Instead, Logia pays outside solicitors from the fee we collect.

Item 15 – Custody

As mentioned above, we do not hold client assets but instead require that they be held by a third party “qualified custodian.” We may, however have limited control in some instances related to client assets. For example, related to investment accounts, we may be granted authority to trade on your behalf, to deduct our advisory fees from your accounts with your authorization, or to request disbursements to you. Related to non-investment accounts, we may be granted authority to provide cash management assistance including disbursements.

For all accounts however, you will receive account statements directly from your custodian(s) at least quarterly, which will be sent to the email or postal mailing address you provided. We urge you to carefully review these custodial statements when you receive them and to compare them to reports you receive from us.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

Logia will accept discretionary authority to manage securities accounts on behalf of clients, although Logia will also accept non-discretionary accounts.

When granted discretionary authority to manage client accounts, Logia customarily has the authority to determine the securities and the amounts that are bought or sold, and may have the authority to retain investment managers. However, any discretionary authority accepted by Logia is subject to the client's risk profile and investment objectives, and may be limited by the client in writing.

Logia will not exercise any discretionary authority until it has been given authority to do so in writing. Such authority is granted in the written agreement between Logia and the client, and in the written agreement with the third party custodian.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

As a matter of firm policy, Logia does not vote proxies on behalf of clients. You are solely responsible for receiving and voting proxies for securities which are held within your account. You will receive proxies directly from the custodian and/or transfer agent.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Registered investment advisers are required in some cases to provide certain financial information and or disclosures about their financial condition. For example, if the firm requires prepayment of fees for six months or more in advance, has custody of client funds, or has a condition that is reasonably likely to impair its ability to meet its contractual commitments to its clients, it must provide financial information and make disclosures.

Logia has no financial or operating conditions which trigger such additional reporting requirements.
