BROKERAGE ARRANGEMENTS

Threesixty Elements is responsible for the placement of the portfolio transactions of the clients' accounts. Portfolio securities normally are purchased through brokers on securities' exchanges or directly from the issuer or from an underwriter or market maker for the securities. Purchases of portfolio instruments through brokers involve a commission to the broker. Purchases of portfolio securities from dealers serving as market makers include the spread between the bid and the asked price. We may utilize the services of one or more introducing brokers who will execute the clients' brokerage transactions through the broker and custodian who will clear the clients' transactions.

Securities transactions for the clients will be executed through brokers selected by the client in its sole discretion and with the consent of the Threesixty Elements. We will seek to obtain the best execution for the client, taking into account the following factors:

- the ability to effect prompt and reliable executions at favorable prices (including the applicable dealer spread or commission, if any);
- the operational efficiency with which transactions are effected and the efficiency of error resolution;
- taking into account the size of order and difficulty of execution;
- the financial strength, integrity and stability of the broker;
- special execution capabilities;
- clearance;
- settlement;
- reputation;

- on-line access to computerized data regarding clients' accounts;
- performance measurement data;
- the quality, comprehensiveness and frequency of available research and related services considered to be of value;
- the competitiveness of commission rates in comparison with other.

Subject to the criteria of Section 28(e) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, Adviser may pay a brokerage commission in excess of that which another broker-dealer might have charged for executing the same transaction in recognition of the value of the brokerage and research services provided by the broker-dealer. In other words, Adviser may use "soft-dollars" to obtain investment research from broker-dealers who otherwise meet Adviser's selection criteria solely for the purpose of providing assistance to Adviser in the performance of its decision-making responsibilities. Research services provided by soft-dollar broker-dealers may include written reports, securities hardware and software, responses to specific inquiries and interviews with analysts. Most of these services will include additional statistics, analytical tools, and news used solely for portfolio management purposes. These services may also include invitations to meetings arranged by such soft-dollar broker-dealers with the management of companies whose securities may be held in client portfolios and in which clients may invest. Adviser believes it is important to its investment decision-making process to have access to this type of independent research. It is possible that research services received with respect to a particular transaction will not inure to the direct benefit of the client for which the transaction was made.

If a client directs Threesixty Elements, in writing, to effect transactions through a particular broker-dealer, it will do so. However, such an instruction may have negative implications for the client. Specifically, a client's account may incur transaction costs and commissions which are higher than if the instruction had not been given. Also, such an instruction will limit Adviser's ability to consider the judgmental factors described above when selecting a broker-dealer, and may limit Threesixty Elements' ability to bunch client orders with those of other clients, and to process the combined order through a single broker-dealer to obtain the best execution. Clients should consider the implications of any fiduciary laws applicable to them prior to designating a broker-dealer for execution of trades.

AGGREGATION OF ORDERS

Threesixty Elements may aggregate, or may direct any future subadviser to aggregate, purchase and sale orders of investments held by the Client with similar orders being made simultaneously for other accounts or entities if, in the Company's reasonable judgment, such aggregation is reasonably likely to result in an overall economic benefit to the Client based on an evaluation that the Client will be benefited by relatively better purchase or sale prices, lower commission expenses or beneficial timing of transactions, or a combination of these and other factors. In many instances, the purchase or sale of investments for the Client will be affected simultaneously with the purchase or sale of like investments for other accounts or entities. Such transactions may be made at slightly different prices, due to the volume of investments purchased or sold. In such event, the average price of all investments purchased or sold in such transactions may be determined, at the Investment Manager's sole discretion, and the Fund may be charged or credited, as the case may be, with the average transaction price.

When there is a conflict of interest between our interests and those of its clients, we will take one or more of the following steps to resolve the conflict: (1) vote the securities based on a pre-determined policy if the application of that policy to the matter presented to shareholders involves little discretion on the part of Threesixty Elements; (2) vote the securities in accordance with a pre-determined policy based upon the recommendations of an independent third party, such as a proxy voting service; (3) refer the proxy to the client or to a fiduciary of the client for voting purposes; (4) suggest that the client engage another party to determine how the proxy should be voted; or (5) disclose the conflict and obtain the client's consent or direction before voting. Upon request to Threesixty Elements, a client may obtain a copy of the Proxy Voting Policy and information on how the client's securities were voted.
